Dear Brethren:—I have been called to attend the funeral of my brother Levi, whose home is situated on the ridge of land called Pigeon Hill. He died April 29th, 1875. He has been a great sufferer from spinal disease, having been thrown from a carriage eight years ago. So death robs us of friends.

While there I spent a part of two days on the camp-ground, the place so dear to some of us, and where the Lord has been pleased to lead our minds into his glorious truth by his servants, who have declared his Word so faithfully. Many hearts have rejoiced in the truth, and have felt, like Peter, that it was good to be here.

It is my prayer that the Lord will still be with us on the old camp-ground, and manifest himself unto us as he doth not unto the world. Let us pray earnestly for his Spirit to lead and guide us into the path of duty. We need to gird on the whole armor, and stand up for the truth, that we may stand in the day of his coming.

Bro. George Strout has moved on to the camp-ground, and will care for it. The tents are all in good condition. May the Lord lead us, as he did Israel of old, through the wilderness into the promised land.

From L. B. Weaver.

Dear ones in Jesus:—My heart sighs for the land that is fairer than day. Lord, hasten the coming kingdom, is my prayer. I am suffering, yet patiently waiting for the coming of Jesus. I want to get home. There are sighs, tears, sorrows and death all over the land. The loved ones are falling, and some of God's dear shepherds of the flock are dropping, one by one. I am glad I have caught a glimpse of a better world, where none of these things come. What is there in this world to make us desire it to continue? When once the Master takes possession of our hearts, we shall not care for the vanities of the world. There will be no desire for joking and jesting, which are not convenient, neither christian like. It will grieve the true child of God to hear it.

O how much lack of earnestness there is in the cause of Jesus at the present day. Almost up to the judgment, and so little engagedness in the things of God; so little laboring for the careless sinners. If our friends were upon the brink of a terrible precipice, almost ready to step off, could we keep still? Should we not lift our voices in tones of love and pity, and tell them there was danger ahead? How much greater the danger of those who are unprepared to meet Christ! Must they rush as it were, blindfolded, to the bar of God, with none to tell them of the awful danger?

O ye who stand upon the walls of Zion, call loudly, cry mightily to the perishing; persuade them to be reconciled to God; to give up all for Jesus, and come to the ark.

DRESS.

C. HELMS.

As christians, we are required to do everything to the glory of God. Our first inquiry, then, in relation to dress should be, How can I glorify God in my apparel? I know of no other way than by making it answer just the end for which it was originally designed. In the third chapter of Genesis, we learn that the object of dress was to provide a decent covering for our bodies; which, I think, may be summed up in the following particulars: (1) A modest covering for our bodies. (2) A defence against the hostile elements. (3) An acknowledgment of our spiritual nakedness and exposure to the wrath of God, and our need to be clothed with the righteousness of Christ. Whenever we pervert it from these ends to the gratification of our pride or vanity, we not only do not glorify God therein, but we commit actual sin.

A few things are necessary to be observed in relation to our apparel. First, all that we have is the Lord's. We have nothing but what he has given us; and this we have solemnly promised to employ in his service. We have no right, therefore, needlessly to squander it upon our persons. The apostle Paul (1 Tim. 2 : 9) directs women to adorn themselves with modest apparel, and forbids the wearing of costly ornaments and jewelry. The apostle Peter also repeats the same exhortation.

The love of finery displayed by many in our congregations, some of whom are professors of religion, is directly at variance with these passages of Scripture. But if the Bible had been entirely silent on the subject I cannot see how christians could reconcile so much needless expense upon their persons with the spirit of benevolence which the gospel breathes, when so many are perishing without any knowledge of the only way of salvation, or while so many around us are suffering from penury and want. This is certainly contrary to the spirit of Christ. He who for our sakes became poor; who led a life of self-denial, toil and suffering, that he might relieve distress and make known the way of salvation, could never have needlessly expended upon his person what would have sent the gospel to the destitute or supplied the wants of poverty. Extravagance in dress is, therefore, obviously inconsistent with the christian character.

But, no precise rule can be laid down in relation to this matter. It must be left to the sober judgment of christians, and of propriety. By asking ourselves two or three questions, when we think of purchasing a new article of dress, we may very easily decide upon the path of duty. "Do I need this? Is it necessary for my comfort, or for my decent appearance in society? Can I glorify God in wearing it?

Second, our time is the Lord's. We have no right to waste it in needless attention to dress. One of the greatest evils of the present extravagant modes of dress is that so much precious time is consumed at the toilet. I need not here advance any new argument to show that, if we spend any more time than is necessary in the adjustment of our apparel, we sin against God.

Third, it is our duty to pay some regard to personal appearance. A christian, by appearing slatternly, brings reproach upon the cause of Christ, instead of glorifying God. The apostle enjoins upon women to adorn themselves with modest apparel. Modesty signifies purity of sentiment and manners. When this idea is applied to dress, it immediately suggests to the mind a neatness, taste and simplicity of dress, alike opposed both to extravagance and finery, and to negligence and vulgar coarseness.

Next we are to have a regard to health. It is our duty to use all proper means for the preservation of health. Among these means attention to dress is not the least important. Great care should always be taken that it be suited to the season, and a defence against the inclemency of the weather. This is a christian duty; and any pride of appearance or carelessness of habit which leads us to neglect it is sin.

Above all things, avoid the compression of any part of the body for the purpose of improving the appearance. This is a most pernicious practice. It is astonishing that intelligent people can so blindly follow the mandates of fashion as to indulge in a habit so destructive of comfort and life. I need use no argument to convince a christian that it is duty to avoid this species of conformity to the world. I can regard it in no other light than a palpable violation of the sixth commandment.

Once more: do not make too much of the matter of dress. It is our duty to avoid every species of conformity to the world which requires the sacrifice of religious principle. It does not appear that Christ, the apostles, nor the early christians, adopted any peculiarity of dress. There is such a thing as a pride of singularity; and this is often manifested in the preparation and adjustment of the wardrobe. Satan is ever on the alert to observe the bent of the mind, and carry it to extremes. Be not ignorant of his devices. Watch and pray, that you enter not into temptation.

OUR REFUGE.

I. AHLBORN.

Refuge art thou, Lord, in danger,
Fortress where thy people flee;
When the foes against us counsel,
Not in vain we call to thee.
Thou hast promised to deliver,
Yea, though all the world forsake;
And thou art to us a tower
That no enemy can take.

Blessed is the lot of Zion,
For Jehovah is her aid;
For he rules in Zion's battles,
And her foes retreat dismayed.
Ah! through him we yet shall conquer,
For his promise aid insures;
And though all as grass doth wither,
Yet the word of God endures.

THE SECOND COMING OF CHRIST.

SERMON BY REV. D. J. BURRELL, OF CHICAGO.

Scene: the Mount of Olives. Time: forty days after Christ's resurrection. A group of friends have come together by appointment to take a last farewell of their beloved Master. While waiting for his appearance they talk in low murmurs of the years that are past so eventful in toil, and suffering, and glorious promise. Down below them flows the brook Cedron; how often they had crossed it on their way to the sacred shadows of Gethsemane! In the distance are the homes and temples of Jerusalem. Whichever way they look is holy ground; the footprints of their Lord are on every path and hillside; and memories come crowding thick and fast upon the minds of the watchers of Olivet. But suddenly he stands before them!

"Peace be with you!" How eagerly they gaze upon the face that so recently was stained with blood and grave-mold! He renews the promise of the outpouring of the Spirit, and repeats the injunction "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel unto every creature!" They gather around him in love, and wonder, and reverence. He lifts his pierced hands in blessing, and slowly rises from their midst. "Earth has lost her power to keep, the waiting heavens claim him as their own. But still as he ascends through the yielding air his eyes are bent on these up-looking men."

"Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven?" Two men in white apparel are standing before them, and with these words they recall the followers of Christ from the contemplation of the voiceless skies to the demands of present duty. This is no seasonable hour for gazing upward; life with all its tasks and trials is before them. The world still shrouded in sin and darkness calls to them in the words of their great commission: "Go ye; preach the gospel!" Make bare your arms; thrust in the sickle; for, lo, the fields are white for the harvest! It is no time to be dreaming over the past, or seeking with curious eyes to pierce the veil behind which the Lord has disappeared. "Why gaze ye upward? This same Jesus who is taken up from you shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven!"

This, then is not his final departure. The green earth shall once more be trodden by the feet of Him who has vanished from their sight. But for this assurance, their hearts would have been exceeding sorrowful; as it was, they looked into each other's faces with the gladness of a new and glorious hope, and, murmuring, "He shall come again, he shall come again!" they went back to Jerusalem with great joy and were continually in the temple, praising and blessing God.

From this time onward a more hearty zeal is evident in the work of these early disciples; they have something to live and labor for. The disguised King who had breathed his life away amid the blood and darkness of Golgotha is coming again to take unto himself his great power—coming in the clouds of heaven, and all his holy angels with him! What strength and patience, what earnest of honor and victory, in the words with which they greet each other, "The day is at hand!" Why should they tremble at the rabbi's anathema, or the roaring of the beasts of the amphitheatre? The day is near at hand when the Lord shall avenge his own elect. In the not far-off future they see the throne of Israel rebuilt and occupied by One more splendidly arrayed than Solomon in all his glory, the eagles of hated Rome dragged in the dust, and God's armies treading their enemies under foot. No doubt they fully expected to see all this in their own day and generation; but in this they were doomed to be disappointed. Eighteen centuries have passed away since then, and still the eyes of the Lord's people are turned towards the clouds of heaven as they wait for his appearing.

Hope deferred maketh the heart sick; and many a time when the church has felt as bitterly as Israel in Egypt the lash of the hard task-master, a cry from the depths has gone upward: "How long, O Lord, how long? Come and make no tarrying." Yet still he waits, and the years go by and the ages with their slow-revolving wheels; and the eyes of the watchers grow weary, and the scornful words of the ancient unbeliever have worn at length upon the patience of the church, like the long dropping of water upon a stone, till christians, hoping against hope, begin to ask, "Where is the promise of his appearing?" It is nothing unusual for learned men to assert that the long-hoped-for advent of the Lord Jesus is to be merely a spiritual manifestation; that is, that he will not come visibly, but rather by the exercise of saving grace, and the power of his spirit in the salvation of souls. This, however, is a poor equivalent for the glorious hope of the early church which led them to believe that one day the clouds would separate and Christ would come in like manner as he was taken up into heaven.

This word of promise, uttered with no uncertain sound, and oft-repeated, admits of no question or peradventure. He shall so come in like manner as he was taken up; they saw him go, and they shall see him come. Then shall appear the sign of the Son of man in heaven, and he shall come with power and great glory. We have not followed cunningly-devised fables when we made known unto you the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but were eye-witnesses of his majesty. So Peter warns the disciples that scoffers would appear in the latter day saying "Where is the promise of his coming?" And to meet this objection, he reminds them how the deluge was long delayed, but came at last when men were no longer looking for it; reminds them also that with God a thousand years are as one day, and one day as a thousand years; and repeats the assurance that when the day of the Lord does come it will come as a thief in the night.

From this it is evident that the apostles and early christians fully believed in the advent of the Lord Jesus, and that his coming would be in person, visible and glorious. This article of faith was ever before them, and they urged it upon the attention of all believers as a motive to patience and gladness, and holy living. "There is laid up for me a crown," says Paul, now "ready to be offered"—"a crown which the righteous Judge shall give me at that day, and not to me only, but unto all them that love his appearing." If this testimony of the apostles be taken in connection with the promise of the "two men in shining apparel," and with the many unequivocal words of Christ himself, then, brethren, we may look to the skies with a confident hope that in the fulness of time the man Christ Jesus shall, through them, come in person, to reign King over all, and blessed forevermore.

The world that saw him robed in the cast-off purple of a Roman magistrate, crowned with thorns, scourged, spit upon, buffeted, fainting under the burden of a cross, and "lifted up" to die in shame and agony, will yet see him robed in the white raiment of heaven, and crowned with the diadem of the universe. The clouds that mourned in sackcloth when the quivering limbs of the dying Christ were still, shall gather their brightest hosts together for the throne and canopy of him who is alive again and liveth forevermore. The legion of angels that hovered in the darkness over Calvary, and mourned because they might not tear their dying King from his cross, shall throng his chariot wheels and cry, "Prepare ye, prepare ye the way of the Lord, for behold he cometh, and all nations shall fear before him." And the Christ who wandered, footsore and homeless, over the hills of Galilee, shall reign upon the same earth in light and glory that is unapproachable. The same earth, and yet not the same; for it shall be made ready for his appearing. Instead of the thorn shall come up the fir tree, and instead of the briar shall come the myrtle tree, and all the trees of the field shall clap their hands, and the hills shall break forth before him into singing. The last remnant of the curse shall have been swept away. The wicked shall have been suddenly removed by the death-angel to their own place; and the saints, "caught up into the air" during the great conflagration, shall descend again in the grand triumphal advent to reign with Christ a thousand years. This is the picture that was ever before the mind's eye of the ancient disciples. Nor was it a mere hopeful dream. Its brightest colors were caught from the visions of prophets and apostles.

Oh, brethren, if we did but realize that all this is coming, is not afar off, our short-lived day would be crowded with duties that must needs be wrought before the setting sun, and our life would seem like that passover night when Israel stood, girt and sandaled, with staff in hand ready for the journey of deliverance. But the watch-word of the early church, "The time draweth near," falls upon our ears, dulled with long listening, like an idle oft-told tale. The oil of faith which the saints provided for their lamps when the words of promise were spoken so long ago has been well-nigh exhausted; but this also was foretold. "When the Son of man cometh shall he find faith on the earth?" It is one of the signs of the near approach when the foolish virgins lie asleep with "their lamps gone out." Darker and darker must grow the night of unbelief, till at midnight the great cry will be heard by all people, "Behold, the Bridegroom cometh!"

The one thing needful is devotion to present duty. Let our loins be girded about and our lights burning, and we ourselves like men that wait for the coming of their Lord, that when he cometh and knocketh we may open unto him immediately. And if he shall come in the second watch or in the third watch, and find us so, "blessed are those servants." Be ye therefore ready, for the Son of man cometh at an hour when ye think not. The man who is living a life of faith in the Son of God is the man whose loins are girded, and whose light is burning. Fitness for his appearing does not imply angelic perfection; it requires no man to retire into solitude and wear ascension robes. Why stand ye gazing up into heaven? The voice of duty calls our eyes away from the clouds to scenes of guilt and sorrow, to the patience of hope, and the labor of love, to a life of doing and suffering for Jesus' sake. Why stand ye gazing upward? Go preach the gospel unto every creature. Happy is the man who at the Lord's appearing shall be found in the act of feeding the hungry with the bread of life, or putting a cup of cold water to the lips of the least of his little ones. Busied thus, if his Lord come in the second watch or in the third watch, he is ever ready to open unto him immediately.

And, friends, let us lose none of the gladness of our hope by reason of our Lord's long waiting. For yet a little while, and He that shall come will come and will not tarry. Though it be not right to stand gazing upward all the day long, yet the soul may often be refreshed by an upward glance at the skies. Perhaps these very fleshly eyes of ours shall one day see the parting of those clouds, for who can discern the signs of the times, who can tell how nearly the "little while" is ended, who knoweth the day or the hour? Under the frost of winter the roots of herb and tree, unseen by human eyes, are ever preparing for the approach of spring. So the mysterious forces of history, its wars, and tumults, and confusions, visible only to the sight of the omniscient God, are weaving the banner for the great triumphal advent of the king. The years to us pass slowly, but with him they are flying like a weaver's shuttle; and ever and anon his voice is heard, "Be patient, weary souls, a thousand years are one day; and behold I come quickly." In this there is hope, and strength, and comfort, for all christian hearts; for the day of the Lord will be for his people as for himself a day of triumph and coronation. "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that when He shall appear we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is. And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure." Therefore let us not sleep as do others, but let us watch and be sober. Once he came as the slow-dawning light, yet once again will he come as the lightning. Watch, for ye know not when the Master cometh, at even, or at midnight, or at the cock-crowing, or in the morning. And he that testifieth these things saith, surely, I come quickly. Amen. Even so come Lord Jesus.—Restitution.

PERFECT LOVE.

When the heart is cleansed from all pollution, and entirely sanctified, love to God reigns exclusively. The Holy Spirit is possessed in measure to the extent of the soul's capacity, and in this sense is enjoyed in its fulness. Hence all the graces of the Spirit exist in perfection, not in measure, but in kind; in quality and in measure corresponding to the present capacity and necessity of the soul.

Having been cleansed from all unholiness, and "filled with the Spirit," the graces exist in the soul without alloy, or antagonism, and it is complete in Christ, who of God is made to him, "wisdom, righteousness, sanctification, and redemption." Grace and truth having expelled everything opposed to God from the soul, it becomes truly "dead unto sin and alive unto God through our Lord Jesus Christ." In this state, the individual lives and walks in the Spirit, which, as Dr. McKnight observes in his commentary on the fifth chapter of Galatians, says: "It is love to God and men; joy occasioned by that excellent affection; peace with all men; the patient bearing of injuries, a soft, sweet manner of speaking; a beneficent disposition; fidelity to engagements, promises and trusts; calmness under persecution; temperance in the use of meats and drinks."

How blessed and desirable such a religious state; that we may be joyful in God, greatly useful in life, and present to the world the clearest and most convincing specimens of the moral workmanship of our great Redeemer.

What a privilege, and what a duty! And I will add what a fearful responsibility! The fruit of the Spirit in the entirely sanctified soul is unmixed, without any opposite, or opposition within itself. Mark, I did not say it has no opposition from without; but it has none within itself; all is pure, and right, and friendly to God there. In the one thus saved, there are constantly, perfect love, perfect peace, perfect long suffering, perfect gentleness, perfect meekness, and perfect humility. Perfect in kind, but limited in degree to the capacity of the soul. The capacity and powers of the subjects of this great salvation are capable of expansion and enlargement, the fruit of the Spirit increases in volume and power from day to day, and from year to year, nay, even from the time they receive it until they die.

Hallelujah, to the great God! Jesus dwells and reigns in every pure heart without a rival; and his fire springs up into everlasting life. Is it a wonder that it is written, out of their hearts shall flow "rivers of living water?"

Bless the Lord! So long as the entirely sanctified remain steadfast in the faith, the flesh, with its affections and impure lusts, is dead, and they do not commit in any sense "adultery or fornication," or "idolatry," or "witchcraft," or "hatred," or "variance," or "emulation," or "wrath," or "strife," or "sedition," or "heresy," or "envyings," or "murder," or "drunkenness," or such like. They are saved from all these works of the flesh in being cleansed from inbred sin by the blood of Jesus, and by being filled and kept by the Holy Ghost. They do not, as is common with those in but a partially purified state, overcome inbred sin, and keep it under, but have salvation from it. It is neither chained nor held in subjection, but exterminated, cast out and dead. Hence the war within has ceased.—Christian Standard.

"OUR FATHER."

GEO. W. HOWARD.

When the disciples said to Jesus—"Lord, teach us to pray," he said unto them, "When ye pray, say, Our Father which art in heaven, hallowed be thy name." Jesus also taught the woman, saying, "God is a spirit, and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth." "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven." Paul said—"Without faith it is impossible to please him; for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him."

Have we ever thought, dear reader, while we thus approach God in prayer, that, if God be our Father, we must keep his commandments? Some people argue that God is the Father of all mankind, whether obedient or disobedient; but Jesus said to the Jews, "If God were your Father, ye would love me. . . . . Ye are of your Father the devil." Jesus also said—"The tares are the children of the wicked one." Paul said of Elymas, the sorcerer—"Thou child of the devil." John said—"He that committeth sin is of the devil." "In this the children of God are manifest and the children of the devil. Whosoever doeth not righteousness is not of God; neither he that loveth not his brother." "Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his."

We see from the foregoing scriptures that the unconverted have no claim on God as their Father. God loves sinners, and is ready to adopt them into the heavenly family; but we become "the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus."

Paul, speaking to the Corinthians, said—"Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers; for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness; and what communion hath light with darkness. . . . . Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you, and will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty." "He that overcometh shall inherit all things, and I will be his God, and he shall be my son." "For ye have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear; but ye have received the spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father. The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit that we are the children of God. And if children, then heirs; heirs of God and joint-heirs with Christ; if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together."

It was told Jesus on one occasion that his mother and brethren were without, desiring to see him. "But he answered and said unto him that told him, Who is my mother? and who are my brethren? And he stretched forth his hand toward his disciples, and said, Behold my mother and my brethren. For whosoever shall do the will of my Father which is in heaven, the same is my brother, and sister, and mother."

Dear reader, although you may be a stranger to God and an alien from the commonwealth of Israel, be assured that Jesus died to redeem you. God calls after you. "The Spirit and the bride say, Come. And let him that heareth say, Come. And let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely." Come now to Jesus. Do not delay longer. The Master is coming. The signs betoken his speedy approach. Then hasten. Tarry not in all the plain lest thou be consumed. May God preserve us unto his heavenly kingdom.

LIFE AND DEATH.

J. F. MARQUAND.

"I have set before you life and death."

There are but two questions growing out of the Scriptures; the one is life, the other is death. God is the author of life. Death is the wages of sin. Man is called upon to choose which road he will take,—the one that leads to life, to happiness and God; or the road that leads to vice, sorrow, anguish, and death. How wonderful is the long suffering, compassion, and mercy of God to fallen man, to open up a way to glory, honor, immortality, eternal life, and condescend to invite his acceptance of the same; but man, fickle, vain, and unbelieving, refuses to listen or comply with God's easy terms. How can we account for this apathy and unconcern; this unwillingness to come to the light, and embrace the truth (which makes free) and obey its dictates? How can we account for the fact that men prefer darkness and death, rather than virtue and life? Why was it necessary for God to hold up life before the people continually, from Adam down to our times? Because man was a sinner and under the penalty of death. This was the burden of patriarchs, prophets, apostles and martyrs for six thousand years. Turn from the ways of death, and seek life. This was the language of the Nazarene. "I am come that they may have life, and that they may have it more abundantly." "I am the resurrection and the life." "Ye will not come unto me that ye may have life." "I am the way, the truth, and the life." "If thou wouldst enter into life, keep the commandments." This principle of life is like its author, pure, holy, and full of energy. It is the opposite of sin and death. It comes through the power of the Holy Spirit, and quickens and vitalizes the man, and makes him a new creature; fills with love and pity, makes the heart tender, hopeful, confiding, and gentle. It is from above, and while it is peaceable, easy to be entreated, it is full of mercy and good works.

Some persons say that these blessings of the Spirit do not come until Christ comes, and thus put them in the future. We say, enlist in the cause and army of God, and you will get your new clothes, and the bounty money; or, in other words, the earnest of the Spirit, and your heart will be made glad and joyous. Give yourself wholly to God to be his forever, through good and evil report, in adversity or prosperity. Follow the example of all the saints of past ages, who have made a full consecration, and not flinched in the day of trial. The man or woman who endures trials and temptations, and hopes against hope, relying on the word and strength of the Omnipotent, shall prosper.

Let us be determined, resolute and brave in the service of God, and fight the good battle of faith. What is the difference between a true christian, and one that is not? The true christian has a principle of life, or divinity, within him, and keeps his soul in peace and quietness; while he endeavors to do all the will of God, as it is made known to him, and carries out the law of love to all mankind. The law of God is to him meat and drink, and an abiding reality. After a time, he becomes rooted and grounded in the truth, which makes him free, and produces sanctification and full assurance of faith. But an impenitent man, or woman, is like the troubled sea, which cannot rest; full of confusion and unrest, tossed to and fro with every wind of doctrine and the cunning intrigues of men. They are never satisfied or contented, but are full of complaining and murmuring. All such persons had better go to the fountain of life, and ask for a new heart and a new spirit, and persevere until they get it. Like the importunate widow, go often to God for help and strength, and plead his promises, which are in Christ Jesus unto eternal glory. Did you ever hear of any one who was in earnest who was sent away without a blessing? Never, never. The story of the little boy whom his mother told to ask God for a new heart is in point. He prayed many times for a new heart, but did not get it, until he thought of a new idea. He would ask God as he asked his mother sometimes; so he said, "Please, God, give Johnny a new heart," and then he got it as soon as he was in earnest. O the sweet simplicity and artlessness of childhood. "Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye cannot enter into the kingdom of God."

INDIVIDUAL EFFORT.

There is a folly abroad in the land. Because organized effort is in very many cases advantageous, people have gone deft over it. Organization has become a hobby, and in many instances a curse, an incubus that sadly needs to be shaken off. The land is afloat with the flood of societies. Portentously long is the list of their officers and directors and members and honorary members; and great is the show which they make upon paper. Many of these bodies use nearly their whole resources, both financial and personal, in keeping their own machinery oiled and running—actually accomplishing less outside work than a single earnest christian could easily do. And the partners in ownership of these benevolent toy engines delude themselves with the idea that by keeping the thing in motion they are actually doing something. They forget that the one hundredth part of nothing is a small credit to one's account as partner in the concern. A small boy with a hand-cart will certainly transport more goods than a train of the company's cars, provided the latter can only get up sufficient energy to whistle and make a smoke.

Imagine a piece a work to need doing, a job of grading, a thousand tons of earth to be moved a short distance. Let us consider two different methods of doing the work. Ten good, resolute men with wheelbarrows may undertake it. They need not elect a president, nor even a secretary. Let each man elect for himself a smooth, bright shovel, and, entirely without ceremony, pitch into the work. It is not even essential that the men should all be of the same political party. They may even speak different languages, and yet the work go on. Only an earnest mind to work is needed; and in ten days or so the work will be done. On the other hand, a great car capable of moving ten tons at a load may be built. It will take several weeks to build the car, to be sure, but then this will be doing the thing in a style worthy of a progressive age. Let it be built, and decked with flags and streamers. Let a thousand people swarm around it, push at the wheels, tug at the ropes, and fill the air with shouting. It will enable a great many lazy people to feel (and very cheaply) the thrilling sensation of being engaged in doing something. Instead of a paltry bank of sand wheeled ignominiously into a gully, we have a great and beneficent public work, monopolizing public attention, and reflecting glory upon the manager and his three dozen official subordinates. But, alack-a-day! when we come to estimate means and results in cold figures the exhibit does not look well. At its best estate the great car can not be loaded, moved to its destination, emptied and tugged back again, in less than an hour; that is to say, moving a hundred tons a day, and requiring ten days to finish the work. Divers mishaps and runnings off the track lengthen out these ten days to fourteen. Thus we have three weeks' preparation, a heavy cash outlay, and fourteen thousand days' work—to accomplish what the contemptible wheelbarrows would do with a hundred days' work.

To point the moral without further verbiage, a very great proportion of all the work God has for us to do is best done—far best—by earnest individual effort; not, to be sure, disregarding and antagonizing other servants of the Master, but each laboring mainly upon his own responsibility.

It is to be feared that the preference for organizations arises partly from real covetousness. A man who, if he had concentrated most of his effort upon a work which he had made specially his own, would feel impelled to spend a thousand dollars a year upon it; he, by interesting himself in forty different society works, helping some more, some less—to an average of five dollars each—persuades himself that he has done a great deal of christian service, when he has only given one fifth of the sum which his heart would otherwise have bidden him give. The self-deception may not, after all, be very complete. The mind looking with one eye upon the long list of respectable donations, and with the other upon the eight hundred dollars comfortably nestling in the pocket-book, says, Organization is a great thing. It is true that not a very large proportion of christians have means sufficient to give a thousand dollars a year, but the same mischief may work to a certain extent in those of less resources.

The renewed heart attains to a desire to come into the closest and most intimate relations with the Master's service. The unrenewed heart begs, as a last boon, to be allowed to buy off from personal connection with the matter; it will consent to decorously serve the Lord by proxy, but not to go itself personally into the vineyard. A man of the latter class would hardly buy five dollars' worth of Bibles, and give them himself to the persons who ought to receive them; he would greatly prefer to give five dollars to the Society, and have the thing off his mind. Would we respond to the invitation of a dear friend by proxy? Who would wish to send by proxy the kiss of affection? What mother would prefer to send by the lips of a stranger a reproof to her wayward child? Organized work must be to a great extent proxy work. Heartlessly, soullessly, perfunctorily done much of it will be; and much of it thanklessly, grumblingly received. To feel gratitude, respect and affection for a mere corporation is really not an easy matter. This curse of proxy is not reason for abandoning christian work which cannot well be done by direct contact between actor and recipient; it is reason, and weighty reason, for preferring direct methods when they are available.

But, says one, if such sentiments as these are generally accepted, the practical result will be disastrous. The most worthy societies, having in charge work of vital character, work which cannot be done by organized individuals, will be crippled if not destroyed, if every christian seeks an individual field. The writer thinks not; he judges that if every christian should seek an individual field, as well as increasing very greatly the actual total of work done, the sums received by worthy and needful societies would also increase. The crumbs that fall from a devoted christian man's table are more, by twelve baskets full, than the entire repast of the worldly-minded professor. The expenditure of considerable sums in one cherished line of service accustoms a person to liberal giving, and is one of the best possible antidotes for covetousness. And there are few followers of Jesus that do not greatly need a deep and thorough course of discipline to exterminate the roots of covetousness from their hearts. A man resolves on a little rest and recreation, and buys a ticket for a railway trip. With what mental calmness and easy indifference he makes this expenditure of a number of dollars! Motives of duty constrain him to spend a similar sum for the Master, and how different his mood! A mental and moral perturbation, absurdly out of proportion to the sum involved, agitates him. Why should it? Evidently he is undisciplined in benevolence. Once get the hearts of those who profess Christ warmed and unlocked, and the treasury of Christ is not going to remain empty. The idler in the vineyard, who gave twenty-five cents at the call of the society's collector, will give a dollar after having given himself to some other department of the work.

Organized bodies differ from each other in almost every possible point and degree as to their utility, needfulness, economy, honesty and ability; as to the practicability or otherwise of the objects aimed at; and as to the scriptural or unscriptural methods in which these objects are pursued. Let each be judged according to its deeds; it were great folly to judge them promiscuously. If any disciple chooses for himself as his chief service the support of some worthy society, his choice is to be respected. Let him make sure that his bounty is well applied—and applied in accordance with the Lord's directions—and then strive earnestly to make that bounty as large as practicable. Whether taking hold with many others in an organization, or taking hold alone of some important work, or taking hold informally with one or more who have opened a good work before him, it is urged that the christian worker limit himself chiefly to few lines of effort. In worldly business men follow one calling with success, but if they attempt a dozen callings at once, failure is very probable. The same principles apply, to a great extent to the Lord's work. To guard against a narrow and contracted spirit, as well as to avoid the charge of indifference to worthy causes other than his favorite one, the disciple should divide some portion of his bounty among the multitude of seemingly proper calls. If his chosen cause is one which can not give him personal work to do, but only receive and apply his money, he will need something in addition which can supply this deficiency. Cash alone will not support the luxuriant spiritual growth which should distinguish the devoted servant of Jesus.

It does not follow that individual effort must be out of harmony and out of connection with the work of other individuals, like a cog wheel disjoined from its fellows in the machine. There is such a thing as cogging things too much. It was at first supposed that a locomotive must be connected with the track on which it ran by cog-work. It travels much better without any such connection. More independence is good for it. If religion were false, if there were no Spirit of God indwelling in every member of the mystic body of Christ, to direct it, then indeed every thing must be exactly and firmly organized to prevent hiatus and collision; but, now that God rules, they who walk near to him scarcely need binding with bands; they become like the two hands, which, without chain or ratchet or cog to hold them, utterly refuse to move in contrary circles. Such co-operation as will naturally grow up between servants of the Master engaged in similar work has the good effect of organization without the evil. A few warm hearts meet and establish a prayer-meeting; they have no organized form, and need none. A half dozen servants of Christ assemble a Sunday school; probably they do adopt a constitution, etc.; but they will hardly realize much practical benefit from it, and will perhaps even forget what its provisions are. A sick neighbor needs watchers, and those whose hearts are moved to that duty apportion the time among themselves, and supply the need without even the thought of forming a benevolent society. A family of the worthy poor need help. A. discovers the fact, and mentions it to his friends. B. suggests C. as a proper person to receive donations for them. D. and E. offer clothing; F. G. and H. offer provisions; A. B. and C. make such additions as the circumstances require, and the affair is finished and dismissed, without encumbering the world with the half-living dry bones of another society. Even the need, usually urgent, and usually also supplied with difficulty, religious supervision of the efforts and condition of individuals, does not absolutely demand an organization to supply it. In a course of patient waiting upon God, the proper person grows naturally into the place and the others grow as naturally into the acceptance of his service. The servant picked out by machinery for this difficult service is quite likely to be one not well fitted for the work. Christian union, and the unity of Christian labor, must come from within rather than from without.—The Free Word.

DARKENING OF THE SUN.

Brn. Editors:—The following is the close of the 15th chapter of Gibbon (the so-called skeptic author), in which his record of the darkness at the crucifixion so exactly harmonizes with that of the Bible, that I think it worthy of a place in the columns of the Crisis, and send it verbatim. J. DAVIS.

"But how shall we excuse the supine inattention of the pagan and philosophic world to those evidences which were represented by the hand of Omnipotence, not to their reason, but to their senses? During the age of Christ, of his apostles, and of their first disciples, the doctrine which they preached was confirmed by innumerable prodigies. The lame walked, the blind saw, the sick were healed, the dead were raised, demons were expelled, and the laws of nature were frequently suspended for the benefit of the church. But the sages of Greece and Rome turned aside from the awful spectacle, and, pursuing the ordinary occupations of life and study, appeared unconscious of any alterations in the moral or physical government of the world.

Under the reign of Tiberius the whole earth, or at least a celebrated province of the Roman empire, was involved in a preternatural darkness of three hours. Even this miraculous event, which ought to have excited the wonder, the curiosity, and the devotion of mankind, passed without notice in an age of science and history. It happened during the lifetime of Seneca and the elder Pliny, who must have experienced the immediate effects, or received the earliest intelligence, of the prodigy. Each of these philosophers, in a laborious work, has recorded all the great phenomena of nature—earthquakes, meteors, comets, and eclipses—which his indefatigable curiosity could collect. Both the one and the other have omitted to mention the greatest phenomenon to which the mortal eye has been witness since the creation of the globe.

A distinct chapter of Pliny is designed for eclipses of an extraordinary nature and unusual duration; but he contents himself with describing the singular defect of light which followed the murder of Cæsar, when, during the greatest part of a year, the orb of the sun appeared pale and without splendor. This season of obscurity, which cannot surely be compared with the preternatural darkness of the Passion, had been already celebrated by most of the poets and historians of that memorable age."—Gibbon.

IT is not the mere daily routine of praying for certain things that will obtain the blessing. But there must also be the need within, and the real filial asking of God the things which we need, and which he delights to give

OUR REFUGE.

I. AHLBORN.

Refuge art thou, Lord, in danger,
Fortress where thy people flee;
When the foes against us counsel,
Not in vain we call to thee.
Thou hast promised to deliver,
Yes, though all the world forsake;
And thou art to us a tower
That no enemy can take.

Blessed is the lot of Zion,
For Jehovah is her aid;
For he rules in Zion's battles,
And her foes retreat dismayed.
Ah! through him we yet shall conquer,
For his promise aid insures;
And though all as grass doth wither,
Yet the word of God endures.

THE SECOND COMING OF CHRIST.

Scene: the Mount of Olives. Time: forty days after Christ's resurrection. A group of friends have come together by appointment to take a last farewell of their beloved Master. While waiting for his appearance they talk in low murmurs of the years that are past so eventful in toil, and suffering, and glorious promise. Down below them flows the brook Cedron; how often they had crossed it on their way to the sacred shadows of Gethsemane! In the distance are the homes and temples of Jerusalem. Whichever way they look is holy ground; the footprints of their Lord are on every path and hillside; and memories come crowding thick and fast upon the minds of the watchers of Olivet. But suddenly he stands before them!

"Peace be with you!" How eagerly they gaze upon the face that so recently was stained with blood and grave-mold! He renews the promise of the outpouring of the Spirit, and repeats the injunction "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel unto every creature!" They gather around him in love, and wonder, and reverence. He lifts his pierced hands in blessing, and slowly rises from their midst. "Earth has lost her power to keep, the waiting heavens claim him as their own. But still as he ascends through the yielding air his eyes are bent on these up-looking men."

"Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven?" Two men in white apparel are standing before them, and with these words they recall the followers of Christ from the contemplation of the voiceless skies to the demands of present duty. This is no seasonable hour for gazing upward; life with all its tasks and trials is before them. The world still shrouded in sin and darkness calls to them in the words of their great commission: "Go ye; preach the gospel!" Make bare your arms; thrust in the sickle; for, lo, the fields are white for the harvest! It is no time to be dreaming over the past, or seeking with curious eyes to pierce the veil behind which the Lord has disappeared. "Why gaze ye upward? This same Jesus who is taken up from you shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven!"

This, then is not his final departure. The green earth shall once more be trodden by the feet of Him who has vanished from their sight. But for this assurance, their hearts would have been exceeding sorrowful; as it was, they looked into each other's faces with the gladness of a new and glorious hope, and, murmuring, "He shall come again, he shall come again!" they went back to Jerusalem with great joy and were continually in the temple, praising and blessing God.

From this time onward a more hearty zeal is evident in the work of these early disciples; they have something to live and labor for. The disguised King who had breathed his life away amid the blood and darkness of Golgotha is coming again to take unto himself his great power—coming in the clouds of heaven, and all his holy angels with him! What strength and patience, what earnest of honor and victory, in the words with which they greet each other, "The day is at hand!" Why should they tremble at the rabbi's anathema, or the roaring of the beasts of the amphitheatre? The day is near at hand when the Lord shall avenge his own elect. In the not far-off future they see the throne of Israel rebuilt and occupied by One more splendidly arrayed than Solomon in all his glory, the eagles of hated Rome dragged in the dust, and God's armies treading their enemies under foot. No doubt they fully expected to see all this in their own day and generation; but in this they were doomed to be disappointed. Eighteen centuries have passed away since then, and still the eyes of the Lord's people are turned towards the clouds of heaven as they wait for his appearing.

Hope deferred maketh the heart sick; and many a time when the church has felt as bitterly as Israel in Egypt the lash of the hard task-master, a cry from the depths has gone upward: "How long, O Lord, how long? Come and make no tarrying." Yet still he waits, and the years go by and the ages with their slow-revolving wheels; and the eyes of the watchers grow weary, and the scornful words of the ancient unbeliever have worn at length upon the patience of the church, like the long dropping of water upon a stone, till christians, hoping against hope, begin to ask, "Where is the promise of his appearing?" It is nothing unusual for learned men to assert that the long-hoped-for advent of the Lord Jesus is to be merely a spiritual manifestation; that is, that he will not come visibly, but rather by the exercise of saving grace, and the power of his spirit in the salvation of souls. This, however, is a poor equivalent for the glorious hope of the early church which led them to believe that one day the clouds would separate and Christ would come in like manner as he was taken up into heaven.

This word of promise, uttered with no uncertain sound, and oft-repeated, admits of no question or peradventure. He shall so come in like manner as he was taken up; they saw him go, and they shall see him come. Then shall appear the sign of the Son of man in heaven, and he shall come with power and great glory. We have not followed cunningly-devised fables when we made known unto you the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but were eye-witnesses of his majesty. So Peter warns the disciples that scoffers would appear in the latter day saying "Where is the promise of his coming?" And to meet this objection, he reminds them how the deluge was long delayed, but came at last when men were no longer looking for it; reminds them also that with God a thousand years are as one day, and one day as a thousand years; and repeats the assurance that when the day of the Lord does come it will come as a thief in the night.

From this it is evident that the apostles and early christians fully believed in the advent of the Lord Jesus, and that his coming would be in person, visible and glorious. This article of faith was ever before them, and they urged it upon the attention of all believers as a motive to patience and gladness, and holy living. "There is laid up for me a crown," says Paul, now "ready to be offered"—"a crown which the righteous Judge shall give me at that day, and not to me only, but unto all them that love his appearing." If this testimony of the apostles be taken in connection with the promise of the "two men in shining apparel," and with the many unequivocal words of Christ himself, then, brethren, we may look to the skies with a confident hope that in the fulness of time the man Christ Jesus shall, through them, come in person, to reign King over all, and blessed forevermore.

The world that saw him robed in the cast-off purple of a Roman magistrate, crowned with thorns, scourged, spit upon, buffeted, fainting under the burden of a cross, and "lifted up" to die in shame and agony, will yet see him robed in the white raiment of heaven, and crowned with the diadem of the universe. The clouds that mourned in sackcloth when the quivering limbs of the dying Christ were still, shall gather their brightest hosts together for the throne and canopy of him who is alive again and liveth forevermore. The legion of angels that hovered in the darkness over Calvary, and mourned because they might not tear their dying King from his cross, shall throng his chariot wheels and cry, "Prepare ye, prepare ye the way of the Lord, for behold he cometh, and all nations shall fear before him." And the Christ who wandered, footsore and homeless, over the hills of Galilee, shall reign upon the same earth in light and glory that is unapproachable. The same earth, and yet not the same; for it shall be made ready for his appearing. Instead of the thorn shall come up the fir tree, and instead of the briar shall come the myrtle tree, and all the trees of the field shall clap their hands, and the hills shall break forth before him into singing. The last remnant of the curse shall have been swept away. The wicked shall have been suddenly removed by the death-angel to their own place; and the saints, "caught up into the air" during the great conflagration, shall descend again in the grand triumphal advent to reign with Christ a thousand years. This is the picture that was ever before the mind's eye of the ancient disciples. Nor was it a mere hopeful dream. Its brightest colors were caught from the visions of prophets and apostles.

Oh, brethren, if we did but realize that all this is coming, is not afar off, our short-lived day would be crowded with duties that must needs be wrought before the setting sun, and our life would seem like that passover night when Israel stood, girt and sandaled, with staff in hand ready for the journey of deliverance. But the watch-word of the early church, "The time draweth near," falls upon our ears, dulled with long listening, like an idle oft-told tale. The oil of faith which the saints provided for their lamps when the words of promise were spoken so long ago has been well-nigh exhausted; but this also was foretold. "When the Son of man cometh shall he find faith on the earth?" It is one of the signs of the near approach when the foolish virgins lie asleep with "their lamps gone out?" Darker and darker must grow the night of unbelief, till at midnight the great cry will be heard by all people, "Behold, the Bridegroom cometh!"

The one thing needful is devotion to present duty. Let our loins be girded about and our lights burning, and we ourselves like men that wait for the coming of their Lord, that when he cometh and knocketh we may open unto him immediately. And if he shall come in the second watch or in the third watch, and find us so, "blessed are those servants." Be ye therefore ready, for the Son of man cometh at an hour when ye think not. The man who is living a life of faith in the Son of God is the man whose loins are girded, and whose light is burning. Fitness for his appearing does not imply angelic perfection; it requires no man to retire into solitude and wear ascension robes. Why stand ye gazing up into heaven? The voice of duty calls our eyes away from the clouds to scenes of guilt and sorrow, to the patience of hope, and the labor of love, to a life of doing and suffering for Jesus' sake. Why stand ye gazing upward? Go preach the gospel unto every creature. Happy is the man who at the Lord's appearing shall be found in the act of feeding the hungry with the bread of life, or putting a cup of cold water to the lips of the least of his little ones. Busied thus, if his Lord come in the second watch or in the third watch, he is ever ready to open unto him immediately.

And, friends, let us lose none of the gladness of our hope by reason of our Lord's long waiting. For yet a little while, and He that shall come will come and will not tarry. Though it be not right to stand gazing upward all the day long, yet the soul may often be refreshed by an upward glance at the skies. Perhaps these very fleshly eyes of ours shall one day see the parting of those clouds, for who can discern the signs of the times, who can tell how nearly the "little while" is ended, who knoweth the day or the hour? Under the frost of winter the roots of herb and tree, unseen by human eyes, are ever preparing for the approach of spring. So the mysterious forces of history, its wars, and tumults, and confusions, visible only to the sight of the omniscient God, are weaving the banner for the great triumphal advent of the king. The years to us pass slowly, but with him they are flying like a weaver's shuttle; and ever and anon his voice is heard, "Be patient, weary souls, a thousand years are one day; and behold I come quickly." In this there is hope, and strength, and comfort, for all christian hearts; for the day of the Lord will be for his people as for himself a day of triumph and coronation. "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that when He shall appear we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is. And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure." Therefore let us not sleep as do others, but let us watch and be sober. Once he came as the slow-dawning light, yet once again will he come as the lightning. Watch, for ye know not when the Master cometh, at even, or at midnight, or at the cock-crowing, or in the morning. And he that testifieth these things saith, surely, I come quickly. Amen. Even so come Lord Jesus.—Restitution.

PERFECT LOVE.

When the heart is cleansed from all pollution, and entirely sanctified, love to God reigns exclusively. The Holy Spirit is possessed in measure to the extent of the soul's capacity, and in this sense is enjoyed in its fulness. Hence all the graces of the Spirit exist in perfection, not in measure, but in kind; in quality and in measure corresponding to the present capacity and necessity of the soul.

Having been cleansed from all unholiness, and "filled with the Spirit," the graces exist in the soul without alloy, or antagonism, and it is complete in Christ, who of God is made to him, "wisdom, righteousness, sanctification, and redemption." Grace and truth having expelled everything opposed to God from the soul, it becomes truly "dead unto sin and alive unto God through our Lord Jesus Christ." In this state, the individual lives and walks in the Spirit, which, as Dr. McKnight observes in his commentary on the fifth chapter of Galatians, says: "It is love to God and men; joy occasioned by that excellent affection; peace with all men; the patient bearing of injuries, a soft, sweet manner of speaking; a beneficent disposition; fidelity to engagements, promises and trusts; calmness under persecution; temperance in the use of meats and drinks."

How blessed and desirable such a religious state; that we may be joyful in God, greatly useful in life, and present to the world the clearest and most convincing specimens of the moral workmanship of our great Redeemer.

What a privilege, and what a duty! And I will add what a fearful responsibility! The fruit of the Spirit in the entirely sanctified soul is unmixed, without any opposite, or opposition within itself. Mark, I did not say it has no opposition from without; but it has none within itself; all is pure, and right, and friendly to God there. In the one thus saved, there are constantly, perfect love, perfect peace, perfect long suffering, perfect gentleness, perfect meekness, and perfect humility. Perfect in kind, but limited in degree to the capacity of the soul. The capacity and powers of the subjects of this great salvation are capable of expansion and enlargement, the fruit of the Spirit increases in volume and power from day to day, and from year to year, nay, even from the time they receive it until they die.

Hallelujah, to the great God! Jesus dwells and reigns in every pure heart without a rival; and his fire springs up into everlasting life. Is it a wonder that it is written, out of their hearts shall flow "rivers of living water?"

Bless the Lord! So long as the entirely sanctified remain steadfast in the faith, the flesh, with its affections and impure lusts, is dead, and they do not commit in any sense "adultery or fornication," or "idolatry," or "witchcraft," or "hatred," or "variance," or "emulation," or "wrath," or "strife," or "sedition," or "heresy," or "envyings," or "murder," or "drunkenness," or such like. They are saved from all these works of the flesh in being cleansed from inbred sin by the blood of Jesus, and by being filled and kept by the Holy Ghost. They do not, as is common with those in but a partially purified state, overcome inbred sin, and keep it under, but have salvation from it. It is neither chained nor held in subjection, but exterminated, cast out and dead. Hence the war within has ceased.—Christian Standard.

"OUR FATHER."

GEO. W. HOWARD.

When the disciples said to Jesus—"Lord, teach us to pray," he said unto them, "When ye pray, say, Our Father which art in heaven, hallowed be thy name." Jesus also taught the woman, saying, "God is a spirit, and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth." "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven." Paul said—"Without faith it is impossible to please him; for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him."

Have we ever thought, dear reader, while we thus approach God in prayer, that, if God be our Father, we must keep his commandments? Some people argue that God is the Father of all mankind, whether obedient or disobedient; but Jesus said to the Jews, "If God were your Father, ye would love me. . . . . Ye are of your Father the devil." Jesus also said—"The tares are the children of the wicked one." Paul said of Elymas, the sorcerer—"Thou child of the devil." John said—"He that committeth sin is of the devil." "In this the children of God are manifest and the children of the devil. Whosoever doeth not righteousness is not of God; neither he that loveth not his brother." "Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his."

We see from the foregoing scriptures that the unconverted have no claim on God as their Father. God loves sinners, and is ready to adopt them into the heavenly family; but we become "the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus."

Paul, speaking to the Corinthians, said—"Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers; for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness; and what communion hath light with darkness. . . . Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you, and will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty." "He that overcometh shall inherit all things, and I will be his God, and he shall be my son." "For ye have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear; but ye have received the spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father. The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit that we are the children of God. And if children, then heirs; heirs of God and joint-heirs with Christ; if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together."

It was told Jesus on one occasion that his mother and brethren were without, desiring to see him. "But he answered and said unto him that told him, Who is my mother? and who are my brethren? And he stretched forth his hand toward his disciples, and said, Behold my mother and my brethren. For whosoever shall do the will of my Father which is in heaven, the same is my brother, and sister, and mother."

Dear reader, although you may be a stranger to God and an alien from the commonwealth of Israel, be assured that Jesus died to redeem you. God calls after you. "The Spirit and the bride say, Come. And let him that heareth say, Come. And let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely." Come now to Jesus. Do not delay longer. The Master is coming. The signs betoken his speedy approach. Then hasten. Tarry not in all the plain lest thou be consumed. May God preserve us unto his heavenly kingdom.

LIFE AND DEATH.

J. P. MARQUAND.

There are but two questions growing out of the Scriptures; the one is life, the other is death. God is the author of life. Death is the wages of sin. Man is called upon to choose which road he will take,—the one that leads to life, to happiness and God; or the road that leads to vice, sorrow, anguish, and death. How wonderful is the long suffering, compassion, and mercy of God to fallen man, to open up a way to glory, honor, immortality, eternal life, and condescend to invite his acceptance of the same; but man, fickle, vain, and unbelieving, refuses to listen or comply with God's easy terms. How can we account for this apathy and unconcern; this unwillingness to come to the light, and embrace the truth (which makes free) and obey its dictates? How can we account for the fact that men prefer darkness and death, rather than virtue and life? Why was it necessary for God to hold up life before the people continually, from Adam down to our times? Because man was a sinner and under the penalty of death. This was the burden of patriarchs, prophets, apostles and martyrs for six thousand years. Turn from the ways of death, and seek life. This was the language of the Nazarene—"I am come that they may have life, and that they may have it more abundantly." "I am the resurrection and the life." "Ye will not come unto me that ye may have life." "I am the way, the truth, and the life." "If thou wouldst enter into life, keep the commandments." This principle of life is like its author, pure, holy, and full of energy. It is the opposite of sin and death. It comes through the power of the Holy Spirit, and quickens and vitalizes the man, and makes him a new creature; fills with love and pity, makes the heart tender, hopeful, confiding, and gentle. It is from above, and while it is peaceable, easy to be entreated, it is full of mercy and good works.

Some persons say that these blessings of the Spirit do not come until Christ comes, and thus put them in the future. We say, enlist in the cause and army of God, and you will get your new clothes, and the bounty money; or, in other words, the earnest of the Spirit, and your heart will be made glad and joyous. Give yourself wholly to God to be his forever, through good and evil report, in adversity or prosperity. Follow the example of all the saints of past ages, who have made a full consecration, and not flinched in the day of trial. The man or woman who endures trials and temptations, and hopes against hope, relying on the word and strength of the Omnipotent, shall prosper.

Let us be determined, resolute and brave in the service of God, and fight the good battle of faith. What is the difference between a true christian, and one that is not? The true christian has a principle of life, or divinity, within him, and keeps his soul in peace and quietness; while he endeavors to do all the will of God, as it is made known to him, and carries out the law of love to all mankind. The law of God is to him meat and drink, and an abiding reality. After a time, he becomes rooted and grounded in the truth, which makes him free, and produces sanctification and full assurance of faith. But an impenitent man, or woman, is like the troubled sea, which cannot rest; full of confusion and unrest, tossed to and fro with every wind of doctrine and the cunning intrigues of men. They are never satisfied or contented, but are full of complaining and murmuring. All such persons had better go to the fountain of life, and ask for a new heart and a new spirit, and persevere until they get it. Like the importunate widow, go often to God for help and strength, and plead his promises, which are in Christ Jesus unto eternal glory. Did you ever hear of any one who was in earnest who was sent away without a blessing? Never, never. The story of the little boy whom his mother told to ask God for a new heart is in point. He prayed many times for a new heart, but did not get it, until he thought of a new idea. He would ask God as he asked his mother sometimes; so he said, "Please, God, give Johnny a new heart," and then he got it as soon as he was in earnest. O the sweet simplicity and artlessness of childhood. "Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye cannot enter into the kingdom of God."

INDIVIDUAL EFFORT.

There is a folly abroad in the land. Because organized effort is in very many cases advantageous, people have gone deft over it. Organization has become a hobby, and in many instances a curse, an incubus that sadly needs to be shaken off. The land is afloat with the flood of societies. Portentously long is the list of their officers and directors and members and honorary members; and great is the show which they make upon paper. Many of these bodies use nearly their whole resources, both financial and personal, in keeping their own machinery oiled and running—actually accomplishing less outside work than a single earnest christian could easily do. And the partners in ownership of these benevolent toy engines delude themselves with the idea that by keeping the thing in motion they are actually doing something. They forget that the one hundredth part of nothing is a small credit to one's account as partner in the concern. A small boy with a hand-cart will certainly transport more goods than a train of the company's cars, provided the latter can only get up sufficient energy to whistle and make a smoke.

Imagine a piece a work to need doing, a job of grading, a thousand tons of earth to be moved a short distance. Let us consider two different methods of doing the work. Ten good, resolute men with wheelbarrows may undertake it. They need not elect a president, nor even a secretary. Let each man elect for himself a smooth, bright shovel, and, entirely without ceremony, pitch into the work. It is not even essential that the men should all be of the same political party. They may even speak different languages, and yet the work go on. Only an earnest mind to work is needed; and in ten days or so the work will be done. On the other hand, a great car capable of moving ten tons at a load may be built. It will take several weeks to build the car, to be sure, but then this will be doing the thing in a style worthy of a progressive age. Let it be built, and decked with flags and streamers. Let a thousand people swarm around it, push at the wheels, tug at the ropes, and fill the air with shouting. It will enable a great many lazy people to feel (and very cheaply) the thrilling sensation of being engaged in doing something. Instead of a paltry bank of sand wheeled ignominiously into a gully, we have a great and beneficent public work, monopolizing public attention, and reflecting glory upon the manager and his three dozen official subordinates. But, alack-a-day! when we come to estimate means and results in cold figures the exhibit does not look well. At its best estate the great car can not be loaded, moved to its destination, emptied and tugged back again, in less than an hour; that is to say, moving a hundred tons a day, and requiring ten days to finish the work. Divers mishaps and runnings off the track lengthen out these ten days to fourteen. Thus we have three weeks' preparation, a heavy cash outlay, and fourteen thousand days' work—to accomplish what the contemptible wheelbarrows would do with a hundred days' work.

To point the moral without further verbiage, a very great proportion of all the work God has for us to do is best done—far best—by earnest individual effort; not, to be sure, disregarding and antagonizing other servants of the Master, but each laboring mainly upon his own responsibility.

It is to be feared that the preference for organizations arises partly from real covetousness. A man who, if he had concentrated most of his effort upon a work which he had made specially his own, would feel impelled to spend a thousand dollars a year upon it; he, by interesting himself in forty different society works, helping some more, some less—to an average of five dollars each—persuades himself that he has done a great deal of christian service, when he has only given one fifth of the sum which his heart would otherwise have bidden him give. The self-deception may not, after all, be very complete. The mind looking with one eye upon the long list of respectable donations, and with the other upon the eight hundred dollars comfortably nestling in the pocket-book, says, Organization is a great thing. It is true that not a very large proportion of christians have means sufficient to give a thousand dollars a year, but the same mischief may work to a certain extent in those of less resources.

The renewed heart attains to a desire to come into the closest and most intimate relations with the Master's service. The unrenewed heart begs, as a last boon, to be allowed to buy off from personal connection with the matter; it will consent to decorously serve the Lord by proxy, but not to go itself personally into the vineyard. A man of the latter class would hardly buy five dollars' worth of Bibles, and give them himself to the persons who ought to receive them; he would greatly prefer to give five dollars to the Society, and have the thing off his mind. Would we respond to the invitation of a dear friend by proxy? Who would wish to send by proxy the kiss of affection? What mother would prefer to send by the lips of a stranger a reproof to her wayward child? Organized work must be to a great extent proxy work. Heartlessly, soullessly, perfunctorily done much of it will be; and much of it thanklessly, grumblingly received. To feel gratitude, respect and affection for a mere corporation is really not an easy matter. This curse of proxy is not reason for abandoning christian work which cannot well be done by direct contact between actor and recipient; it is reason, and weighty reason, for preferring direct methods when they are available.

But, says one, if such sentiments as these are generally accepted, the practical result will be disastrous. The most worthy societies, having in charge work of vital character, work which cannot be done by organized individuals, will be crippled if not destroyed, if every christian seeks an individual field. The writer thinks not; he judges that if every christian should seek an individual field, as well as increasing very greatly the actual total of work done, the sums received by worthy and needful societies would also increase. The crumbs that fall from a devoted christian man's table are more, by twelve baskets full, than the entire repast of the worldly-minded professor. The expenditure of considerable sums in one cherished line of service accustoms a person to liberal giving, and is one of the best possible antidotes for covetousness. And there are few followers of Jesus that do not greatly need a deep and thorough course of discipline to exterminate the roots of covetousness from their hearts. A man resolves on a little rest and recreation, and buys a ticket for a railway trip. With what mental calmness and easy indifference he makes this expenditure of a number of dollars! Motives of duty constrain him to spend a similar sum for the Master, and how different his mood! A mental and moral perturbation, absurdly out of proportion to the sum involved, agitates him. Why should it? Evidently he is undisciplined in benevolence. Once get the hearts of those who profess Christ warmed and unlocked, and the treasury of Christ is not going to remain empty. The idler in the vineyard, who gave twenty-five cents at the call of the society's collector, will give a dollar after having given himself to some other department of the work.

Organized bodies differ from each other in almost every possible point and degree as to their utility, needfulness, economy, honesty and ability; as to the practicability or otherwise of the objects aimed at; and as to the scriptural or unscriptural methods in which these objects are pursued. Let each be judged according to its deeds; it were great folly to judge them promiscuously. If any disciple chooses for himself as his chief service the support of some worthy society, his choice is to be respected. Let him make sure that his bounty is well applied—and applied in accordance with the Lord's directions—and then strive earnestly to make that bounty as large as practicable. Whether taking hold with many others in an organization, or taking hold alone of some important work, or taking hold informally with one or more who have opened a good work before him, it is urged that the christian worker limit himself chiefly to few lines of effort. In worldly business men follow one calling with success, but if they attempt a dozen callings at once, failure is very probable. The same principles apply, to a great extent to the Lord's work. To guard against a narrow and contracted spirit, as well as to avoid the charge of indifference to worthy causes other than his favorite one, the disciple should divide some portion of his bounty among the multitude of seemingly proper calls. If his chosen cause is one which can not give him personal work to do, but only receive and apply his money, he will need something in addition which can supply this deficiency. Cash alone will not support the luxuriant spiritual growth which should distinguish the devoted servant of Jesus.

It does not follow that individual effort must be out of harmony and out of connection with the work of other individuals, like a cog wheel disjoined from its fellows in the machine. There is such a thing as cogging things too much. It was at first supposed that a locomotive must be connected with the track on which it ran by cog-work. It travels much better without any such connection. More independence is good for it. If religion were false, if there were no Spirit of God indwelling in every member of the mystic body of Christ, to direct it, then indeed every thing must be exactly and firmly organized to prevent hiatus and collision; but, now that God rules, they who walk near to him scarcely need binding with bands; they become like the two hands, which, without chain or ratchet or cog to hold them, utterly refuse to move in contrary circles. Such co-operation as will naturally grow up between servants of the Master engaged in similar work has the good effect of organization without the evil. A few warm hearts meet and establish a prayer-meeting; they have no organized form, and need none. A half dozen servants of Christ assemble a Sunday school; probably they do adopt a constitution, etc.; but they will hardly realize much practical benefit from it, and will perhaps even forget what its provisions are. A sick neighbor needs watchers, and those whose hearts are moved to that duty apportion the time among themselves, and supply the need without even the thought of forming a benevolent society. A family of the worthy poor need help. A. discovers the fact, and mentions it to his friends. B. suggests C. as a proper person to receive donations for them. D. and E. offer clothing; F. G. and H. offer provisions; A. B. and C. make such additions as the circumstances require, and the affair is finished and dismissed, without encumbering the world with the half-living dry bones of another society. Even the need, usually urgent, and usually also supplied with difficulty, religious supervision of the efforts and condition of individuals, does not absolutely demand an organization to supply it. In a course of patient waiting upon God, the proper person grows naturally into the place and the others grow as naturally into the acceptance of his service. The servant picked out by machinery for this difficult service is quite likely to be one not well fitted for the work. Christian union, and the unity of Christian labor, must come from within rather than from without.—The Free Word.

DARKENING OF THE SUN.

Brn. Editors:—The following is the close of the 15th chapter of Gibbon (the so-called skeptic author), in which his record of the darkness at the crucifixion so exactly harmonizes with that of the Bible, that I think it worthy of a place in the columns of the Crisis, and send it verbatim. J. Davis.

"But how shall we excuse the supine inattention of the pagan and philosophic world to those evidences which were represented by the hand of Omnipotence, not to their reason, but to their senses? During the age of Christ, of his apostles, and of their first disciples, the doctrine which they preached was confirmed by innumerable prodigies. The lame walked, the blind saw, the sick were healed, the dead were raised, demons were expelled, and the laws of nature were frequently suspended for the benefit of the church. But the sages of Greece and Rome turned aside from the awful spectacle, and, pursuing the ordinary occupations of life and study, appeared unconscious of any alterations in the moral or physical government of the world.

Under the reign of Tiberius the whole earth, or at least a celebrated province of the Roman empire, was involved in a preternatural darkness of three hours. Even this miraculous event, which ought to have excited the wonder, the curiosity, and the devotion of mankind, passed without notice in an age of science and history. It happened during the lifetime of Seneca and the elder Pliny, who must have experienced the immediate effects, or received the earliest intelligence, of the prodigy. Each of these philosophers, in a laborious work, has recorded all the great phenomena of nature—earthquakes, meteors, comets, and eclipses—which his indefatigable curiosity could collect. Both the one and the other have omitted to mention the greatest phenomenon to which the mortal eye has been witness since the creation of the globe.

A distinct chapter of Pliny is designed for eclipses of an extraordinary nature and unusual duration; but he contents himself with describing the singular defect of light which followed the murder of Cæsar, when, during the greatest part of a year, the orb of the sun appeared pale and without splendor. This season of obscurity, which cannot surely be compared with the preternatural darkness of the Passion, had been already celebrated by most of the poets and historians of that memorable age."—Gibbon.

It is not the mere daily routine of praying for certain things that will obtain the blessing. But there must also be the need within, and the real filial asking of God the things which we need, and which he delights to give

WHAT SHOULD BE PUBLISHED IN THE CRISIS?

The question of what subjects and what arguments and treatment of subjects will be most pleasing to God, and most profitable to his church and the world, to be published in the Crisis, is one which should be very prayerfully examined and answered by all the christian friends of our paper.

We believe God would have us publish it, or we would never take our pen, or raise our hand again to give another issue. Then it is designed by him to accomplish some specific good—to do some work in the execution of that plan. The question should be answered then by consulting the divine will manifested through his Word, Spirit, and providences. It will only be approved and used by him when it is made a medium of communicating useful, sacred, and holy things; such subjects as shall tend to improve society, establish gospel principles, and be instrumental in preparing men for the kingdom of God.

These are very important considerations, and should control all its friends, its contractors, its contributors, its supporters, and its readers.

It is not a financial matter, which demands that we publish that which will give it the widest circulation, and secure the largest profits; neither is it a political organ, so that it is required to publish the views of some popular party, and is expected to eulogize some rich candidates, so as to get the filth of their bribes. But it should be used to speak for God, echoing the voice of the prophets, of Jesus, and the apostles. It should earnestly contend for the "old paths"—"the faith once delivered to the saints."

It has a specific work to do in publishing the gospel of the kingdom to all nations, witnessing that the end of the world is at hand. It should make this the great headlight—the grand central, specific truth of the age; while it should speak faithfully on all other important, gospel truths, which relate to the faith, hope and salvation of men. It should make specially prominent those unpopular Bible truths which are rejected or neglected by other christian publications and teachers; thus standing in defence of a pure and perfect gospel. It should keep constantly before the eye of its readers, the present history of the world; that given by the prophetic record relating to the last days; showing that present history duplicates ancient prophecy. It should earnestly advocate a thorough and present preparation to meet the soon coming Judge.

Its columns should never be smutted with unkind sentences, or personal reflections upon professed friends or foes. Strife and controversy about abstract questions or doubtful sentences should never breathe one jarring sound through this gospel trumpet.

It should faithfully echo the voice of Jesus, in giving safe and timely instruction to the friends of God, and warning the world, with the spirit of kindness and love, to flee from coming wrath. It should be filled with gospel arguments upon the great and vitally important subjects revealed in the sacred Scriptures, and with earnest, faithful exhortations to the church, now exposed to dangerous snares and fierce temptations.

Let it not be filled too much with matter of local and personal interest. Conference reports should not be made, as they generally are, too long. It is not important to our readers to know who was in the chair at each session, and who made the prayers, and when were the hours of adjournment, and much such matter. The business that is important for the brethren in the State to know, and the spiritual character and results of the worship is all that is necessary to be published.

Many obituaries are longer than is profitable to our readers. There are many incidents and experiences connected with deceased friends which would be interesting to the family circle to have published, but would not interest strangers. We think that, as a general rule, a brief statement of the faith, hope, and general christian character of the deceased, with the sadness and hopefulness of reunion of bereft friends, is sufficient, without noticing all the particulars of personal history, places of residence, marriages, offices held, circumstances of sickness, places of funeral, congregation present, place of burial, etc. Much of this might be profitably left off; but it is very difficult for an editor to abridge an obituary, because the friends are more sensitive in relation to these articles, than any others, because their hearts are then so tender that they cannot bear such a correction.

Notices of meetings are often much longer than is necessary, to give all particulars important to be published, and are inserted more times than is necessary to give proper notice. We think that, if these suggestions were followed, our paper might be improved and made more useful to the waiting flock.

It seems to us that there never was a time when Bible truth and sound gospel arguments were more important to be preached and published than at the present time. Fiction and blinding error are becoming popular, and the masses are swallowing deadly doses of infidelity and atheism, while divine truth, as the prophet says, "is fallen in the streets."

May God assist each of us, during these perilous times, to stand like faithful sentinels at our post, until the fearful battle between truth and error shall be fought. J. C.

DANGERS.

The sailor finds his special dangers near the end of his voyage, at the coast landing. That is the place for shipwrecks. According to the prophetic scriptures, the last part of the christian voyage on the old ship Zion, will be particularly perilous. Says the apostle: "This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come." That we are now living in perilous times, no one can doubt, who is a careful observer of the signs of the times. Satan is making special efforts, in various ways, to destroy the church of Christ. Pride, covetousness, envy, jealousy, ambition, love of the world, pleasure parties, fun, frolic, fashion, vanity, hatred, variance, and other evils are brought to bear upon christian pilgrims with great force in these last days. Every artifice that demons can use to conquer the soldier of the cross, is being employed by the powers of darkness. He who steps aside from the narrow path will find himself at once beset by strong foes, bent on his ruin; but he who keeps continually in Christ, has nothing to fear. He who attempts to meet the enemies of the cross in his own strength is sure to be defeated.

The perils of these last days seem peculiar. One of them, as foretold by Paul, is this: "Despisers of those that are good." He speaks of them as "having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof." "Godliness" is God-likeness, or being like God. "The power of godliness" is vested in the Holy Spirit. Hence, those who have "the form of godliness," without the power, must be those who are opposed to holiness, and hold the truth in unrighteousness. Such will be "despisers of those that are good." Being "despisers," of course they will manifest that spite by unchristian treatment of those whom they despise. Their spite arises from the natural enmity of the human heart against holiness. So long as the heart is impure, so long it is hostile to what is good. When a root of bitterness takes possession, a grudge, hatred, or variance, towards one that is good, it often becomes very bitter, and will spare no pains to ruin the innocent.

In these last days, Satan is exceedingly busy in this direction, consequently, there is special "danger" of being caught in this snare. His chief object seems to be to pull down the "good." To accomplish this result, every possible means will be employed. One of his most successful modes of attack is by misrepresentation, slander, lying, and making false charges against the "good." This he did towards Jesus, and the martyrs. But so long as this cruel treatment is borne patiently, Satan is defeated in his efforts. When Jesus was reviled, he "reviled not again. When he suffered, he threatened not, but committed himself to Him that judgeth righteously." We are taught to arm ourselves with the mind that was in Christ. Again, the Scriptures say: "What glory is it, if, when if ye be buffeted for your faults, ye shall take it patiently? but if, when ye do well, and suffer for it, ye take it patiently, this is acceptable with God." The great danger to the good consists in his liability to get out of patience with the one who misrepresents and abuses him. There is also special danger that his friends get out of patience, on account of their sympathy for the abused person. They often say, we would not mind it, if it had been spoken against us; but we will not see our innocent Bro. or Sr. in Christ abused. No doubt Peter had some of that feeling when he cut off the man's ear, who was arresting Jesus.

He who would be a true christian must decide to bear patiently all kinds of abuse that can be heaped upon him by those who despise the good, otherwise, Satan will get the advantage. No matter what is said or done to injure him, the good man must bear it all in a kind spirit, praying for his enemies.

All those who would be ready to meet Jesus at his coming, should be specially careful lest Satan persuade them to return evil for evil, to feel hard towards those who have persisted in trying to do them an injury. Leave it all in the hands of Jesus. He will take care of those who put their trust in his strength. In a little while we shall be beyond the reach of the slanderer's tongue. M. G.

CONVERSATION.

It is to be feared that a large number of professors of religion have but a faint idea of the importance of a right use of the tongue. Says James:—"If any man among you seem to be religious, and bridleth not his tongue, but deceiveth his own heart, this man's religion is vain." James 1: 26. When the heart is right, the conversation will be also; "for out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh." Matt. 12: 34. Whenever bad words come from the mouth or pen, they afford positive proof that the heart is bad. When we hear a man relating obscene stories with delight, or making vulgar jokes, we may be sure his heart is corrupt. When one talks unkindly, uses bitter words, expressing hatred, or variance, then it is certain his heart is not right; it is not pure, and he is unfit for the society of the redeemed, so long as he remains in that condition.

Jesus says: "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." Matt. 5: 8. No pure fountain can send forth "sweet water and bitter," "salt water and fresh." James 3: 11–12. If "bitter" and "salt water" comes forth from the "fountain," then it follows that it is not "sweet" and "fresh." It is true that a person may speak christian words at one time, and bad ones at another, and those who only hear his good words may conclude he has a pure heart; but when on other occasions, he uses words full of bitterness, spite, malice, and revenge; then the true state of his heart comes to light. It is not clean, pure, or holy. A heart filled with the Spirit of God is free from all these bad things, hence they do not come out of the mouth.

When foolish talk is heard, then there must be foolishness in the heart. Covetous conversation indicates a covetous heart. But the Scriptures say: "Let your conversation be without covetousness." Heb. 13: 5. He who speaks unkind words only exposes what abounds in his heart. As the tongue is an index observed by the physician to tell him the condition of the human system; so the words from the tongue and pen show the moral state of the man's heart. If the tongue uses defiled words, it shows the heart is defiled. Jesus says, when speaking of the new heavens and earth, and the New Jerusalem: "There shall in no wise enter into it anything that defileth; neither whatsoever worketh abomination, or maketh a lie." Rev. 21: 27.

Says the Christian Standard: "The bane of spiritual religion to-day, in all the churches, is the style of social intercourse." We believe this statement to be true. The light, trifling, joking, foolish conversation, from hearts filled with these things, lead others into the same condition, who mingle in society, where such idle conversation is allowed; hence, the necessity of a separation from such company, if we would keep "unspotted from the world." If a person has not sufficient strength and firmness to avoid unholy conversation when in company where it is used, then he should avoid such society. It is far better to be silent, than to talk sinful words. If they are in the heart, keep them smothered, and do not let them escape to injure others.

We are well satisfied that the right use of the tongue is not receiving the attention it demands by professing christians, if they expect to be ready to meet Jesus; but in order to have the "conversation aright," the heart must be made clean, and filled with the Spirit of God, then pure words will be the sure result. A pure heart affords "a pure language." M. G.

ALEXANDER AT JERUSALEM.

When Alexander the Great was on his way to conquer Media and Persia, as foretold by Daniel the prophet centuries before it came to pass, the Jews became alarmed, and feared he would destroy Jerusalem, as he had just taken Tyre and Gaza, being somewhat offended at the Jews. In this dilemma, Josephus says Jaddua, the high priest, dreamed that he should be of good courage, adorn the city, open the gates, and have the people dress in white garments; but the high priest himself should appear in his official robes and lead the procession which should go out to meet Alexander, without fear, when he drew near the city, and welcome him to its hospitalities. All this was done with complete success.

Alexander then went into the temple, and offered sacrifices to God, according to the decision of the high priest. Josephus goes on to say:—"And when the book of Daniel was shown him [Alexander], wherein Daniel declared that one of the Greeks should destroy the empire of the Persians, he supposed that himself was the person intended."—Josephus Ant., B. 11, c. 8, sec. 5.

This proves that Daniel's prophecy was written before the conquest of Media and Persia by Alexander, which was B. C. 331. There is no reasonable room for doubt but that Daniel lived and wrote in the time of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, at the time the Jews were captives under that king. The Bible and history agree on this subject. The fulfillment of the prophecy of Daniel proves its divine inspiration, and shows we are near the end of the kingdoms of this world, and at the time when "the God of heaven shall set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed." This is truly good news, called in the Scriptures "the gospel of the kingdom." M. G.

IS IT SO?

Bro. George F. Pentecost, pastor of the Warren Avenue Baptist Church, Boston, is saying some strong things to that church. He tells them Jesus is coming again personally, and soon. He is urging them to live holy lives, that they may be ready to meet the coming Bridegroom. The following is a paragraph from the report of his sermon, May 30th:—

"The most common and flagrant sin in the churches of Boston is an outward and local pride, an immense effort to build up above our neighbors. We have had also an insatiable desire for success, instead of waiting for God's own time; but God in all his word has never said 'Be successful,' but 'Be true to me,' 'Be faithful,' 'Well done, good and faithful servant'; not 'Well done, good and successful servant.' We have not had the internal but the external success at heart, and we have not used the proper methods to perpetuate this success. We have used means without being sure of God's approval of them; we have used the energies of the flesh, and not the energies of God, in the work of the church. What we want is God. We have turned short of God in this, that we have sought the prosperity of the church, and not of God. Some of you have done it ignorantly, thoughtlessly, I have no doubt. It has come to be a by-word in the world, that when a man has turned out a thief, a defaulter, a murderer, the first remark made is, 'What church does he belong to?' What does it mean?' It means that we are hiding iniquity, covering sin in our hearts. There are men in all the churches of Boston who are a stain upon religion. What we need, my brethren, is purging. All our churches need it. We need to cleanse our hands and to put away sin from among us."

What Bro. Pentecost has said about Boston churches may be said of churches generally, as bodies. The living souls in the churches are being satisfied that things are going wrong, and that something must be done speedily, or Satan will have the chief control of church as well as political matters. The perils are increasing rapidly. These proclaim the end at hand. M. G.

STRIKES.

The strikes among the laboring classes are becoming more and more frequent and troublesome, and in some places quite serious. This is the case in the Pennsylvania coal mines. The following despatch, June 3d, from Mahonoy City, Pa., shows the condition of things:

"The first disturbance occurred at King, Tyler & Co's colliery below the town. When the Sheriff, with his possee, ordered the rioters to disperse and go to their homes, one of their chiefs replied that they could not drive them away. At the same time a man fired on the Sheriff. The firing then became general, the rioters pouring a volley of fire on the citizens, who were greatly outnumbered. The miners also had the advantage, being on the hill-side. Two hundred shots were fired by both parties. The Sheriff, finding himself beaten, retired to the town and reorganized his force, the citizens generally volunteering, and every fire-arm to be found was brought into requisition. He telegraphed for military aid. After the firing had ceased the raiders formed in line and marched defiantly through the town, headed by music. Of the two thousand men in line who went down the valley one thousand returned. Then forming into small squads they went in different directions. About six hundred of the raiders came from Haselton, having marched the greater part of the night, and compelling every man they met to accompany them."

The question is now, whether the Miner's Union shall rule, or the State of Pennsylvania. It will be seen among the news items that a serious strike has occurred in Chicago. M. G.

THE INTERLINEAL TRANSLATION of the Scriptures, with grammatical and critical notes, by Dr. Tafel, is a very valuable work for Bible students. Eight numbers are now issued—four from the Old Testament, and four from the New. The four from the N. T. include the four Gospels and the Acts of the Apostles. The first three numbers of the Old Testament extend from Genesis to the 26th chap. of Leviticus. The fourth number contains Daniel and Ezra, including that portion of the Bible originally written in Chaldee. This great work of Dr. Tafel's contains a word for word translation from the original, which is very valuable to the common English reader, in helping him to understand the Sacred Scriptures. The price to subscribers is $2 a Vol. for the Old Testament No.'s, and $1.50 for the N. T. Address L. H. Tafel, 635 Arch St., Phila. M. G.

NATICK.—We had another blessed day in Natick, Sabbath, June 6th. The meetings were held in Clark's new hall. Three discourses were given from the great chart, showing that we are very near the great day of the Lord. The people were astonished at the strength of the evidence, and were anxious to hear more. Several brethren were in from surrounding towns, and many from the different churches in Natick, besides those who are counted as skeptics. The Spirit of the Lord rested upon the people. Urgent requests were made for a full series of sermons on this important subject. Four were baptized, and others are almost persuaded to follow their example. The time has come when every christian should be earnestly awake in preparation for the coming of Christ. All delay is perilous. M. G.

NATIONAL CAMPMEETING.—It is decided to commence our next great National Campmeeting at Springfield, Mass., Saturday, Aug. 7th, and hold it over two Sabbaths. We took a walk on the camp-ground with the committee, a few days since. It looked inviting, and brought up many hallowed scenes, and produced a longing for their return. We expect a blessed season of refreshing from the Lord at the coming gathering. Let the saints make a special effort to be present this year. It is important that a grand effort be made to reach the unconverted, and to arouse every professed follower of Christ to prepare for his coming. Do not fail to be present. M. G.

EXCHANGES.—The Rainbow for May is before us, with its usual amount of solid and interesting reading. It is ably edited by Dr. W. Leask, No. 34 Sandringham Road, Kingsland, London, Eng. Price $2.50 per year. This monthly should have a wide circulation. Henry Constable and other able men, are its contributors. Bro. Leask has stood up nobly in the defense of the great truths of the Bible, for which he has suffered considerable persecution. He deserves help and sympathy.

The Bible Echo, published by Bro. Wm. Kellaway, 10 Warwick Lane, Paternoster Row, E. C., London, Eng., is a valuable weekly paper. Bro. K. is laboring very earnestly to spread the truths we love so well, and is meeting with good success. He needs material aid. The opposition is strong, but Bro. K. is persevering. The Bible Echo is $3 a year, and is worth the money. Give Bro. Kellaway a lift, if you can spare the means.

The Health Reformer for June is received, and contains valuable reading on the science of health. This is one of the best health journals. It is published at Battle Creek, Mich. Price $1 a year. M. G.

"Carriages without horses shall go,
And accidents fill the world with woe."
Selah.

PRAYERS have been answered in behalf of Bro. Boutell. He is happy in the Lord, and gaining strength daily, and almost able to commence preaching again. M. G.

LET prayer be offered for Bro. J. A. Libby, that his health may be restored. See his letter. M. G.

OUR appointment for Chelsea is changed from the 13th to the 20th of June. No meeting there until the 20th. M. G.

GOD'S GRACE.

RUTH P. ELDRIDGE.

I would like, if it were possible, to bear testimony before a congregated world, how gloriously my adorable Jesus condescends to save me by his grace. Oh, the wondrous power of the precious "grace of God." How it elevates, expands, renovates, and sets in motion every faculty of the entire being, making one not only to talk, but to feel and act in harmony with the teachings of God's eternal truth. How richly he gives us to feel his grace flowing through our hearts. Praise his name forever, for while I write, I feel that I am redeemed, "not with corruptible things, as silver and gold, but with the precious blood of Christ."

'Tis sweet to feel that we are loved by dear ones of earth; but oh, how the heart thrills with joy, and swells with gratitude, when we think that the Spirit answers to the blood, and tells us that we are born of God. Then we feel that we are loved by the mighty Lord of heaven. Pain may rack these mortal bodies, earthly friendships may be sundered, but the Lord enables us to prove, by blessed experience, that his grace is sufficient for any emergency. "Glory be to God" for this saving and supporting grace. Precious boon! How often have the hearts of God's suffering ones, been cheered by that sweet promise—"My grace is sufficient for thee."

I never felt more like trusting in Jesus than at the present time, for there is light around the cross, and there is help above. There is so much of trying to mix the precious with the vile at the present day, that there is great need for those who enjoy the saving grace of God, to watch and pray, that they may endure all things, even unto the end.

Then let us who believe that we shall soon behold the King in his beauty, take fresh courage, and so run, that we may obtain the prize. Oh, the soul-cheering hope that we are soon to reach our fair eden home, with our sufferings all ended, our trials all over, and spend a blest eternity in Christ's coming kingdom, where "there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain; for the former things are passed away."

Yes, Jesus is soon coming, and we are to be made like him, "for we shall see him as he is." May we have our loins girt about, "our lamps trimmed and burning," ready to exclaim, This is our Lord, "we have waited for him."

CONFERENCE REPORT.

By appointment, the Conn. A. C. Conference met under the Conn. mission tent, at Oakville, Thursday, May 13th, 1875. The meeting was called to order by the Pres., Bro. Seth Woodruff, at 2 P. M. Prayer by Bro. Elliott. Delegates present: David E. Mansfield, Campville; Wm. Reynolds, Bristol; Ransom Sweatland, do.; Reuben Palmer, Waterbury. Preachers present: Seth Woodruff, A. Elliott. Bro. Enoch Phelps, of Westfield, Mass., being present, was invited to take part in the proceedings. Bro. H. C. Smith requested through letter to become a member of this conference, and was voted in. It was voted that Bro. B. Hitchcock be added to the Campmeeting Com.

Report showed the church at Campville to be in good condition. They are about organizing a Sabbath school. Some ten were converted last winter. Have had preaching one half the time, but intend to supply the church every Sabbath hereafter. Preaching nearly every Sabbath at Bristol. No special interest, but are endeavoring to maintain their position. Sabbath school improving, with a good library. A few in Waterbury are waiting for their Lord from heaven. They have prayer and conference meetings, but little preaching. The preaching Brn. reported their labors among the scattered flock with varied success, endeavoring to prepare a people to meet the Bridegroom.

If we were to judge the value of the Conn. A. C. Conference by the attendance at its last sitting, we should say its friends had, through neglect, left it alone to die. If, however, it should again be convened, we hope the friends and admirers of this body will either attend its funeral out of respect, as mourners should do, or rally around and prevent an untimely death.

The tent-meeting, which followed the session of conference, resulted in considerable interest among the people, and some three or four manifested an interest to become Christians. The Spirit of the Lord was present, and many were under conviction. To the name of our blessed Master be all the glory. Our thanks are due to Bro. and Sr. Mills, who so kindly entertained those present. O. D. WOODRUFF, Sec'y.

THE TRACT FUND.

THE ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY, at a meeting on Springfield camp-ground, August 13th, 1874, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

FLORIDA.

TO THE A. C. P. SOCIETY.

Dear Brethren:—I feel it a duty I owe to the Society to account for the tracts you so kindly sent me last August. They have all been faithfully placed in hands to read, which I hope, by the blessing of God, will profit by the glorious truths they teach. In my tour South, I visited the Brn. in Orange Co., having been invited to visit them some weeks before leaving home. They are about two hundred miles south of this place, and twenty-seven from the St. John's river. I have always thought myself a little more than ordinary, as a pedestrian; but that twenty-seven miles over a sandy road, with a Florida August sun pouring upon my head, a heavy satchel of tracts, charts, books, etc., convinced me that human legs were not always to be relied on. The brethren would have been glad to have met me at the river with a team, but I wished to make all my stoppages for preaching and distributing tracts on my way out; and as I knew not where the Lord would open the door for me to labor, I could not send them word when to meet me. I found far more opportunity to proclaim the gospel of the kingdom than time to do it.

The brethren of Orange county have been brought to see the great light that now shines on God's word, through the instrumentality of Bro. John Fenn. He came from N. Y. State and settled among them. He is not a public preacher, but has been from house to house teaching the glorious news of Christ's speedy coming. He does it not for hire, but of a ready mind, working with his hands the thing that is good. He is a carpenter by trade. He also has an orange grove. As the people believe, he baptizes them, and there is no country that I have seen which presents such facility for complying with that beautiful ordinance. Within a few rods of most every man's door is a beautiful lake, with water as clear as crystal. In riding through the country, hardly one lake disappears before another comes in sight. The converts are strong in the Lord. They appear to be established in what they believe. I was with them four days. The last night I preached at Orlando, the county seat, to a good and attentive audience. They are very anxious for me to come again, and I am in hopes to go soon.

I have felt my labors were so much needed by the church here at Jacksonville, that it would not be profitable to the cause of Christ for me to be absent at present. Satan has been trying for a long time to annihilate the church here that is looking for the coming of Jesus. Shortly after our house of worship was built, a cyclone blew it down. Last year, it underwent a baptism of fire by the burning of a large two-story building next to it, the wind bearing the flame down upon its humble roof; but it was preserved, to the joy of the brethren, and wonder of sinners. Of late, the members have been passing through a fiery ordeal, in consequence of some brethren from the North, who hold to the old heresy of "trine immersion." Jesus says we may know a tree by its fruit. Before this heresy came among us, we were all united, dwelling together in the unity of the Spirit; but now there is confusion and vain babblings, which eat like a canker. We are very thankful for the timely articles in the Crisis on trine immersion.

I consider the Crisis and Times as pure in the doctrines of Scripture as any papers I have ever seen; and I feel to say with Bro. Munger, "Let us keep the colors at the mast head." It is a difficult feat to cross the ocean in two ships at the same time. I am satisfied that when Jesus comes, those that are changed in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, will be a pure people; hence heresies must come, "that they which are approved may be made manifest among you."

While I think of these things, the word of the Lord by Micah is before my eyes: "The day of thy watchman and thy visitation cometh; now shall be their perplexity. Trust ye not in a friend; put ye not confidence in a guide; keep the doors of thy mouth from her that lieth in thy bosom. For the son dishonoreth the father, the daughter riseth up against her mother, the daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law; a man's enemies are the men of his own house. Therefore I will look unto the Lord; I will wait for the God of my salvation; my God will hear me." Micah 7: 4–7. Your Bro. in Christ,

Jacksonville, Fla. C. W. CONOLLY.

WHEN God appeared to Moses, it was not in the lofty cedar, nor in the sturdy oak, nor the spreading palm, but in a bush—an humble, slender, abject bush. As if he would, by these selections, check the conceited arrogance of man.

Correspondence.

From Sr. S. E. Teeple.

Dear ones in Christ, and readers of our much-loved paper, the Crisis, may grace, mercy and peace be ever with you, and ever keep you amidst these days of peril. My thoughts have been led to roam over the hills and through the valleys, where the multitudes have assembled to worship, and also many a little group for the same purpose; while others are deprived of such privileges, and perhaps have not heard a sermon in years, or met in a prayer circle; but the time is coming when all can and will assemble at one meeting, and at the same time. Here we often mourn because it is not convenient at all times to meet with the people of God. Others, who might, do not esteem it a privilege, therefore absent themselves; but at the final meeting there will be no excuse. If not ready, they will have to attend at the call of the Master. Here, many meet because it is customary; it is popular, and they can act from choice; but there we shall meet to get our reward for all that we have done in this life. Solemn thought! momentous hour, and it hasteth greatly. We meet here to get strength, to talk of our joys, our sorrows, our conflicts, our trials, our peace; to point the sinner to "the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world; to tell the backslider of his doom, unless he repents and does his first work over again; and to bear one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ. Here we meet and part again, as round and round we roam; but when the vast multitude meet, which no man can number, it will last forever. Praise the name of Jesus. Hallelujah to the Lamb.

I have been to the Conn. Conference, in Oakville. I had not enjoyed the privilege of meeting with any people in seven long months, and it was like cold water to a thirsty soul. It was a feast, and one long to be remembered. I have had to go in the strength of many a little feast for the last few years more than forty days, and if I have to go on the strength of that blessed means of grace more than that length of time, I shall ever be glad I went. It does one good to see old familiar faces, that have been in the army of the Lord these many years, with their faces still as a flint Zionward, and clinging to this "blessed hope," which is so soon to be consummated. It is the best of all hopes. Praise the Lord that I ever obtained it, and still love and cherish it. I cannot give it up. I have no desire to go back. I love the people that love this hope. Their God is my God. I love to meet among them now, though weakest of them all. I fear, I tremble sometimes; but where do I belong, if not with the children of God? Where is my place in the body, or in the building? I am sure I have a place there, and care but little where, if only in it; whether a pin in the building, or the smallest member in the body; but will praise God for a place. The thought is most blessed, and inspires me to press my way onward, bear a few more crosses, endure a few more trials, suffer a little longer, if need be, that at last I may wear the crown that fadeth not away. Your sister in Christ.

Hotchkissville, Ct., May 30th, 1875.

From Bro. J. A. Libby.

DEAR BRETHREN:—An attack of pneumonia, a few weeks ago, has left me with a dry, hard cough, and my strength greatly reduced. I am unable to fill my appointments at present, but wait for the healing hand of God. Pray that it may be laid upon me. The following lines, written upon my bed, express my feelings:

All done with life so soon?
Must I now yield?
And at my day's bright noon
Forsake the field?
The extended harvest white,
With reapers few;
And scattered from my sight,
Needeth me too.
Must I my sickle drop?
Resign my breath?
And all of earth give up
To awful death?
Lord of the harvest, see,
I know the way,
And love to work for thee,
O let me stay.
'Twere better far to live
Through toil and care;
My all to thee I give,
O hear my prayer.

West Poland, June 5th.

From Sr. A. Adams.

To all the brethren and sisters in Jesus:—I wish to say a few words in the Crisis. I am still looking for Jesus, and trying to live in readiness to hail him with joy at his coming. I believe the great time of trouble is about to come, which will bring deliverance to all who are waiting for him and loving his appearing.

Let us all see that our lamps are trimmed and burning; for in such an hour as ye think not he will come. I long for that rest that remains for those that have set their affections on things above, and are pilgrims and strangers on the earth.

Pray for me that I may endure unto the end, for I know that the prayers of the righteous availeth much. So let us watch and pray that we may be accounted worthy to escape the things that are coming on the earth, and to stand before the Son of man.

Syracuse, N. Y.

From Bro. R. Mosher.

Dear Brethren:—Perhaps some would like to know where I am, and what I am doing. I am in Sandy Hill, N. Y., and doing but little, in consequence of sickness in my family. I have been confined at home for some eight months, only preaching a few times here, and at Lake George. As my family is now better, I am ready to attend calls where my labor is desired, and where God's cause may be built up. I feel much like proclaiming God's great truth abroad, that Christ is soon coming to judge the world, and take home his saints. I feel God's love and word like a fire shut up in my bones, and I long to speak that I may be refreshed. My address is Sandy Hill, Washington Co., N. Y.

From Sr. S. Cristman.

To all the family scattered abroad:—How does the prospect look to you? Are you all living in constant expectation of being gathered out from among the tares into the presence of our blessed Lord? I must say for myself that I feel more than ever convinced that the great change is about to take place, which is so clearly pictured before us on the inspired pages of God's holy book. Even those who dislike to hear anything of the Lord's coming, and who profess to believe in the Bible, acknowledge that something is about to take place in our world that will create a universal change;

but they will not allow that it is the coming of Jesus.

O, how will they stand when he appears, for whom they are told to wait and welcome with joy and gladness? Let us all that are of the day, see that our lamps are constantly burning; for in such an hour as ye think not, he will come.

Syracuse, N. Y.

THE NEW RELIGIOUS MOVEMENT.—As was to be foreseen the Orthodox movement is steadily progressing in Poland, and will very shortly lead to the extinction of the United Greeks. If the intelligence we receive be correct, nearly 250,000 persons in the Provinces of Siedlce, Lubin, Suvalki, and Lomsa have already embraced the established faith of the Empire. The Uniad remnant left is estimated at only 30,000, and as the priests who are adverse to the movement are running away to Galicia, the last trace of the sect will soon disappear. The political advantage accruing to the Russian Government from this wholesale conversion of a religious community, half-Roman Catholic and half Greek, cannot well be overrated. Not only are all their subjects of Russian blood brought within the pale of the national church, but a number of Poles being likewise included in the sweeping change of creed, a way is paved to further and even more comprehensive conquest in the same field.—London Times.

Married.

RAWSON—DAY. In Medford, Mass., May 28th, 1875, at the house of the bride's father, John E. Preston, by Eld. John G. Hook, Mr. JOHN C. RAWSON and Mrs. CARRIE E. DAY, both of Medford.

Obituaries.

HOYT. At Magog, P. Q., May 8th, 1875, by accidental drowning, at Cherry river bridge, near the village, Oloff Nason, only son of Asa and Hannah Hoyt, aged twenty-three years.

At night, Saturday, the 8th, Oloff drove a spirited horse to the village, where he presided as worthy chief of a Lodge of Good Templars, and returning alone about ten o'clock, during a terrific thunder storm, it is supposed that as he came on the bridge a sudden flash of lightning and terrible crash of thunder frightened his horse, and revealed to him a small pile of new lumber carelessly left on the north side of the bridge, causing him to rush to the south side, where, unfortunately and criminally, the railing was off, as it had been for some time, and down the horse plunged, carrying with him his precious living freight to the river's muddy bed, twelve feet below its surface, where Oloff, if not stunned and killed by the lightning, was soon overcome by the dark waters of death, amid the gloomy scenery of the wild night storm, with no friend near, unless it might have been the sinner's friend, a compassionate God. The wagon was found at the bottom at the south side of the bridge; the shaft irons broke in the descent, and the thills remained attached to the horse, which, strange to tell, made his way out through an almost impassable morass, and reached home, a mile distant, about six o'clock the next morning, to silently tell the family the first tidings of the sad tale. The parents supposed that some friend of his at the village had kindly kept him through the night, as it was so dark and stormy, although it was not like him to remain away for a night even, if he could get home; but now it was evident that Oloff had had trouble. The news spread rapidly. A crowd of willing hands and sympathizing hearts were soon gathered to the place of the dire disaster to search the dark waters below, and about ten o'clock Mr. Hoyt's dead son was taken from the water.

His character was without a stain. He was noted for his perfectly temperate habits, chaste conversation, and gentlemanly bearing towards all; his natural kindliness of disposition being such that parental reproof was never necessary. He was a graduate from Eastman's Business College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., having obtained the highest honors of the institution.

His funeral was attended the Wednesday following his death, and was said to be the largest and most sympathizing concourse ever gathered on a like occasion in Magog. His death is a great loss to the town, as well as to the large circle of bereaved relatives. Sermon by the writer. Four other ministers were present, three of whom participated in the services. He rests in Mount Hope Cemetery.

QUIMBY. In Lisbon, N. H., May 15th, 1875, of consumption, Widow Lydia Quimby, in the eightieth year of her age.

Sister Quimby leaves a large circle of relatives and friends to mourn their loss, among whom are five children, twenty-seven grand-children, twenty-one great grand-children, and one great-great grand-child. She has been a member of the Free Baptist church for many years, and has always maintained a christian character, and died trusting in Christ as an all sufficient Savior. She rests, as we trust, in hope of a crown of life in the resurrection morning.

I. H. SHIPMAN.

Sister S. has been a great sufferer for the past two years. She was converted to Christ when young, among the Methodists, and being quite a searcher of the Scriptures, she became dissatisfied with her sprinkling for baptism, and was baptized by the Baptists, and was a member of that church for the past thirty-four years; but for the past seven years of her life she has believed in the sleep of the dead until the resurrection. She was anxious for her children to be the children of God, as also those around her. Her faith was strong in the Lord, and in the soon coming of her Savior. She had hoped to live to see him coming in the clouds of heaven; yet, if it was the Lord's will that she should sleep a little while, she could say, Amen; and if it could be that the writer could be present at her funeral, she wished him to preach from Ps. 17: 15—"I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with thy likeness." She lived to know that her husband, three daughters, and a son-in-law were baptized in the blessed hope of a resurrection of the dead, which was a great source of comfort to her. She leaves other children to mourn her loss who are yet out of Christ. We trust a mother's prayers may yet be answered in their behalf. As the writer could not be present on the occasion, Eld. Armagast, the Baptist minister of the place, officiated.

JOHN T. ONGLEY.

GEER. In Rootville, Penn., June 1st, 1875, Thomas A., son of Alba and Celestia Geer, of membranous croup, aged one year.

The writer endeavored to encourage the believing parents with the hope that the little one would sleep but a little while; also to warn others present to be in a prepared state to have a part in the resurrection morning. Text for the occasion, Isa. 40: 8,—"The grass withereth, the flower fadeth; but the word of our God shall stand forever."

JOHN T. ONGLEY.

LAMPREY. In Moultonborough, Long Island, May 12th, 1875, of pneumonia, Lora B., daughter of Bro. B. B. and Sr. Lucie C. Lamprey, aged eight months.

This is the second time that death has visited their little family circle, leaving them only one child. But they sorrow not as those that have no hope, expecting, as they do, to meet their little ones in the morning. The Lord grant them special grace. Services by the writer.

T. W. PIPER.

TAYLOR. In Plymouth, Vt., May 14th, 1875, of canker-rash, Henry P. Taylor, aged four years and seven days.

Is with us here no more;
But he'll awake when Jesus comes,
And live forevermore.

H. N. TAYLOR.

PURRINGTON. In West Bath, May 12th, 1875, Bro. Simeon Purrington, aged fifty-nine years.

FOREIGN NEWS.

HONG KONG, June 3. The town of Macao, in the province of Quang-Tong, was visited yesterday with a terrible hurricane. Considerable property on the island was destroyed, and the shipping in the harbor suffered severely. The storm was unusually violent and lasted several hours. It is reported that a number of lives have been lost.

LONDON, June 4. It is stated in well-informed official circles that a war between Great Britain and Burmah is imminent. The Government will shortly propose a confederation of the British Colonies in South Africa.

INDIA, A telegram from Calcutta, dated May 22nd, states that intelligence received from Peshawur announces that half the city has been destroyed by a great fire. The powder magazine was at one time imperilled. The fire lasted over sixty hours, owing to a high wind. One-fifth of the town in area, one-third in population, and one-half as to wealth have been affected. Fifteen thousand people are houseless, and pecuniary aid is urgently required.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

Chicago. June 4. The Coal Exchange recently passed a resolution reducing the rate paid to coal wheelers from five to three dollars a day, and the wages of other employes in the coal yards in proportion. In consequence of this action several hundred organized strikers belonging to the Heaver's Union assembled yesterday forenoon, and determined to force their demand for five dollars per day for wheelers, and a proportionate rate for shovelers, or drive away all laborers who attempted to work for two or three dollars a day. They went so far as to use personal violence in a number of cases, besetting the non-union men at the several yards with clubs and revolvers. They drove off all the workmen in the several yards with one exception, and warned them to desist from further labor on peril of their lives. Seven or eight non-Union men were thrashed. One man was injured, perhaps fatally, and one man was thrown into the river and narrowly escaped drowning. The movement was so sudden that the police could not be summoned until after the assault. The strikers were generally armed. They were very bold in their denunciations of their employers, and hold that as they are employed only a short time, unless they can obtain good prices, they and their families must go destitute during the winter. It is reported that a gathering of eight hundred Union men will take place to-day, and that a concentrated movement will be made as was done yesterday.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 3. Another heavy rain storm occurred last evening, causing the White river and all the smaller streams near this city to overflow their banks. A large amount of damage was done by the wind and flood in various parts of the city. The whole northern section is overflowed to the depth of from three to five feet, filling the cellars and lower stories of a large number of private dwellings in the best part of the city. The old skating rink building was blown down, and a colored man was buried under the ruins and seriously injured.

The damage to the railroads in the vicinity is very severe. The trestle work of the Indianapolis, Bloomington and Western Railroad bridge, five miles west of this city, is washed away, and the Eagle Creek bridge, on the Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Lafayette road is destroyed.

Port Jervis, N. Y., June 3. Great suffering ensued in the northern counties of Pennsylvania from the burning of scores of houses in the lumbering settlements, during the past week. On the mountain from White Haven to Gouldsboro, fifty-two farm houses were burned, with barns, farm implements, stock, etc. Besides these, heavy individual losses are reported in the Monroe county region, including 10,000,000 feet of manufactured lumber, twelve saw-mills, four stores, and over two hundred head of valuable horses and cattle. The losses in the region, independent of standing timbers are $500,000. The main losses fall on poor people, who are homeless. An organization to solicit aid for the sufferers has been formed with William Ellis of Stoddardsville, Treasurer. The loss on bridges is about $10,000. The village of Mud River was totally destroyed. This place was one of the extensive lumbering stations in Northern Pennsylvania. Five mills, with a total capacity of 500,000 feet a day, were destroyed and not less than 30,000,000 feet of lumber.

SINGULAR DISCOVERY.—An interesting but melancholy discovery was made the other day at the foot of Mont Blanc. A block of ice, separated from the mass of the mountain by the thaw, rolled down into the valley. Upon closer inspection it was found to contain enclosed the remains of the American, John Blackford, who about three years since attempted an ascent, and has never since been heard of He evidently met with his death on that occasion, and has since lain in his cold crystalline coffin, which has preserved his body and clothing admirably. When found, his features were unchanged, as if he had only breathed his last half an hour before.

JOSEPH CURRY, who says he is Christ, and not long ago was driven out of Georgia for forming a free-love colony, has started a new religious society in Springfield, Mass. A negress is worshiped by him and his few followers as queen of earth and heaven. He and this woman now represent themselves as fasting forty days and forty nights, and they have nearly starved themselves in a rigorous observance of the rite. They are terribly emaciated, and so weak that they can hardly walk. Curry says that at the end of forty days they will be transported to heaven in a chariot of fire.

DEFEAT OF THE JESUITS.—The Brussels Court of appeal has given judgment in an important lawsuit. The late Mdlle. Deneef had been induced to bequeath her immense fortune to the Jesuits. The Court decided that the will was not valid, and that the fortune must go to the legitimate heirs. An idea may be formed of the amount of the fortune by the fact that the Jesuits had offered the sum of 3,000,000f. to some of the legitimate heirs if they would not go to law.

FIRES.—In Worcester, May 28th, loss $263.500. Portland, N. B., one church and sixty-eight houses burned; one hundred and forty families homeless; loss $250,000. In New York City, June 1st, loss $123,000. In Pennsylvania forests, loss $1,000,000. Fifty-two farm houses were burned, over two hundred head of valuable horses and cattle, besides some 30,000,000 feet of lumber, twelve saw-mills, and four stores.

Hoosick Valley Tent Meeting.

The second series of tent meetings for this season, in the Hoosick tent, will commence on Tuesday evening, June 22d, on land owned by Truman Aldrich, ten miles south east of Rutland, near a village called Northham, in Shrewsbury, Vt. The meetings will continue afternoons and evenings till Sunday evening, July 4th, including two Sabbaths, if the interest sustains the meetings. This is a new field, and the interest throughout the whole region seems to warrant a success for truth. It is expected that brethren from Bridgewater, Plymouth, Mt. Holley, Rutland, and other towns, will attend these meetings. Plenty of hay, grain, and good pasturing for horses at old fashion farmer prices. Also good lodging in the tent or neighborhood, and provisions provided near the tent by the owner of the ground. Those coming to lodge in the tent bring your blankets and buffaloes. Preachers: Waite, Blanchard, and Flagg, with perhaps others.

H. K. FLAGG, A. W. SIBLEY, } Tent Committee.

GROVE MEETING.—According to previous arrangements, made one year ago, Bro. F. A. Baker and myself gave out word there would be a meeting held in West Levant, Me., in the grove now owned by John Emerson, to commence on the first day of July, at two o'clock P. M., and hold over the 4th. The grove will be fitted up for tenting. We expect a large tent will be pitched for meetings in case it should be stormy. For the accommodation of the poor, bring clothing and provision, all who can. Those that can, bring your small tents. Let us have a friendly greeting once more in Christ, and contemplate his coming soon, with joyful hope. The day of trouble is upon us. Let all come who love our Lord Jesus Christ, and strive for peace in Christ, and let it be our chief aim to be ready for the day of the Lord, and get others ready. Preaching brethren are invited to come and labor for their Master.

ISRAEL DAMMAN.

TENT MEETINGS.—The Hoosick Valley tent will be pitched for the first series of tent-meetings, at North Clarendon, Vt., two miles and a half south of Rutland. Preaching a good share of the time except the Sabbaths. Other good and able preachers are engaged to be present during the meetings, so that ministerial labor cannot be wanting.

The boarding house will be in charge of the committee.

Come in the spirit of your Master—not to hear big preaching, but to work for the upbuilding of the cause. Jesus is soon coming, and we want to be ready to meet him, having our work done and well done. All reports sent after June 1st, should be directed to me at Utica, Winona Co., Minn., care of J. Cheatham.

To the Brn. and Friends of Barkhamstead, Ct., and vicinity:—Whereas some have received information from various sources that there would be no more meetings in Barkhamstead, which has had a tendency to keep many away, I would here say, Come to the meetings. There will be preaching once in two weeks, as there has been in the past, if the Lord will. God's blessing is still upon the meeting.

S. WOODRUFF, Pastor of church.

DISTRICT MEETING.—The District Meeting of the Melbourn District P. Q. Conference will be held in Dudswell, P. Q., in the River school-house, or in Bro. Merritt Bishop's grove near by, commencing Thursday evening, June 24th, at seven o'clock, and holding over the following Sabbath. The first service will be held in the school-house, and if the weather is pleasant, in Bro. Bishop's grove afterward. Three services may be expected on Friday, Saturday, and the Sabbath. The brethren and sisters there cordially invite the scattered ones to gather together with them for worship and blessing, and it is hoped that there will be a good attendance of those who love and look for the appearing of Jesus. Those who may go by cars will go by way of Sherbrook, over the Quebec Central R. R., leaving the cars at the Dudswell station. Teams will be provided for. Now, brethren and sisters, on the district and elsewhere, do make special effort to be present at this meeting, which is at once a district and grove meeting, ready to engage heartily in the service of the Lord. Several preachers will be present to preach the word.

L. C. MCKINSTRY, Sec. pro. tem.

BASKET MEETING.—There will be a basket meeting held in the barn of M. Smith, at South Rochester, the 3d and 4th of July, and hold over Sunday. We trust the Lord will send some of his servants to preach the word. All are invited to come with the armor on.

S. HAWKINS.

THE Mechanic Falls Campmeeting committee are requested to meet at Danville Junction, on arrival of the nine o'clock A. M. train from Portland, June 22nd, to make arrangements for the coming campmeeting, and such other business as may come before them. All of the Board are requested to be present.

For the Com., C. DENNEN.

AN APPEAL.

The season has now arrived when the special work of holding Tent Meetings should be begun. The Mass. Conference has a good Tent ready again for service in the harvest field of the Lord; and the question is: Shall it be sent forth once more with good and faithful laborers to gather in sheaves for Christ, and give the warning of the coming day of God? In order that this may be done, there must be a sacrifice made by the friends of Jesus, and means given to sustain in this way his precious cause.

It is proposed that the Tent this year be taken into new fields, and where our precious faith has not as yet been heard. If this is done, there will be a special necessity for contributions on the part of our churches and people in general, to defray the expenses of these meetings in these new places.

As the Committee, chosen at the late Conference to have the charge of the Tent and make arrangements for the work in connection with it, we invite all who have the means and the heart to give in sustaining this mode of reaching the people, to do so as soon as they can, that we may know how far to go in promising the Tent where it is already requested.

Contributions and pledges can be sent to the Treasurer, ELD. C. GOODRICH, Boston, Mass.

B. YOUNG, L. BOUTELL, C. E. BARNES, I. I. LESLIE, } Protracted Meeting and Tent Committee.

☞ Notice.

The members of the Mass. Second Advent Christian Conference are requested to send to the Secretary their names and address, that each may receive a certificate of membership, according to a vote of the Conference.

I. I. LESLIE, Sec., Box 5140 Boston, Mass.

Tremont Campmeeting.

The Annual Campmeeting at Tremont, Mass., will commence Monday, July 19th, and continue to the 28th. Arrangements will be made to supply all with board and lodging. All who can are requested to bring Tents.

Brethren in the Lord, do make arrangements to attend this meeting, especially all who reside in the southerly part of this State. Come at the commencement, if possible. We intend to secure good profitable laborers, those who are prepared to bring out an exposition of those prophecies especially applicable to these times, and now in process of fulfillment, when the church will be delivered. This may be the last annual gathering we shall be permitted to enjoy before the Lord will gather his own to himself. Let us do what we can to save the perishing before it is too late. Bro. Munger will have charge of the meeting.

HENRY V. DAVIS, for the Committee.

THE BIBLICAL MESSENGER.

This monthly is well printed, and is a bold advocate of Bible truth. It gives prominence to holiness of heart, and the speedy return of Christ to resurrect the dead and set up his everlasting kingdom.

EDITORS: A. A. Hoyt, H. F. Carpenter, A. W. Sibley, Frank Burr, M. R. Phetteplace, C. Mendenhall. TERMS: Sixty cents a year. Send for sample copies. Agents wanted.

The Biblical Messenger and World's Crisis will both be sent to one address for $2.60. Address all orders for both papers to World's Crisis, 160 Hanover Street, Boston, Mass.

PRICE REDUCED.

The great Map of History, twenty-two feet long, and about thirty inches wide. This valuable work, of which mention has been made in the Crisis, we now have a supply of, and will send to those who may order at the publisher's reduced price of $12.00 per copy, by express. We have them on rollers, and in book form, and can supply either way.

The best method of using the chart or map of history is to hang the frame on the wall of the room (the map being in the frame, of course), by the two hooks in the upper bar of the frame, high enough to stand, or sit, in front of it, and there examine or study it.

Students and beginners in history should occasionally look over the map in its entire length—drawn out on the wall, or tables, or on the carpet—until they are well acquainted with the entire outlines, plan and compass of the map, which embraces all history.

DARE TO STAND ALONE.

Be firm, be bold, be strong, be true,
And dare to stand alone;
Strive for the right whate'er you do,
Though helpers there are none.

Nay, bend not to the swelling surge
Of popular sneer and wrong;
'Twill bear thee on to ruin's verge
With current wild and strong.

Stand for the right! Humanity
Implores with groans and tears
Thine aid to break the festering links
That bind her toiling years.

Stand for the right! Though falsehood reigns
And proud lips coldly sneer,
A poisoned arrow cannot wound
A conscience pure and clear.

Stand for the right! and with clean hands
Exalt the true on high;
Thou'lt find warm and sympathizing hearts
Among the passers by.

Stand for the right! proclaim it round,
Thou'lt find an answering tone
In honest hearts, and thou no more
Be doomed to stand alone!

POSITIVE RELIGION.

Perhaps there has never been a period, in all the history of the church, when positive, unequivocal, outspoken religion was more needed to smite, on the one hand, the boasted statements of scientists and modern philosophers; and silence, on the other, the unfounded claims of Romanism to the possession of the only true faith. The doubting, hesitating, uncertain, "don't know, and hope so" statements which have been made in many pulpits, and by many professors of religion, have been, and still are producing their legitimate results, in a scepticism which denies and doubts all religion, and in a superstition which gulps down the most monstrous pretensions and the most unscriptural dogmas. It is in the presence of these facts that we reassert, a positive religion is demanded, producing an unmistakable christian character and life, and calling forth an unhesitating testimony as to its reality, its supernaturalness, its glory, and its power.

But neither the outward character and life, nor the testimony of the mouth can be had without the inward, conscious experience. And in this statement, we think we strike at the very foundation of the whole difficulty in the way of the progressive triumph of our holy religion. No careful observer of the status of the churches of our own country can doubt that there has been a sad and serious decline in the spirituality, the clearness of experience, and the satisfactoriness of the religious life during the last quarter of a century. And, what may be regarded as both a cause and effect of this condition of things, there has been a rapid and wide-spread increase of worldliness, sloth, and indifference to divine things, in individuals, families, and churches. The tone of the religious life has been lowered, its spirit weakened, and, indeed, its pristine spirituality and power emasculated. We are now speaking of the church generally. In many instances, and in local districts, these remarks will not apply; but as a general view of the condition of the christian churches—our own [Methodist] not excluded—they will be regarded as truthful.

Now this is very far from the character, the spirit, and the testimony of the primitive church, and of our own early church history. Then the experience was clear, full, and glorious, and the testimony was correspondingly clear and strong. Their language was, "I know whom I have believed"—"we know that we have passed from death unto life.' "We know that all things work together for good to them that love God"—and "We know that if the earthly house of our tabernacle were dissolved," etc. These are only a very few specimens of the positive manner in which they spoke of their religious life and hopes. It must be evident, however, that such testimonies must be based upon a clear conviction of the truths of religion, and an undoubted persuasion of their divine origin. Any doubt, or fear, or hesitation here is fatal. The oft-uttered thought that "it makes no matter what a man believes if his heart is only right," is as false in philosophy as it is in religion. No man's heart or life will be right whose faith is radically wrong. It is eternally true that "as a man thinketh, so is he."

One reason why the faith of many professors of religion runs so low is, that they habitually neglect the reading of God's word—and confine their attention to the newspaper, or the novel. We hear much now a-days about brain-food and brain-culture; we want to hear more about heart-food and heart-culture. No person can become a strong, steady, useful and happy christian, without the knowledge of God's eternal truths. But something more than a mere theoretical knowledge, and a mental conviction is needed. What is needed is an experience in consciousness, which is knowledge of these truths. I must know in my soul that my sins are forgiven me, and that I have been born again, before I can truthfully say that this is my experience. I must know that I am fully saved, washed in the blood of the Lamb, and sanctified by the Holy Ghost before I can testify to these things.

But when the Holy Spirit has borne his testimony in the depths of my consciousness, that thus it is with me, and when I realize in my character and life the corresponding fruits, it is an easy matter for me to speak of it—in fact I cannot but speak the things which I have seen by faith, and felt in my consciousness. This is in accordance with the promise of the blessed, redeeming, and risen Lord, only a moment before "he ascended up far above all heavens, that he might fill all things:"—"Ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost has come upon you, and ye shall be witnesses unto me." What then the church needs in its collective capacity, and in its individual membership, is this power—this divine, supernatural power—producing a supernatural life within, and a supernatural life without. Where these factors exist, the testimony will be positive and powerful. We want to be able to tell to this ungodly, unbelieving world, that just as surely as we know the sun shineth in the heavens, and as we know that the blood tingles in our veins, and as we know that physical life exists within us, so we know that we are saved, that we are "justified freely by the grace of God, through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus;" that we are born of God by the power of the Holy Ghost; that "the blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth us from all sin;" and that as blessed results of these experiences we are full of peace, joy and hope. This testimony, borne in life and in death, is the mightiest weapon in the christian armory. Our old fathers and mothers used to sing,— Cuts like a sharp, two-edged sword."

And so it does. "They overcame by the blood of the Lamb"—as the efficient, meritorious cause; "and by the word of their testimony,"—as the instrumental means.—Christian Standard.

HERETICS.

"A man that is a heretic, after the first and second admonition, reject."—TITUS 3: 10.

Heresy is often applied to any error, or supposed error, in religious teachings or doctrines. By the more generous, those only are considered heretics who hold to some error that affects a so-called "fundamental" doctrine of Christianity.

Let us look at the scriptural use of the word. "Heretic," from the Greek word hairetikos, occurs only in Titus 3: 10. "Heresies," Greek hairesis, may be found nine times in the New Testament, five times translated sect, three times heresies, and once heresy, as follows; "Of the sect of the Sadducees."—Acts 5: 17. "Certain of the sect of the Pharisees."—Acts 15: 5. "The sect of the Nazarenes."—Acts 24: 5. "Straightest sect of our religion."—Acts 26: 5. "As concerning this sect."—Acts 28: 22. "The way which they call heresy."—Acts 24: 14. "There must be also heresies."—1 Cor. 11: 19. "Strife, seditions, heresies."—Gal. 5: 20. "Shall bring in damnable heresies."—2 Peter 2: 1.

It would seem from the use of the word, either that heresy only meant sect, or that division and sect-making constituted heresy. Let those who have the sect-making spirit beware, for even if their theology be more scriptural than those from whom they dissent, if they have the spirit of division, the word of God stamps them as heretics. No one can divide and separate himself from a christian, or any body of christians, without taking upon himself the stamp of heresy.

A christian brother may hold to an error in religion, and yet be no heretic; indeed, he may hold to a thousand errors without being a heretic; but if one has all truth, and with it the spirit of division, God's word brands him with the fatal mark of "heretic." Heresy is of the heart and not of the head. It is of the flesh, and not of the intellect. "Now the works of the flesh are manifest, which are these: adultery, fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness, idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, variance, emulations, murders, drunkenness, revellings, and such like. . . . They which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God." Gal. 5: 19–21.

If we follow the flesh, we may have the spirit of heresy before we know it; elbowing one, putting a strait-jacket upon another, separating ourselves from a third, and so, with all the truth which we may even think we have, we may do more harm than a weak Christian brother who has a head full of wrong theology.

The apostle talks plainly upon this point, though sectarians make crooked work in explaining it. "Now I beseech you, brethren, mark them which cause divisions and offences contrary to the doctrines which ye have heard of us, and avoid them."—Rom. 16: 17. Let the church of Christ ever beware of dividers and sect-makers, for such are heretics.—Bible Banner.

POST-MORTEM EPISCOPACY.

Without just now stopping to argue, either pro or con, the doctrine of disembodied ghosts, or man's capacity for being alive and dead at the same time, it shall be sufficient to say that, were we to tabulate and classify all the heresies, extravaganzas, phantasies, tricks of legerdemain, of fabulous imposture, and of downright blasphemy, which have had their birth, florescence and maturity out of this prolific soil, our readers would hardly give us credit for sanity. It is nevertheless a task to which we shall probably feel ourselves imperiously summoned before long; and as we have no fear of disturbing the dead by any such process, so our faith is equally strong that the living will hasten to thank us. It is only the fathers of fraud and the doctors of divination who need be in any alarm. To them indeed, in a sense not contemplated by Sir Walter Scott when he wrote his poem of Marmion, may be applied the prophetic warning of the murdered Constance—

"Yet dread me from my living tomb,
Ye vassal-slaves of bloody Rome."

But our design to-day is limited to the chronicling of one of the earliest of these "merrie conceits," which, whether "merry or wise," may also carry a moral with it; and that moral is a caveat against any further attempts to buttress either truth or error by cabalistic or fraudulent machinery. It occurs in Dean Stanley's "Lectures on the Eastern Church," where he relates the manner in which the unanimous subscription was obtained of all the bishops who had assisted in the construction of the Creed and Canons of Nicæa in the Council of the year 325.

Two of the three hundred and eighteen bishops, Chrysanthus and Mysonius, who had entirely concurred in the views of the Council, died before the close of its session and were buried in the cemetery of Nicæa. When therefore the day for the final subscription arrived, the surviving members of the Council, having first written their own names in the volume containing the aforesaid creed and canons, and leaving two blank spaces for the signatures of their deceased brethren, then carried the book to their grave, and solemnly adjured them, that if then, in the brightness of the Divine Presence, they still approved, they would descend, and sign with their brethren the decrees of the faith. The volume was then sealed up and laid upon the tomb, the surviving bishops meanwhile watching all night in prayer; and when the morning light permitted them to break the seal, they found the following declaration signed by the two dead men: "We, Chrysanthus and Mysonius, fully concurring with the first holy and œcumenical Synod, although removed from earth, have signed the volume with our own hands."—Bible Echo.

THERE is a large and fertile space in every life in which might be planted the oaks and fruit trees of enlightened principle and virtuous habits, which, growing up, would yield to old age and enjoyment a glory and shade.

A SUGGESTION.

Dear Editors:—While thinking upon the day of Pentecost and its glorious results, my mind reverted also to the great centennial celebration proposed to be held in Phila. next year. On the day of Pentecost there were parties present at Jerusalem, out of every nation. It will, no doubt, be somewhat similar in that respect, at Philadelphia Those strangers at Jerusalem, many of them at least, carried home with them a new gospel, the gospel of Jews. Thus was inaugurated the first step toward preaching the gospel in the whole world. Now, if the Lord should delay his coming until after 1876 (which I devoutly pray he may not), how can we utilize that event for the spread of the truth? We may not expect any more interposition of Providence, but might not the use of proper means in connection with that event, result, with God's blessing, in introducing the blessed truth of Jesus' soon coming, among nations who have not yet heard it?

I would suggest the holding of a prolonged series of tent meetings, in various localities, in Phila., and the employment of whatever foreign talents we could secure among our brethren to assist in those meetings. Surely the Lord will not be displeased if, while men are seeking their own glory, we should make an effort to promote his honor and cause.

No doubt the great deficency during the Celebration will be a want of accommodation for lodging. Our tents could thus be utilized for the use of our brethren gathering from different parts. This would be quite a consideration. Such also might prove an inducement for many of our dear brethren to attend at times, and assist in the meetings, who could not otherwise see their way clear. I should like to have some of our brethren of experience express their opinion in the Crisis. I have not suggested any details of plans. Of course the dissemination of tracts, in foreign languages, would be a most efficient agent.

LOVING GOD.

D. R. HARGRAVES.

It is often our lot to come in contact with persons professing Christianity, who, when asked if they love the Lord, will reply, "I hope I do." If asked if they are doing all they can for the upbuilding of his cause, will answer, "I am trying to do about right; there is not much that I can do. I am so busy with the cares of life, and my business is such, that I do not have time to do as much as I ought to perhaps; but I try to be honest, and deal fairly with all men, and hope to be saved."

Dear friend, is this all that the Lord requires of us? Is this reflecting back the love that God has bestowed upon us, as much as it is our privilege, and therefore our duty to do? Is it not our privilege to know of a surety that we love God? And, loving him, shall we not strive to do his will, may we not know that we shall be saved? God's love toward the children of men was not inactive, but fruitful; and was made manifest by his long suffering toward us, and the giving of his only begotten Son to die on the cross, that we, through him, might obtain eternal life. O what love in that was made manifest! Who can fathom it?

Dear reader, we are living in a time when it is our duty to examine ourselves carefully, to see if we are of a truth loving God. To find out whether there be anything standing between us and God; to see if our chief pleasure is in serving him; for in the last days, the word says, that men would be "lovers of their own selves," and "lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God." How faithfully we see this prediction being fulfilled. On every hand we see men plunged into business, whose chief aim is to buy, and sell, and get gain; having no thought of God in their hearts, but that they may gratify their own ambitions, and procure the pleasures of this evil and sinful world.

Friends, let us look to it. Let us come out from the world. Let us be in a position where we can say with confidence, and of a truth, that we love God; being willing to sacrifice any and all things for his cause, because it is his. If we are in this position we shall have no fears for the consequence, for God will give us the Spirit, to answer with ours, that we are his. Brethren, we have got but a little time longer to be faithful. Soon the Master will come and "give to every man as his work shall be." How frivolous the excuses that we make for not being more diligent in the service of the Lord will look then. If we are found among those that are lost, how we shall wish that we had been more in earnest in the matter, and had not rested until we had learned to love Him wholly, and above all things else.

May the Lord help us to be faithful, and to stand in our lot and place, that we may be able with Paul to say, "I have fought a good fight; I have finished my course; I have kept the faith." The Lord bless us, and keep us, till he comes, and give us a crown of life in his everlasting kingdom, that we may reign with him forever. Amen.

WITH ALL THE HEART.

That was a striking thing said of one of the kings belonging to the Hebrew royalty, when the work and the results of his successful reign were being summed up: "He did it with all his heart and prospered."

This doing things with a hearty enthusiasm is often what makes the doer a marked person, and his deeds effective. It is so everywhere. The most ordinary service is dignified when it is performed in that spirit. Every employer wants those who work for him to put heart into the toil. He soon picks out those whose souls are in their service, and gives them evidences of his appreciation. They do not need constant watching. He can trust them in his absence. The places of honor and profit naturally fall to them. They are the rising members of the toiling brotherhood. They grow. They succeed. They are honored. They are in demand. They rebuke indifference and inspire fidelity in others by their example. They prosper, for they work in harmony with the law which God has established and maintained in the world.

In the sphere of religion this heartiness in service is specially needful and vital. What is not done heartily here is hardly done at all, as God estimates it. He wants sincerity, resolution, persistence, enthusiasm—not merely the consenting word and the formal act. A service that begins and ends with the letter is never acceptable service with him. The Pharisee's tithes of mints and anise and cummin are often an offence; the publican's penitent cry, and the poor woman's gift of two mites, wear a right royal glory in his eye, because he sees the whole-souled devotion that lies behind them.—Morning Star.

ARE YOU A THIEF?

D. K. BARRETT.

I mean, do you take what is another's, and appropriate it to your own use, without the owner's consent? "Why, no! I never was called such a person; have always meant to be an honest man."

Well, an honest man is the right kind of man. The Jews to whom Malachi prophesied would not have liked to be called dishonest men, I presume.

Is it any less wicked to steal from God than from man? To rob God! What an offence! But "will a man rob God?" God tells the Jews—"Ye have robbed me. But ye say, Wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings." How was this?

God created all things, and hence all belongs to him. He has said—"For every beast of the forest is mine, and the cattle upon a thousand hills. I know all the fowls of the mountains, and the wild beasts of the field are mine. . . . The world is mine, and the fulness thereof." Ps. 50: 10–13. He had told the Jews what to do with a tenth part of what was given into their charge, and directed them in regard to certain offerings. But instead of their doing as God directed, they used it in their own selfish way, and thus robbed God—using another's property as though it was their own.

Do you do this? I would ask. Do you acknowledge that you are accountable to God for the use you make of whatever he has entrusted to you? The Savior calls us stewards of "the unrighteous mammon." "Moreover it is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful." "If, therefore, ye have not been faithful in the unrighteous mammon [riches], who will commit to your trust the true riches? And if ye have not been faithful in that which is another man's, who shall give you that which is your own?"

To us is entrusted the gospel, and much light from God's word. His direction is—"Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." As ye have freely received, so freely give, whether it be the light of truth, worldly goods, or something else. It shall be required of a man "according to that he hath, and not according to that he hath not." We are then "stewards of the manifold grace of God."

We sometimes hear people say, "I am my own; I can do as I please." "My tongue is my own, and I have a right to say what I choose." "What! know ye not that your body is [if it serves the purpose God would have it] the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own? For ye are bought with a price." Your mind, power of speech, hearing and seeing, yea, your whole body, by right belongs to God. Have you been robbing God in any of these things? Have you been at work for yourself instead of God? come back, then, and restore the stolen goods to their owner. "Present your bodies a living sacrifice." It is only your "reasonable service." Acknowledge all you have and are as God's, and henceforth do business as God's agent or steward. "Trust in the Lord and do good; so shalt thou dwell in the land, and verily thou shalt be fed." You shall not "want any good thing." And finally it shall be said to you—"Well done, good and faithful servant, . . . enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

DRESS AT CHURCH.

The best bred people of every christian country but ours, avoid all personal display when engaged in worship and prayer. Our churches, on the contrary, are made places for the exhibition of fine apparel and other costly and flaunting compliances with fashion, by those who boast of superior wealth and manners.

It is often said, "If I have money of my own I have a right to spend it as I choose." We have no money of our own. The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof. We are only stewards of what he sees fit to entrust us with. We have no right to squander it in riotous living, and shall be called to give an account for every farthing. Is it not a vain hope then, we have of heaven, when, contrary to the word of God, we adorn ourselves with all that money can purchase, for outward show, and come to the altar of worship flaunting in the face of the meek and lowly Jesus our forbidden vanity, while we profess to bow in humble reverence and obedience to his commands? And this too, when our next door neighbors are awed into staying away from the house of God because of the contrast between our costly array and their humble attire.

We may flatter ourselves that we are not our brother's keeper, and it is their privilege to stay away, and indeed our pleasure, for we do not care to come in such close contact with the vulgar, but we cannot dissemble before God. No matter how much of selfishness and pride may be hidden beneath our costly robes, or how much of outward show we may make of mock humility; the eye that never slumbers nor sleeps, penetrates through all. And our most secret motives are known to Him by whom we shall be judged. Would it not be well then, if we choose perdition, to lay aside all pretentions to be a follower of Christ, and not be a stumbling block in the way of others? or better, to lay aside our vanity, and use the means God has placed in our hands for his glory, in providing the necessities of life for those who are ready, and in opening up the way so that all may have a taste of the bread of life which is broken to the perishing in the sanctuary of our God?—Banner of Holiness.

THE SIZE OF THE ARK.—In the Crisis of May 19th we find an article under the above caption, in which we find some good figuring; but either the writer has made a great mistake, or else there is a typographical error, which makes the ark less than half its true size. It reads that the ark was "thirteen cubits high." The Bible reads that the ark was "thirty cubits" high. See Gen. 6: 15. We want the whole truth in these days of skepticism. J. W. BURROUGHS.

THE BLOOD OF CHRIST.

What avails the blood of Christ? It avails what mountains of good works heaped up by us, what columns of the incense of prayer curling up from our lips toward heaven, and what streams of tears of penitence gushing from our eyelids, never could avail. "The blood of Jesus Christ, his Son, cleanseth us from all sin." "Helps us to cleanse ourselves, perhaps?" No; cleanseth us. "Furnishes the motive and the obligation for us to cleanse ourselves?" No; it cleanseth us. "Cleanseth us from the desire to sin?" No; cleanseth us from sin itself. "Cleanseth us from the sin of inactivity in the work of personal improvement?" No; from all sin. But did you say the blood does this?" Yes, the blood. "The doctrine of Christ you must mean?" No; his blood, his blood.

Oh, what hostility the world still betrays toward this essential element of christianity! Can anything be stated more plainly in language than the entire word of God declares, that our redemption from sin is by the blood of Christ? And yet what strenuous efforts are constantly made to set aside this plain, essential, wonderful and most glorious truth, that "the blood of our Lord Jesus Christ cleanseth us from all sin"!—German of Krummacher.

IN MEMORY OF SISTER ABBIE LADD.

M. ST.CLAIR.

Once again the earth is lovely
With the fragrant flowers of May;
Through the vale the dashing river
Still pursues its onward way.
Once again the grand old elms
Are arrayed in robes of green,
And the blithe and bright-hued songsters
Mid their branches fair are seen.

Nature all is just as lovely
As she was one year ago;
Just as bright the dress of elms,
Just as sweet the river flows;
And the music of the robins
Falls as gently on the ear,
As when she, now gone before us,
Blest us with her presence dear.

Still the clouds have silver linings,
Brilliant rainbows arch the sky;
But we miss the form that's sleeping
Where the May flowers bloom and die.
Miss we now the voice that cheered us,
And the hands that ours once pressed;
For they are in silence lying,
Clasped across her pulseless breast.

Oh, our hearts grow sad and lonely,
And the hot tears wildly flow,
Though we know she'll come with Jesus,
Robed in garments white as snow.
But as birdling seeks, when weary,
Shelter in its parent nest,
So we'll hail with joy the morning
Of that glorious time of rest.

But the burden will grow heavy,
Till we gently lay it down;
And in that triumphant moment
Hear the glorious trumpet sound.
We shall view the wondrous beauty
Of that shining happy band;
We shall feel the eager clasping
Of that darling daughter's hand.

THE HATLEY DISTRICT MEETING.

This meeting convened at Ways Mills, Barnston, as per appointment in the Crisis, March 19th, and onward over the Sabbath; but was thinly attended on account of extreme weather, and other causes. Yet there were manifest tokens of the divine Spirit's influence, and the preaching for the most part was good, and the social meetings interesting and profitable to some extent.

The Free Baptist Quarterly Meeting that held its session at Coaticook the week before, invited a representation of our conference and christian work, which was given by Eld. Mc.Kinstry, who was present, and was kindly received and well treated. They, by motion and vote, appointed one of their best preachers, Eld. Lester, to meet with us at our District Meeting. He was by some means prevented from attending, but other ministers of the order were present, and bore their part in the service, and exhibited a true christian spirit. So much for our order and conference arrangement. By respecting ourselves, we command others' respect.

Eld. F. M. Drake was present, and made due amends for previous opposition to our conference work, and for giving his influence to fanatical and disorderly persons and parties. He was kindly received and freely forgiven, and we deeply regret his present diseased condition, and utter inability to serve the cause of truth he loved so well. May he gain the kingdom, and wear a crown of life.

We were made to feel our loss by not seeing Bro. Steven's pleasant countenance in our midst. We heard no words of warning or good cheer from his lips, as on other occasions of the kind. Why was he not with us? Death had made him a captive, and locked him up alone, and will forcibly detain him until Jesus comes.

In our business meeting the following resolution was passed: "Whereas, since our last District Meeting, the Vice President of this conference, our beloved brother and fellow laborer, Eld. Norman Stevens, has been suddenly smitten down by death, and we are made painfully conscious of the stern fact, by not seeing him as usual in our midst, Therefore Resolved, That in our District Meeting and representative capacity, we wish hereby to express our unhesitating and full fellowship for our deceased brother, and deep sadness at his loss; and moreover, our steadfast and comforting hope that he now sleeps in Jesus, and will, in due time, come forth to share with us the life eternal; and we pledge ourselves to live and pray for a double portion of his Spirit, and thus close up our thinned ranks, like valiant soldiers to "fight the good fight of faith," imitating our brother's good example, and retaining, embalmed in our memories, the acceptable savor of his christian character, who, being dead, has not been forgotten."

Our meeting closed on Sabbath with the sacrament of the Lord's supper as others have done. Quite a large number participated, and we parted, hoping to meet again. I remained and preached twice after the meeting. C. P. DOW.

STARS.—It is not so much the large stars shining on a dark night that makes the sky luminous, but the multitude of little ones all doing their best in their separate places. There are comparatively few of the large ones—not enough by any means to light up the infinite reaches of space between us and them—and so here is the need of the little ones. Are you pining in your place for the honor of a large star? Be content; your mission is just as high a one as that of the largest orb that shines. Though not equal in size, you may yet be in brightness. Keep steadily to your appointed place, making all the light you can, and you are the largest star in the eyes of the great God who ruleth over all.—Methodist Recorder.

A GOOD TEST.

A few years ago, as Rev. Professor Finney was holding a series of meetings in the city of Edinburgh, many persons called upon him for personal conversation and prayer.

One day a gentleman appeared in great distress of mind. He had listened to Mr. Finney's sermon on the previous evening, and it had torn away his "refuge of lies." Mr. Finney was plain and faithful with him, pointing out to him the way of life clearly, and his only hope of salvation. The weeping man assured him that he was willing to give up all for Jesus—that he knew of nothing he would reserve—all for Jesus.

"Then let us go upon our knees and tell God of that," said Mr. Finney. So both knelt at the altar, and Mr. Finney prayed: "O Lord! this man declares that he is prepared to take thee as his God, and to cast himself upon thy care, now and forever."

The man responded "Amen!" heartily.

Mr. Finney continued: "O Lord! this man vows that he is ready to give his wife, family, and all their interests up to thee."

Another hearty "Amen!" from the man.

He went on: "O Lord? he says that he is also willing to give thee his business, whatever it may be, and conduct it for thy glory."

The man was silent—no response. Mr. Finney was surprised at his silence, and asked: "Why do you not say 'Amen' to this?"

"Because the Lord will not take my business, sir: I am in the spirit trade," he answered.

The traffic could not withstand such a test as that. "The Lord will not take" such a business under his care. He demands its destruction as one of the mightiest obstacles to the progress of his cause in the earth.—American Messenger.

SMALL WORRIES.

The Christian world has long been guessing what Paul's thorn in the flesh was. Many of the theological doctors have felt Paul's pulse to see what was the matter with him. We suppose the reason he did not tell us what it was, may have been because he did not want us to know. He knew that if he stated what it was, there would have been a great many people from Corinth bothering him with prescriptions as to how he might cure it.

Some say it was diseased eyes; some that it was a humped back. It may have been neuralgia. Perhaps it was gout; although his active habits and spare diet throw doubt on the supposition. Suffice it to say it was a thorn—that is, it stuck him. It was sharp.

It was probably of not much account in the eyes of the world. It was not a trouble that could be compared to a lion or a boisterous sea. It was like a thorn that you may have in your hand or foot and no one know it. Thus we see that it becomes a type of those little nettlesome worries of life that exasperate the spirit.

FITNESS FOR HEAVEN.—A clergyman riding beside a profane coachman, who discharged volley after volley of oaths, fixing his eyes upon him said, "I cannot imagine what you will do in heaven! There are no horses, or coaches, or saddles, or bridles, or public houses in heaven. There will be no one to swear at, or to whom you can use bad language. I cannot think what you will do when you get to heaven." Years after, the same clergyman was called to see a dying man, who told him that he was saved through his rebuke, "I cannot think what you will do in heaven."

HOME AND HEALTH.

AWAY WITH TEMPTATION.

HOW A MINISTER BECAME AN OSTLER.

A few years since a number of ladies and gentlemen were assembled in the elegantly furnished parlors of a wealthy man who resided near to one of the principal American colleges. The company had met to see Judge Fiddle a member of Congress, whose son, was to be the valedictorian on the morrow at the Commencement. By common consent, as the idol of his class, this position had been assigned to Leo. During the evening the conversation turned upon the subject of temperance. An advocate of total abstinence asked the Judge for his opinion, which he gave as follows:

"I suppose my temperance friends will not consider me orthodox on that subject. I am utterly opposed to outside meeddling with our domestic and family affairs, for I believe in every man tempering himself. Every person must be a law unto himself. I have the best of wines, and something stronger, too, on my sideboard. My children have always had free access thereto."

The next day the Commencement exercises occurred. The son of the Judge did much better than his warmest friends had expected. Old and young were alike delighted with his eloquence. That evening the host and hostess of the Judge gave a large party in honor of the graduating class. The temperance friend of the Judge, who had discussed that question with him on the previous evening, congratulated the Judge on having raised such a son. To which the Judge had the bad taste to reply: "Yes, yes; I am proud of that boy; but, do you know, he was brought up with the bottle?" If that father couuld have known what was transpiring at that moment in his son's room at the college, no such silly joke could or would have fallen from his lips.

After finishing his oratorical effort so creditably, Leo met, by prior appointment, with a number of his young friends at his room. From beneath the bed he drew an old trunk, and from it he took out several bottles of wine and one of brandy. While his companions drank sparingly of the wine he drank deeply of the stronger liquor. Before delivering his address he had taken several glasses to nerve him up for the the day's work. Consequently this second recourse to alcohol very soon produced its necessary effect; so that while the others were only merry he became boisterous, and even delirious.

The doctor was sent for, and came, to find the youthful hero of the day afflicted with incipient delirium tremens. The struggles of the liquor infuriated maniac were so fierce that the strength of three athletic companions was severely tasked to hold the victim in bed. The doctor at once administered opiates and enjoined secrecy. At length the patient slept, and the danger was over. When he became fully conscious, thirty hours thereafter, of his critical condition, in reply to the doctor's inquiry how, when, and where he had acquired the taste for strong drink, for the doctor knew it was not recent, he said:

"I began drinking wine when quite a child, from my father's sideboard, which lost its power to exhilerate me sufficiently, as I grew older, and I took to drinking brandy; but this is the first time it got ahead of me, and shall be the last."

The doctor was anxious to save the youth for many reasons, especially on account of his belief that an engagement existed between Leo and his own daughter. He therefore told Leo that his only salvation depended upon total abstinence;—that he had never joined a temperance society, but would quietly unite with him in signing the pledge. Leo readily assented, and the old man of sixty and the young one of twenty organized a private association of their own. Both expected to keep it during life. The doctor did; but, alas! in the end Leo did not.

In consequence of Leo having experienced a change of heart ,and joined the church a few months after graduating from college, his father abandoned the idea of making a lawyer of him, and sent him to the Princeton Theological Seminary. After having been licensed, and having preached acceptably for a year, he married the daughter of the physician already referred to, and, accepting a call, became the pastor of a large and wealthy congregation. No person ever saw a more handsome or devoted couple.

After some time a beautiful boy was born to them. The nurse asked for liquor to put into the young mother's food. The young minister procured some liquor at a drug store. By accident the vial lost its cork and spilled its contents in his pocket. The fumes fired his brain. He tasted the alcoholic poison, then swallowed a glass of it. That night he led in his prayer meeting. He was so unusually eloquent as to receive many congratulations thereupon. Thereafter he never went into the pulpit or into the desk of the lecture room without taking some alcoholic beverage. One evening, having taken too much, he fell upon the lecture room floor while attempting to sit down upon a chair.

All saw that he was drunk. The hearts of his people were nearly broken. They loved him truly, and were devotedly attached to his amiable wife. He was prevailed upon to resign to save the disgrace of expulsion. He returned with his heart-broken wife and their unconscious babe to his father's house. Soon after arriving he found the old sideboard, and became helplessly intoxicated. Then, for the first time, the eyes of the Judge were opened; but too late for poor Leo. His father and mother are now dead. His wife is earning her living by teaching school; but he, once so bright, once so eloquent, is now, or was quite recently, an ostler at a country wayside tavern.—Ex.

HAVE COURAGE.

"What's the reason you are not a christian, Henry?"

"I hardly know."

"Do you wish to be?"

"Yes; I would give anything if I were a real christian, such as Mr. K.—— is."

"You know the way; it is simple."

"I know it, but——"

"But what?"

"Of the boys—those I know and meet with every day."

"And what of them? What will they do or say?"

"They will not do anything, but they will laugh at and plague me, and call me pious, or something of the kind."

"Would that hurt you?"

"Not for Christ's sake? Not for his love?"

"It would be hard."

"Perhaps so, but if you are ever to be a christian you must be willing to bear as much as this. Let us see what your friend here thinks of it. James, you love the Savior, do you not?"

"I do."

"And do the boys trouble you very much?"

"Not at all. I made up my mind to take the laugh as it came. I expected the boys would begin on me when I went to school. but they never have."

"And if they should?"

"I should be more sorry for them than for myself. It is so sweet loving Jesus that I can afford being laughed at a little, or even more than that."

"Henry, perhaps it would be the same with you; but have you not the courage to do what you know you ought? Are you willing to be a coward still?"—S. S. Times.

GIVE THEM COLD WATER.—It is very doubtful if there is a single possible disease in which the patient should not have cold water ad libitum. Oh. how the babes often suffer for cold water. A nursing babe is given, no matter how thirsty, nothing but milk. The little lips are dry and cracked, and the little tongue so parched it can scarcely nurse, and yet it has nothing but milk to assuage its craving thirst. Try it yourself, mother, when you have a fever, and we are sure that ever after, when your darling is dying with thirst, the teaspoon and tumbler of cold water will be in constant use.—Ex.

THERE are those who think it a fine thing for a young man to spend his money with a careless, dashing freedom, and the spendthrift is a character less despised than the miser. But we think the weak vanity which prompts the young man to spend carelessly that with which he could do so many noble and satisfying things, is not more wise than that of the miser who devotes all his thoughts to getting, without any definite plan of present or future use.

BURDENS.

S. SHRINER.

"Cast thy burden on the Lord."

I'll cast my burden on the Lord,
And lean on his most precious word;
E'en though the way seem dark and drear,
I'll trust him still, I know he's near.

Dark clouds may hide the light from me,
So that his face I cannot see;
Yet cling I to the mercy-seat,
And cast my burden at his feet.

Come, weary burdened one, saith he,
My grace sufficient is for thee;
And to his side I flee for aid,
While at his feet my burden's laid.

Ever to this cleft Rock I'll flee,
Knowing I shall protected be;
That in the hour of pain or grief,
My burdened heart shall find relief.

CHRISTIAN UNION.

I. K. LOMBARD.

I read more than usual in our late papers about "sectarianism," "sectarian parties," "sectarian names," etc., with occasional allusions to "union in Christ," union of the various churches, etc., as a prospective relief from sectarianism. I should not think the matter worthy of notice, if some of the allusions to "sectarianism," etc., did not seem directed against our zeal for the truth. It has ever been Satan's policy to brand the truth with the name of "heresy," and the love of it with the charge of "sectarianism." It is bad enough to see opposition to the truth from those who never knew its worth; but when brethren take up Satan's weapons, and use them in his service against the truth, it is time that the lovers of the truth speak out in its defence against such ungenerous thrusts.

There is probably nothing connected with our duty as christians more generally and plausibly counterfeited than christian union. Many are the devices of Satan on this point; and I wish that some of our brethren, who seem to be ensnared, were able to say with Paul, "We are not ignorant of his devices." 2 Cor. 2 : 11. The arch deceiver would fain have us believe that a union of all professed christians would be christian union, and a great blessing to the cause of God; and that we had better compromise every principle and doctrine endeared to us as "present truth" for the sake of such a union, than to sacrifice their good will and have division perpetuated for the truth's sake.

We have had one such amalgamation in the rise of the Catholic church, and Heaven knows that one such monster is enough. I have no fears that the short time intervening before the end of all things will admit of such a development by a union of the various Protestant churches; but there is a principle at work in the interest of this project which deserves attention, as it has been an influence against the truth more or less active at all times. I refer to a disposition to compromise our zeal for the truth of God for the sake of fellowship with those who have no relish for the truth.

There is a wide difference between christian union and a union of professors of religion under the name of christian union. In the former, the christian sacrifices no principle for union's sake, for the principles of all true christians are essentially the same; but in the latter he compromises everything that is sacred by amalgamating it with error and worldliness, as though all the elements were common stock and of a common value. He cannot make prominent what is offensive to the majority, and must therefore become a party to smothering the truth, if he does not actually join them in denouncing it as "heresy." If a man can be found among the lovers of the truth base enough to barter away his honest convictions for the sake of union with worldly, backslidden professors, he is just the man who can be spared without loss to the body of true believers. It is not a wonder nor a misfortune to the cause of God that those in her service who can put their principles and honest convictions into the market to be sold to the highest bidder, should feel ill at ease with the lovers of the truth, and should seek their level somewhere else.

But no true christian will violate his own conscience, nor ask such a base thing of another as the price of fellowship. True christian union cannot exist without full confidence in each other's integrity and sincerity, as its foundation. So if one is willing to barter his principles and honest convictions for the sake of fellowship, he is virtually trampling upon christian principle to obtain christian union. But a fellowship obtained at such a fearful price is not christian union, but a counterfeit. Any union or temporary association that requires a man to sacrifice his love of the truth as a price of association is not christian union, however cordial it may be.

Christian union is a union of christians—true, real christians, and none but christians. Others may be associated with them, but they do not enjoy the union. They do not drink into the one Spirit, nor are they baptized by the one Spirit into the one body, though their co-operation may be cordial and well meant. The union of true christians is not by a deliberate, mutual compact, either verbal or written; but by a spontaneous flowing together of hearts, like two drops of water. It finds its cause and commencement in the individual union of each member with Christ. Christians do not seek to be united with each other, nor feel that they ought to be united with each other; but they are united in heart and spirit with all who are united to Christ. Nothing is more spontaneous and free. It commences with their union with Christ, extends to all in fellowship with him, exists as long as this fellowship continues, and ends when they backslide from him.

Since, then, christian union spontaneously flows from our union with Christ, it cannot be found with those who never were united with him. Since, also, it depends upon our union with him, and ceases when we backslide from him, no backslider is in possession of it; and no company of backsliders, however mutual or cordial their union, can be said to live in christian union.

It cannot exist with the love of the world. John says—"If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him." 1 John 2 : 15. James says—"Ye adulterers and adulteresses, know ye not that the friendship of the world is enmity with God? Whosoever therefore will be a friend of the world is the enemy of God." James 4 : 4. Both of these passages agree in sentiment, and they are too explicit to leave room for a doubt as to their import. But as truly as "by their fruits ye shall know them," we may settle it that seven-eighths of the professors of religion in our land are without the love of God, and are "adulterers" in his sight.

It cannot exist with covetousness. There is no question but seven-eighths of the professed christians are covetous, both preachers and people. It has ceased to be a sin in their eyes, and especially if they do a fair thing in the way of supporting the church. But Paul has repeatedly declared that covetousness is idolatry. We must therefore come to the conclusion, either that Paul was mistaken, or that the mass of professors of religion are idolaters in God's sight. Another proof of idolatry in them is found in the remark of Paul—"Neither be ye idolaters, as were some of them; as it is written, The people sat down to eat and drink, and rose up to play." 1 Cor. 10 : 7. If it was idolatry for the Israelites to eat and drink and rise up to play, what shall we think of the proceedings of the churches all over the land in their oyster suppers, festivals, and other sprees, so frequent in these days? Is it any less idolatry when done under the light of the gospel, than it was in the wilderness? Paul says "these things . . . are written for our admonition, upon whom the ends of the world are come."

It cannot be found with those who scoff at the Lord's coming, or treat it with indifference. Christ says, "Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning; and ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their Lord, when he will return from the wedding; that, when he cometh and knocketh, they may open unto him immediately. Blessed are those servants whom the Lord, when he cometh, shall find watching." Luke 12 : 35–37. Paul says, "Unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time, without sin, unto salvation." Heb. 9 : 28. In another place, Paul tells us the crown is to be given "unto all them also that love his appearing." 2 Tim. 4 : 8. Here we have looking for him, waiting, watching, and loving his appearing, as the proper attitude of the church in relation to the coming of Christ. But any one who has preached the coming of the Lord in these days has learned that professors of religion are more prejudiced against it than those who make no pretensions to religion. The mass of professors of religion have departed as fearfully on this point as on the others considered.

Another feature which bears prominently on christian character in our day is a discernment of the signs of the times. Christ says of our day, that it shall be as it was in the days of Noah. Matt. 24 : 37–39. We read of Noah's day, "the wickedness of man was great in the earth." Gen. 6 : 5. Daniel says of our days, "The wicked shall do wickedly." Dan. 12 : 10. The prophet Joel says of the same time, "Their wickedness is great." Joel 3 : 13. Paul says that "evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse." 2 Tim. 3 : 12. These are a sample of the Scripture testimonies concerning the last days; and if we read the records of our day, in all parts of the world, we find these predictions verified fully. Men of the world see these things, and are wondering with alarm as to what is coming. But professors of religion blindly pretend that the world is growing better all the time. Those who are taught of God ought to view the increase of crime with more abhorrence than the world. But in our day the world view these things with serious alarm, while the popular professors blindly pass on with indifference, without eyes to see, ears to hear, or hearts to confess these things so plainly pointed out in the word of God.

With the popular professors, an interest in the signs of Christ's coming is heresy; and a claim that we can tell something by the signs which Christ has given of his coming is insanity, if not blasphemy. Though the signs are hung out in the heavens above, in the earth beneath, in the state of the nations, in the state of society and of religion, still they have no eyes to see, no ears to hear, no heart to receive these things. Well has Paul said of them, "They will not endure sound doctrine, but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears; and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables." 2 Tim. 4 : 3, 4. They would spurn with contempt a proposal to have the Lord's coming and the signs of the times preached in their houses of worship; but are constantly using them by their own appointment for oyster suppers, festivals, levees, sociables, and other church sprees; where all sorts of worldly pleasure, and even gambling, is carried on by their arrangements and for their benefit.

Such is the religious character and usual course of the mass of professors of religion in our day; and these things are well known to those brethren whose sympathies incline toward them. Do they expect christian union with such people? Do they love those who despise the truths especially designed in Divine wisdom for this judgment-bound generation, more than those who carry them to their unwelcome ears? Will they smother these truths, and discourage their prominence, that they may win the smiles of those who despise these solemn warnings? Did God ever call such to warn the world of approaching judgment? If so, who has countermanded the order? Under whose authority do they now act in smothering and trifling with these things? May the Lord pity those who are sighing for the leeks and the onions of Egypt; whose hearts incline to the broad way as more inviting than the narrow way that leads to life. O that such might be terribly shaken, if need be, before they take the fatal leap.

Where are the faithful Jeremiahs to warn the world of her approaching doom? Men who can neither be bought nor sold; whose consciences cannot be swerved like India rubber to suit their situation? Where are the men of backbone, of moral courage, who dare believe the truth, and the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; and are willing to share the reproaches which are cast upon the truth and count it all joy? O for more men in God's cause, who cannot be bribed by smiles, wheedled by flatteries, nor intimidated by frowns to put God's truth into the background. Where are those who dare cry aloud, and spare not, but will show the people their sins and their dangers;—men who will sound the alarm to this judgment-bound generation, and will lift up their voice like a trumpet, whether men will hear or forbear? It is time that we all awake to our dangers and harness ourselves for the fierce struggle with error which is just upon us. I pray God that we may all see our duty, and do it bravely, like men of God.

CHRIST IN YOU.

J. R. SMITH.

Says the apostle—"If Christ be in you, the body is dead because of sin; but the Spirit is life because of righteousness." Paul exhorts christians to consider themselves dead to sin. "Likewise, reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord." The understanding is, that as Christ really died, and was raised again "from the dead by the glory of the Father; even so, we also should walk in newness of life." After the resurrection of Christ, death had no more power over him; so all truly converted persons should as really die to all sin, and be resurrected to a spiritual life in Christ Jesus. Dying to sin does not mean a partial but a complete death; not an imitation of death, but a genuine dying, and from this fact the apostle proposes the following question for solution. "How shall we that are dead to sin live any longer therein?" How shall we? If we are dead to sin, then sin ceases to have dominion over us. Dead men do not feel. You cannot hurt a dead man. There is no vitality in dead men. You may dissect them, cut them up, and mangle them as much as you please, they don't know anything about it. They are perfectly oblivious to it all. So the man that is dead to sin cannot be injured by sin. While he remains dead to sin, he cannot commit sin, or become polluted by its contaminating influence. "Whosoever is born of God doth not commit sin; for his seed remaineth in him; and he cannot sin, because he is born of God." The christian has no desire to commit sin. As long as the incorruptible seed, the living word of God, lives and abides in him, he will be kept from committing sin. Being dead to sin, he is alive unto God. Being dead, his desires and faculties are dead also, so that sinful inclnations are out of the question, while death to sin continues; and while the christian lives in this state, Christ lives in him, "the hope of glory," "whom," says the apostle, "we preach, warning every man, and teaching every man, in all wisdom; that we may present every man perfect in Christ Jesus."

When a christian is dead to sin, and Christ the hope of glory is formed within, you may beat and bang and club him as much as you please; you cannot hurt him any. If you smite him on the one cheek, he will turn the other also; and if you defame and blacken and revile him, he will not retaliate, but will rather pray for them who persecute and despitefully use him. If Christ is formed within the christian, he will manifest the same spirit that was in Christ, and will work out what God works in, both to will and to do of his own good pleasure. He will be a new creature in Christ Jesus; old things with him will have passed away, and all things will become new. He will become transformed from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God. He will live harmless and blameless, undefiled and unspotted from the world; and will rejoice in the day of Christ that he has not run in vain, neither labored in vain. The christian, who is in Christ, will no longer bear about him the marks of the wicked one, but will bear about in his body the marks of the Lord Jesus Christ; for "if the Spirit of Him who raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies, by his Spirit that dwelleth in you." Governed by the divine influence of the Spirit of God, the christian is made partaker of the divine nature of God, and thereby becomes enabled to escape the corruption that is in the world. The christian who has Christ and his living word abiding in him richly, is crucified to this world, and is crucified with Christ; nevertheless he lives; and yet not he, but Christ liveth in him; and the life which he now lives in the flesh, he lives by the faith of the Son of God. If we commit ourselves to God by faith in his living word, he will supply all our needs in Christ Jesus. There is a never-failing supply in the promises of God. It is by these exceeding great and precious promises that we become partakers of the divine nature, and are made mighty through God. We are weak of ourselves, but with Christ abiding in us we are strong. Christ is the Lion of the tribe of Judah. He is mighty to save and strong to deliver.

Hallelujah to Jesus! He will break every chain, and will give us the victory again and again. Yes, there is power with that man or woman who has the abiding presence of an indwelling Christ. How often have we heard the remark from professed followers of Christ—"If I could talk like that brother, or pray like that sister, I would be willing to speak for Jesus"; but let them have an indwelling Christ, and the power of God shed abroad in their hearts by the Holy Ghost, and they will be willing to stand up for Jesus, whether they can talk like some other one or not. It is not eloquence, but the power of the Holy Spirit and an indwelling Christ, that makes interesting christians; and without this power they are as sounding brass, and as a tinkling cymbal. It is the power of the Holy Spirit in an ever-present and abiding fulness, and a living Christ within the child of God, that makes his prayers and exhortations felt. How often have we seen men amazed, and wonder at the unseen power of some of God's little ones, speaking under the divine influence of the Holy Spirit; by men, too, who are the professed followers of Christ. It is because they are strangers to the divine anointing; it is because they are strangers to the inward life of those who are born of God. They have never tarried at Jerusalem until they were endued with power from on high.

Dear brethren and sisters in Christ, God wants you to have this power. All may have it. It is an unspeakable gift, as bounteous as the sunshine of heaven, free as the air we breathe; and you may have it abiding in you for ever. You may feel within you the secret power of an endless life, and be made partakers of the inward movings of the divine nature. God wishes you to accept of this free gift, and has declared in his living word that he is more willing to give it to them that ask for it, than earthly parents are to give good gifts unto their children; and yet, you have not this power. What is the reason for this? Where is the hindering cause?

At a convention of the Y. M. C. Association, held in this city a few months ago, among the questions for discussion was this—"What shall we do to obtain the Spirit of God?" I was very forcibly impressed with the singularity of the question, propounded as it was by the professed followers of Christ; and after looking it over a little, I came to the conclusion that they did not know much about the Spirit of God. It is written that the Lord gives his Spirit to those who obey him, and I know of no other way to obtain the Spirit of God except by obeying him; and I thank God for it. I am glad the poor can have it as well as the rich, and that money cannot buy it. "He that keepeth his commandments dwelleth in God, and God in him; and by this we know that he abideth in us, by his Spirit which he hath given us." Glory to God! we may know something about this great salvation. The hungry soul may be filled with Jesus and his love, until he is enabled to know something about the height, depth, length and breadth of the love of Christ, which passes knowledge, fills us with all the fulness of God, and causes us to become happy and fruitful through the abiding presence of an indwelling Savior. God help us to so live that we may be dead to this world, and alive unto God; our bodies fit temples for the indwelling of the Holy Spirit, and our hearts a peaceful home for Jesus.

CHRISTIAN UNION.

ASA. S. GORDON.

"Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity." "Who are my brethren?" "For whosoever shall do the will of my Father which is in heaven, the same is my brother, and sister, and mother." "And they that are Christ's have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts." Now we have a basis on which we can unite, and that basis is purity. "But if we walk in the light as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin." "Repentance toward God, and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ" are the terms of the gospel. Repentance toward God implies a forsaking of all known sin (by the grace of God), and a desire to never more continue in sin. For "How shall we that are dead to sin, live any longer therein." "Faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ" means a belief in the efficacy of his atonement, and a compliance with his commandments as far as understood. Now all that have accepted these terms are on the "foundation." "As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him."

Now it is evident that it is our duty to recognize all as christians that have the "Spirit of Christ," regardless of the different views on many points that are not explicitly taught in God's word as essential to salvation. But I do believe that the child of God is required to grow in grace and knowledge, and leave the principles of the doctrine of Christ, and go on unto perfection. But just how fast my brother can learn is not for me to say. I do believe that we are so consituted, and so taught and influenced by our different surroundings, that we are not condemned for some of the "errors of the head" which we entertain. Let all christians unite on the essentials of salvation, and then I believe we shall grow faster, and have more light in other parts of God's word.

THE NATURE OF TRUE RELIGION.

E. F. SERGISSON.

It is natural for those, who have experienced the agitation which frequently attend upon conversion, and have felt the peace which flows from a hope of acceptance with God, to imagine that the conflict is over, the victory won, and the work of religion accomplished. This imagination is soon dissipated. Birth is not the whole of life, neither is conversion the whole of religion. Another mistake in this subject is made by those, who suppose that religion is a fitful sort of life; an alternation of excitement and insensibility. Those who labor under this delusion, are religious only on certain occasions. They live contentedly for months in unconcern, and then, if they can be moved to tenderness or joy, they are satisfied with the prospect of another period of collapse. No form of life is thus intermittent. Neither plants, nor animals thus live. Men do not, when in health, pass from convulsions to fainting, and from fainting to convulsions; nor does religion, when genuine, ever assume this form. It has, indeed, its alternation, as there are periods of health and sickness, of vigor and lassitude in the animal frame; but just so far as it deserves the name of religion, it is steady, active and progressive; and not a series of spasms.

It is a still more common error to suppose that religion is rather an external, than an internal service. There are multitudes who consider themselves to be religious, because they attend upon religious service; who suppose that a regular attendance upon public worship, and the outward forms of religion are enough to entitle them to the character of christians. The Scriptures teach us that religion is a new life. It is mysterious, as to principle or source. No man can tell what life is. He sees its various forms in vegetables, animals, and in men; but he cannot detect the secret spring of these different kinds of activity. The nature of the spiritual life is not less inscrutable. A new kind of activity manifests itself after conversion; but whence that activity springs, and how it is maintained, are among the secret things of God. We cannot doubt, however, that there is some permanent cause of these new exercises. We know that the life of the body does not consist in the acts of seeing, hearing, tasting etc.; neither does the spiritual life consist in the acts which manifest its existence. In the conversion of a sinner, there is a change effected, which accounts for his perceptions, purposes, and feelings being different from what they were before, and for their so continuing. The cause of this difference is sometimes called a "new heart," or grace, or the Spirit, or the "new man." All these terms are used to designate the principle of spiritual life, which manifests itself in the fruits of holiness. It is called the life, because it is thus permanent or abiding. Again, life, in all the forms in which we are acquainted with it, is progressing; feeble at the beginning, it advances gradually to maturity. It is thus in plants, in animals, and in man; and it is thus also in the spiritual life. There is a joy which attends the beginning of a religious life, which very often declines; a fact which may lead even the true christian to think that religion itself is declining in his heart. Such joy, however, is a very uncertain criterion, or decline of the spiritual life.

True religion, then, is not an external service, nor is it a mere excitement of fear and sorrow succeeded by peace and joy; nor is it a fitful alternation of such exercises. It is a permanent principle of action, spontaneous in its exercises, and progressive in its nature. These attributes are essential to its genuineness, but they do not constitute its whole character. It is a participation of "the divine nature" (2 Pet. 1 : 4). It is described as the putting "off the old man with his deeds," and putting "on the new man, which is renewed in knowledge after the image of him that created him" (Col. 3 : 10); or a being "renewed in the spirit of" our "mind," that we may "put on the new man, which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness." Eph. 4 : 24. These two passages express the same truth. To be renewed in knowledge, or rather, unto knowledge, means to be renewed so as to know; and knowledge includes the perception, recognition, and approbation of what is true and good; hence it is said, that to know God and Jesus Christ is eternal life. "Be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove (or approve) what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God." This is true religion, to approve what God approves. It is obvious from this stand-point, that the whole man is the subject of this change. There are new perceptions, new purposes, and new feelings. The mind becomes more and more enlightened, the will more submissive to the rule of right, the affections more thoroughly purified.

The apostle in his letter, says, "The God of peace sanctify you wholly; and I pray God your whole spirit, and soul, and body, be preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ." 1 Thess. 5 : 23. The body is the subject of sanctification in various ways. It is the temple of the Holy Ghost (1 Cor. 6 : 19), and is, therefore, holy, as consecrated to the service, and hallowed by the presence of God. Our bodies are also members of Jesus Christ, and in virtue of this union, they partake of the benefits of redemption, and are hereafter to be fashioned like unto his own glorious body.

Paul declares it to be one of the conditions of life, that believers should, through the Spirit, "mortify the deeds of the body." Rom. 8 : 13. As the work of sanctification extends to all our faculties, so the image of God, which is designed to be impressed, includes all moral excellence. The different graces, such as love, faith, meekness, kindness, etc., are but different manifestations of one and the same principle of goodness; the fruit of an indwelling Spirit.

Religion, or the principle of divine life, prompts to all kinds of excellence, and in itself, as much to one as another. Judgment and memory gain strength as the other powers of the mind increase in vigor. Everything depends upon this harmonious progress. If the spiritual life exists in us at all, it manifests itself in all the forms of goodness. We feel it to be a contradiction to say he is a good man, who, though just, is unkind; because goodness includes both justice and benevolence. And it is no less a contradiction to say that a man is religious, who is not honest; because religion includes honesty, as well as piety. It is not simply intended that the word religion comprehends and expresses all forms of moral excellence; but that the thing meant by religion, or the new man, the principle of grace, or of divine life in the heart, includes within itself all kinds of goodness. Reverence, love, submission, justice, benevolence, are but the developments of a higher life of holiness. The man, therefore, who is renewed in the spirit of his mind, after the image of God, is one who has the moral excellence, which expresses itself, according to its different objects and occasions, in all the various graces of the Spirit.

THE COMING AGAIN.

The coming again of our Lord Jesus Christ, literally and visibly, to this earth, for the purpose of ending this dispensation and inaugurating his own reign, is a subject of christian thought and study that seems to have been, for a thousand years or more, singularly and sinfully ignored by Christ's own people. The truth itself as biblically revealed—the scriptural setting forth of the momentous fact of the next advent—the inspired anouncements of both Testaments concerning our Savior's second personal coming—are so frequently and so distinctly urged, that the inattention and indifference of the church in relation to the subject seem unaccountable. Just now, the truth of our Lord's second coming is gaining notice among his people, and we doubt not that there will be henceforth a share of attention given to this blessed theme that will cause it to come more immediately to the front, as a subject worthy of christian contemplation.

The modern church is totally unlike the ancient church in regard to its treatment of the great and precious truth of the second coming of our blessed Lord. In the primitive church, the second coming of our Lord Jesus Christ was anticipated with delight, and the prospect of the Savior's speedy return was the occasion of their constant joy. Their eager expectancy of the immediate return of Jesus to this earth, caused them to err on the one side—our sleepy unexpectancy of his coming, and our fond imagination that such a coming is indefinitely distant cause us to err on the other side. They were given to the most restless inquiry as to when should be the "times and seasons" of their Lord's return—we are given to the most listless unconcern on the whole subject, apparently not caring whether our Lord shall come at all. They were incessant and urgent in their asking, "When shall these things be?" We are asking (if we are forced to any asking on the subject), the very words of the primitive and modern infidels, "Where is the promise of his coming?" If extremes have been touched, certainly we are one of them—and the worst at that.

What may be true or untrue concerning this grand theme of revelation, one fact is unchallengeable. It is observable in church history that where God's people have adjourned the coming of Jesus to some remote date of the far-off and shadowy future, religion has fallen into a coldness, worldliness, and formality. And when, on the other hand, the people of God have been vigilantly observant of coming and passing crises, and have regarded them as premonishing the near advent of Jesus, the church has returned to spirituality, and has seemed to imbibe much of the watchfulness and zeal of apostolic times. Such being the voice of history, and such the high moral effect of this great truth, it is certain that the calling back of the church's attention to the long-ignored truth of our Lord's second coming is a duty that interests all who stand as teachers of the church at this day. If the unspirituality, and coldness, and worldliness, and formality, and unfaithfulness, and inconsistency, and carnal-mindedness, and covetousness, and disobedience, and idolatrous loves and practices of the now-a-days-church do not make an occasion for the introduction of some urgent and startling form of religious doctrine that will shake the christian world out of its deep slumbers, then we confess our inability to imagine a condition of churchly declension that would create such an occasion.

No doubt this sad and doleful condition of lapsed churchism is the prime cause of the current ignoring of the great event here spoken of. The church of to-day (we speak in general) is not ready for the Lord's coming, and is not seeking to become so, and hence its unwillingness to anticipate that event, and its growing skepticism as to the truth of the predictions which relate to it. But even in this, prophecy finds its fulfillment, for there can be little doubt that the unbelief which Peter reproves in his second general epistle is a form of infidelity that pertains to the church—to such as are the professed people of God.

But the Judge will come. And he will come to receive to himself all who look for his coming with joy, and to visit upon those who do not "love his appearing," whether within or without the visible church, the long-threatened damnation.

"Behold, he cometh with clouds, and every eye shall see him; and they also which pierced him; and all kindreds of the earth shall wail because of him."—Banner of Holiness.

ERRORS CONCERNING THE DOCTRINE OF HOLINESS.

A prevalent error, believed by many, is the idea that a state of holiness exempts its possessor from temptation. This opinion is only held by those seeking the blessing. An actual experience always dispels the illusion.

The sanctified soul may be as often assailed by the enemy after its sanctification as before. Indeed, the temptation may be fiercer and more prolonged, yet the grace of God is abundant to enable the tempted to overcome, under every circumstance, and become more than conquerors through him who hath purchased their redemption. Because holiness of heart, and its necessary result, holiness of life, is power, the enemy leaves no means untried to secure the failure of those possessing this power.

No state of grace attainable on earth exalts the possessor to any better condition than Adam enjoyed; yet Adam was tempted and fell. Christ, the "Second Adam," was tempted; and we may not attain a christian experience in which we shall be exempt from what our divine Master necessarily endured in the days of his incarnation. As the Bible nowhere promises freedom from temptation in this world, but abounds in promises of grace whereby we may overcome in every hour of fierce assault, it is only reasonable to conclude that the pure in heart are so saved, that they are preserved, even amid temptations, blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Another prevalent error is, the idea that a state of holiness deprives its possessor of the power of sin. Though not so common as the first error, yet there can be found those who entertain this belief, and many who suppose that all profession of the blessing of holiness includes this. In opposition to this idea it is proposed to say that there could be no temptation unless the tempted had power to yield. The fact that the human race are all subject to temptation, proves that all may fall into sin, and, therefore, establishes the fact that no state of grace can be attained in this life where there is not a possibility of losing the blessings now enjoyed.

A third error is, the idea that an entire consecration necessarily secures the blessiing of entire holiness. Many honestly believe and teach this. That it is a fallacy is a fact which can be proven; and it is more commonly received than anything before mentioned, the idea seems more productive of evil.

The condition whereby all spiritual blessings are received is faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. It is nowhere said, consecrate yourselves entirely to God, and ye shall be saved, but "believe." An entire consecration is the prerequisite to faith. No one can believe in Christ, or the efficacy of his blood to cancel sin or cleanse the heart, unless the whole life or affections are consecrated to God. Any item of rebellion cherished, be it ever so small, makes the exercise of faith impossible. All the contingencies of the future are to be included, and every doubtful item placed to the credit of the Almighty. To a soul thus consecrated, God gives power to believe in himself, and thus become one of the "sons of God." But the consecration does not secure the blessing; neither is it the blessing itself. Entire holiness, or the sanctification of the nature, is a work wrought in the soul of the believer, by the Holy Ghost, in answer to the prayer of faith. Hence it is an error to denominate that the work itself, which is only an important prerequisite to the blessing of perfect love.

Many profess holiness who have never got further than this entire consecration. Such are not able to always keep their vows. Lacking the power, they are not preserved blameless, and often bring the cause into disrepute by their many failures. May heaven shed light on every heart!

Let a correct theory be embraced, and sound experience will follow. May the Lord give to the church a revival of Scriptural holiness.—Free Methodist.

SACRIFICE.

But I say that the things which the Gentiles sacrifice, they sacrifice to devils, and not to God." Cor. 10 : 20.

To sacrifice is to give to another. A sacrifice is that which is given. The term is generally used to apply to the religious department of human experience, and relates to giving for the support of worship. It relates to the giving of ourselves, our influence, time, and property.

There are but two departments of worshipers. At the head of one is God; and at the head of the other is the devil. All that men give to support and make successful the worship of God is sacrificed to God; and all that is given to support Satan's worship is sacrificed to devils. The worship of each is characterized by a certain spirit and ritual. The worship of God is moulded by his heavenly Spirit, so as to agree in tone, influence and ceremonies, to his holy word. The worship of Satan is governed by his satanic spirit, and readily yields to the carnal, depraved passions and lusts of men; so that it is supremely worldly in spirit, following any ritual that the people, worshiping in any place, or at any time, may, from education or habits, incline them to adopt.

As Satan's religion allows men to gratify their carnal propensities in their devotions, it will naturally draw the multitudes into its temples. The gospel of Christ emphatically demands that its worshipers be crucified to their natural propensities, and adopt a rule of life exactly opposite to the desires of their flesh; so that their worship, as to spirit and influence, is the same at all times, and with all people.

God's worship cannot become modernized or christianized to suit the caprice or present education and customs of the people; but must remain unchanged as it was with Peter and Paul, Luther and Wesley.

Man, in a natural, carnal state, walks by sight, and not by faith; so that the things he can see, taste, and handle, things of this world, are the objects of his hope, pleasure and glory. Therefore, Satan always incorporates into his system of religion, worldly greatness, riches, splendors, show, parade, magnificence and grandeur, to charm and gratify the carnal, fleshly desires.

This will be manifested by great efforts to increase the magnitude and glory of the externals of worship, while the internal parts—purity of heart, correctness of faith, truthfulness of hope, and holiness of life—are made of secondary or no importance.

The evil character of worship is generally exhibited in the building of expensively decorated houses, the priests in ornamental robes, making fascinating gestures, speaking great swelling words of vanity, to charm the unsanctified. The singing is worldly, with overwhelming volume to inspire with awe, so as to represent true adoration, or is operatic, to gratify the ear of pleasure-lovers. Every thing which detracts from these worldly pleasures is strenuously resisted; so that he that would dare to preach against them is indignantly ejected from the pulpit, and the layman, who presumes to ask for a reform, is immediately silenced by the frowns of the tight-gloved gentry, who have money, and therefore rule the house of worship. Many of these religious dictators support the professed servant of Christ, the rum-seller, harlot, and tragedian, out of the same ill-gotten gains.

Is the giving of influence and wealth to the support of such religious interests sacrificing to God or to devils? Let God be judge. We esteem it a very dangerous thing for those whom God has made stewards over his goods, to give them for the advancement of worldly, heartless, Christless worship.

Worldly men view this subject from a worldly stand-point, and reckon on a church's prosperity according to its external prosperity, and not according to its internal, spiritual condition. An article in the N. Y. Times gives an illustration of this. It says,—

"It is not often, unfortunately, that Protestants are willing to make as many personal sacrifices for their religion as the Catholics are always ready to do for theirs. That is one reason why Catholicism has so firmly held its ground through so many centuries. Even now, the noblest ecclesiastical building ever erected in this city, or in the United States, is slowly going up in Fifth Avenue, and where does the money for it come from? Largely out of the pockets of poor Irish servants, some of whom we have known to give as much as five or eight dollars a month out of their wages to this one special object. How often do we find Protestants ready to make the same sacrifices in proportion to their means? Very seldom—and it is for that reason that we feel justified in mentioning an instance of rare liberality which has just been afforded by Mr. Robert Bonner, proprietor of the New York Ledger. He has given the large sum of $100.000—which most of us would look upon as a handsome fortune—toward Dr. Hall's new church. We should not have referred to this private incident but for the hope that examples of this kind may lead others to stand by their churches, and assist them to the utmost extent of their means. That kind of devotion to the church has always been a marked characteristic of the Catholics, and it is one which does them no little honor."

We think it is right for christians to give liberally, as God has prospered, to build suitable houses of worship, support the preaching of the gospel at home and among the destitute, assist the poor, and all these good gospel objects; but to hold up, as worthy examples, such cases as poor servants giving that which they need for their comfortable support, to build such expensive houses, three-fourths of the expense of which being for no other object than to gratify worldly, carnal desires, and to please the avarice and pride of petted, indolent priests is encouraging them to sacrifice to devils, and not to God. We fearlessly exhort christians not to give one dollar to satisfy the cravings of unsanctified hmanity, in producing any worldly aggranizement and vain parade with any people.

It was perfectly appropriate for Mr. Bonnar to give a hundred thousand dollars to build a professed christian temple, to imitate, in costliness and ornaments, as much as possible, the temples of the heathen and Catholics, with the money he had received for the publication of poisoning, ensnaring, fictitious literature in the Ledger. The house will doubtless be used to advance the same cause that the fictitious literature of the Ledger does. The spirit which caused Mr. Bonnar to obtain wealth, by using the means which Satan employs in his work, will never causa a man to appropriate that wealth to advance the cause of Christ. It requires a change of heart and spirit to produce acts so opposite, as to appropriate that in the service of Christ which was obtained in the service of the devil.

God has always instructed the church that worldly prosperlty is dangerous to her spiritual and eternal interests; and has, therefore, instructed her not to lay up treasures on the earth, or to seek its honors; but to lay up treasures in heaven, and to seek that honor that cometh from God only.

When a church puts itself in a position that rich, worldly men will be prompted, by their unsanctified hearts, to give liberally for its support, it is the most positive proof that it is joined to Satan and not to Christ. Let us be careful and not seek such a position, or allow ourselves to drift into it by any circumstances or influences which may be thrown around us. Seek not the rich, or show them any more respect than the worthy poor, and they will never incline to associate with you until they are truly converted.

Let us never sacrifice to devils, or consent as worshipers, to associate with those who do so. Men naturally love worldly exaltation, high caste in society, and are inclined to sacrifice, so as to show themselves superior to others. When this is their object, they will see that a trumpet is sounded, so that all the people may know what great things they have done in giving, preaching, or magnifying self in some way. By this they defame Christ and sacrifice to their carnal lusts, which is sacrificiug to devils.

Men will have to render a fearful account to God, at the last day, for wickedly appropriating the rich blessings he has given them for his own glory, to the service of Satan, in yielding to the promptings of his spirit, which is worldly, sensual, and rebellious against God.

Christian, ever keep in mind, that all you have and are, belongs to God, and that he requires every thing—time, talents, property, influence—all to be used strictly according to his word, for his glory. Remember also, that the old man—the fleshly lusts, or natural inclinations—always incline us to yield to Satan's temptations, to use all things for his glory, which is directly opposite to that of Christ. Satan is the god of this world, and Christ is Lord of the next world. Christian worship relates to the two worlds, and Satan labors to make that part of it which is of this world the place, language, means employed, and external associations, the all-important part; but the spiritual, vital part, which is connected with the heart, and relates to the heavenly world, is either discarded, or made comparatively of little importance. Christ reverses this, making holiness of heart, purity of spirit, and divine love, the great essentials for christian devotion; while the externals are reckoned of much less importance. In this is manifested the great antagonism between Christ and the devil. The worship of one is manifested by great worldly show and parade, the other by meekness, and simplicity, and a yearning desire for sacred truth, perfect love, and Christ likeness. The worshipers of Satan triumph here because they receive that for which they seek in this world,—its riches, glory, and fame, while the worshipers of God are put in the unpleasant position of waiting for their hoped-for reward of riches and glory, until the glorious appearing of the great God.

Let us be careful to make a sure covenant with God by sacrifice, that when he gathers his scattered friends to his holy mountain, we may share in the waited for inheritance of the glorious kingdom of the great Messiah. J. C.

COMPROMISE.

Satan is doing all in his power to persuade the professsed church of Christ to make a compromise with him, and close up the christian warfare. He will consent to have earnest christian union meetings in the winter, to save sinners, if he can have the privilege of getting up a string of picnics, fairs, festivals, excursions, etc., during the summer, where fashionable people can feel at home in their gay dresses, and where worldly people can have their fun, frolic, and dancing; and where cold-hearted professors, who took no part in the winter meetings, only to hold back those who had a heart to work, are all awake in the pleasure parties, thus leading the young converts back into the spirit and manners of the world. In this way Satan manages to destroy the good effects of the winter meetings, and when the next winter comes, the church, as a body, is lower than before the revival.

While the true christian can take hold heartily to labor for the salvation of sinners in the union winter meetings, let him be careful to make no compromise with Satan in the summer amusements. Beware of them. As soon as the religion is mixed with worldly pleasures, it is spoiled. Its sweetness is gone, its power has departed, and its vitality destroyed. Have no union with such things. When the devoted child of God unites with the christian workers in the various denominations, to lead men to Christ, he makes no compromise of his faith, or yields a single item of truth for the sake of a union; he only puts forth a friendly feeling to help pull the perishing out of their perilous condition. All this he can do, and sacrifice nothing to the enemy, but when he unites with the pleasure parties, he then steps upon dangerous ground. Such a union takes away his liberty in Christ, and leaves the banner of the cross trailing in the dust. A bitter sectarian spirit will produce about the same results. Look out for Satan's devices in these last days. Let there be no union with anything unholy; no compromise with the enemy to tolerate what is known to be unchristian; neither let the true christian fear to go any where for the purpose of trying to save the lost. Work with every one who will unite in an effort to rescue people from the ranks of the enemy.

Satan is very shrewd in his plans and operations. If he cannot persuade the christian to unite to help along fairs and festivals, he will then try to make him believe it is wrong for him to unite in revival meetings, where such evil things have been practiced, and may occur again. At first sight this may look very plausible to some, who are not familiar with Satan's devices, and cause them to cry out against those who are faithfully at work for Jesus, in churches where there has been more pride than pure religion; more darkness than light; more error than truth. That is just the place where a true man is required. In this, Jesus and the apostles set us an example. Where there is the greatest danger, is where the best men are most needed. When Jesus mingled with Publicans and sinners, he did did not unite with them in any thing wrong. When Paul went into the synagogue, he did not unite with the spirit of the Jews, but went as a christian, to lead men to Christ. So now, holy men are needed, free from a sectarian spirit, who are ready to work any where and everywhere, that by all means, some may be saved. If the people cannot bear the whole truth at once, give them what they can endure, and then more as fast as they will receive it. If a man is drowning, we would not refuse to help him at all, because we could not get him at once into the life-boat, but we would reach to him a plank, a spar, or something to keep him afloat till better means could be secured. So with the sinner; if he is not where he can receive the whole truth at once, get him to Christ for pardon as soon as possible, and then teach him more perfectly afterwards. M. G.

THE DISAPPOINTMENT.

It is known to many of our readers that Bro. W. C. Thurman expected to see Christ come the 19th of last April, at the Paschal full moon. The "day and hour" was set for him to appear, notwithstanding Jesus said: "Of that day and hour knoweth no man." Matt. 24: 36. "Watch, therefore, for ye know neither the day nor the hour wherein the Son of man cometh." Matt. 24: 13. "Take ye heed, watch and pray; for ye know not when the time is." Mark 13: 33. The Savior' language is very plain on this point. We can see no room for believing that any man will be able to point to the "day and hour" when Christ will make his second advent. Whoever does it must be a presumptious man; and those who follow him must expect a sad disappointment, besides assisting to bring an unnecessary reproach upon the cause of Christ. Language so plain, as that just quoted, cannot be set aside, without doing violence to the word of the Lord, and we are surprised that any one, who believes in the literal interpretation of the Scriptures, should set the day and hour for Christ to appear, as did Bro. Thurman.

The Savior did plainly teach that his children living in the last generation would have clear, unmistakable evidence to satisfy them that his coming was "near;" even as certainly as we know "summer is nigh," when "the fig tree . . . . . putteth forth leaves." This is to be known by the fulfillment of prophecy, and "the signs of the times." We most fully believe we are living in the period when the last day evidences are being seen. We are where the admonition to "watch, . . . lest coming suddenly, he find you sleeping" (Mark 13: 35, 36), should be heeded with much carefulness. If Jesus were now to speak one word from heaven, we believe it would be—"WATCH." Satan knows we are near the end, and hence is doing all in his power to bring reproach on this great present truth, so that people will not listen to sound evidences on the subject. The cause of Christ often suffers more from its professed friends, than its real enemies.

As our readers are anxious to hear about the final meeting of Bro. Thurman, held in Chicago, April 19th, we give a part, of the faithful and candid report, as it appeared in the Chicago Tribune, April 21st. Their last meeting was in a hall on the corner of Wells and Superior streets. For report, see first page.

Let Bro. Thurman and his associates receive sympathy for their mistakes, rather than condemnation; and may they not be led again to depart from the plain teachings of Jesus. M. G.

CAMPMEETING.

We are now entering the campmeeting seasons. We are satisfied that these meetings are of great value to the church of Christ. They exert a powerful influence. Many who attend them receive a benefit that lasts a whole year. Man is made a social being, and needs the benefit arising from association. This is specially true in a religious point of view. Hence the Lord required a general gathering of the Jews at Jerusalem for devotional exercises. They gathered there at least three times a year. They needed these meetings in order to keep up suitable interest in divine things. So now, we believe the winter conferences and the great summer campmeetings, are of special importance to the disciples of Christ. They exert a stimulus upon the spiritual nature which is needed in these last days, perhaps, more than at any other period. This may be one reason why so many are being held, and are receiving such general patronage.

In order that they may produce the greatest amount of good, those who attend them should endeavor to act for the general welfare of the whole. At such meetings all have equal rights, and should remember the injunction of the apostle: "Follow after the things which make peace, and things wherewith one may edify another."

The one great object of all such meetings, should be to promote the healthy spiritual growth of all present. In order to accomplish this result, all disputes and contentions should be most carefully avoided as far as possible. When a case of necessity occurs, it should be accompanied with much prayer and watchfulness, lest a root of bitterness be produced.

Again, those who would advance the interests of these meetings should avoid all efforts to introduce new or old theories calculated to cause contention. There are more topics of importance, on which we are agreed, than we have time to present. If each aims to build up others in Christ, the result will be glorious. We trust the coming campmeetings will be specially of this class. M. G.

STRAGE THINGS.

This is an age of very strange theological opinions. It seems as though people had turned their inventive talents towards religious matters in these last days. The result is very disastrous to the cause of Christ, producing divisions, and distracted parties, which help on the cause of Satan, rather than that of the Lord. We learn Dr. N. H. Barbour "proclaims that the Lord has come and raised the righteous, but has not been seen by the living as yet, but has commissioned him [Barbonr] and his followers especially to preach the gospel, yet seven years, and to proclaim the hour of his judgment."

It is known to many that Bro. Wm. C. Thurman set a definite time for Christ to appear, giving the "day and hour"—the 19th of April. We had no doubt of his sincerity, but had no confidence in his position, because we believed it was directly opposed to the teaching of Jesus, and therefore could not be true.

We are sorry to learn that he now claims "the time was all right, but not the event." We clip the following from the Advent Christian Times, as expressing Bro. Thurman's position:

"Jesus did not come, but the 'day of the Lord' came, and now their work is to 'seal the servants of God in their foreheads' by baptizing them face downwards three times in water. That puts the seal on the foreheads instead of the back of their heads as in ordinary immersion. . . .

Then again, Elder Thurman is also sent forth to revive the apostolic order in the church before Jesus will personally be seen. He has a new rendering of the Hebrew Scriptures that he wishes to use for his benefit in this movement. 'Then shall the sanctuary be cleansed' is rendered, 'then shall a holy one be justified,' and that he claims was fulfilled on the 19th day of April last, by God's justifying the Thurman followers because they had faith in definite time. . . .

Surely, this is an age of irrepressibles. There seems to be no theory so visionary, or scheme so delusive, but will find its devotees. And even in the midst of utter failures and disastrous defeats, they rise again to press on in their career, regardless of results to their followers, or to the cause of Christ." M. G.

Holiness Convention.—July 9th, a National Convention for the promotion of holiness is to commence at Ocean Grove, N. J., to continue ten days. It is designed to be an unsectarian convention, open alike for all christians who are interested in the subject of holiness. Two similar conventions have been held at the same place; the first in 1873, the second in 1874. They were blessed seasons.

The invitation is broad, extending to all the friends of Jesus. Those who attend may expect a rich feast of heavenly manna. Ocean Grove is seven miles from Long Branch. It is a delightful place, and admirably adapted for such a convention. Good accommodations can be obtained at moderate prices. We have seen no other place where a christian can spend a few summer days more delightfully than at Ocean Grove. If he wishes rest and sea bathing, in connection with excellent meetings and good society, it is just the place for his accommodation. Those going from New York City will take a steamboat to Sandy Hook, then cars to Long Branch, and stage from there to Ocean Grove.

The following is this year's list of National Campmeetings for the promotion of holiness:—

Fernwood, near Philadelphia..........June 23d
Cedar Rapids, Iowa..........July 8th
Urbana, Ohio..........July 22d
Orchard Beach, Me..........Aug. 5th
Newburg, N. Y..........Aug. 25th

The Catholics.—The evidence continues to increase in favor of a terrible conflict between the Catholics and Protestants, in all parts of the world. The Springfield Republican says:—

"That a conflict is coming on between ultra Romanism in these States, and our Protestant republicanism, is obviously a foregone conclusion. Nobody of much importance on either side denies it. The wonder, perhaps, should be that it has not come sooner."

The clouds are gathering, and look decidedly threatening. Let christians hide in Christ. He is their Rock of safety. M. G.

New Religion.—Spiritualism claims to be "a new religion, a new order, and a new science," and yet "it has no standard of belief." It claims to have come with "a new religion," "when the religion of the world was a failure." If the professors of the christian religion were living as they should, Satan could not have spread Spiritualism as rapidly as he has done for the last twenty-five years. If Jesus was not coming soon, the religious aspect of the world would be very dark, if we looked far into the future. M. G.

New Bedford.—June 13th, we had a good day with the church in New Bedford. The morning love-feast was excellent. This is a living church, rejoicing in the blessed hope. We were much rejoiced to find the Brn. and Srs. in such a healthy condition. Like other churches, this has had sore trials, but the dear Lord has given marked expressions of his favor by means of rich blessings bestowed upon their prayer and conference meetings. M. G.

Strikes.—It is estimated that the cost of the strikes among the miners in Pa., during the last five months, in Schuylkill Co. alone, amounts to ten million dollars, five millions of which consists in the loss of wages to the miners. It is thought the strike is nearly at an end, and that the miners will go to work at prices offered by the operators last January. M. G.

Another Sea Disaster.—The Steamer Vicksburg, of Liverpool, commanded by Capt. Bennet, ran into the ice and foundered. Some forty persons were lost. She left Quebec May 27th, and foundered June 2nd. She had on board a crew of sixty men all told, and eight saloon passengers, and about twenty in the steerage. M. G.

Bro. H. F. Carpenter and family intend to start for California Wednesday, June 16th. He is to be the pastor of the church at Vallejo. We expect there will be mutual satisfaction between the pastor and the church. We esteem him as a true man in Christ. M. G.

Bro. P. G. Bowman informs us that Sr. Bowman is in poor health, and suffering severely. Pray for her, that she may have great peace in Jesus, and be restored to health; also that Bro. Bowman may have great success in leading the people to Christ, and a preparation for his coming. M. G.

Boston to New York.—In all our travels, for many years, we have found no route so pleasant as the one from Boston to New York, over the Old Colony R. R. and the magnificent Steamers from Fall River. M. G.

A New Atlantic Cable.—Another Atlantic cable has been successfully laid between Rye Beach, N. H., and Ballingskilley's Bay, Ireland. It was completed at 3.30 P. M., June 9th, 1875.

Christian Union.—In another column, our readers will find some wholesome remarks on "Christian Union," by Bro. I. K. Lombard. M. G.

San Francisco.—Bro. William S. Dibble writes from San Francisco, Cal., May 29th, as follows:—

"I wish to tell you something about our prayer-meetings. We have about twenty-five, on an average, at each meeting; and they are the best prayer-meetings, I think, that the church has ever had since our organization. There seems to be nothing that disturbs us now. We are all anxious to have Bro. and Sr. Mathewson come as soon as possible."

THE TRACT FUND.

The Advent Christian Publication Society, at a meeting on Springfield camp-ground, August 13th, 1874, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

NOTES BY THE WAY IN ALABAMA AND TENNESSEE.

To the A. A. M. Society.

Dear Brethren:—My last left me, May 4th, at Spring Creek, Cherokee Co., Ala. Meetings were continued with interest till Wednesday noon. As I told you the awful condition of the church there, being divided on account of the truth, I can now report the good news of better prospects for the future. Twenty members embraced our views as truth, while eleven opposed. Both parties had formed a conference, calling themselves the church, and had excluded the other; and so, of course, they were all out, and there was no church. Now came the contest as to which party should have the house. The minority put a lock and chain on the door of the church, and so kept the majority (heretics) out; while I am sorry to say our friends sued at the law for their "rights," which, as I told them, was not in keeping with the spirit of Jesus. Notwithstanding they had gained the case in one court, by the help of Jesus, they were induced to withdraw the suit and build a house for God's children. As soon as they consented to stop the suit, the Lord poured out his Spirit upon us, and we had a blessed time in parting. The friends showed their appreciation of our visit by a godly example. We had been invited to speak on Wednesday night at Pleasant Hill, but found it closed against "the infidel," as some called me. The Lord had an old Bro. Baker open his chapel for us, where we had one of the hardest struggles we have had for years in trying to speak. We felt the great need of the prayers of God's dear children. I hope they will not forget me in the future.

Thursday started to cross Lookout Mountain into Wills' Valley, to meet an appintment at Head Springs church; but found they would not allow me to preach in it. A friend, Mr. Wm. Lee, opened his dwelling, where we had a free time on the coming kingdom, and spoke to a crowded house. Friday, 11 o'clock A. M., at the celebrated Sulphur Springs, Dekalb Co., Ala. The Baptist brethren very kindly opened their house to me, an unworthy pilgrim. After I had finished my first effort in that place, I heard one man say he was disappointed, for he had "come expecting to see a bear turned loose," but had "heard nothing but the truth."

Saturday and Sunday with Shilo church. Found much trouble in the community among the brethren known here as Campbellites; but those of like precious faith with us were all in peace, so far as I could learn.

We reached home so nearly worn out that we were confined to our room three days. Thursday, the 13th, rose early and took the train for Cowan, Tenn., where we met a large, attentive audience. A young minister, Bro. Sewell, of the Christian church, told the people there was no use to preach the resurrection, as the only hope; the only thing necessary was to be ready for the reward. We then showed that the unconscious state of the dead is a dispensational truth, and the only thing with which to meet the Spiritualists with success.

Friday, the 14th, we took a train on the Sewanee coal road for the University of the South. Then down the mountain by moonlight, four miles, into Roarks' Cove, where we lectured on Saturday from Bro. J. J. Smith's chart. Sunday A. M. tried to preach the funeral sermon of Sr. Phillips. In the afternoon spoke from the chart again, and buried a dear sister in baptism. Monday, spoke to a full house, then bade adieu to the many kind friends who had helped me after a godly sort, and came up the mountain to the University, and spoke at the house of a Sr. Dorsey. House full and yard full. All gave the best attention. Here I met a Bro. Marion, minister of the Baptist persuasion, and had a pleasant interview with him.

Tuesday back to Cowan. Spoke again to a crowded house. Good attention. Text, Matt. 5: 5. Bro. Sewell again intimated that there was no use in preaching these things. Here a few friends gave me scrip for my journey. Reached home Wednesday at two o'clock, almost worn out. Thursday was not able to sit up or eat anything until evening. O how I sigh for home, where we will never get weary. On arriving at home, we learned that Bro. R. J. Wilson, of the M. E. Church, had used a long-ranged gun at us in our absence, on immortal-soulism, in which he grossly misrepresented our position and doctrine. Some time ago, I ased asked him to discuss the question, but he was "no man for controversy"; but after we get fifty or sixty miles away, he is a noble "war-horse." I think the people have sense enough to see the unfair and unchristian manner in which he spoke of us as a people, saying we are selfish, etc. etc. I have offered a reward of $100 for the scriptures used by him positively proviug his position. I learn that many took notes, but as yet I have had no call for the money.

Saturday, May 22nd, with the church at Oak Grove. Baptized one, and left Bro. J. J. Smith to conduct the meeting on Sunday, while we went to Bethesda church. Had a large crowd. Bro. Crawford and myself spoke to them. Bro. Waldrop and myself ordained Bro. Crawford to the work of preaching the coming of Jesus. We then gathered around the table, and enjoyed a melting time. Then down in the valley to Pea Town, heard a M. E. Bro. Price preach at 4 o'clock P. M. He manifested much christian courtesy toward us. At 6½ o'clock P. M. we preached in the house of the ferryman on the river side.

Monday night, preached in McMahan's Cove. Wednesday night, at Catchings, Tenn. Thursday night, near my own home, at the house of a kind neighbor. Saturday, crossed Tenn. River, and heard Bro. Crawford. Yesterday (Sunday) morning, spoke to a large, attentive audience in a lovely grove on the land of T. Boyd Foster, Esq., who kindly gave me permission to preach our faith on his land near Norwood's Chapel. Mr. Norwood had refused us the Chapel, saying that no Adventist should preach in it. A great many came out, and we spoke from the devil's lie, Gen. 3: 4. Good was done. In the afternoon, Bro. Smith spoke from the chart. Praise the Lord for his goodness. For eight weeks I have preached on an average one sermon a day. I start to-night for Icard, Burke Co., N.C. Dear brethren and sisters, pray for me and mine. Let us be faithful till Jesus comes.

Stevenson, Ala., May 31st, 1875.

Eld. S. P. Babcock has been suffering for many months, and is gradually failing from the effects of a cancer, which has already eaten largely one side of his face. At times, his sufferings are intense. I would ask for him the prayers of God's people, that he may be sustained in his sufferings, and the work of disease stayed in its progress. He is stopping with his daughter, Sr. A. M. Bancroft, at Woodstock Valley, Ct., which is his P. O. address for the present. P. S. Butler.

Correspondence.

From Sr. M. Graves.

Dear Brn. and Srs.:—Don't you often wonder how this poor, unhinged, out-of-joint world gets on at all? We do; there are so many screws loose, so many things going wrong, so many wrong-headed folks to carry, and so many wrong-hearted folks, heavier still; so many mistakes, and worse than all these, so much blindness and meekness, so much envy, malice and bitterness, that one is prone to lose heart sometimes, to get perplexed, confused, disgusted with one's self in particular, and the world in general. But there is for the true heart, for the tender, teachable spirit, a sweet and solemn protest against these moods of the soul in the skies above and earth beneath—the earth that God made and causes his sun to arise and shine upon.

Have you never looked out in some hour of mental chill and gloom, and felt the clouds all break away, the heart-sickness banish, as you saw the golden rivers of the sun pouring everywhere their tides of gladness? So long as that sun shines, His tender mercies and His loving kindness shall endure; so long as the right hand which fills with oil the great lamp hung in the heavens does not fail, it will reach down tenderly for guidance and strength to all who take hold on it. Yes, amid all the confusion, perplexities and trials of life, the strength of the Eternal love is about us.

And now, dear ones, if your nature is a broad, tender, sympathetic one; if a wrong or injustice done to another seems to you always very much like one done to yourself; I know you must have been often amazed, pained, outraged, when you have brought home to your mind and heart the frightful amount of foolish, gossipy, frivolous, wicked and malicious talk there is in the world.

Things we talk about,—how much they make of onr lives. What an immense social force our speech is for good or for evil, and in what service is is mostly employed? Did it ever strike you what a low conversational standard most of us have? In neighborly and social calls, in friendly afternoon visits, in evening companies, what a waste of talk there is. What barren, petty, frivolous subjects our speech goes hunting after. How little kindliness, wisdom and thought of any kind there is in what we say. Not that people should be always talking lofty sentiments, and uttering high-sounding phrases. The dullest people in the world are those who "talk like books." Good sense can be run into the mould of plain Anglo-Saxon, and a warm, kindly heart can make itself felt in the animated, picturesque words of our sweet, old-fashioned mother tongue.

But the host of us have enough to answer for in this matter. Surely we have all said unwise things, foolish things, wrong things, things to be repented of enough; but there is another phase of conversation, which differs from these, as wickedness does from weakness.

We come now to the backbiting, traducing, malicious type of conversation. When one soberly reflects upon how much there is of this in the world, it seems simply astounding that mankind gets on at all. There are so many people ready to ridicule, impugn, traduce the character, motives and conduct of anybody with whom they are brought in contact; so ready to ferret out, hold up and gloat over the faults of their fellow men, that, as we said, we wonder how the world gets on at all. And this active slander furnishes a terrible commentary on the evil in human nature. We all of us need so much charity from others, so much gentleness and sympathy and kindliness from our fellow men, in their judgments of our lives and deeds, that it might reasonably be supposed that each of us would deal gently with our neighbors, as we would be dealt by; but is it so?

Now, dear ones, if you have fallen into the evil habit of telling over the weak and wrong in the characters of those whom you know, get rid of it; resolutely and prayerfully, get rid of it. Solemnly covenant with yourself to speak tenderly, pitifully, charitably, of others; to seek for whatever explains and palliates their faults; to give them always the benefit of a doubt, and deal with others as one day you will wish to be dealt by. Let us all see to the things we talk about. Let us strive to do somewhat to refine and elevate the tone of conversation among those with whom we are thrown in social communion, if only for a few hours, that we drop into it some words that are wise, that are pitiful; some words of kindness and good cheer, such as the weakest can utter, and that we speak of the absent—of their infirmities, mistakes and misfortunes—somewhat as we would have them speak of us. "Which now of these three thinkest thou was neighbor to him who fell among thieves? And he said, He that had mercy on him. Then said Jesus, Go thou and do likewise." "If any man among you seem to be religious, and bridleth not his tongue, . . . that man's religion is vain."

FOREIGN NEWS.

PARIS, June 9. A violent storm passed over the city, to-day. Much window glass was broken and thousands of chimneys blown over. There were many accidents, and traffic was wholly suspended in the street. The storm extended to the south of France, and from the Pyrenees comes a report that a house was prostrated and eleven persons killed. The damage done in Paris is estimated at 11,000,000 francs.

ITALY has now actually under arms 195,000 men, and it is said that this number will soon be increased to 300,000. The second section of the permanent army, known as the Mobile militia, amounts to about to 150,000 men. Recruiting for the third and fourth sections will soon be begun. The arrest of numerous Italian students for participation in the recent disorders at Naples has unearthed the fact that great numbers of them are connected with the International Society, and one or two of them are to be held on a charge of conspiracy.

RECENT EARTHQUAKES IN ASIA MINOR. The earthquakes experienced in various parts of Asia Minor on the 3d, 4th and 5th of May were very disastrous in their effects. In the province of Bronssa the destruction of life and property was considerable. The village of Sheikli, in the district of Kara-Kissan had two hundred houses leveled with the ground, one hundred rendered uninhabitable, and only twenty left standing. The killed numbered thirty-one and the injured seventeen. The village of Tchoril lost two hundred and eighty-five of its three hundred houses, and had one hundred and thirty persons killed and one hundred and seventy injured. Other villages suffered in proportion.

A DISCOVERY of great interest to Egyptologists and antiquarians generally is reported from Port Said. A learned archæologist in that place has just found a monumental stone to Thotmes III., under whose reign the exodus of the Israelites is supposed to have taken place. The inscriptions which have already been deciphered contain more than four hundred geographical names, all recognizable, and for the most part belonging to Arabia, Armenia, Nubia, and the coast of the Mediterranean.

Havana, June 11. News has been received here, by the way of St. Thomas, of a terrible earthquake in New Grenada. The destruction is the greatest in the valley of Cucuta, on the Venezuella frontier. It is reported that 16,000 lives were lost by the calamity.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

San Francisco, June 6.—A succession of earthquakes and a tidal wave have occurred at New Caledonia, with disastrous effects. Several villages have been swept away, with much loss of life.

FIRES IN NEW ENGLAND.—According to the Boston Journal record of fires during the month of May, 1875, the loss by fire in New England amounts to $1,710,800. Our estimates are made with as much care as possible, but are mainly based upon the reports given by newspapers. In most instances we have corrected these when over-estimated. Massachusetts, $814,500; Connecticut, $353,800; Vermont, $319,400; Maine, $125,-900; New Hampshire, $81,200; Rhode Island, $16,000. Total, $1,710,800.—Boston Journal.

In Brief.

— There are said to be 400 religious journals in the United States, of which the larger numbers are,—Methodist, 47; Catholic, 41; Baptist, 35; Presbyterian, 29; Episcopalian, 21.

— The Troy (N. Y.) Board of Education has ordered that the Bible be excluded from the public schools, and all religious exercises discontinued.

— The German Government, apprehending disturbances, has prohibited, without exception, public religious processions among Roman Catholics. Processions were to have been held at various places in honor of the Pope's jubilee.

— In every country and every nation, Popery is meeting with adversity and tribulation, except in the United States. This is passing strange.

— Spiritualism is on the top wave of popularity in Russia just now, and several scientific professors have avowed their belief in it.

— A schooner and six lives were lost on Lake Michigan recently.

Hoosick Valley Tent Meeting.

The second series of tent meetings for this season, in the Hoosick tent, will commence on Tuesday evening, June 22d, on land owned by Truman Aldrich, ten miles south east of Rutland, near a village called Northham, in Shrewsbury, Vt. The meetings will continue afternoons and evenings till Sunday evening, July 4th, including two Sabbaths, if the interest sustains the meetings. This is a new field, and the interest throughout the whole region seems to warrant a success for truth. It is expected that brethren from Bridgewater, Plymouth, Mt. Holley, Rutland, and other towns, will attend these meetings. Plenty of hay, grain, and good pasturing for horses at old fashion farmer prices. Also good lodging in the tent or neighborhood, and provisions provided near the tent by the owner of the ground. Those coming to lodge in the tent bring your blankets and buffaloes. Preachers: Waite, Blanchard, and Flagg, with perhaps others.

H. K. FLAGG, A. W. SIBLEY, } Tent Committee.

Hoosick Valley Conference.

A quarterly session of the Hoosick Valley Conference will be held at North Adams, Mass., commencing July 7th, and hold over Sunday, and as much longer as duty requires. The Hoosick Valley tent will be pitched for the occasion, and we hope for a blessed good meeting. Let there be a rally of Immanuel's friends in all that region of country. Do come up to this feast, and let us have an old-fashioned meeting; one in which the Holy Spirit in power shall rest on the encampment, and be present to convict of sin and judgment to come. Bring small tents and camp on the ground, those who can. Let there be a representation of all the churches by delegates within the bounds of this conference. Make an especial effort to attend this quarterly session.

A. W. SIBLEY, President.
W. O. HIGLEY, Secretary.

Mission Tent Meeting.

The annual tent and campmeeting at Greenwich, Mass., will commence July 1st, and continue one week. This meeting is in a new field, and it is desired that all the churches in Western Mass. should be fully represented with tents and people. We have one of the best groves in the State, fitted up by the S. A. and N. E. R. R. Co., free of expense. Extra trains will run from Springfield and Athol July 4th, at reduced fare. We want an old fashioned campmeeting. We say to preachers and people—come, and spend the Fourth of July in working with Christ to save souls. Particulars hereafter.

J. HEMENWAY, for Committee.

New York A. C. Conference.

The Annual Meeting of the New York A. C. Conference will be held with the church at Martville, commencing Thursday evening, June 17th, and hold over Sunday. We hope to see every church in this Conference represented by delegates. Let each church take a collection for the Conference. We expect the ministers and delegates to be present Thursday evening.

Will the churches, where our ministers labor, see that their fare is paid to and from the Conference. We expect the chapel at Martville will be dedicated during the meeting. Homes will be provided for all that come. Brn. and Srs., come praying that God's blessing may rest on the meeting.

Directions. Those coming on the New York Central, from the East or West, will change cars at Weadsport for Martville. Those coming on the Lake Shore and Watertown Road, will change at Sterling Junction for Martville. The church is but a few rods from the depot.

M. R. MILES, President.

GROVE MEETING.—According to previous arrangements, made one year ago, Bro. F. A. Baker and myself gave out word there would be a meeting held in West Levant, Me., in the grove now owned by John Emerson, to commence on the first day of July, at two o'clock P. M., and hold over the 4th. The grove will be fitted up for tenting. We expect a large tent will be pitched for meetings in case it should be stormy. For the accommodation of the poor, bring clothing and provision, all who can. Those that can, bring your small tents. Let us have a friendly greeting once more in Christ, and contemplate his coming soon, with joyful hope. The day of trouble is upon us. Let all come who love our Lord Jesus Christ, and strive for peace in Christ, and let it be our chief aim to be ready for the day of the Lord, and get others ready. Preaching brethren are invited to come and labor for their Master.

ISRAEL DAMMAN.

QUARTERLY MEETING.—The Second Quarterly Meeting of the Washington Co., Kan., Adv. Chris. Conference will be held with the church at Sherman Centre, commencing Saturday, June 26th, and hold over Sunday. There will be preaching on Saturday, at eleven o'clock a. m., and a business meeting at two p. m. It is requested that each church in the conference be fully represented, and that all be there on Saturday, as it is desired to finish all business on that day.

JOHN BATTERTON, Sec.

NOTICE.—The third quarterly meeting of the Central Kansas Advent Christian Conference will be held with the church at Key West, Coffey Co., Kansas, on Saturday, the 3d day of July, 1875, and will continue over the Lord's day. All are cordially invited to attend.

H. H. KLOCK, Secretary.

QUARTERLY CONFERENCE.—The next Quarterly Conference of Northern Pennsylvania and Southern New York will be held at South Creek, Bradford Co., Pa., commencing Friday evening, June 18th, and continue over the following Sunday. We hope to see a general gathering of the friends of truth. Ticket by Railway from Corning to Gillet Station.

E. C. COWLES, Pres.
A. H. BRIGGS, Sec.

FOURTH OF JULY.—The new camp-ground at Seabrook, N. H., will be dedicated Sunday, July 4th. We hope to see the brethren and sisters in the vicinity present. Bro. C. Goodrich, it is expected, will preach the word.

For the brethren, C. A. BARTON.

AN APPEAL.

The season has now arrived when the special work of holding Tent Meetings should be begun. The Mass. Conference has a good Tent ready again for service in the harvest field of the Lord; and the question is: Shall it be sent forth once more with good and faithful laborers to gather in sheaves for Christ, and give the warning of the coming day of God? In order that this may be done, there must be a sacrifice made by the friends of Jesus, and means given to sustain in this way his precious cause.

It is proposed that the Tent this year be taken into new fields, and where our precious faith has not as yet been heard. If this is done, there will be a special necessity for contributions on the part of our churches and people in general, to defray the expenses of these meetings in these new places.

As the Committee, chosen at the late Conference to have the charge of the Tent and make arrangements for the work in connection with it, we invite all who have the means and the heart to give in sustaining this mode of reaching the people, to do so as soon as they can, that we may know how far to go in promising the Tent where it is already requested.

Contributions and pledges can be sent to the Treasurer, ELD. C. GOODRICH, Boston, Mass.

B. YOUNG, L. BOUTELL, } Protracted Meeting and
C. E. BARNES, I. I. LESLIE, } Tent Committee.

Notice.

The members of the Mass. Second Advent Christian Conference are requested to send to the Secretary their names and address, that each may receive a certificate of membership, according to a vote of the Conference.

Tremont Campmeeting.

The Annual Campmeeting at Tremont, Mass., will commence Monday, July 19th, and continue to the 28th. Arrangements will be made to supply all with board and lodging. All who can are requested to bring Tents.

Brethren in the Lord, do make arrangements to attend this meeting, especially all who reside in the southerly part of this State. Come at the commencement, if possible. We intend to secure good profitable laborers, those who are prepared to bring out an exposition of those prophecies especially applicable to these times, and now in process of fulfillment, when the church will be delivered. This may be the last annual gathering we shall be permitted to enjoy before the Lord will gather his own to himself. Let us do what we can to save the perishing before it is too late. Bro. Munger will have charge of the meeting.

HENRY V. DAVIS, for the Committee.

Alton Bay Campmeeting.

The Alton Bay Campmeeting will commence, if the Lord will, August 21st, and hold over two Sabbaths. J. COUCH.

Merritt Bishop's grove near by, commencing Thursday evening, June 24th, at seven o'clock, and holding over the following Sabbath. The first service will be held in the school-house, and if the weather is pleasant, in Bro. Bishop's grove afterward. Three services may be expected on Friday, Saturday, and the Sabbath. The brethren and sisters there cordially invite the scattered ones to gather together with them for worship and blessing, and it is hoped that there will be a good attendance of those who love and look for the appearing of Jesus. Those who may go by cars will go by way of Sherbrook, over the Quebec Central R. R., leaving the cars at the Dudswell station. Teams will be provided for. Now, brethren and sisters, on the district and elsewhere, do make special effort to be present at this meeting, which is at once a district and grove meeting, ready to engage heartily in the service of the Lord. Several preachers will be present to preach the word.

We shall exhibit the big chart, giving the history of the world from the creation to the present time.

The great Map of History, twenty-two feet long, and about thirty inches wide. This valuable work, of which mention has been made in the Crisis, we now have a supply of, and will send to those who may order at the publisher's reduced price of $12.00 per copy, by express. We have them on rollers, and in book form, and can supply either way.

The best method of using the chart or map of history is to hang the frame on the wall of the room (the map being in the frame, of course), by the two hooks in the upper bar of the frame, high enough to stand, or sit, in front of it, and there examine or study it.

Students and beginners in history should occasionally look over the map in its entire length—drawn out on the wall, or tables, or on the carpet—until they are well acquainted with the entire outlines, plan and compass of the map, which embraces all history.

This is a pamphlet of 119 pages, in which the Author discusses the above question in an interesting and able manner,—showing the material nature of, the mortality and destiny of the Soul,—A future immortality to be the special portion of the Righteous,—What the Bible teaches as to the future of the Wicked,—The intermediate state,—The Resurrection,—That of the Righteous and of the Wicked, etc.

The Author claims that the doctrine set forth,—"Honors God, exalts the Bible, insures preaching of future punishment, subverts Universalism and Infidelity, errors of Romanism, of Spiritualism and Swedenborgianism, helps in work of Missions, rightly values the body, brings Christian unity, and promotes personal holiness."

HYMN OF THE LAST DAYS.

BY H. BONAR, D. D.

Help mighty God!
The strong man bows himself,
The good and wise are few,
The standard-bearers faint,
The enemy prevails.
Help, God of might,
In this thy church's night!

Help, mighty God!
Evil is now our good,
And error is our truth,
Darkness is now our light,
Iniquity o'erflows.
Help, God of might,
Defend, defend the right!

Help, mighty God!
Men turn their ear away
From the great voice divine;
And each one seeks his own
Dark oracles of lies.
Help, God of might,
The idols, Lord, affright!

Help, mighty God!
Men slight the grace divine,
They mock the glorious love;
And the great gift of God
Is a thing of nought.
Help, God of might,
The foe arise and smite!

Help, mighty God!
The blind now lead the blind,
Man has become as God,
The tree of knowledge now
Bears its last ripest fruit.
Help, God of might,
For us come forth and fight!

Help, mighty God!
The perfect word of heaven
Is as a Sibyl's scroll;
And the great mount of God
Is as Dodona's shrine.
Help, God of might,
And in the dark give light!

Help, mighty God!
The world is waxing gray,
And charity grows chill,
And faith is at its ebb,
And hope is withering!
Help, God of might,
Appear in glory bright!

THE SECOND ANGEL'S MESSAGE.

A. M. BRINKERHOFF.

"And there followed another angel, saying, Babylon is fallen, is fallen, that great city, because she made all nations drink of the wine of the wrath of her fornication." Rev. 14:8.

Here we have recorded another angel following the proclamation of the first of this series, either sooner or later. And as with the first, various are the opinions in regard to the applications of this message. All are not right, yet every one feels as though he has a right to express his own opinion in regard to them; this is why I take up my pen, although incapable of presenting this subject as it should be done, and at this time of the year being very busily engaged in agriculture, I shall only offer some thoughts or questions, and leave it for abler pens than mine.

In the 17th and 18th chapters a more extended account is given of the fall of Babylon, and of her utter destruction. Some expositors have it "Fulfilled from the spring to the fall of 1844. Babylon [mixture confusion], a lifeless and divided Christianity. Its fall—a moral one, caused by the rejection of the first message or proclamation of the first advent." Key to Prophetic Chart, Page 36. Or, in other words, all the professed religious churches in the world, from Catholicism down, represent Babylon the great, and were rejected of God for not receiving the so-called first angel's message, proclaimed from 1837 to 1844. This is a pretty broad and bold assertion: all churches rejected of God except ours! This is like Catholicism.

First, we wish to offer a few thoughts on the word Babylon. We read of the Babylonian kingdom. Does its name make it any different than the Roman kingdom? We read of the city of Babylon: was it composed of a host of cities? Again: the announcement of the fall of Babylon in Rev., is similar to that announced against Babylon: "Babylon is fallen, is fallen," etc. Isa. 21:9. "Babylon hath been a golden cup in the Lord's hand, that made all the the earth drunken; the nations have drunken of her wine, therefore the nations are mad. Babylon is suddenly fallen and destroyed: howl for her," etc. Jer. 51:7, 8. Babylon the second, or great, has made all nations drunk. In fact, their sins seem to be alike. Was Babylon of old rejected of God? Yes; their wickedness became so great that God swept them with destruction. Would he have healed them? Yes; "We would have healed Babylon, but she is not healed."

Now, were God's people members of the Babylonian family up to the time of the announcement of her fall, or were they in orders by themselves, living in his kingdom? Were they united in bonds of fellowship with her? No; they were not. "Forsake her and let us go every one into his own country, for her judgments reacheth unto heaven." Again: was Babylon of old ever blessed religiously, recognized as Christianity by the God of heaven, ever found favor in his sight, in order that he might reject her? She was not. She always was a kingdom of Satan, and never was the recognized people of God.

And now we wish to contrast this with Babylon the great, of Rev. Where has there been another power on earth that has so far exceeded Babylon of old that she has received the name of "Babylon the great?" If the blood of the millions of the saints of God could speak, yes, they do speak and cry, "How long, O Lord, holy and true, dost thou judge and avenge our blood on them that dwell on the earth?" In the Roman kingdom, controlled by a professed infallible church, is "found the blood of the prophets, and of the saints, and of all that were slain upon the earth." She is Babylon the Great. Do the professed churches of the present day exceed her in wickedness? Has Babylon the great been rejected of God? Yes; she is fallen. This needs no proof. Her power is gone, and soon her utter destruction will take place, as recorded in Rev. 18. Was Babylon the great ever recognized as the people of God by the authority of heaven, or was it necessary they should be in order to be rejected? No; they commenced their war against heaven when the Savior was on earth, and continued until their power was taken away. They have sealed their destiny by the blood of martyrs. God's wrath will soon be found out upon them. As of great Babylon of old, she always was the kingdom of the devil.

Now, were God's people members of the family of Babylon the great up to the time of her fall? Yes; we are told they were, as all the churches make up Babylon up to 1844. God's blessings rested on Babylon up to that time. But I shall answer no; they lived in bodies by themselves while they could, and then scattered in the mountains, and were butchered by the millions; they never united in bonds of fellowship with her. And the cry to "come out of her, my people," after she is fallen, is in order, the same as Babylon of old, "That ye receive not of her plagues." Special judgments will be visited upon them. God's people fled from the land of the Chaldeans; they fled from Jerusalem when she was destroyed, and so God's people will get out of Babylon the great before her plagues descend.

Again: if the present churches of the world are Babylon the great, and the first angel's message was the medicine that would have healed her, who is to blame if that healing power is not administered aright? certainly not the patient. Now, we will suppose this view to be correct. God's special messengers arise in and throughout Babylon the great, proclaiming to her the coming of Jesus, first in '43; then owing to a mistake God purposely made, it was found to be '44. They did not recive this doctrine as true, therefore they were rejected for God and fell. This, remember, was the burden of the message, as preached, that Jesus would come. Does the message say anything about Christ's coming on a certain day, month, or year? No. Does not the Bible say, "Of that day and hour knoweth no man?" Yes. Did he come? No. Was it truth then they were testing Babylon with? No. Did not she do right in rejecting untruth? She did? Has she not got the testimony in her midst to show that these special messengers were proclaiming an unscriptural doctrine? In connection with this message the midnight cry was also sounded, which proved to be incorrect. Now if the churches are rejected who is responsible? Ah! this is a solemn question,—Who is responsible? This people admit they misunderstood the message, therefore we don't believe this was God's special work, or that the churches of the present day are Babylon the great.

In proof of the first message being the healing power we wish to quote from the work entitled "Three Messages," printed at Battle Creek, Mich., Page 53. "The preaching of the hour of God's judgment and the immediate coming of the Lord, was at once the test of the church, and the means by which she might have been healed." On page 51—"Alas! that this warning from heaven was rejected. The last means that heaven had in store to heal Babylon having failed, God gave her up to her own heart's desire." To add this up, the result is as follows: they were tested by an untrue doctrine; they rejected the untrue doctrine, then God in turn rejected them for not receiving the untrue message. Now, reader, consider. You are living with churches all around you. Do you not find some who appear to be christians indeed, at heart? One church near us (Tunkers), through their influence, have relieved hundreds of families from starvation, by appealing to their brethren east. Then again, God's dealings are with individuals, not churches. In any church he "that feareth God and doeth his will is accepted of him."

And now a few words on the third message. Had not Babylon the great fallen, lost her power, there would have been little need of the third message, for the saints of God were being all put to death. Why was this power putting the saints of God to death? Because they hated them as individuals? No; it was because they hated their doctrine. Therefore the doctrine of the beast and his image was in every particular opposite to the doctrine of Christ. Then when the dark night of the rule of Babylon is passing away, and the bright rays of the morning light are shedding their glory over the earth, this angel announces his message to the world, and thousands have snapped the cords, one by one, that bound them fast, until God's truth again shines bright and clear. That the beast and his image existed at that time, read Rev. 20:4. "Those that were beheaded for the witness of Jesus, who had not worshipped the beast, neither his image, neither received his mark." On the seal of the living God, we might offer a good many objections against applying the third message specially to this time, but time forbids, and we will only add, "Search the Scriptures."—Sabbath Advocate.

THE AGE WE LIVE IN.

B. F. SERGISSON.

The age we live in is an age of fun and folly. Fun is said to be made of very cheap material; but to seek for solid comfort and pleasure is as often attended with reproach. Pleasure is made of many ingredients. It is a compound. At its shrine every heart has bent and bowed. The human heart, outside of God, is never satisfied. It is ever reaching after lasting pleasure, but when we arrive where it is said to be located, it has fled to some other clime. Still the seeker after pleasure is held by its seducive power, and on, and on, he rushes, but to reap the fruit of disappointment over and over again, and still is unsatisfied, ever reaching after that which seems to lie in the immediate future, but it is only to be deceived.

The age we live in has two sides, light, and dark; rest, and unrest; safe, and unsafe. On one side is found the "little flock," and on the other the great multitude, "without hope and without God in the world." On the dark side are to be found those who live fast lives, and die with no ray of hope to light up the darkness; but on the bright side, are those who have taken a new departure, a new lease of life. They have laid "hold on eternal life." They have come out from the world, and are transformed by the renewing of the Holy Ghost, being in Christ new creatures.

This is an age of fast young men. He is but the fruit of the age—a hot house plant, too soon developed. He cannot stand the weather. He soon withers under the vices of the age. He has no character, but simply a creature of impulse. He is a windfall, developed only on one side, having the worms of vice flowing at his heart. He lives fast, walks fast, eats fast, bargains fast, makes or breaks suddenly; marches to fortune or to bankruptcy in double quick time. He is the nobby built, high masted, full-rigged clipper ship, with pennant flying, and every sail set; but without ballast, compass, or chart. Where, O where is the hope of our young men? But few, very few, have a well-developed character. This is the one thing lacking, and what is left when character is gone? They are vain and corrupt in their habits. It is little, low, filthy, vulgar habits, which grow into their natures. In them they live, and without them they are made to believe they will surely die. But these habits are death in the pot. They wither and blast. They rob the mind of independence and inward strength; then away they go with the current, feeding upon the devices of Satan, led and seduced by him, through his emissary, into all manner of evil. They are a wonder to themselves, feeding upon husks. Their end is not one to be coveted, but deplored, and avoided.

Rochester, N. Y.

OUR ANNUAL MEETING.

Praise the Lord, it has been one long to be remembered. Sweet peace and harmony rested down upon all. The spirit of Jesus was made manifest. Love and good will flowed from heart to heart. Notwithstanding the hard times, we had the largest gathering of those of like precious faith that we have had since the work commenced in this State. Brethren and sisters were represented from Linn, Wilson, Leavenworth, Jefferson, Douglas, Franklin, Osage, Coffey, Howard and Sumner counties. All came to work for Jesus and his cause. The brethren and sisters at Ottumwa did nobly in providing for the wants of all. Homes and hearts welcomed the pilgrims as they came in from a distance of fifty, seventy-five, and a hundred miles. A new impetus was given to the work in this State. All felt that, by the assisting grace of God, they would do what they could the present year to spread the good news all around of Jesus' soon coming, and the glorious restitution. A paper for pledges to pay, as the Lord hath prospered, was put in circulation for the tent to be taken into new fields, and over a hundred dollars were pledged; also over forty dollars were signed for tracts.

Two of our dear Brn. were set apart for the work of the Lord, on Lord's day afternoon. It was a solemn occasion. Two were baptized in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Power divine rested upon them, and praises of joy and thanksgiving burst forth from their lips as they came up out of the liquid grave. At the communion, we had a heavenly sitting together in Christ Jesus. All praise be to the Lord for the gift of his dear Son. O what a glorious shout there'll be, when we arrive at home. Our separation yesterday was sad, yet we rejoice in hope of a speedy reunion when the Chief Shepherd shall appear, and the last trump shall sound; when the dead in Christ shall arise, and with those that are alive shall be changed, and together arise to meet the Lord in the air. Let us be ready to hail that glad day. Brn. and Srs., let us be encouraged. "Trust in the Lord and do good."

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

We have received the two barrels of clothing, with $5.00, by Eld. S. G. Mathewson, from the church at Worcester, Mass. We thank them for their many valuable articles for the sufferers. They came just in time, as the others sent us have been all distributed. We have learned of families in great destitution, and who have applied for aid through my brother N., who teaches school away from home. They will be grateful indeed as they receive the gifts. Yesterday morning I met a Bro. on the street at Ottumwa, and found his circumstances to be distressing. He suffered much last winter. Aid was sent in to the place by the Methodists, but he was refused any, as he was an Adventist. We clothed him up, and sent things for his wife and family. His heart was made glad. He will now be able to attend meeting.

We have endeavored to give where it was actually needed, not only to those who believe as we do, but to those who belong to the Methodist, Baptist, United Brethren, and the world. Thank the Lord, some have commenced to see that sectarianism is no part of Christianity, and that pure and undefiled religion alone will be able to save in the great day of accounts. Then it will not be asked whether you did good merely to the Baptists, the Methodists, or any other name, as a name, but unto the Lord, and to all, as we have opportunity, and especially to the household of faith, knowing that with the Lord there is no respect of persons.

The Lord abundantly bless and reward those that have answered to the call of the poor in sending help in time of need. But I fear that, in some localities, there will be greater distress, and a greater cry for bread, than there is now; for the grasshoppers already have hatched out by the millions, and are taking every green substance before them, so that people have to drive their stock away to other places for grazing. Many are almost discouraged. The corn, potatoes, and every thing in the gardens, are completely destroyed by these ravenous insects. I fear they will scourge the entire country. In some places, they more than cover the earth. Their course this season seems to be north-west, the way they came last season; but it is feared by many that if they should go away, they will return before the summer is over. May the Lord prepare us all for the things that are coming on the earth. J. C. & S. E. SMITH.

DRY-GOODS' CHRISTIANS.

There seems to be in the churches a great strife raging. It is an Austerlitz of ribbons. The carnage of color is seen all over our religious assemblages. Along on the outskirts of the Sabbath audiences you see, here and there, a picket of fashion. But down in the middle of the church are the solid columns, blazing away all through the service. Five hundred "broken and contrite hearts" covered up in rainbows and spangles. Followers of the "meek and lowly Nazarene" all a-jingle and a-flash. Ten cents for the missionary cause, and two hundred and fifty dollars for trappings. Church of God hung by the neck with gold chains, diamond locketed. Unsophisticated persons traveling on two yards of silk, dragged by the lady going up the aisle in front of him. Diamonds enough to give all India the gospel. The item of dress among christian people on the Sabbath day is an outrage on the christian religion.

For graceful and beautiful apparel we have admiration. But this strife in christian circles as to who shall excel in costly millinery, and who shall dash up to the church door in gayest turn-out, and who shall make the most blazonment and show of wardrobe, is one of the greatest hindrances to religious advancement. Our ladies' hats and shawls are so fine that on rainy days we are afraid to go to church lest we get a drop on them. Our head-gear is worth more than our souls. We teeter and swagger up the aisles, to the disgust of good men, and the grief of angels.

Enough money is expended by the christians of our city, in excess of the requisite outlay for dress, to relieve all the poverty, and educate all the ignorance, and balk all the crime. Much of the piety of our churches is being smothered under shirred basques and jabot ruffles and Louisines. Some of our christian gentlemen have boots so tight they can hardly walk in paths of righteousness, and they feel in church more like swearing than praying, because their corns hurt; and our christian women shut out the Sun of righteousness by twenty-dollar parasols, lace-trimmed, silk-lined, silver-mounted. The poor are kept out of church because their plain apparel looks so bad in the contrast.

We want a great ecclesiastical reformation in this matter of Sabbath accoutrement. Shoo these religious peacocks out of the house of God. By your example make subdued and modest costume more popular than gaudy apparel. Do not put so much dry-goods on your back that you cannot climb into glory. You cannot sail into the harbor of heaven with such a rigging as that.—Christian at Work.

"SHE ALWAYS MADE HOME HAPPY."

In an old churchyard stood a stone,
Weather-marked and stained;
The hand of time had crumbled it,
So only part of it remained;
Upon one side I could just trace—
"In memory of our mother;"
An epitaph which spoke of "home"
Was chiselled on the other.

I'd gazed on monuments of fame,
High towering to the skies,
I'd seen the sculptured marble stone
Where a great hero lies;
But by this epitaph I paused,
And read it o'er and o'er,
For I had never seen inscribed
Such words as these before:

A legacy of memory sweet
To those she loved bereft:
And what a testimony given
By those who knew her best,
Engraven on this plain rude stone
That marked the mother's rest!

"NEAR, EVEN AT THE DOORS."

C. E. PRESTON.

What is "near, even at the doors"? The glorious second advent of our blessed Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ.

Do we realize this fact? I believe but a few of us do.

Are we ready to meet him? Let us search our hearts and see.

Have we given all for Christ? or are we halting between two opinions?

Are we trying to serve God and mammon? or are we trying to serve the only true and living God?

Are we serving the pride and fashion of the world? or are we serving the meek and lowly Jesus?

Are we serving the popular amusements of the world, which last only for a day? or are we serving the house of God, that we may obtain life everlasting?

Let us think about these things before it is too late; for now is the time to choose whom ye will serve.

"Near, even at the doors." How the thought fills my soul with joy. We are almost home. Praise the Lord. Only a little while longer to wait. Let us work while the day lasts, have our lamps trimmed and burning. "Therefore, be ye also ready, for in such an hour as ye think not, the Son of man cometh." Amen. "Even so, come, Lord Jesus."

Medford, Mass.

DISAPPOINTMENT.

The following is a part of the report of Eld. Thurman's last meeting in Chicago, as published in the Chicago Tribune, April 21st, 1875. It was held on the corner of Wells and Superior streets. The report says:

To this place the the Adventists repaired early in the evening, and so well did they evade curiosity that their location was not discovered, so that they were not annoyed by attempts to intrude nor by disorder outside, as would have been the case had they remained on Desplaines street. With the sole exception of the reporter of the Tribune, there was no one present except those of their own communion.

The hall was in the third story, and was a large, well-lighted apartment, sufficiently accommodating them. Long tables were arranged so as to inclose a square, and on these a substantial supper was spread, consisting of boiled mutton, apple, custard, and cranberry pie, apples and oranges, good red wine, and a large quantity of "unleavened bread," composed of sheets of cracker bread. At the head of the hall to the east was a sort of rustic canopy, arranged with evergreens and other sorts of foliage, which was there when they secured the hall. Beneath this, and raised upon a dais so as to elevate him above the rest, sat Elder Thurman. There were about one hundred and fifty in all present, quite a number being children. Several of the women carried babes at their bosoms. The sexes were divided, the men sitting to the left and the women to the right of Elder Thurman. In the square inclosed by the tables were the basins, ewers, and towels used in the ceremony of feet-washing.

The thunder storm which came up early in the evening, and which brought such dismay to many who were secretly perturbed, carried the assemblage to an ecstatic pitch of feeling. They eagerly peered through the windows, and became jubilant as the storm swept along and the lightnings flashed. Their joy waxed intense and confident, as, after the first overshadowing of the gathering clouds, a peculiar yellow radiance was diffused through the air, and lit up the earth, even while the rain poured down in sheets. This confirmed their faith, inasmuch as it seemed that night was not to prevail, in accordance with the texts:

"The Lord my God shall come. . . . And it shall come to pass in that day that the light shall not be clear nor dark, but it shall be one day, which shall be known to the Lord, not day nor night; but it shall come to pass that at evening time it shall be light." Zech. 14:5-7.

"For as the lightning cometh out of the east and shineth even unto the west, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be." Matt. 24:27.

HEALING THE SICK.

It was during this excitement that a woman, coming from a distance, whence the reporter could not ascertain, and who had sought out the Adventists and joined herself to them that day, asked Elder Thurman to help her of a neuralgic complaint that was affecting her with great pain. Laying his hands on her head in a reverent way, he said: "I say unto you in the name of the Father, and of the Holy Ghost, be thou made whole." And immediately, according to the woman's profession, the pain left her, and she began praising God.

At 8 o'clock, the table being set and all made ready, they sat down. In all their doings Thurman and his followers have aimed to copy the example of Christ with as literal exactness as may be. They keep the passover on the 14th of the first month of every Hebrew year. They obtain their ceremonial for the Lord's Supper by taking the Scriptures in the same literal way.

FEET WASHING.

In accordance with it the ceremony of feet-washing was first in order. The chairs were placed with their backs to the table, so that the gaze of the men and women was turned away from one another. Eld. Thurman then went off into one of his rhapsodical harangues upon the solemnity of the feast which they were about to celebrate, and on the glories that were to burst in upon them at Christ's advent. Some of his imagery was very beautiful, and the ardent nature of his longings for the better country filled his utterance with flame. He then explained the typical significance of the ceremony they were about to enter upon. The rising up from supper, the laying aside of garments, and humbling oneself to such a menial office as the washing of feet, typified the action of the Savior in laying aside the glories which he wore at his Father's throne, and abasing himself to stoop to this wicked world. The washing typified the cleansing away of our sins by his blood. When he had made an end to explanation, as he repeated "He riseth from supper and laid aside his garments," he took off his coat, the men following his example, and the women laying off their shawls and wraps. Repeating, "Took a towel and girded himelf," he bound a towel about his waist, and continuing, "Began to wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded," took one of the basins and washed and wiped the feet of the one sitting to his left, all having in the meantime removed their shoes and stockings. In like manner the others proceeded to wash one another's feet, going along in rotation, each taking the person sitting next, the women keeping to themselves. There were some nine or ten basins, so that a number were washing at the same time, and the ceremony was not protracted to a wearisome length, notwithstanding the large number present. The proceeding was carried on with quiet and decorum, and, although there were elements of the ludicrous from the awkward and ungainly attitudes and the incongruity between the reverential manner and the matter of fact splashing and paddling, the ceremonial was not without a certain dignity.

The tenth, eleventh, and twelfth portions of the programme were comprehended in what is usually styled "saying grace," after which the supper began. To persons of good appetite, the coming of meal-time is cheering and enlivening. As the ceremonies antecedent to the supper had reached until after nine, the Adventists were pretty hungry, and fell to with a good will. Little children who had fallen asleep during the foregoing exercises awoke, and betook themselves to active exertion, and the assembly put on a picnic appearance. So singular a spectacle will hardly occur again. On the one side were women ranging in age from the white-haired grandame verging on eighty, to girls of eight and ten; on the other, men of all ages down to boys and striplings. There were baskets, shawls, and coats heaped in the corners of the room, and in the centre were the towels and basins that had been used in the feet-washing. A literal obedience was given to the text: "Let your conversation be of heaven." The glories of the New Jerusalem were spoken of with ardent longing, and continual reference made to the tremendous events which they believed soon would occur. All were attacked by a sympathetic excitement of feeling that manifested itself in trembling impatience of manner, and anxious peerings into the night to discover the signs of Christ's coming. In all that company, even including the little children, there was no one unaffected by the flood of emotion, except the reporter, a solitary Pagan among true believers. But the transient brightness succeeding the thunder storm had long before passed away, and the wonted shades of night had been established. The laws of nature persisted in their regular operation, the earth rolled around into the dense shadow, crushing the aspirations of the Adventists and oppressing them with melancholy, the profundity of the universe was not let up by the pageant of Deity on his way to one small particle floating in the vast abyss of space, and desperate anxiety became visible on the faces of the company.

It was with great depression of manner that, after the appetites of those present had been satisfied, Elder Thurman rose up, and after blessing the bread, broke it and carried pieces from one to another, as in administering the Holy Communion in other religious bodies. He then blesssed the wine in the same manner, and, walking around the room, presenting the wine to each in succession, repeating: "Drink this in remembrance that Christ's blood was shed for you."

Under the nineteenth head,—"Some interesting conversation with those who love Jesus,"—each, beginning with the man sitting to the left of Elder Thurman, rose, and made some remarks. They were all characterized by a tone of depression and a nervous assertion of continued faith, the gasping vehemence of the statement showing how hard the struggle was to bolster up belief against the disappointment in not receiving any sign or indication of Christ's advent. When it came to Thurman's time, it was not yet twelve o'clock, but despair was visible on his face, and his voice was deep and solemn. He began by speaking of the ardent longings he had cherished for the coming of Christ. Even if he himself were lost he wanted to see God's elect. His voice fell into the measured sing-song in which he intones his prayers, and became inexpressibly mournful as he went on.

I confess that I begin to feel sad, and my heart sinks within me. I have no time fixed at which I expect to see the Lord except midnight. But I did expect that he would appear at Jerusalem when it was four o'clock in the afternoon here, and then I expected the sign of the Son of man. I will not despair to the rising sun, but how can I extend the prophetic dates longer than midnight, I cannot see. It has been my study for thirty-two years, and, again and again, and yet again, have I examined all the prophecies to see whether there could be any mistake, but I could find none. And again to-day I took my Bible and tried to see whether by any possibility the prophecies might extend for a day longer, but they all point to this day. If there is a mistake I am unable to discover it. Whether Christ comes or not, I feel that my work is done. If Jesus does not come for a thousand years, still I shall rejoice that I did prove faithful,—I took him at his word. "At the time appointed the end shall be." I cannot extend the dates. This is the appointed time. Whether Christ appears or not, I must still believe the dates end here. The same prophecies that show that Jesus is indeed the Christ, point to his second advent to-night. I am unable to see how all the prophetic dates should end April 19th and it be a chance business.

We feared our ignorance, we invited inquiry, but, so far from detecting error, there was but one question asked during our meetings covering the correctness of the dates. If we were mistaken, why was it that learned divines were unable to detect it and save us from our errors? I am a literalist. I believe the Lord meant what he said, and said what he meant. If Jesus comes or not, I rejoice that another chance was afforded us to assemble round the table and do what Jesus did. I am too ignorant to know any better, and too ignorant to see why, at "the time appointed," the end should not be. If the Scriptures are the word of God, then all are compelled to admit that at "the time appointed the end shall be." St. Paul says: "But ye, brethren, are not left in darkness, that that day should overtake you as a thief." Yet, if this night fails, I am unable to see for my life, after much deliberation, how mortal man can ever find it out. I have not followed the traditions of men. I have proved my chronology by astronomical observation. I am quite unable to see how I have been mistaken.

All this poured out in a rapid flow, Thurman standing with his head bowed, and with his countenance as unchanging in expression as if he was the mere passive medium through which some exterior intelligence was communicating. He seemed stupefied by the greatness of the disappointment, and there was not a single manifestation of grief in his face, but there were tears in his voice as he went on still intoning his utterances:

If, after all, I have deceived you, will you forgive me? I have done the best I could, God knows. "I have finished my course. I have kept the faith." I thank my God for that. I have done what I could, I can do no more. I have felt the burden of you upon my heart, for I felt that I carried you in the arms of my admonition. [Here his voice faltered and trembled.] I wanted to present you to Jesus. I can bear the burden no more. I leave you in the hands of God.

While he was speaking sobs and groans went up continually from the assemblage. Many of the women were weeping bitterly. Most of the little ones, wearied with the protracted vigil, were asleep lying on the shawls and wrappings that had been placed in the corner. The men looked wistful and sad, but it was not yet twelve, and some hope still lay in the narrow circuit that the minute hand of the clock had yet to traverse. A tall, gray-haired man began to speak in a tone of encouragement, and expressing the love and veneration which they all cherished for Bro. Thurman. Thurman, who, in his desolation, still kept on by sheer inertia in the groove in which he had moved along, announced mechanically, "And when they had sung a hymn," thus indicating the time when it was necessary to sing in order to imitate the Last Supper of Christ. The hymn, "Long we've been waiting for Christ to come," was then sung in a dolorous way. The clock still lacked a minute or two of twelve, and it was watched as a criminal might watch the approach of the hour of his execution.

The minute hand touched twelve, and a deep groan ran through the assembly. The disappointment seemed to strike into Thurman's heart far too deep for tears. There was self-abasement in his manner as he rose, and in the same monotonous intonation, but with a trembling voice, said:

Brethren, lean on my arm no longer. My reckoning is all up. I leave you in the hands of God. It is as much as I can do to struggle on for myself. I will try to do the best I can. If there is any more light to be had I will search for it. I bid you farewell."

Then followed a pitiful scene. Women wrung their hands in bitter anguish; strong men buried their faces and wept and groaned. The violent descent from ecstatic joy to terrible disappointment bruised and crushed their spirits. Thurman sat still and murmuring as if dazed and stupefied with the greatness of his calamity. The work of his life-time had fallen to nothingness. The firm footing of his faith had suddenly slipped from under him, and the horrors of darkness encompassed him. Of different calibre from his followers, his grief could not find vent in demonstration of feeling, and nothing assuaged the bitterness of disappointment. Some tried to say kind and comforting things to him, but he seemed to heed nothing. Still adhering to the programme as the fixed thing that yet remained to him, he rose to pronounce the benediction. Continuing with a tremulous voice he said: Oh Lord, we came according to thy word. Hast thou not said that "in the time appointed the end shall be?" O holy Parent, hear the prayers of thy people. Come, O Lord Jesus, come quickly. All will come to desolation unless thou return again. We have taken thy word in all the simplicity of little children. We have tried to do our duty. O Jesus, thou knowest our hearts, that we have tried to do thy will. We can do no more. We give ourselves into thy hands saying, "Lord save or I perish."

He then sat down again in moody silence, while his followers went on groaning and weeping. The Tribune representative approached him, and after making some expression of the respect which Elder Thurman's conduct had excited in him, asked the Elder concerning his future plans.

"I have none," said he, "my course is run."

Reporter—"Won't you continue the publication of your paper?

Thurman (slowly and mournfully)—There is nothing to publish it for; my work is done. I do not know what I shall do; where I shall go. It was the harmony of those dates that convinced me that Jesus was the Christ, and now I do not know what to believe. . . .

The scenes attendant upon the break-up of the meeting baffle description. With the tears rolling down their cheeks, they sang the hymn:

"Jesus, I my cross have taken,
All to leave and follow thee,
Naked, poor, despised, forsaken,
Thou, from hence, my all shalt be."

Some tried to cheer the more broken spirited by suggesting the various possibilities of the prophetic dates extending for some time longer. Foyen, whose joy and happiness in anticipation had been boundless, stood up and said, in a voice broken with sobs:

"It is no use! It is no use! We are either disappointed or we are not disappointed; and if we are not disappointed, then we did expect Jesus with faith. Nothing but Jesus can cheer our hearts to-night. My heart is broken. I never expect to see my home again, or do another stroke of work. I feel bitterly disappointed. [The tears poured down his cheeks, and his grief seemed to be intolerably great.] This is the feeling of my heart. Nothing can satisfy me but the coming of Jesus. I don't know what I shall do if Jesus don't come. Lord, help me! I hate to go to my home again.

They wept and fell on one another's necks. Many of them did not know where to go or what to do, as they had relinquished their lodgings, and given away their furniture and everything. In the extremity of their distress, their affections still clung to Thurman. The men all came to him and gave him the kiss of peace, according to their fashion. One of them pressed him to come and stay with him. Thurman said, sadly: "I don't feel like seeing anybody now. I wish I could sink into my grave." The women gathered around him, and he shook hands with them, for Thurman varies from ministerial usage by never kissing the women, reserving that entirely for the men. A number of people had to remain where they were. Others went to the houses of those who were fortunate enough to retain houses. One man named Miller, who had disposed of over $6,000 of property, asked permission of a brother to sleep on his floor that night. An old, white-haired woman said that she had a place to go to-night, but what she should do next God only knew. The children were crying, babies squalling, and women wringing their hands in anguish, as at about half-past one the assembly dispersed, pursuing their melancholy way to such quarters as they could go to. Thurman accompanied Foyen to his house on the corner of Clark and Wisconsin streets, but what his movements in the future will be he does not know.

WHAT IS NEEDED.

G. L. TRACY.

What is needed among the prof ssed christians is more spirituality, and less formality. In times when people are so careless about their eternal welfare, and think there is no danger, and say there is time enough yet, we that are set as watchmen upon the walls of Zion, and seeing the critical position they are in, must show to them that we are alarmed about them. How shall we convince them? I answer, by our earnest appeals and constant entreaties for them to be reconciled to Christ. By placing ourselves in a position that will tend to lead the sinner to repentance, by showing them that we love them more than their money, by preaching a doctrine that honors God and the Bible, by preaching Christ and him crucified, and through him the only way to obtain salvation.

May the Lord help you and me, dear brethren and sisters, to be also ready, that when the Master comes, we shall hear him say, "Well done."

DEATH IN THE SPARE BED.

On one occasion, having need to see a minister early in the morning after Conference adjourned, I went to his boarding place, one of the choicest in the city. He and his room-mate were making their toilet, and revealed their presence by hoarse and almost incessant coughing. Their entertainment had been most hospitable; but they had been assigned to the "spare room," in that case an elegant apartment, reserved for favored guests. The spacions and yielding bed had an inviting look, but a damp and moldly smell. Indeed, the whole apartment revealed an alarming unfamiliarity with sunshine. But it was the "best room," and any intimation from them that both room and bed were damp had seemed rude and ungrateful. So they occupied the room and bed, and contracted colds, from the effects of which one has since died, and the other still suffers.

Said a pale and haggard sufferer not long since, "I think I should be able to visit my appointments at least a few times more, if the friends would not persist in putting me away in their chilly spare rooms and damp beds." When such cases have run their course, doctors may say, "Died of hepatized lungs;" but more will understand them if they say, "Died of sleeping in spare beds."

The motives of the good people cannot be questioned; but unwittingly they literally "kill with kindness." In the name of the brotherhood, I protest, if we are to occupy the "spare room," and sleep in the "spare bed," they should be dry and well aired. We certainly do not elect to be suicides for courtesy, and you would not give us death for a bed-fellow.—Western Advocate.

"I LEFT HER TO GOD."

In West Africa a society in England has a school for native children. One day in that school a little girl struck her school mate. The teacher found it out, and asked the child who was struck:

"Did you strike her back again?"

"No, ma'am;" said the child.

"What did you do?" asked the teacher.

"I left her to God," said she.

A beautiful and most efficient way to settle all difficulties, and prevent all fights among children and among men. We shall never be struck by others when they know that we shall not return the blow, but "leave them to God." Then whatever our enemies do or threaten to do to us, let us leave them to him, praying that he will forgive them and make them our friends.

WHAT A TRIFLE MAY HIDE.—The little boy held the sixpence near his eye, and said, "O mother, it is bigger than the room!" and when he drew it still nearer he exclaimed, "O mother, it is bigger than all out-doors!" And in just that way the worldling hides God, and Christ, and judgment, and eternity from view, behind some paltry pleasure, some trifling joy, or some small possession which shall perish with the using, and pass away, with all earth's lusts and glory, in the approaching day of God Almighty.

MEDICAL JUDGMENT.—The White Mountain Medical Society, composed of physicians in Northern New Hampshire and Northeastern Vermont, recently resolved that they did not think it advisable to make use of tobacco, "regarding it as a poison which has no place in the human economy," and pledged themselves to induce as many as they could to abstain from its use.

"NEARING HOME."

M. A. NICHOLAS.

"Nearing home!" how sweet the message
Falls upon the christian's ear;
How the weary heart rejoices,
As "redemption draweth near."

"Nearing home!" yes, we are nearing
Eden's ever blooming shore,
Where the weary, storm-tossed pilgrim
Soon shall rest, forevermore.

Nearing fast the golden city,
And the beauteous crystal sea;
Nearing too the gushing fountain,
And the fruit of life's fair tree.

Yes! the land is surely nearing,
Home is almost reached at last;
Let us then be nothing fearing,
Soon our sorrows will be past.

Earthly friends may try to charm us,
Gold may glitter in our sight;
But a fairer world's before us,
In God's everlasting light.

Oh! I love the coming kingdom,
And the King that soon will reign;
And I wish to be a subject,
In a country free from pain.

Day by day my path grows brighter,
Glory beams almost in sight;
My poor heart grows each day lighter,
As I near the portal bright.

Thanks to thee, oh loving Savior,
For the peace that reigns within;
Keep, oh keep me by thy favor,
Pure and spotless, free from sin.

THE MARRIAGE OF THE LAMB.

J. R. SMITH.

The church in all ages has been compared to a wife, or bride. She has been espoused to one husband, and is to be presented "as a chaste virgin to Christ," "at his appearing and his kingdom." In the marriage of Adam and Eve, as in every other earthly union which is approved of God, there were reciprocal promises and obligations assumed. They were briefly these:—love, which was to be mutual; protection was to be rendered by the husband to the wife, and obedience and fidelity, in return, was to be given by the wife to her husband. There was no protracted courtship here. There were no previous engagements to cancel, and no separate interests to guard. The preliminaries were soon adjusted, and the marriage was speedily consummated. Angels gathered around their bridal bower; and, I fancy, their greetings and congratulations floated sweetly on the balmy breezes of paradise. As Eve owed obedience to her husband, so the church owes obedience to Christ. "The married woman careth how she may please her husband," and if she truly loves him, she will delight to regard his wishes, cooperate in his plans, and yield implicit obedience. Should he be long absent, her great delight will be to so comport herself that at his coming she may be approved by the one she loves. Such a woman is a source of joy and commendation. "Her price is far above rubies. The heart of her husband doth safely trust in her. . . . She will do him good, and not evil, all the days of his life. . . Her children rise up and call her blessed; her husband also, and he praiseth her."

Is not this a true type of the loving, constant obedience which the church owes to Christ? "If ye love me," says Christ to his affianced bride, "keep my commandments." "Obedience is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams." They who humbly pursue the path of obedience, though the world may not know or honor them, shall at last be brought forth amid the joys of the redeemed "at the resurrection of the just," and be rewarded with everlasting life; while many who have not demonstrated their faith by their works shall stand without, "not having on the wedding garment," and saying, "Lord, Lord, open unto us"; but they will find no admission to the bridal feast, and will be remanded to the master they have served and the doom they have coveted. Arise, and trim your lamps, O slumbering virgins, for "behold, the Bridegroom cometh."

Marriage is a pure and holy offering, and gives to the willing and obedient a paradise of joy; but to the unlovely and disobedient, the sensual and the false, this paradise is transformed into a desert place, upon which grows no green thing. To the one, it is a Pharos, which lends its cheerful light of joy and hope and love over the waters of life's stormy sea; to the other, it is the lava stream which rolls down the mountain side, scathing, desolating and consuming every living thing. To one, the springing of Hymen's bolts is like the smiting of the rock by Moses in the wilderness, which sent the glad waters laughing and leaping into the Israelitish camp, changing their sadness to joy, and their murmuring to shouts of glad hosannas.

The first marriage was formed in heaven, and when consummated on earth, all were pleased and happy. The happy bride was escorted through all the apartments of her new earth-home, and made acquainted with all her partner knew of their beautiful garden. They paused before the tree of knowledge of good and evil in solemn thoughtfulness, near which spread the luxuriant branches of the tree of life, and thought of the command of God which invested that single tree with such fearful interest. It pointed as with an index finger to the skies, reminding them of the holiness and supreme authority of the infinite Lawgiver. There it stood in the midst of thousands, invested with solitude and sublimity—a test of loyalty, and a beacon of warning. Silently they gazed, and bowed, and prayed for strength; and there erected a family altar to the Lord. Beautiful scene! The angels stooped lovingly over them, and aside the devil turned for envy.

So time passed on, with no chronometer but the joy of holy affection, with no dial but the shadow of evening that brought no gloom, and the dawn of morning that revealed additional splendor of the glorious Giver, and ushered in new notes of praise to cheer them in their new-earth home. This was indeed a happy home; it was lovely beyond all comparison,—a home where no jarring note of discord had ever entered; and God called it "very good." But this is but a type of the bride's future home in paradise restored; and, if possible, it will be even more glorious. When the coming Bridegroom shall lead the footsteps of the elect bride into green pastures, and beside the still waters of her fair Eden home, and along the golden streets of that fair City, where no sickness, pain or death shall ever enter, she wlll be superlatively happy. Blessed home! the home of the angels and of God. Beautiful home! A home where no clouds shall ever enter, and where the sun shall never set. A home that shall ever be luminous with the glory of God and the Lamb; and the nations of the saved shall walk in the light of it; whose gates of pearl shall never close against the bride of the Lamb. It will be a perfect union, which shall be followed by no alienation, no divorce, no death; and when the marriage takes place, the wedding guests will all be there. A part are quietly sleeping beneath the clods of the valley, but they will be all ready for the marriage when the Bridegroom shall appear. God's dead men shall live. Those who now dwell in dust must awake before the marriage of the Lamb can take place; for the wedding guests must all be there to participate in the marriage festivities.

The great bridal day of the marriage of the Lamb will soon be ushered in. The parties are engaged, their wedding robes are all ready, and the bridal feast is being prepared. The guests are all invited, and they will soon come, crowding joyfully to the banqueting hall of the King of kings. "The second Adam," who is the Lord from heaven, will soon appear in the clouds of glory, escorted by an innumerable company of angels. He shall speak the life-giving word, and every old turfy grave-yard shall throb with the pulsations of returning vitality; and every valley shall teem with the sleeping millions that Ezekiel saw in prophetic visions of Chebar. The Bridegroom "shall descend from heaven with a shout," and the slumbering bride shall hear his voice, and shall start from the sleep of centuries. Their bones shall come together once more, and sinews and flesh shall cover them. God will breathe the breath of life into them again. They will stand upon their feet, and they shall live. Every bone will seek its fellow bone, and every particle of dust will find its place in the living temple. As from an uncouth bone there came forth a beautiful bride for the first Adam; so from the solitude and unsightliness of the grave, a renewed and glorious bride shall come forth for the Son of God. Then from angelic choirs shall be heard the voice of gladness, singing—

"See truth, love and mercy in triumph descending,
And nature all glowing in Eden's first bloom;
In the cold cheek of death, smiles and roses are blending,
And beauty immortal awakes from the tomb."

JEREMIAH 31: 31.

J. P. MARQUAND.

"Behold the days come, saith the Lord, that I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel," etc.

The theme upon which I am now about to write is the "new covenant." We have something about a covenant made with Abraham, but that was land more particularly; and a covenant with David, and that was about rulership; but the covenant spoken of by Jeremiah was in relation to a more intimate knowledge of God, and of the doctrine of salvation from sin. It says, they shall all "know the Lord," "and their sins and iniquities will I remember no more."

Jeremiah was a prophet under and during the old covenant (or law dispensation); but now we turn to the eighth chapter of Hebrews, and there see what Paul the apostle says about the "new covenant." He repeats over the words of Jeremiah, and further says the old covenant was done away when Christ came, and the new covenant put in force; and it was established on "better promises." In the ninth chapter of Hebrews, he says Jesus Christ was "the mediator of the new covenant." Here we have two witnesses on this subject; the one was a prophet, the other an apostle, and they both agree; and out of "the mouth of two or three witnesses every word may be established." I wish my dear brethren would examine the Bible particularly on this "new covenant," and ascertain its beginning, location, blessings, privileges, provisions and emoluments; and I venture to say they will be surprised and gratified to learn that it is in force at the present time, and was set up during the first century, and the principal agent to work was the Holy Spirit, as sent down by God, the Father, through the mediation and intercession of the Lord Jesus Christ.

The old covenant could not make "the comers thereunto perfect." What is the new covenant? God said to Abraham, I will make an everlasting covenant with you, "and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed." The same covenant was given to David, called "the sure mercies of David." Then Ezekiel says, "Then will I sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean; from all your filthiness, and from all your idols will I cleanse you." Then Jeremiah, in our text, talks of the same thing, saying, I will write my laws in their hearts and in their minds, and they shall be my people, and their sins shall be blotted out. We read about "the blood of the everlasting covenant"; and then Paul says—"Having therefore these promises, dearly beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God." John says—"The blood of Jesus Christ . . . cleanseth us from all sin." "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." Daniel says—"Many shall be purified, and made white, and tried." In the Revelation we read—"These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb."

All these blessings of a pure heart, a clear conscience, and love unfeigned, come from the new covenant, and are part and parcel of it. So also is the kingdom, about to be established by God himself. Isaiah says—"Behold, I create new heavens and a new earth"; and then John the apostle sees in vision the new heavens and the new earth, and God dwelling with men; all tears wiped away, and the everlasting song begun, Not unto us, but to Him who hath washed us in his own precious blood.

WHY I LOVE HIS APPEARING.

BY E. P. M.

How strange and unscriptural the prejudice and aversion which some of the Lord's dear people feel toward the theme of his second appearing. Paul in his old age, writing his last letter before martyrdom, recounts his good fight of faith, and looks forward with rapt anticipation to the crown of righteousness awaiting him when the King comes into his kingdom, and awaiting "all them also who love his appearing."

I love his appearing because we shall have a perfect model government when he comes. When our King comes, the kingdom for which we daily pray will come—a real monarchy, according to the analogy of the four preceding kingdoms of Daniel—an absolute monarchy, with an all-good, all-wise, and almighty sovereign at its head; a kingdom of peace and righteousness, and one that cannot be moved. When we look out upon Satan's empire of evil and decay; when we see the history of the nations written in blood; when we consider that men's sway has failed to attain the good we seek, and left creation groaning and travailing in pain, why should we not love his appearing, and the manifestation of the sons of God?

I love his appearing because when he comes I shall get a full reward for all my services here. "Occupy till I come," is the command. "Behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me," is the glorious promise. When he is manifested, we shall have a family gathering, reckoning, and reward. In "the regeneration" we shall be crowned with the dignity of kings, and endued with the purity of priests.

I love his appearing because when he appears I shall be like him—a perfected and glorified likeness of him who is "fairer than the children of men, and altogether lovely." I shall have a body "fashioned like unto his glorious body." A painless and an instantaneous thrill of immortality will render this vile body incorruptible, independent of animal functions, incapable of weariness or pain; and unfettered by the laws of grosser matter. It will be animated, controlled, transported, or rendered miserable, entirely at the will of the indwelling Spirit, and clothed with the beauty and bloom of endless youth. My freed and purified spirit shall enter into the experience of the Savior's beatitude—"Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."

I love his appearing because I love all those who will appear with him. That glorious resurrection chapter in Corinthians treats only of the first resurrection, the resurrection of the saints. The angels of light, who now watch over my waking and my sleeping hours, will then appear. I shall meet the patriarchs and prophets, the apostles and martyrs. I shall then greet the saints of all ages with transports of delight. I shall meet loved kindred, torn from my embrace by the ruthless hand of death.

"Our loved ones before, Lord,
Their troubles are o'er, Lord,
I'll meet them once more
At thy coming again.
The blood was the sign, Lord,
That marked them as thine, Lord,
At thy coming again."

I love his appearing because I love him who is to appear. The quintescence of our religion is love, and that love concentrates in the matchless person who has "loved us and given himself for us." His greatest consolation for his disciples at his departure was ministered in the sweet promise, "I will come again and receive you to myself." We naturally desire to have the object of our supreme affections near us. Written communications and mementoes are indeed dear, but only when we cannot enjoy his manifested presence. The word and seals of Jesus' love, conveyed to our hearts by the Holy Spirit, are now inexpressibly dear, but only "until he come"; and we cannot please our absent Bridegroom better than to refuse to be satisfied with these things, except in the constant hope and prospect of his appearing.

Yes, I confess that, with Paul, I love his appearing. Enoch and David, Abraham and Lot, Peter and John—all the glorious throng of inspired worthies, loved his appearing, and prophesied or sang of it with rapt emotion. O yes, there is reason enough why we should love his appearing, and daily pray with increasing faith and hope, "Thy kingdom come." I dare not say how near this glorious consummation is, nor dare I say how far off. If the primitive saints had some reason to expect it in their day, how much more have we. I know that it is nearer every day. When I read the crowning promise of Jesus, "Behold I come quickly," and study the signs of the times in the light of prophecy, I find strong reasons for believing the many who read these lines will never taste death, but be thrilled into immortality. Let us watch unceasingly, and wait patiently. Let us be

"Ever as the dear Lord will;
He knoweth best."

HOLINESS TO THE LORD.

F. P. DINGLEY.

Talk it, pray it, sing it, write it, preach it, possess it, keep it. It is a Bible doctrine. God is holy. Christ is holy. Some angels are holy, and some angels are unholy. Those that are unholy are reserved in everlasting chains under darkness, unto the judgment of the great day. "The wicked is reserved unto the day of destruction; they shall be brought to the day of wrath." Paul says:—"Forasmuch then as the children are partakers of flesh and blood, he (Jesus) also himself likewise took part of the same; that through death he might destroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil." Again Paul says:—"And the God of peace shall bruise Satan under your feet shortly."

This bruising of Satan, I understand, will be at the same time in which everything that is unholy will be cast into the lake, which burneth with fire and brimstone, which will result in death; "for the wages of sin is death." "Sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death." When this is done, the earth will be fitted up for the everlasting abode of the holy ones; then every creature that is in heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, will be heard saying, "Blessing, and honor, and glory, and power be unto him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb forever and ever." The Lord's will will then be done on the earth as it is now in heaven. The earth will be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the Lord as the waters cover the sea. Everything will be in perfect harmony with the will of God. Nothing but holiness will then exist on God's footstool.

How true the saying of one good brother:—"When we get into the kingdom holiness will be written on everything." No Satan will be there. No sin; not one bad person. Jesus will be there. Blessed thought! Angels will be visible there. The good of every age will be there. Heavenly company, pleasant and cheerful! They will every one be righteous. Everything will be done in righteousness—with a heart single to God's glory. Nature's laws will then be held sacred; and none will ever have occasion to say, "I am sick." Simple and wholesome will the food of that world be. Most delicious fruits will be caused to abonnd there. I most sincerely believe that the inhabitants of that world will partake of food. They will have bodies like Christ's most glorious body. He ate after he arose from the dead. Pure air will there be to cheer. Pure water—the river of water of life clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb. "There is a river the streams whereof shall make glad the city of God, the holy place of the tabernacles of the Most High."

The light of the city—the glory of the Lamb. It will be so bright that the sun, although seven-fold brighter than now, will be of no use, the same as the moon is now in the day-time—will be confounded. "Great is the Lord, and greatly to be praised in the city of our God, in the mountain of his holiness. Beautiful for situation, the joy of the whole earth, is mount Zion, on the sides of the north, the city of the great King." "Out of Zion, perfection of beauty, God hath shined." The same eye that saw in this world an end of all perfection, will see in that world an end of all imperfection. Everything will be complete and so full of attractions that our life here in this world will not once be remembered, nor come into mind. Nothing will there ever be to mar the happiness of any individual.

Or shade their perfect bliss."

"Behold, the tabernacle of God" will be "with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God. And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain; for the former things are passed away." "And the ransomed of the Lord shall return, and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads; they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away." "As the days of a tree"—taking away everything that retards growth, and all that causes decay—"are the days of my people, and mine elect shall long enjoy the work of their hands." "The righteous shall inherit the land, and dwell therein forever." "For yet a little while, and the wicked shall not be; yea, thou shalt diligently consider his place, and it shall not be. But the meek shall inherit the earth"—after the wicked are cut off—"and shall delight themselves in the abundance of peace." Life here in the earth now with all its imperfections is sweet to us; but how much sweeter it will be to live then! O, it will be blessed!

The thoughts of obtaining life in that world is blessed; but how much more blessed, more glorious, it will be to really obtain it! Jesus gave himself and every thing that he had to purchase that life and possession for us. Would it be any more than reasonable for us to give him ourselves, and all that we have to gain an inheritance there?

JESUS.

G. E. MERRILL.

How precious the name of Jesus sounds to every believing heart! He is the chief among ten thousand, and the one altogether lovely. He is all we need. Every want is met in Christ. Are we sinners, poor and needy? Jesus ready stands to save. He is the great physician. In him a remedy is found; a cure for all ills. Repent, believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved. Yes, true belief and true repentance will not fail to bring the promised blessing—a pardon of all sin. We read of Christ, "And thou shalt call his name Jesus, for he shall save his people from their sins." "Neither is there salvation in any other; for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved." He is the way by which we become reconciled to God. He is our Advocate, our Savior, our purifier. He is our pattern, our guide, and all we want. What a Savior!

Trials, troubles, and afflictions are the lot of all. None are exempt from them. But when we are tried, tempted, or afflicted, how blessed to look away to Jesus, remembering that he had the same, and he knows that we are dust, and sympathizes with us; and if we will trust him, he will support and bring us through them all. I know it is a very easy thing to trust the Lord when our circumstances are favorable, our surroundings pleasing; but not so easy when our circumstances are unfavorable, and our surroundings not pleasing. Our privilege is to trust God. "My grace," says Jesus, "is sufficient for thee."

By the grace and favor of Jesus, we can overcome all the difficulties of this mortal life. The grace of Jesus is sufficient to subdue every corruption, to banish every doubt, perform every duty, and to endure with patience every affliction. O, how good to trust a Savior like this! He never leaves nor forsakes his people. "He sticketh closer than a brother." He is with us when we feel ill, as well as when we feel well; when we are tired and tempted, as much as when we are free from them. He has promised to be with us to the end of the world. Are we sorrowful? He was a man of sorrow and acquainted with grief. Are we buffeted by the enemy? So was Christ. Do we walk poverty's vale? So did the blessed Jesus. "The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests, but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head." Once he was rich, but for our "sakes he became poor, that we "through his poverty might become rich."

If we are called to die, remember that he died, but now lives forever more, and has power to unlock the graves and bid the sleepers rise. He is the resurrection. He is the way, the truth, the life, the door. Faith is the latch that lets us in through the door into the everlasting kingdom of our God. What a being! Words fail to tell how good, how lovely, how glorious, and how precious this dear Savior is to me at all times.

"I honor him as being the chief
Among ten thousand millions told;
His promises afford relief,
His mercies cheer me more than gold."

Let all praise God for providing such a Savior and friend. Although we have not seen, yet we love him. We expect ere long to see him and be made like him. Yes, the time is drawing nigh when we can lay our burdens down, and enter into everlasting rest. Blessed hope! Sinner, will you with me trust in Jesus? Will you stand saved by grace alone? Then in Canaan's fair and happy land, we'll sing the song of Moses and the Lamb forever and ever. Amen.

22 Grove St., Worcester, Mass.

THE SECOND COMING OF CHRIST AS IT AFFECTS THE SAVED AND THE UNSAVED.

To call attention to the prophetic word is to call attention to the eternal purposes of God. It is tracing some part of the stream of his predestination in its course onward to the ocean of his eternal glory. . . . And happily, this looking into the future is not now treated as it was in Bengel's days, alike when it was "a subject proscribed by the world, by the learned, and by the godly."

Many have already taken in hand to show, at some length, the blessings that shall be brought to us by the second coming of the Lord. On this account we refrain from handling that topic directly, and mean to confine our remarks here to the use that ought to be made of this truth (irrespective of the element of time) in dealing with the souls of men.

"The fact of the Lord's coming again is fitted to awaken souls." It sounds an alarm in the ear of sinners. It causes us to hear the sound of coming footsteps, "the steps of the anointed One."

It ought to be used in preaching the glad tidings. Paul so used it. He pointed to the flaming sword that shall wave over earth at the Lord's return, as an argument fitted to show the folly of remaining an enemy of God: "The Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven in flaming fire, taking vengeance on those that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ." 2 Thess. 1: 8.

It ought to be used as the very blast of the trumpet which may startle those whose vain hope is, that mercy in God hath extinguished his eternal wrath against sin. Christ's second coming, "the day of the wrath of the Lamb," is as much a proof of the Lord's holy determination to punish the unpardoned as his first coming, when he came as the Lamb for the slaughter, proved his determination to save his own. "Upon the wicked he shall reign snares; fire and brimstone, and a horrible tempest; this shall be the portion of their cup. For the righteous Lord loveth righteousness." Psalm 11: 6, 7.

It ought to be used in dealing with all classes of men, wise or unlearned; for it is fitted to draw the circle round them, and compel them to an immediate decision, as in the presence of the descending Judge. Paul used it thus at Athens. His text was, "The unknown God;" and as he handled the theme with holy eloquence, he thundered through the heart of the Areopagites, "God commandeth all men, everywhere, to repent!" The cry, "Repent, repent!" rang over Athens, re-echoed by its hills, while Paul demanded from them submission to his God, proclaiming, "Because he hath appointed a day, in the which he will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom he hath ordained." Acts 17: 30, 31.

"But perhaps it is yet far off?" Suppose it were not near, as men reckon nearness (and yet it is equally possible that the eyes which read these pages may see the Son of man in the clouds ere they have been closed in death), still the fact remains. The day of the Lord shall come. The apostle speaks of its arrival as "Yet a little while" (Heb. 10: 37), reckoning eighteen hundred years as a mere handbreadth compared with eternal ages. And Isaiah's view is yet more impressive; for, speaking of an event which is future, even yet, he says of it, "Is it not yet a very little while?" Isa. 29: 17. He speaks of a space that is at least 2500 years, as "a very little while," when set side by side with eternity. . . .

"Knowing," then, "the terror of the Lord" (2 Cor. 5: 11), we seek to bring our brethren to the safe chamber (Josh. 2: 18), where the scarlet line hangs out. That same Jesus is now held forth as "the man that is the hiding place," Isaiah 32: 2. The man that shall judge, is the man that is the Savior. Receive him and all that is in him. He himself cries, "Come, my people, enter thou into thy chambers, and shut thy doors about thee: hide thyself as it were for a little moment, until the indignation be overpast. For, behold, the Lord cometh out of his place to punish the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity: the earth also shall disclose her blood, and shall no more cover her slain."—Rev. Andrew A. Bonar, D. D.

CENSORIOUSNESS.

The last enemy destroyed in sanctified life is censoriousness; and if a partial relapse at any time occur, from a holy state, the first evidence of such decline will be a disposition to find fault; to accuse and criticise unkindly. The reason of our extreme liability and weakness at this point, is the fact that censoriousness is not an unmixed vice; but an excess of a virtue. It is opposition to wrong overstepping the boundaries of merciful consideration; a healthy and clarifying fermentation turning to acid and vinegar; hatred of sin resolving itself into hatred of the sinner; a zeal for God becoming so express and humanly intense, as to subserve the interests of Satan. A discovery of the doubtful nature of such judicial and condemnatory righteousness, has led to the extenuation of severity, and even anger in many cases, by characterizing it as holy indignation. And it must be acknowledged, there is such a grace as sanctified aversion, and when this is provoked by external causes, it becomes a difficult and delicate question to determine how far it should be allowed to go.

The christian must hate all sin, and every false way. And in doing this he must give place in some degree to the passion of anger, the feeling of resentment, the air of abhorrence, and the speech of denunciation; and yet he must not sin. This will create a necessity, for nice limitations which will call into requisition great wisdom and watchfulness. In most cases, however, where indignation, or a feeling of revulsion, is allowed to direct itself against a brother, it is quite apt to take the form of ill-temper, producing a spirit of censoriousness, and sometimes of detraction.

It is so easy and natural to complain; so entirely agreeable to our crooked, infirm and perverted constitution to detect flaws in character, to find and point out broken threads in the web of a brother's conduct, that we often censure even innocence itself, under a high but delusive sense of fidelity and pre-eminent conscientiousness. Conceit is one of the infirmities that sanctifying grace does not entirely cure. And this debility is prone to reveal itself in a disposition to usurp and exercise God's prerogative of judgment. They do not entertain a thought of robbing the Supreme, but for holy purposes they would like to be the vicegerent of God, the vicar of Christ.

Knowing this tendency in human nature, and the great danger of its indulgence, Christ has taken the right of this kind of judgment wholly out of human hands. Accordingly it is written: "Judge not that ye be not judged, for with what judgment ye judge ye shall be judged; and with what measure ye mete it shall be measured to you again. And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye? or how wilt thou say to thy brother, Let me pull out the mote out of thine eye and behold a beam is in thine own eye?"—Matt. 7: 10. We do not presume our blessed Lord intended in this passage to teach his disciples to extenuate sin; nor did he propose to rub out all distinction between merit and demerit. But we do think the Savior designed to caution us against assuming pre-eminence in religion, and making that pre-eminence to consist in picking somebody else to pieces.

To form a sober and charitable judgment, is the province of one christian in relation to another; for Christ has made each disciple a subject of criticism by another. "By their fruits ye shall know them." But this is a very different thing from cruel judging and wanton censoriousness. To inspect the life fruit of a professing christian, is to apply the test of the gospel standard to conduct; while censoriousness is aggravating captiousness, cynical sourness, invidious reproach and crimination. It is often the disparagement of others for the purpose of self-exaltation. It is making a factitious standard, and then condemning all who do not measure up to it according to our ideas of integrity and perfection. This spirit has sometimes manifested itself in withdrawing fellowship, appreciation and encouragement from those christians and ministers who do not profess entire sanctification. Such exclusiveness and withdrawal of confidence and co-operation, have often brought the witness of full salvation into unfavorable comparison with christians of less pretensions, and in some localities, done the cause of holiness itself great injury.

However defective the pastor may be, he has a right to expect a firm support and cordial greeting from the sanctified members of his congregation. He has no ground to expect that they will apologize for sin, or implicate and shade their character, by a compromise with error, or personal, or social wrongs; but he has authority to claim sweetness of disposition towards him, and the greatest extenuation of his faults that can be safely practiced without infidelity to the divine Master. Nor will it do for sanctified persons to take the position that an unsanctified man or minister is entirely incompetent to teach them. The efficacy of truth is not held in abeyance by the moral conditon of the preacher. The gospel often saves by its own intrinsic virtue and power. It has no more dependence or connection with the mouth that utters, than the crystal water has with the rough and crooked channel through which it flows. It is the water that slakes the thirst, not the shape or transparency of the goblet in which it is sent to you. Besides, justified men, though not sanctified wholly, have a very deep insight into the things of God. Theoretically, they may preach holiness with great perspicuity and power. The very fact of their justification, which we have assumed they enjoy, necessitates the experience of purity in a degree. There is no evangelical religion at all without some measure of subjective purity. The danger is that many men and ministers have forfeited their justification by not cleansing themselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God, according to the increasing light divinely bestowed. If they have not, they must be largely sanctified. Hence there may be a reciprocal benefit resulting from the fellowship of the sanctified with them. If they occupy a lower level, it is the privilege and duty of those who have been lifted by the grace of God to higher altitudes, not to upbraid, but to admonish in love, and lure them onward and upward to the same sunny and restful heights.—Christian Standard.

SHAKE OFF THE VIPER.

In the last chapter of acts, we read that Paul had been shipwrecked on the island of Melita. The people gathered sticks to make a fire. I suppose his clothes were all wet, and he was cold. There came out a viper and fastened itself upon Paul's arm and these barbarians said, "That is a bad man; he has escaped the judgments of the sea, but they have followed him to the land;" and they watched to see him die. But Paul just shook the viper off into the fire, and when he ought to have died, he was perfectly well. Then they changed their mind, and they said, "He is a god." Paul could preach to them then; they would believe him then. What good would it have been for him to preach with that viper on his arm? They would have said, "You had better preach to yourself, you need not come preaching to us with that viper on your arm." So there are a great many christians with a viper, not on their arm, but fastened at their heart, taking the very life out of them. And the world has got its eyes on the viper. May God give us grace to shake the viper off into the fire, that the world may not see the viper, but may see Christ in us.

Look at the viper of pride, that has taken nearly all the life right out of the church. You do not have to go to Paris to see the height of the fashion; go to the church on the Sabbath, and you will see it there. People say, "What will my friends think; what will they say at the next dinner-party, if I come out boldly and work for Christ, or if I am seen at the special meetings?" A great many professed men of God are just now trembling from head to foot; they dare not go out and speak boldly for Christ. My friends, the question is, Is this God's work or the devil's? If it is God's work, every man of God ought to stand by it; if it is the devil's, every man ought to do what he can to stop it. I hope the time is coming when the children of God will come together as one man; it will be a happy day for Christianity when we get together. These border men are doing more to retard the cause of Christ than the world is doing. It is this compromising spirit that is hindering the work of the Lord. May God sweep it out of the way! "Amen, amen."—D. L. Moody.

FANATICISM.

Fanaticism is an excited state of mind, "enthusiasm, superstition, frenzy." (Webster). It is an excitement produced by an idea of inspiration—"a conceit of divine possession, and revelation;" as if possessed of "superhuman power." It "is founded neither on reason nor divine revelation, but rises from the conceits of a warmed or overweening imagination." (Locke).

Persons who are inclined to depend more upon emotions than upon reason and intelligence for their faith and hope, are, under some circumstances, very liable to become fanatical. This class is always in danger when seasons of religious excitement occur; —times when there is a strong current of religious feeling; when grave and important subjects are being discussed, which tend to produce deep emotions, and call for decided conclusions. Under such circumstances those who decide according to reason and critical arguments, are most safe; while those who decide more according to their impressions taken for inspiration are in the greatest danger of fanaticism.

At the transition periods of divine administration, when a marked advanced step in religious experience is required, and a disannulling of former rules of service is demanded, and a new position occupied, this danger is greatly increased, and that class prominently developed.

Humanity is always subject to extremes, especially in spiritual matters. When the current of ritualism is strong, the multitudes are swept over into a belief that conventionalism and a rigid abhorrence to certain ordained rules of service is all that is necessary for salvation. This is worldly, pompous fanaticism. On the other hand, when there are strong currents running against ritualism, in favor of spiritual, heartfelt devotion, there is great danger, as we begin to see the evils of unscriptural rules and ceremonies, and to discard them, of not only throwing away those of human origin, but, with them, those of divine authority also. Such movements generally develop a class who contend for the semi-idiotic idea that to be free in religious matters, each one must be independent of all rules of association, subject to no official authority; each one an autocrat; to do just as he pleases.

This lawless principle is just as applicable to the State as to the church, and is predicted as being fearfully manifested in the last days, when many will "despise government." This is "self-willed," "presumptuous" fanaticism, which is "not afraid to speak of dignities"—the divinely authorized rulers of State and church.

When special seasons of unfolding revealed truth come, there is generally created such a desire to discover something new and marvelously wonderful, that many are liable to get the idea that all the fathers believed was erroneous, and that it is their special duty to find something, by some mode of interpretation, to take the place of what they embraced as truth. This current is always liable to produce a great variety of wild, unreasonable, unscriptural sentiments, which always tend to factious movements, and a disentegration of society.

We think we have come to one of those periods, when all these principles and circumstances are concentrated, and are producing mighty currents in the social world, causing greater confusion than was anciently heard in the land of Sinai.

These movements are very threatening to the safety of Christ's church, and demand the special watch-care of his servants. We know, from the teachings of the Bible, and every typical and parallel case given, that, as the church approaches the end, the perils of fanaticism will increase. God's servants will lose much of their power to guide the church, because the devil will succeed in destroying much of their influence over those to whom they are sent as guides. A spirit and influence to disregard and despise the teachings of the faithful and wise servants of Christ will increase as the end approaches, because they will conscientiously esteem it duty to warn people against fanatical ideas and movements; thus alienating those who persist in their fancied superiority of knowledge and devotion.

We warn all to be exceedingly careful, for these are strange times, and perilous to all. Be very careful of new and strange theological ideas, or any influence producing extraordinary movements, which can be explained only by reference to some fancied inspiration. Do not be frightened into submission to such influences, when your sober second thought does not convince you that it is in harmony with the word, by by threats of damnation if you reject it. Be firm, but kind. Be teachable, but not fanatical. Be free, but not lawless. Be spiritual minded, but not an enthusiast. Make Jesus your pattern, the Bible your rule, the kingdom of God your object of pursuit, and everlasting life your eternal reward.

WHAT IS NEEDED.

At the present time there is a lack of earnest men, filled with the spirit of holiness. There are men who are strong in the defense of Bible doctrine, who fear not to encounter the enemy with a boldness worthy of a true christian soldier, but there is a lack of the holy zeal of other days. Formalism is creeping in, and the warm, sympathetic fervor, once manifested is departing. While firm in theory, there is a lack in devotion. As a result, there is less interest for the salvation of the unconverted, and the restoration of the backslidden. This causes a general declension in religious matters; prayer-meetings are neglected, and lack fervor suitable to make them interesting. That this is a fair, and moderate statement of the case, will not, as we think, be denied.

The question naturally arises, Is there a remedy? if so, what is it? We know of but one positive, sure way of being delivered from the bondage of indifference, and that is by the quickening, transforming power of the Holy Spirit. This point, of course, will be readily admitted. But, it may be said, man does not control the working of the Spirit. Very true, but by his own will power, he can put himself, if he pleases, in a position to receive the Holy Spirit, or he may grieve it away, and be left without its aid. One thing is certain, christianity without the Spirit is dead, like a man without the breath of life. The Holy Spirit is its vital force; hence all the genuine quickening power must originate from the Lord through the Spirit.

The next question that arises is, what shall be done to secure the Spirit? That the Lord is most willing to give it, is very positively expressed in the Scriptures. Then why is there such a lack of its effects? There is but one answer;—men refuse to submit fully to Christ, so that he can lead and guide them, dwelling in them by the power of the Spirit. So long as an individual continues to do what he knows is wrong, or refuses to confess and forsake any known evil, the Lord will not consent to abide in him; consequently, he feels dull and stupid in devotional exercises, and a lack of interest for the spiritual welfare of others, because when the Spirit is grieved away, religious declension and indifference must follow.

Is the reader conscious of any tendency to lukewarmness? Then let there be a fresh consecration of all to Christ for ever. It is the privilege of every follower of Jesus to be so "filled with the Spirit," that he will be kept from sinking into a spirit of indifference, and cold formalism. But he should remember that it requires the same consecration continuously, to keep filled with the Spirit, as to receive it at first. In all situations, the language of the heart should be to the Lord,—"Thy will be done." No matter how much we may be cheated, abused, slandered, or villified, still say "Thy will be done." This it is easy to say, when our all is on the altar, and Christ reigns within the heart by the power of the Spirit.

The answer then, to the inquiry, "What is needed?" is easy. It is the Holy Spirit of God. The remedy for indifference is at hand. Shall it be received? M. G.

INDIFFERENCE.

One of the most dangerous conditions of a church, or an individual member, is a spirit of indifference called in the Scriptures lukewarmness. It is an abominable state in the sight of the Lord. It is very clearly intimated that those in that condition will be rejected at last, because if they had the Spirit of Christ they could not be in that condition; and "if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his"; and if none of his, there is no ground to hope for salvation.

This being true, it will be the object of Satan to lead as many as possible into the indifferent or lukewarm state. In order to do this, it will be necessary to persuade men to neglect some of the duties of christianity, and bestow the attention upon other things on a lower plane. This can be accomplished by filling the mind with the cares of the world, its pleasures, pursuit of its honors, or riches, neglect of the means of grace, such as prayer-meetings, secret and family prayer, religious conversation, and efforts to save the unconverted, omitting the daily reading of the Scriptures, and allowing the mind to be absorbed by passing events, to the exclusion of thoughts upon the mercies of the Lord. That such a state of feeling is now prevailing among professors of religion, cannot be truthfully denied by any careful observer. It has become notorious and alarming. It is alarming, because of the sad results that must follow. This indifference not only shows that those who feel it have departed from the Lord, and thus grieved away his Spirit, but it produces an increased carelessness on the part of the unconverted.

When the children see the parents are indifferent, it leads them to think that the subject of religion is of but little consequence. So, when the members of a church are indifferent, it cannot be expected that sinners will be converted. It would be strange to see the sinner awakened, while the church is sleeping.

The Savior has given special caution against this sleepy, indifferent spirit, which would be prevalent in the last days. We have never seen a period when there appeared to be more need of stirring exhortation than at the present time. Those who who were all alive in the work of the Lord in other days, are now silent, and living as carelessly, as though they were beyond all danger. They look on quietly, while their friends and members of their own families are rushing down to destruction, without giving a single note of warning. Such professors must be asleep, or they would be alarmed at their own perilous situation. There are many in this condition, who say they believe the Lord is soon coming. Are they not in great danger of being found among the foolish virgins? They should remember that "faith without works is dead." A correct doctrine, without the Spirit of Christ in the heart, will not pass them into the kingdom of God. Purity is essential to salvation. The heart must be freed from hatred, pride, variance, covetousness, lasciviousness, and other evil things, before the person is ready to meet Jesus, and when these impurities abound, the person becomes stupid and indifferent in the service of Christ.

It is time for all who wish to be ready to meet the blessed Savior, to examine themselves with carefulness, to see if an indifferent spirit is being felt and manifested.

THE CATACOMBS OF ROME.

The Roman catacombs contain the bones of some six or seven millions of christian martyrs, put to death in the early persecutions. The catacombs reach to a depth of one hundred and fifty feet, and extend some twenty-two miles, forming an underground city of the dead. Rome's foundations stand upon an extinguished volcano, the velabrum (once Lake Curtius). The seven hills of Rome are said to be the "offsprings of volcanic fires"; and "Italy itself is an unbroken bed of volcanoes." The word "catacombs" is from the Greek cata-cum-bos—(underground tombs). This word was found on one of the tombs. The epitaphs on these tombs show that these primitive christians did not believe in an intermediate, conscious state, as many teach at the present day; but that the dead will sleep till the resurrection, when Christ comes. The following is a sample:—

"DORMIT SED MANE RESV*RGET."

"He sleeps, but shall arise in the morning."

This is the old-fashioned, Bible doctrine, as taught by Christ, prophets, and apostles. Let us not depart from their divine teaching. M. G.

NOAH'S ARK.—It is sometimes said by skeptics that Noah's ark was not large enough to hold samples of all the animals, and their food, during the flood. Before they repeat their statements, they would do well to make an accurate estimate in relation to the capacity of the ark, as given in the Bible. The following facts may serve to assist them: According to the shortest measurement of the ark, it was four hundred and fifty-six feet long, seventy-five feet wide, and forty-five feet high. It must have been of some forty-two thousand four hundred and thirteen tons burthen. A first rate man of war is between twenty-two hundred and twenty-three hundred tuns; hence the storage of the ark was equal to eighteen such large ships, and might carry twenty thousand men, with provisions for six months, besides the weight of eighteen cannon, and all the military stores.

It has been estimated that all the carniverous animals that were taken into the ark were equal in bulk and food required for twenty-seven oxen, and all the other animals to two hundred and eighty oxen. It is considered that one thousand eight hundred and twenty-five sheep would be sufficient to supply the former with food, and one hundred and ninety-nine thousand and three hundred cubits of hay the latter; all of which might be contained in two of the stories, and have much room to spare. The third story would be fully sufficient for Noah and his family, the fowls and reptiles, besides all the implements of husbandry, and seeds for the ground, after the flood. These facts show that the ark was plenty large enough for the purpose for which it was built. M. G.

A RELIGIOUS FIGHT.—A recent religious procession in Brussels, capital of Belgium, resulted in a fight, during which about one thousand were injured. There were some 20,000 pilgrims, who were attacked by the populace, and the ranks of the procession were broken up. The Catholics are reviving their pilgrimages, and the people are feeling hostile towards them. The hatred is increasing, and must soon break out in terrible proportions. It is probable that the government will interfere with the religious processions, which will only serve to hasten the final great battle. M. G.

NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

In these last days of peril, when so many are unaware of the dangers that surround them, it is to be feared that those who have the light are not doing their whole duty in trying to get it before the people. Great efforts should be made to increase the circulation of the Times and Crisis, as means of arousing the people. We find that when persons begin to take our papers, they usually continue to be interested in the great event now at our doors. Let every minister make a special effort to obtain new subscribers to these papers. In doing this, he will be stirring up the people in harmony with his preaching; doing them a benefit, and advancing the general welfare of all connected with this glorious work. There are many who would take the papers if they were only properly introduced. Let us spare no means at our command that can be used for the benefit of our fellow men. Will not every reader try to obtain at least one new subscriber within a month. In most places a little effort will secure this result. M. G.

A NEW WONDER.

Mr. John W. Keely, of Philadelphia, has lately made a remarkably wonderful mechanical discovery of a new motor power for propelling machinery, which, it is expected, will far surpass steam power. It is generated from cold water and air, in the form of vapor, which is said to be more powerful and economical than steam. It is expected to revolutionize the world, and cause steam to be laid one side. A number of heavy capitalists have taken hold of the matter, forming a company involving millions of money. It is believed that these rich men would not engage in the enterprise, if if they were not quite sure of success. The discovery of this power was accidental on the part of Mr. Keely. If what is stated is true, it is a wonderful discovery. It will soon be fully tested. M. G.

EXPERIENCES.—Brn. and Srs., please send us interesting incidents in your christian experience. Such are read with special interest. They exert a very healthful influence upon the readers of "our paper." Those who understand from happy experience what is meant by the term "perfect love," would do a great favor to those who are seeking the same blessed position, if they would briefly state how they secured the precious gift. Tell of it for the glory of the Lord, and the good of his children. Please send us at once an account of your journey from darkness to light, where there is no condemnation. The church is hungering after these things. The Holy Spirit is impressing the minds of professed christians in all countries with the importance of giving immediate attention to this subject. Write about it; talk it, and live it everywhere. Let our motto be "HOLINESS TO THE LORD." M. G.

"CARNIVAL OF CRIME."—This is the term used in the Boston Journal, June 14th, 1875, to express the state of things at the present time, especially in New York city. It says: "It is not surprising that our N. York friends are becoming alarmed at the bold and successful operations of burglars and highway robbers in that vicinity."

"Worse and worse" is still the order of progress among the masses. Satan is letting loose all his powers of darkness to produce a flood of wickedness. We expect the end shortly. Look out for his devices, and keep "unspottted from the world." M. G.

CALIFORNIA.—We are receiving good news from San Francisco, Santa Clara, and San Jose. The Lord is doing rich things for some persons. Those who have been led into the bondage of the law, are being set free again through the grace of the Lord. Others, who have been in bondage to sin are obtaining pardon, and are stepping into the liberty of the sons of God. The meetings are seasons of refreshing and comfort. Thank the Lord for what he is doing for California. M. G.

COMING OF THE MESSIAH.—An intelligent Jew was heard to say a short time since, that he believed the Messiah would come within fifteen years. This fact shows that some of the Jews are becoming interested in this glorious subject. It is important, we believe, beeause there is very strong evidence to show that Jesus will soon come the second time within the period named by the Jew. The subject is receiving new attention by many ministers in the different denominations. This is encouraging. M. G.

THE NATIONAL PROTESTANT is the title of a new monthly, just issued from 67 Liberty street, New York. Price one dollar a year, post paid. We have received the first number, and find it a candid, ably conducted paper, designed to keep Protestants posted in relation to the purposes, plans and operations of the Catholics. We think the paper is issued at the right time. It is not the organ of any particular denomination, but is designed for the benefit of all Protestants. M. G.

CENSORIOUSNESS.—Under this heading will be found a valuable article from Dr. Lowrey, the editor of the Christian Standard, one of the best weeklies we have ever seen. It is published in Philadelphia, by the Association for the promotion of holiness. Price $2.00 a year. M. G.

1866—Ireland to New Foundland	1896
1869—Brest to Duxbury, Mass., via. St. Pierre	3330

HEAVY FAILURES.—The financial news from England is very gloomy. The reported failures in two days (June 16th and 17th), amounted to over thirty million dollars. Business men begin to feel alarmed at the prospect. They fear this may be but the beginning of trouble. The tidal waves of "distress of nations" seem to be approaching rapidly. Omens that belong to the last days are multiplying in all directions. It is sublime to be living in this closing period of the present dispensation. Let all be ready for the appearing of the Son of man. M. G.

CORRECTION.—In Bro. George Thomson's article, published June 9th, in the eleventh line from the top, instead of "the gospel of the Jews," read—the gospel of Jesus. In the seventeenth line, instead of "We may not expect any more interposition of Providence," read—any more miraculous interposition.

LAST WEEK'S CRISIS.

We learn from various quarters that our last week's paper was not received by our subscribers until very late in the week. We would say, the papers were mailed Tuesday, June 15th (not usually mailed until Wednesday), and that we are informed at our POST OFFICE that they went on Wednesday. Now whether the delay was with the Post Office, or the Rail Roads, on account of the Centennial celebration, we cannot say. AG'T.

ANNUAL CONFERENCE REPORT.

The Advent Christian Conference of Kansas held its third annual session with the church at Ottumwa, Coffey Co., Kansas, May 21st, 1875, and continued over the following Sunday. The first service was preaching, Friday evening, by Eld. N. S. Brion, from Mark 16:15, 16. Bro. Brion gave us a good stirring discourse. After preaching, we listened to several exhortations from brethren from different parts of the state, which were cheering and encouraging to those that are looking for our soon coming King.

Conference met for business Saturday, 22nd, at nine o'clock, A. M. The President, Vice President, and Secretary, were not present. Bro. N. S. Brion was called to the chair, as president pro tem. Preaching brethren present: Eld. V. F. Hunt, J. C. Smith, N. S. Brion, A. Preston, H. H. Klock, Daniel Webster, J. H. Ward. Twenty-four new members were admitted to the conference. Daniel Webster, C. W. Crowell, E. S. Chapman, Wm. Snyder, G. W. Dewey, H. H. Klock, and V. F. Hunt, were chosen directors for the year 1875. C. W. Crowell was chosen President, H. H. Klock Vice Pres., Levi S. Smith, Sec., and Wm. Snyder Treasurer for the ensuing year. V. F. Hunt, J. C. Smith, and A. Preston were chosen committee on License and Ordination.

Bro. N. S. Brion, and A. Preston, were set apart for the work of the ministry. The following brethren were granted license by the conference: A. Preston, N. S. Brion, H. H. Klock, J. C. Smith, V. F. Hunt, P. W. Rote, J. H. Ward, and Daniel Webster. Delegates from different parts of the State were present.

The reports from the different churches were encouraging. Some have passed through trials, but their courage is good. They feel that if they should draw back now, it would be to perdition. A little while longer, and the Master will come, and then their trials will be over.

The report of J. C. Smith, State Evangelist, was read and accepted, and the conference voted to send the same to the Times and Crisis for publication.

Bro. J. C. Smith was chosen State Evnagelist for the present year. It was moved and carried that this conference raise a fund for the purpose of scattering tracts throughout the State. Between forty and fifty dollars were raised for this purpose at this meeting. It was moved and carried that the state tent be put in the field as soon as possible, and also that the directors employ some one or more to go with the tent, and take charge of the same. Union and harmony prevailed through the entire meeting. The preaching was good and stirring.

Sunday afternoon nearly fifty gathered around the table to commemorate the Lord's supper; after which, two were buried with Christ in baptism. Preaching in the evening by Eld. J. C. Smith. Thus ended one of the best meetings I have ever attended in the state.

L. S. SMITH,
Sec. A. C. Conference of Kansas.

RAYMOND, IOWA.

My tongue rejoices, and my heart is glad, to say to the readers of the Crisis that, amid the trials of these last days, the Lord is still on the giving hand. Our little church here in Raymond is still growing. It grows because its members work, knowing that time is short. At nearly every monthly meeting we add new members. Last Sabbath (May 30th) we enjoyed a precious season in baptizing nine more happy souls in the likeness of Christ's death, burial, and resurrection. Our Sabbath school has re-opened this spring with renewed energy; and besides our school here in the village, we have two schools in the country, which are supplied by superintendents and teachers, mainly, from Raymond church.

Notwithstanding the glorious prosperity of the cause of Christ here, we are not without trials; enough of them to make us fully realize that God will have a tried people. We have, however, by the help of the Lord, kept the church pretty clear of those "pernicious doctrines" which are distracting the cause both East and West.

J. W. BURROUGHS.

GRASSHOPPERS.—A Bro. writes from Hamburg, Iowa, June 14th, 1875:—"We are again called upon to witness the ravages of the grasshopper. There were a great many eggs deposited in this country last fall, and hatched out this spring, but not enough to materially injure the crop in this country; but last Thursday, about 1 o'clock, the 'hoppers' commenced to alight, and by daylight next morning thousands of acres of corn, that was near knee-high, were as bare as the street in front of your office. Not one green thing was to be seen in many fields. Other fields adjoining were not injured at all. They stayed with us until Sabbath morning, when they bade farewell, and went north with a strong south wind. Most of the corn will grow again, as it is not eaten off below the joints. The stoutest hearts are failing for looking after the things that are coming upon the earth. Let us look to the Master, for in him only is safety in these last days of peril. Pray for us."

THE TRACT FUND.

THE ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY, at a meeting on Springfield camp-ground, August 13th, 1874, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

REPORT OF ELD. J. C. SMITH,

STATE EVANGELIST OP THE ADVENT CHRISTIAN MISSION SOCIETY OF KANSAS.

Dear Brn. and Srs. of the Advent Christian Conference of Kansas, and all engaged in the blessed work of doing good in Jesus' name, another year of toil and sorrow, pain and death is left behind. And we are once more convened under circumstances of much mercy, by the direction of our heavenly Father, for the purpose of doing business of vast importance for the Master and his cause. Thus far, it has prospered beyond expectation. The Lord has raised up a few here in Ottumwa, and in other parts of the state, to defend his most noble truth. Some over two hundred with whom I am personally acquainted, have learned to love Jesus and the blessed hope. Out of this number in the southern part of the state, twelve have felt the woe upon them to go and sound out the alarm among the people of coming danger, and eternal safety in Christ Jesus our Lord. Others, at the northern part of the state, likewise, have been called forth to labor in the harvest field.

Judgment is impending. The world lieth under the power of the wicked one, and this is the reason why we have come together to do our Master's will; and, if possible, devise ways whereby we can further on the gospel of the kingdom of God, and the great important truths connected with this last judgment message. And not only have we met for this great work, but for the purpose of rehearsing some of our toils and sorrows, conflicts and victories, and the many blessings bestowed upon us, as a people, within the past year, "from the Father of lights, in whom there is no variableness, neither shadow of turning."

The past year has not been spent altogether in vain. We have seen some good done in Jesus' name, and to the Lord be all the praise and the glory. We have endeavored to set before the people the last great dispensational truth, and to warn them to flee from the wrath to come; to lay hold upon Christ as the only refuge and safety in the hour of temptation and trial, which has come upon all the earth to try mankind; and the hour which is soon to be ushered in, when the destiny of men will be settled by the Judge of all the earth. The Lord help us all to escape for our lives, to the refuge of souls!

As your Evangelist, I will now report, in short, what the Lord has done through us the past year. You are well aware of the great responsibility resting upon one that proclaims unpopular truths to a godless, gainsaying world, and a cold, formal church, who love everything else but Christ and his pure, unadulterated word of truth. Also, in a measure, you can realize some of the obligations and duties devolving upon one who goes forth beside all waters, among all nations and people, to meet with all kinds of influences and rebuffs. But the great I AM only knows it all. He knows our down-sitting and up-rising, our going forth and coming in, our trials and sorrows, tears and cares. We have the sure promise that he will never leave nor forsake, though all else beside should depart and grow distant and cold. The faithful Promiser is ever near to aid and assist. With this assurance before us, we again set out from our annual session, May last, to do our Master's will. You that were then present heard of the Lord's doings previous to this, of his guiding hand, his power to save, when but a few in number; of his great goodness shown to them, and his victories wrought by them, and the increase given in so short a time. All praise be to him for his unspeakable gift. But to those who were not there, and for your benefit, we will recapitulate a little of the Lords dealings.

With poor health, two years ago, accompanied with Uncle J. and Bro. N., we started for Bero, Cherokee county, distance one hundred and thirty miles, to attend our association meeting, which was then turned over into this conference. They then chose me as their Evangelist, as I was the only ordained minister present from the State. Bro. Sanford was present, but at that time had not been long in the work. Therefore, the responsibility of taking the tent, purchased for missionary work, from place to place, was pressed upon me. This was a great charge indeed, for one in poor health, and with but a little over fifteen dollars to start with; yet, with the Lord's grace to support, we determined to go, and in going we found help. But before starting with the tent, we first had to return home and prepare for a summer campaign, thus traveling the distance of one hundred and thirty miles over, and over again.

The last time we went alone, and yet not alone, for the Lord was with us, to uphold and direct. Well do we remember the time when passing across the broad prairie, with no eye resting upon us save the eye of God, and there before our God in the wagon, on our bended knees, we poured out our supplications before him. We could but cry, O God, lead; O Father, hear; and save souls as we go. None but the Lord of heaven knew our hearts. Tears flowed thick and fast, and we went with the assurance that Father would bless and save. We had the tent pitched at Jacksonville, Neosho county, over two Sundays. From there, we went to Chetopa, Labette county; thence to Ripon. After being there over two Lord's days, we shipped tent to Burlington; from there to Melvern. Were with them over two Sundays. From that point we journeyed to Reno, Leavenworth Co.; then to Lawrence; afterward the tent was sent to the northern part of the State, to Jewell Co., where we had meetings over two Lord's days. Here our tent meetings closed for the season. Then we commenced meetings in school-houses, from place to place; traveling from May till May again three thousand miles by team, and some four thousand by rail, scattering the good seed in twenty-four counties, and saw a few raised up in fourteen places to defend the cause we love so well. Baptized forty happy souls, and scattered two hundred and fifty thousand pages of tracts, besides many papers and larger works.

The past year, we have visited and held meetings at twenty-eight different places, sixteen of which have been new fields of labor. The tent has been pitched in eight different places,—Melvern, Ottumwa, Pleasanton, Garnett, Ottawa, Topeka, Manhattan, and Clyde. Have distributed two hundred thousand pages of tracts, some of which have been sent into many States in the Union, and even to the great Pacific coast. Larger works have been scattered where they were needed, and in many instances have received nothing for them. Have immersed forty-five persons in the liquid grave, set in order four churches, traveled two thousand five hundred by team, attended three hundred and eighteen meetings, and took a part in nearly all of them. Our expenses in traveling, shipping tent from place to place, tent fixtures, rope, kerosene, etc., with what we have paid out for laborers, has been $207.28. What we have received in this State has been $213.93; leaving the sum of $6.65 not expended. Besides this, we have endeavored to lend a helping hand to the destitute and afflicted, as they have stood in need; have scattered three or four hundred dollars worth of clothing, to over two hundred men, women and children, which has been sent to us from the friends at the East. Also have given to those that actually needed, $132.00 in money, which has been sent to us from Bro. George T. Adams, of Boston, Mass., for the suffering ones in this State. We have visited many families with the word of life, and have entreated them to become reconciled to God, and be ready for the return of the Nobleman.

Thus, dear brethren and sisters, we have endeavored to do what we could. Our time, talent and voice have been occupied almost constantly in the work for the spread of gospel truth, and the upbuilding of the cause of Christ. Have scattered the seed beside all waters, regardless of persons or character. Some we have seen spring up and bear much fruit. The Lord has given the increase. To him be all the glory. We praise him for what he has done for us all. Bro. Virgil Hunt, of Sumner Co., has helped us the past season in bearing the burden and scattering the seed. He has been a zealous and faithful co-partner. O that each one may take warning from what they have heard, and find a refuge in the cleft Rock, Christ Jesus, and be prepared for an abundant entrance into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior.

And now, dear brethren and sisters, as the year has passed with all its changes, I would inquire, Have we done what we could in the cause of our Master? Is our work done, and well done? Have we made the sacrifices that we should have made to help spread the soul-cheering news of coming glory and eternal life among the people? Could we not have done a little more? What has the Lord not done for us? Has he not done far more than we are able to tell? And are we so dilatory that we cannot do anything for the Master? There are many ways that we might work and find something to do. Souls are perishing around us. Multitudes are on their way to perdition. Can we not do something to save them? We have excellent papers, which should be taken by every household of faith, and scattered far and near among the people; also tracts of all kinds to scatter. I think I can safely say I have received over four hundred dollars' worth, since I have been in the State, from the A. C. M. Society, free. I would be glad to see a fund raised in this State to aid them in their publications. They have helped us nobly, and they ought to be encouraged in their good work. What shall we do for them, and the cause here in the State? Let each one inquire for themselves, and be ready to render up an account at last with joy, and not with grief, that the "well done" may be awarded to all, and we together enter into the joy of our Lord at his appearing and kingdom.

J. C. SMITH.

Arvonia, Kan., May 30th, 1875.

LET US REASON TOGETHER.

Do you really need Christ? Is that true? Do you think he can save you? Do you think he is willing? Are you willing to have him as your Savior? If you are both willing—he to be your Savior, and you to have him as Savior—what hinders? Why not say yes to him at once? If he were present in the next room just now, and if this moment he sent for you, inviting you to come to him, would you have any difficulty in the case? Would you not go in, and cast yourself at his feet, and tell him you have come at his bidding? Well, but this is the actual case; Jesus has sent for you. He is not only in the next room; you are already in his presence. This very moment, by drawing down the curtains of the eyelids, you may make a closet for yourself, in which you are alone with him. Do so, and at once speak to him, and tell him that you have come because he has sent for you, and that you trust him for both worlds; and then say, "There is no condemnation to me."—Let the words of the Bible come in as words from the lips of Jesus.

Correspondence.

From Bro. L. Boutell.

Dearly Beloved:—I thought it about time to report my progress through the Crisis, to the honor of my divine Master, and the consolation of my brethren, who would rejoice with me in the Lord Jesus Christ. The last three months have been one of trial and affliction. I have been in the furnace. My health was such that I was unable to attend to my former duties in the field, and could see but little to the duties of the family. In this time our only daughter, who had for a long time been failing, fell asleep, which was a heavy stroke upon us. But as we had hope that our dear Lizzie Ryder died in hope of life eternal at the resurrection of the just, we could be comforted, while drinking the bitter cup, with the "blessed hope" of reunion in the coming day of glory, when the meek shall inherit the earth.

From this time my health failed by physical prostration, from the effect of paralysis, which stopped my labor, and soon I was brought so low as to be unconscious of what was passing, and all thought me past hope. The doctors gave me up, and all thought I must die. But prayer, yes, the prayer of faith, was going up for me, and the Lord heard, and took me in hand, and saved me from the grave, by adding to my days; and, like Hezekiah, I am praising him, as the dead do not. O how wonderful is his goodness. His loving kindness is great. Since I commenced gaining, I have been growing stronger daily. The blessed Lord has done it all. To him be the glory.

I am now able to read and write, to walk and ride, to eat and sleep. I have had no pull-backs since the Lord appeared in my behalf. I love him. And should I not? Sweet peace is mine continually. O the goodness of God, through Jesus Christ my Lord.

Dearly beloved, I greet you with holy union and sweet fellowship. This is the time to be Christ's entirely. I long to be able to preach the sweet gospel of the kingdom, but I can say, The will of the Lord be done, and I will be satisfied. I expect to meet with the saints looking for Jesus in some of their feasts, so soon coming. Pray for me still. Yours in good hope and cheerful expectation.

Chelsea, Mass., June 17th, 1875.

From Bro. B. Spaulding.

Our tent-meeting in So. Chelmsford was a success. It closed Sunday, the 13th, having continued nine days. We had a good attendance for a country place, and ears to hear, and hearts that felt. There was much prejudice at first, but much of it wore off, and even the minister confessed that he had misunderstood our visws, our object and design; and recommended his people to attend, and take hold of the work we were trying to do. He said he was sorry his engagement led him to be away. Most all of his people came to hear, and were greatly pleased with what they heard, and were very sorry to have the meeting close. The preaching was plain, simple, and right to the point. There was no controversy; every body was pleasant, kind, and affectionate. Brotherly love abounded during the whole meeting.

The order was first rate. I had been advised to get a police force to keep order, but I chose to trust in the Lord, and did, and no police was needed. Thanks be to God. A restraining influence was felt by all, and there was perfect order. Brn. Leslie, Woodside, J. S. White, and Srs. Barnes and Clark were our preachers. I felt perfectly satisfied with the preaching, the attention and order, and with the sympathy, kindness and hospitality of the neighborhood. Many families received and lodged our friends, and many sent in eatables. We had a heavenly sitting together. The spirit of inquiry was waked up. Many wanted to inquire of the doctrines we hold, and an influence was created which will result in favor of the truth. I feel to praise God for the success of the meeting, and am grateful to brethren and sisters who helped us along in various ways; and to my townsmen for their sympathy and kindness. God bless them, is my prayer.

The whole expense of the meeting was met by people and individuals; so no debt was incurred. May the Lord follow this attempt to enlighten this people, and let me see the answer to my many prayers. The Lord helped me, so that I stood it wonderfully, with so much care and anxiety on my mind. I feel quite as well as I did before the meeting. Blessed be the Lord. Brethren, pray for me. Yours in love.

Obituaries.

Stricken down in his usual health and vivacity, he lingered nine days, unable to speak, except a simple "yes" or "no" to questions; but the cheerful face, and eye of almost youthful brightness, told of the efficiency of the "blessed hope," that had been his anchor in life, to keep and sustain during the hours of helplessness and death. Our brethren in the ministry, who have preached in East Haddam in the years past, will remember him as a doer as well as a hearer of the word, and will, with us, unite with his stricken wife and children in mourning the loss of a good man and a faithful christian, "sound in the faith, giving glory to God."

Our dear sister A. is almost entirely helpless, from rheumatism, not having been able to walk at all for many months, nor use her hands but very little; and yet the "hope of eternal life," and a reunion in the kingdom of God, soon to be given to the saints, is so cheering to her that

Tears and smiles at once are blended
At the thought of joys to come,
When with pains and griefs all ended,
They shall rest in home, sweet home.

Sr. Snell was brought to a saving knowledge of the truth under the labors of Eld. C. B. Turner; and the latter part of her life was characterized by zeal and devotion, such as becometh the Bible christian. She died trusting in the Lord, and sweetly sleeps in Jesus. Sister L. left a husband, two children, and a large circle of friends to mourn her loss. When it became evident to her and her friends that she must die, she confessed she had not lived and set the example she ought, asked pardon, found peace, bid all good-bye, and fell asleep in Jesus, to await the resurrection unto life. The Times' Paris correspondent telegraphs that there are rumors of a republican movement in Madrid in consequence of recent miltary events, which prove that the troops are unable to gain any advantage over the Carlists. DOMESTIC NEWS.

Chicago, June 13. The Communists and workingmen held a meeting this afternoon in Bohemian Turner Hall to consider the labor question.

Speeches of the most inflammatory character were delivered, and the advice was freely tendered by numerous speakers that the laborers should arm themselves and present a forcible resistance to the encroachments of employers on their rights, and that they should scuttle the incoming vessels before they were unloaded, and thus teach the owners not to trifle with their workmen.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 12. About 12 30 o'clock to-day a serious fire occurred at the Brilliant Oil Works on the Alleghany Valley Railroad, seven miles north of this city, owned by Lockhart & Freu. The fire originated in a distillate tank containing 20,000 barrels of crude oil.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 13. The two tanks exploded at seven o'clock this evening, and the burning oil was scattered in all directions, setting fire to a warehouse and a large barrel house containing several thousand empty barrels, both of which were destroyed. The fire also communicated to two other tanks of oil, which, with one tank of benzine and two of tar, were burned. The telegraph lines were burned down. At a late hour the fire was under control, although the oil is still burning fiercely.

It is estimated that the loss by the fire at the Brilliant Oil Works yesterday and last night will amount to from $185,000 to $200,000.

Seaside Campmeeting.

The undersigned having been appointed a committee to arrange for a General Campmeeting of Second Adventists at Seabrook, N. H., have accepted the position; and in compliance with urgent requests and our own convictions of duty, have leased "Beckman's Grove"; and if the Lord will, the meeting will commence August 14th, and continue over two Sabbaths.

The grove is pleasantly located within sixty rods of the depot, and about the same distance from salt water landing. There are excellent facilities for sailing and fishing. A large and commodious bath house will be erected, and the committee will spare no pains to procure accommodations for all who desire to build houses, or pitch tents on the ground, or to lease rooms in the neighborhood. The boarding house will be in charge of the committee.

Fare from Boston to Seabrook and return, $1.40. Portland to Seabrook and return, $2 25. The fare is reduced from August 10th to 26th. Fare will be reduced from all stations in proportion, in due season.

In answer to misrepresentations and numerous inquiries relative to our camp-ground, and its surroundings, the undersigned make the following statement: Beckman's grove, in Seabrook, was selected because of its close proximity to the beach and railroad station. We know of no place on the whole coast so admirably situated. Eight or ten trains pass the grounds daily. The fare will be reduced about one half, and all trains will stop during the meeting. The ground is seated, a preachers' stand has been built, and every thing within the power of the committee will be done for the accommodation of all. A stream of pure water, fed by living springs, passes through the grove two rods in rear of the stand.

The salt water landing is less than ten minutes walk from the grounds. Bro. Edward Felch, an experienced boatman, will take persons from the landing to the beach (distance about one and one half miles) and return, including a sail on a beautiful bay, for fifteen cents each, and such as desire a sail on the ocean will be accommodated. The distance to the beaches by carriage is six to eight miles. A few tenements in the neighborhood can be hired at low rates, if applied for soon.

Able and efficient ministers of the gospel will be present to preach the word. Correspondents will address C. A. BARTON, Seabrook, N. H.

H MUNGER, General Agent.
N. H. ROBIE, for Committee.

GROVE MEETING.—According to previous arrangements, made one year ago, Bro. F. A. Baker and myself gave out word there would be a meeting held in West Levant, Me., in the grove now owned by John Emerson, to commence on the first day of July, at two o'clock P. M., and hold over the 4th. The grove will be fitted up for tenting. We expect a large tent will be pitched for meetings in case it should be stormy. For the accommodation of the poor, bring clothing and provision, all who can. Those that can, bring your small tents. Let us have a friendly greeting once more in Christ, and contemplate his coming soon, with joyful hope. The day of trouble is upon us. Let all come who love our Lord Jesus Christ, and strive for peace in Christ, and let it be our chief aim to be ready for the day of the Lord, and get others ready. Preaching brethren are invited to come and labor for their Master Will our scattered brethren in that region do all they can to make the meeting interesting?

Bro. J. G. Smith, of Farmington, N. H., will be in attendance. I expect to be at the grove on Sunday, June 27th. ISRAEL DAMMAN.

NOTICE.—We purpose holding religious services each pleasant Sunday, during the summer, in Chatfield's grove, Wolcottville, Ct., which, through the kindness of the owner, Mr. Chatfield, has been fitted up expressly for these meetings. When the weather is unfavorable for the out-of-door meetings, we shall worship, as heretofore, in the Town Hall. Messrs. Austin & Ladd's band wagon will leave Granite Block for the grove at 10 o'clock A. M. and 12.45 P. M. Fare each way, 10 cents. Preaching by different brethren, as the Lord shall direct. A hearty welcome to all who love Jesus.

A. W. BRADFORD, for the brethren.

THE TENT MEETING at East Lebanon, Me., will hold over Sunday, June 27th. A great interest is manifested to hear the truth as it is illustrated by the Chart. S. G. LOW.

AN APPEAL.

The season has now arrived when the special work of holding Tent Meetings should be begun. The Mass. Conference has a good Tent ready again for service in the harvest field of the Lord; and the question is: Shall it be sent forth once more with good and faithful laborers to gather in sheaves for Christ, and give the warning of the coming day of God? In order that this may be done, there must be a sacrifice made by the friends of Jesus, and means given to sustain in this way his precious cause.

It is proposed that the Tent this year be taken into new fields, and where our precious faith has not as yet been heard. If this is done, there will be a special necessity for contributions on the part of our churches and people in general, to defray the expenses of these meetings in these new places.

As the Committee, chosen at the late Conference to have the charge of the Tent and make arrangements for the work in connection with it, we invite all who have the means and the heart to give in sustaining this mode of reaching the people, to do so as soon as they can, that we may know how far to go in promising the Tent where it is already requested.

Contributions and pledges can be sent to the Treasurer, ELD. C. GOODRICH, Boston, Mass.

B. YOUNG, L. BOUTELL, C. E. BARNES, I. I. LESLIE, } Protracted Meeting and Tent Committee.

Notice.

The members of the Mass. Second Advent Christian Conference are requested to send to the Secretary their names and address, that each may receive a certificate of membership, according to a vote of the Conference.

I. I. LESLIE, Sec., Box 5140 Boston, Mass.

Tremont Campmeeting.

The Annual Campmeeting at Tremont, Mass., will commence Monday, July 19th, and continue to the 28th. Arrangements will be made to supply all with board and lodging. All who can are requested to bring Tents.

Brethren in the Lord, do make arrangements to attend this meeting, especially all who reside in the southerly part of this State. Come at the commencement, if possible. We intend to secure good profitable laborers, those who are prepared to bring out an exposition of those prophecies especially applicable to these times, and now in process of fulfillment, when the church will be delivered. This may be the last annual gathering we shall be permitted to enjoy before the Lord will gather his own to himself. Let us do what we can to save the perishing before it is too late. Bro. Munger will have charge of the meeting.

HENRY V. DAVIS, for the Committee.

Alton Bay Campmeeting.

The Alton Bay Campmeeting will commence, if the Lord will, August 21st, and hold over two Sabbaths. J. COUCH.

NOTICE.—The Mechanic Falls Campmeeting will commence Monday, August 30th, and hold over Sept. 5th. WM. H. MITCHELL, for the Com.

CAMPMEETING.—The Pittsfield, Me., Campmeeting will commence, if the Lord will, Sunday, Sept. 5th, and hold over Sunday, Sept. 12th.

JER. CARR, for the Committee.

VERMONT CAMPMEETING.—This meeting will commence Sept 4th, and continue till Sept 13th. Bro. E. A. Stockman and others are engaged to be at this meeting. H. F. C.

NOTICE.—As the Mass. Tent Committee are about to start the Tent, they will need some money. Will those brethren and sisters who have subscribed for this purpose, send to the Treasurer, C. GOODRICH, Crisis Office, Boston, Mass., as soon as convenient?

TENT FOR SALE.—A wooden tent on Alton Bay camp-ground (Tent. No. 202), with furniture, such as stove, chairs, lounge, crockery, etc. Price $150 00. Correspond with, or call on, C. GOODRICH, at Crisis Office, Boston, Mass.

FOURTH OF JULY MEETING AT KINGSTON, N. H.—This annual meeting will be held this year two days, July 4th and 5th, in the Chapel, near Dea Gale's residence. It is expected that Elds. G. W. Burnham and B. D. Haskell will be present to preach the word on Sunday, the 4th, and I hope to unite with them on Monday, the 5th. "COME, LORD JESUS."

S. SHRINER.

Come, Lord Jesus, quickly come,
Take thy ransomed people home;
We are nought but pilgrims here,
Waiting till our Lord appear.

Often do we weary grow,
And our footsteps, O how slow;
Striving to some height attain,
We so often fall again.

Rough and thorny is the path,
Wounds and bruises each one hath;
Sore temptations oft assail,
Sighs and weeping oft prevail.

Haste, O haste the longed for day,
When our griefs shall pass away;
When from sin and sorrow free,
We our heavenly King shall see.

He shall sit on David's throne,
He shall reign, and he alone,
Over empires great and small,
O'er the nations one and all.

Kings to him shall bow the knee,
Every eye his glory see;
Rich and poor shall join to bless,
Every tongue his name confess.

Then no more we'll weary grow;
Then no more our tears shall flow;
Pain and suffering all be o'er,
Death and parting known no more.

Then our jarring all shall cease,
All shall dwell in perfect peace;
Scorn and envy all depart,
Love shall rule in every heart.

From exhausting labor free,
Rest shall then our portion be;
Sabbath hours shall never close,
Nought disturb the sweet repose.

For that blissful, glorious day,
We will watch, and wait, and pray;
Come, dear Savior, quickly come,
Take thy ransomed people home.

THE OBEDIENCE OF FAITH.

In the epistle to the Romans, St. Paul used this expression twice in the Greek. It indicates more than justification by faith, the great doctrine which is set forth and defended in that epistle. It shows that true obedience springs from faith in Jesus Christ, and receives all its vitality from that root. There is but one command which the sinner is called upon to perform before evangelical faith. This is repentance.

There is a divine philosophy in the order of these two precepts, "repent and believe." Repentance towards God must precede faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. Such repentance as leads the wicked man to forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts, before he can effectually "turn unto God who will abundantly pardon." By this assertion we do not deny that the regenerate soul has a clearer view of his sins, and a stronger abhorrence of his depravity after he is born of the Spirit than before that great and glorious work. Now the important question arises: "How can this proclivity toward sin be eradicated from the regenerate soul so that it may hereafter gravitate upward, and not downward?" This is the real want of thousands of God-fearing people.

Many have been told that they must wait till death, the greater redeemer than the Son of God, and the mightier sanctifier than the Holy Spirit, has come to their relief. It is true that Jesus does not propose to present us unto himself faultless in the presence of his glory, freed from infirmities, those scars of sin, till we have crossed the river of death. But Jesus has, in this life, a balm for the medication and perfect cure of the wounds of sin in this life. Hence St. Paul exhorts the Corinthians to cleanse themselves "from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God." And he prays for the Thessalonians first, that they may be sanctified "wholly" and, secondly, that their "whole spirit, and soul, and body may be preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ." This certainly means sanctification before death, and also preservation in a state of holiness in this life.

Now the important practical question remains to be answered: "What must a justified soul do to attain this state of holiness, the extinction of inbred sin within?" The words, "Obedience of Faith," contain the answer. What am I to obey? The sum of the law is epitomized by Jesus: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself." Can I do this in my own strength? No, but I can bring my powers and capacities as empty vesselss unto the Holy Spirit, and he will fill them by shedding abroad the love of God in my heart. He does this by revealing to me the fact of God's great love to me, which awakens my soul to his great love, with all the capacity of my being. This bringing my empty heart to God is the act of consecration in obedience to Christ's summary of man's whole duty. When this is done, and unwavering faith in the divine promise accompanies the act, the soul realizes the cleansing power and the fulness of God. But when the faith is inadequate, the cleansing may take place, but not the fulness of love. From this state the believer either very soon falls back into the old mixed life of sin and repentance, or goes forward to the experience of "all the fulness of God."

To abide in this state of perfect victory and full trust, we are to walk by the same rule of "the obedience of faith," and mind the same things that we did when we entered this state, by daily consecration, and a renewed grasp of the promises. The power of God must be relied upon as much in our abiding in as in our entering this state. We are to be "kept by the power of God through faith." When we find a stream steadily flowing without a supplying fountain, we may expect to find a soul living in holiness without the enabling efficiency of the Holy Spirit. The figure of "a well of water springing up into eternal life," is explained subsequently by John as the fulness of the Spirit in the heart. Compare John 4:14, with 7:37-39.

The intimate connection between obedience and faith is expressed by Christ, when he says: "If any man will do (or will to do) his will, he shall know of the doctrine."

A beautiful illustration of this occurs in "Cecil's Remains." His little daughter was one day playing with some beads which she seemed to prize very highly. Her father very abruptly commanded her to throw them into the fire. The tears started in her eyes. She looked earnestly at me, as though she ought to have a reason for such a cruel sacrifice. 'Well, my dear, do as you please; but you know I never told you to do anything which I did not think would be good for you.' She looked at me a few moments longer, and then, summoning up all her fortitude, her breast heaving with the effort, she dashed them into the fire. 'Well, said I, 'let them lie; you shall hear more about them another time; but say no more about them now.' Some days after, I bought her a box full of larger beads and toys of the same kind. When I returned home, I opened the treasure and set it before her. She burst into tears with ecstasy. 'Those, my child, said I, 'are yours, because you believed me when I told you it would be better for you to throw those two or three paltry beads into the fire. Now that has brought you this treasure. But now, my dear, remember as long as you live what faith is."

The fact that genuine faith always includes obedience, is a sufficient answer to the skeptic's objection that salvation is made to hinge upon a bare intellectual act, without reference to the character of the agent. It is just the opposite. It is an act of submission to the highest authority in the universe; an act which tends to conserve the moral order of the world, by enthroning the moral law in universal supremacy.

A singular confirmation of the truth of these remarks is found in the Greek Testament, where apeitheia, unbelief, is usually used to signify disobedience and obstinacy. The unbelief for which men are to be everlastingly condemned, lies in the rebellious attitude of the will toward Jesus Christ, and not in any supposed innocent intellectual inability to believe the truth of God's word.

The practical bearing of all this upon those who are seeking to be lifted into the higher altitudes of christian experience is, that the faith which is the required condition of such a spiritual uplift, is possible only to a soul whose obedience has reached the point of entire surrender to the will of God, where there is a willingness to walk to Calvary with the fainting Christ, and to be crucified with him.

Then, and then only, will the Christ-life take the place of the old self-life, enabling the believer to adopt St. Paul's words—"I am crucified with Christ; . . . it is no longer I that live, but Christ that liveth in me." Let no one accuse Luther of boasting, when through "the obedience of faith" he reached that deadness to sin, and that conscious fulness of the divine life, which enabled him to say, "If any man knocks at the door of my breast and says, Who lives there? my answer is, Jesus Christ lives here, not Martin Luther." The great reformer did not stumble into this christian experience. To reach it he was often closeted with God three hours a day studying the divine promises, and wrestling with the Lord as Jacob with the angel.

Says Spurgeon: "There is a point in grace as much above the ordinary christian, as the ordinary christian is above the worldling." Of such he says: "Their place is with the eagle in his eyrie, high aloft. They are rejoicing christians, holy and devout men, doing service for the Master all over the world, and every where conquerors through Him that loved them." The mountain top is a position men do not slide into, but climb up to. Thus these mountain-top saints climbed up the ascent by the stairway of the gospel promises, with the sunlit summit in full view as a definite aim. Their faith made their obedience spontaneous, free and gladsome; while their conscious obedience reacted on their faith, making it strong and tenacious of the promise of Jesus—"If ye love me, keep my commandments; and I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you forever."—Contributor.

UNION WITH CHRIST.

R. F. SERGISSON.

The Scriptures teach us a union with Christ inseparable to salvation. They teach that believers are so united to Christ, that they are not only partakers of the merit of his death, but also of his Holy Spirit, which dwells in them as a principle of life, bringing them more and more into conformity with the image of God, and working in them both to will and to do of his good pleasure. The nature of the union between Christ and his people, on which so much depends, is confessedly mysterious. Paul, having said, we are members of his body, of his flesh, and of his bones, says, This is a great mystery. It is in vain that we attempt to bring this subject down to the level of our comprehension. That God is present by his Spirit, and operates throughout the universe, is a fact, though by us vaguely understood. We need not, then, expect to comprehend the mode in which Christ dwells in the hearts of his people by his Spirit. The fact that such union exists is clearly revealed. Its effects are seen, and no less explicitly stated, and its nature is set forth as far as can be made known, by the most striking illustrations. Our Savior said, "I pray . . . that they all may be one, as thou Father art in me, and I in them; that they also may be one in us . . . I in them, and thou in me; that they may be made perfect in one." John 17:15-23. "He that keepeth his commandments dwelleth in him, and he in him; and hereby we know that he abideth in us, by the Spirit which he hath given us." 1 John 3:24. Again, "If any man have not the spirit of Christ, he is none of his." Rom. 8:9. "Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own?" 1 Cor. 6:19. And to the same effect, "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the spirit of God dwelleth in you?" 1 Cor. 3:17.

There is a community of life. The same Spirit dwells in him and in them. The Holy Spirit which dwells in Christ is by him communicated to all his people, and makes them in a peculiar sense, one with him, and one among themselves, and imparts to all that life which has its seat and source in him. "As the body is one, and hath many members, and all the members of that one body, being many, are one body; so also is Christ. For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body, . . . and have been all made to drink into one Spirit." 1 Cor. 12; 12, 13. I am the vine, ye are the branches; he that abideth in me, and I in him, the same beareth much fruit: for without me ye can do nothing. As the branches are so united to the vine as to partake of its life, and to be absolutely dependent upon it, so believers are so united to Christ as to partake of his life, and to be absolutely dependent on him for life. The Holy Ghost, communicated by him to them, is in them the principle of life and faithfulness. Christ and his people are one. He is the foundation, they are the building. He is the vine, they are the branches. He is the head, they are the body. Because he lives, they shall live also; for it is not they that live, but Christ that liveth in them. He dwelleth with you, and shall be in you, and is to you not only the source of spiritual life, but of all its manifestations. They are baptized by one Spirit. They are begotten by the Spirit, through the word. They are sanctified by the Spirit. 1 Cor. 6:11. They are led by the Spirit. Rom. 8:14. Thay live in the Spirit. Gal. 5:25. They are strengthened by the Spirit. Eph. 3:16. They are filled with the Spirit. Eph. 5:18. By the Spirit they mortify sin. Rom. 8:13. Through the Spirit they wait for the hope of righteousness. Gal. 5:5. They have access to God by the Spirit. Eph. 2:18. They pray and sing in the Spirit. 1 Cor. 14:15. The Spirit is to them a source of knowledge (Eph. 1:17), of joy (1 Thess. 1:6), of love, long-suffering, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance. Gal. 5:22.

This doctrine of the indwelling of the Holy Spirit is so wrought in the texture of the gospel, as to be absolutely essential to it. It ceases to be the gospel if we abstract from it the great truth, that the Spirit of God, as the purchase and gift of Christ, is ever present with his people, guiding their inward exercises, and outward conduct, and bringing them at last, without spot or blemish, to the purity and blessedness of the kingdom of God. Amen.

PEACE.

IDA AHLBORN.

Somewhere peace resideth,
In all hearts abideth;
But not on this dying shore
Is her lasting dwelling 'mongst us made;
Here where falleth sin's dark, blighting shade,
All the face of mankind o'er,
Here where strife forever
Hearts doth break and sever.

Here we find no resting,
But are ever breasting,
Storms that wildly round us sweep,
Bending, breaking idols loved and fair,
Till youth's hopes are wedded to despair;
Still faith in our hearts we keep,
Peace shall yet be given,
As the peace of heaven.

Not for aye earth riven,
Unto discord given;
Stay the night clouds overhead.
Lasts the reign of fire, disease and sword?
Nay, for earth shall bow before her Lord,
Shall give up our cherished dead;
Then peace reigns forever,
Discord enters never.

THE GRAVE.

J. W. THOMAS.

"The grave is mine house." JOB 17:13.

Where are the dead? Some say in heaven, some say in hell, some say in an intermediate state; but what says the Bible? To the law and to the testimony; if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them. Where did Abraham put Sarah? "Abraham buried Sarah his wife in the cave of the field of Machpelah, before Mamre: the same is Hebron, in the land of Canaan." Where did they put Abraham? "Then Abraham gave up the ghost, and died in a good old age, an old man, and full of years; and was gathered to his people. And his sons, Isaac and Ishmael, buried him in the cave of Machpelah." In this ancient family burying ground, the patriarchs were buried. Jacob said to his son Joseph, "Lo, I die; in my grave, which I have digged for me in the land of Canaan, there shalt thou bury me." Here Joseph wished to be buried, and he said to the children of Israel, "God will surely visit you, and ye shall carry up my bones from hence."

Job, the patriarch of Uz, exclaimed in view of his own death, "O that thou wouldst hide me in the grave." "I know that thou wilt bring me to death, and to the house appointed for all living." "If I wait, the grave is mine house." With this accord the words of Solomon: "All go unto one place; all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again." From dust man was created, dust he is called while living, and to dust he must return when he dies. What have we then to be proud of? The great, the good, the noble, the learned, the benevolent, the beautiful, have passed away. Patriarchs, prophets, apostles, saints, martyrs, young and old, rich and poor, have all met in this great reception room. However proud we may be of our beauty, or wealth, or relatives, or titles, or position in society, here we must part with all. We brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out. Of the rich man, who dressed in purple, and fine linen, and fared sumptuously every day, it is said,—"He died, and was buried."

"How loved, how valued once, avails thee not;
To whom related, or by whom begot:
A heap of dust alone remains of thee;
'Tis all thou art, and all the proud shall be."

The grave may be considered as a universal receptacle. Though the memorials of death do not everywhere meet our eye, and particular places are properly appropriated for interment, and some of them are very capacious and crowded; yet there is scarcely a spot, that holds not some portion of humanity. Perhaps some one has been turned to dust beneath the very place where you are now sitting.

Where is the dust that has not been alive?
The spade, the plough, disturbs our ancestors;
From human mould we reap our daily bread.
O'er devastations we blind rebels keep,
Whole buried towns support the dancer's heel.
As nature wide our ruins spread; and death
Inhabits all things, and will until the coming of the Son of man."

If the grave is a universal receptacle, then how painful its separations. It severs the tenderest ties. Thy father, thy mother, thy sister, thy brother, thy wife, thy husband, thy child, thy friend. Who has not some spot the dearest on earth, and rendered sacred by a deposit more precious than gold? Yonder goes Mary to weep for Lazarus, and friend to weep for friend. Death draws his dividing lines through all circles. We are related to the dead as well as to the living. Who has not sustained some bereavement? "Lover and friend hast thou put far from me." Then how personal its claims. Can I escape it? If it be appointed for all living, it must require me. No, I cannot escape. I may escape a thousand other things that befall my fellow creatures, but I must follow them here. I see, in their end, the emblem, the pledge, the certainty, of my own. No privilege can exempt me here. I am going the way of all the earth. "If I wait, the grave is mine house." Solemn thought!

But the grave, to a christian, is a sweet resting place until the morning of glory dawns. It is the dress-chamber in which he puts on his beautiful garments, to arise and meet the Lord in the air. But to others, it is the cell of condemnation, in which the malefactor is lodged till he is led out to punishment. They "that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt." Reader, what will be your destiny beyond the grave?

WOMEN WANTED.

S. H. PLATT.

The world is more than half feminine, yet it is perishing for want of women. Barbarism makes females slaves. Chivalry makes them ladies. Christianity makes them women.

Women are wanted. Not feminine personifications of soulless gentility; not aping copyists of fashion's fooleries. Not empty echoes of small-talk twaddle. Not sentimental simpletons, nor radical revolutionists, nor whimpering croakers, nor spectacled wiseacres, but women—females of heart, and sense, and nerve—to feel, to plan, and to do.

Such women are wanted. Not females fondling red-eyed lap-dogs, and dying their souls in the crime of fœtal murder, ignoring the sacred instincts of their sex, and repudiating the holy martyrdom of motherhood, merging all ambition in the desire for ease, or the lust to shine, and all godly obedience in devotion to pampered self.

In God's universe there is no room for such. They are mal-adjusted to all conditions, all relations, all beneficent designs. They are hideous burlesques upon womanhood, satanic satires upon human frailty and folly—not wanted—not wanted—there is no room for them.

Life is too full of impending perils, too burdened with crushing responsibilities, swept by too many sirroccos of perdition, smothered with too fearful fire-damps of hell, to give such breathing tinder-sparks a place. No room for them!

But the world's great heart aches for women. For kind souls, tender souls, loving souls—calm, sunny, patient, tireless, heroic souls—whose instincts are right, whose affections are pure, whose purposes are true, whose sympathies are kind, whose ambitions climb toward God, whose characters crystallize grace, whose hearts enshrine duty, whose lives embody sacrifice, whose influence perfumes the ages, whose examples land-lock the roll of passion, and whose prayers impeach fatality, ungrip the hand of destiny, and lift the helpless into the arms of the All-helpful.

Such women are wanted. Wanted wherever the lonely home is unblest with the stirrings of embryo humanity; wanted whereverer childhood's receptivity invites the moulding; wherever the fair fruits of blushing girlhood tempt the ever-ready hand of the spoiler; wherever the rash inexperience of boyhood plunges toward ruin, or the headstrong impetuosity of young manhood needs bridling; wherever the great heart-sponge, which men call business, sucks the juices out of domestic life, or absorbs overflow of religious zeal; wherever disappointment pines, or grief ensables herself, or trouble frowns, or guilt glares, or penitence deplores, or fear trembles.

Such women are wanted. In homes and hospitals, in stores and schools, in churches and colleges, in asylums and alms-houses, in societies and sanctums; wherever the breath of heaven is needed to purify the befouled atmosphere of earth, in prisons or in palaces, in pulpits or at the polls, wherever man needs linking through the affinities of his better self to a higher sphere—there women are wanted.

Blessed are they who behold the beckonings of opportunity! Thrice blessed they who seize his forelock, and are borne into the broad fields of Privilege, prepared to reap the golden harvest of the hour.

My sister, would'st thou be one? First know the exorcism of Magdalene. No devil of desire or indulgence can possess the soul in this high ministry. Thy Master will occupy no pre-empted throne. Surrender all. The captivity of the bride is her triumph! In surrendering is victory!

After self-negation power is born. The linkings of consecrated wills are stapled to the throne. When self-abeyance is complete, rise in the consciousness of inspired self-assertion—and claim thy heritage. Take all! All loving dispositions, all long-suffering patience, all commanding faith, all endowment of power, all richness of fruitage, all joy in the Lord—and you shall be a wanted woman—Christian Standard.

REJOICE EVERMORE.

J. W. BURROUGHS.

The apostle Paul had been writing upon the glorious theme of the second advent of our blessed Savior, when he penned the above language to his Thessalonian brethren; and his heart was illuminated with the resurrection of the dead, and being "caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air," and there to remain with the Blessed of all ages, "until the indignation [of God's wrath] be overpassed," forever free from all the contaminations of this world, to "rejoice evermore." I, too, rejoice, when I read the precious promise that we shall be forever with the Lord, free from all the snares and devices of the adversary, to dwell with all those dear ones that we have laid away to sleep. Yes, they'll be there.

My dear brethren, what a glorious prospect is just before us. Can we not rejoice forevermore? Though we are surrounded with foes on every side, yet the true christian has great reason to rejoice, and if ever we have reason to rejoice, it is now. Here we are, just before the dawn of that glorious morn of eternal day. The prophetic word is almost full, and the signs of the times show us positively that Jesus our blessed Master is about to come the second time, when he will shut the door of mercy forever. Then hope for our race will be forever ended. "For he cometh to judge the . . world with righteousness, and the people with his truth."

Dear brethren, let us work diligently while probation continues. Jesus is soon coming. Let us be found on duty, watching, praying, preaching and rejoicing in hope of speedy redemption.

It is not the amount of power, influence, or position that secures happiness, but how you enjoy them.

STICK TO THE FOUNDATION.

Our lot is fallen in times when, on the one hand, the very foundations of the faith are shaken by those who ought to be its chief defenders; and on the other, a superstructure of wood, hay, and stubble, is raised upon the foundation, almost equally perilous to the safety of those who trust themselves upon it. And men are asking, Where is there any resting place amidst this deluge of unbelief and false doctrine with which the whole earth is overspread? But why such a question? Is not the ark of God's word floating high over it, offering a secure, a permanent resting-place to every weary and heavy-laden soul that seeks a refuge in it? Is not the ark of God's testimony spread open before you?

Keep close to God's own word. Let no man, call himself what he will, move you from the foundation. And amidst all the varied interpretations of that word, keep to that which a prayerful, earnest, and diligent perusal of it carries home to your conscience. When you stand before the bar of God hereafter, no dependence upon human teaching will be your vindication for not having acted upon God's word as he gave it to you. He who allows any man to come between him and God's message to him, must take the consequence of preferring man's word to God's.—Dean Goode.

CLING TO JESUS.

Cling to the Crucified!
His death is life to thee—
Life for eternity.
His pains thy pardon seal;
His stripes thy bruises heal;
His cross proclaims thy peace,
Bids every sorrow cease.
His blood is all to thee,
It purgeth thee from sin;
It sets thy spirit free;
It keeps thy conscience clean—
Cling to the Crucified.

"DOCTRINE OF ENTIRE HOLINESS IN THIS LIFE."

Our failure to believe in the attainability of a present entire holiness involves a disbelief of one or more of the following propositions:

1. The atonement fails to make entire holiness attainable in this life.
2. The Bible does not promise such a present condition.
3. Death must complete the destruction of sin.

If death completes the work, then we have two Saviors—Christ and death. Not only so, but the philosophy of such a death purgatory is as bad as the theology, because if death is the effect of sin, then sin the effect is destroyed by its cause; namely, sin.

I shall not argue whether he who created us possesses power to impart "entire holiness in this life." The only legitimate issue is, does the atonement scheme as presented in the Scriptures offer entire holiness in this life?

Paul says: "And the very God of peace sanctify you wholly; and I pray God your whole spirit, and soul, and body, be preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ."

The merest tyro in grammatical criticism knows that the present tense is here used. He does not pray that death may kindly come to the rescue and finish the work of the atonement—he does not pray that this work of "sanctification" "wholly" may be consummated after death. He shows that this "whole sanctification" has deeper depths and higher heights. Whatever the exegetical critics may say of the Greek words here rendered "soul, and body, and spirit"—may say as to the meaning of the terms in classic Greek, I presume no biblical critic will deny that the apostle completely embraces in his Hellenistic Greek the whole man, styled in modern phrase, "physical, mental, and moral nature." He prays that they may "be preserved blameless." Of course they must first be made "blameless" before they could be "preserved blameless" in entire holiness. Does Paul pray that they may "be preserved blameless" in heaven, after having passed through a death purgatory? No one doubts that the saints in heaven will "be preserved blameless." Such a thing could not be an object of inspired prayer. Of course then the preservation in complete holiness is in this life.

It is worthy of special consideration that Paul urges immediate, entire holiness upon those who had already attained justification. He addresses them as "brethren beloved" whose "election is of God." This proves that entire holiness is not imparted in justification. Hence Count Zinzendorff and others are in error who teach that complete holiness is given simultaneously with justification. As at the time Paul wrote, the Thessalonians, or a portion of them, were not "wholly sanctified;" though previously justified, he of course speaks of the attainment—entire holiness as a future attainment—after the reception of his letter to them, but he gives no intimation that he is praying for a death purgatory. He prays for a present, practical blessing. To encourage a practical attainment of this entire holiness the apostle says: "Faithful is he that calleth you, who also will do it." Can we not trust the power and faithfulness of our God?

"If we say that we have no sin" previous to our justification or complete sanctification, "we deceive ourselves and the truth is not in us. If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all iniquity." Certainly no one will dispute that to be cleansed from all iniquity is synonymous with entire holiness. John uses the present tense—showing that it is attainable "in this life." There is not the remotest intimation that there is a death purgatory.

Again John says: "These things I write to you that ye sin not." Wonderful! Will not John allow saints to commit some sin—enough to make them humble? Is not a state in which persons do not commit sin equivalent to entire holiness?

There are reasons a priori to induce us to expect the attainment of "entire holiness in this life." As God is infinitely holy himself, we might reasonably suppose that he prefers entire holiness in this life. The infinitude of the atonement should lead us to expect it. Ministers and people generally, if fully saved, are prepared to do more good in this life. If the gospel scheme only removes a part of our sin in this life, something more definite ought to be known. It is certainly useless to pray for entire holiness in this life if it cannot be attained. The Bible should reveal how much sin can be removed, so that our prayers could be definite. If the atonement-scheme cannot in this life cleanse from the heart more than three-fourths or ninety-nine one hundredths of our impurity, let the Bible say so.

We confidently conclude, therefore, that a scheme that cannot or does not save man fully from sin in this life is unworthy of God—untaught in his word, and inconsistent with the heavenly mission of Him who came to save "his people from their sins," not in their sins.—Guide to Holiness.

REPORT OF TENT MEETING AT BELGRADE.

June 2nd, we pitched our new tent in Belgrade, Me. This place was among the first in which we preached the coming of Jesus at hand. Sixteen years have passed away since we first proclaimed these blessed truths to that people. Many have been led to rejoice in its glorious light, and they still stand firm in the faith of the gospel. Others have fallen by the enemy death, to await their call in the morning to shout victory over the grave through Jesus their life-giver.

Some were disappointed, as they expected Bro. Grant or Bro. Couch to speak the words of truth to them. Many came from abroad to unite with us in our mission work. Our meetings were very good. On Sunday Bro. F. E. Blaisdell was ordained for the ministry, by laying on of hands; Bro. Lamson making the prayer, H. B. Sevey giving the charge, and Bro. Rines the right hand of fellowship. At the close of the afternoon service we repaired to the water, where Bro. Blaisdell immersed two in the likeness of Jesus' death. It was a blessed sight to see him lead his brother and his brother's wife into the water. May they follow Jesus in newness of life, that they may be made like him at his coming.

We closed our meeting Sunday evening, thinking it best not to make a long stop in an old place. Our work is in new places; our message, Jesus' soon coming, and a full consecration to him necessary for a preparation for the event. I am satisfied our work is almost done. Were it not for the blessed Bible, that sheds its light upon our age, I think I should give up and go back to other churches, as many of our brethren have done; but with the light that shines more and more upon my pathway, I say in the language of one—"As well may the eagle go back to the egg," as for me to go back, or keep these precious truths within my own heart. How our Brn. can preach in one place, and leave out the coming of Jesus, is a mystery to me.

Dear Brn., is not the coming of Jesus that which called us out as a distinct people? Jesus says, Blessed is that servant who is found "giving meat in due season." I am satisfied those servants are now living. One class will have it said, "Well done"; the other will have their portion with the hypocrites. Dear Brn., may we be found faithful, is my prayer, and soon share the glories of the everlasting kingdom with all the redeemed through Christ. Amen.

FRUIT AS FOOD.

The strawberry season is rapidly approaching. Every family, with very few exceptions, should have a full supply of its own. Most families might, with little care and expense, be able to pick from their own vines all they desire for family use. And how many vines, think you, are necessary to furnish such abundant supply each and every season? . . .

I speak of this berry, thus timely, because of its earliest ripening in our temperate climate; but other fruits can be raised as easily, if not more surely, by nearly every family of health reformers, if they can be made to realize that fruit is for some higher purpose than to be used as a mere relish, a tickler of the palate, or for sensuous enjoyment. The grape, especially, may be made to contribute in scores of pounds of the best fruit food in its season, from every vine planted and properly cared for, in localities now barren of profit—those neglected, out-of-the way places on nearly all village lots, where, seeking altitude and sunlight, the prolific vine would be out of the way on the high trellis; while the roots sought and obtained the requisite food beneath the walk, the alley, the turf, and refuse heaps of the inclosure. And so we might plead the claims of the currant and other berries, of tree and shrub, each the bearer of desirable food for daily home use.

Why do children so crave all kinds of fruit if there is not a positive demand for them on the part of their growing natures? And why do "children of a larger growth" especially demand the acid fruits of spring and early summer—fruits like the strawberry and cherry—if there is not an imperative demand on the part of their bodies for such food? . . .

There are some families who are never bilious in spring time; who never feel any of the common ills which afflict the majority, for they have partaken freely the whole winter through of all the fruit they desired, eating of it freely and abundantly at each regular meal; such fruit, like the apple, pear, or grape, kept in their fresh state from the autumn's careful gathering, or, like the peach, plum, cherry, fig, apricot, or nectarine—dried or canned—no sugars or other mixtures being either allowed or desired, each being used on its own intrinsic worth, as the appetite might crave.—Her. of Health.

The CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

LIGHT OF THE MORNING, COME!

Star of the promised morning, rise!
Star of the throbbing wave,
Ascend! and o'er the sable brine,
With resurrection splendor shine,
Burst through the clouds with beams divine,
Mighty to shine and save.

O, morning Star! O, risen Lord!
Destroyer of the tomb!
Star of the living and the dead,
Lift up at length thy long-veiled head,
O'er land and sea thy glories shed;
Light of the morning, come!

Into each tomb thy radiance pour;
Let life, not death prevail;
Make haste, great Conqueror, make haste!
Call up the dead of ages past,
Gather thy precious gems at last
From ocean's deepest vail.

Speak, Mighty Life, and wake the dead!
Like statue from the stone,
Like music from long broken strings,
Like gushings from deserted springs,
Like dew upon the dawn's soft wings,
Rouse each beloved one.

HOLINESS TO THE LORD.

F. P. DINGLEY.

David says:—"Holiness becometh thine house, O Lord, forever." The Lord purposed in creating the earth, to have it inhabited by holy beings. He created man in his own image, caused him to become a living being, pronounced him very good, and placed him over the works of his hands. He gave him a law to keep, and the penalty attached to the breaking of that law was death. "And God blessed them; and God said unto them, Be fruitful and multiply and replenish the earth and subdue it; and have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over every living thing that moveth upon the earth."

Paul says:—Know ye not that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness?" Man yielded to Satan, disobeyed his Maker, and broke the divine law. By so doing he lost his goodness, lost his right to have dominion; in other words, he lost everything which the Lord had placed in his hands. He became unfit to subdue the earth; for in yielding to Satan he became his servant. He was sold under sin.

His life was forfeited. The law demanded it. What is to be done? What can be done? It would be useless to set him on probation again, unless there is a way opened whereby he can be saved from sin —made and kept free from it. For unless such a way is opened, he would be no better off at the end of his second probation than he was then. Cannot such a way be opened? Cannot man be purchased again from his fallen condition? What will satisfy the demand of the law? Nothing but the death of one upon whom the law has no demand. Who would venture to die for fallen man? Who would dare to undertake his case? Is there any one? If there is not, the world, and what was created during the six days, would have been created in vain. The Lord's purpose would have been thwarted by Satan. But hark! a voice is heard:—"Lo, I come to do thy will, O God." It is enough. Set man on probation again. Behold the first pair are saved from eternal death—eternal ruin. "For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be rich." The kingdom of heaven is like unto treasure hid in a field; the which when a man hath found, he hideth, and, for joy thereof, goeth and selleth all that he hath, and buyeth that field."

In due time, Jesus stripped himself of his heavenly glory, took on himself the seed of Abraham, became obedient to death, even the death of the cross, to save man from the penalty of that law which he broke, and to obtain power to bring that which was lost into the same position that it would have been, if man had not sinned. As man yielded to Satan, gave his heart to him, the Lord suffered Satan to bear rule over him to a certain extent during his probation, so that he might see the great misstep which he made, turn to God, receive pardon, and learn the ways of obedience; and lest man should love that over which Satan bears rule, we hear Jehovah saying, "Cursed is the ground for thy sake."

Some say that the words, "in the day that thou eatest thereof," should read "after the day." Some say that that day was a thousand years long, and Adam died during that day. Some say that Adam was reprieved for nine hundred and thirty years, and then died that death.

But it seems to me that, in such a case, the salvation which Adam then experienced would not be complete. Some time ago, I recollect of seeing an article in a paper, in which the writer stated that the reason of Adam's dying was because he poisoned his system by eating of the tree of knowledge of good and evil. But I think such an argument would be rather slim on the side of the defender. Some say that man died spiritually the day he ate of the forbidden fruit. So I am inclined to believe; but still a spiritual death is not the penalty of the law which he broke. It is not the death spoken of in Genesis 2:17. That death demanded man's life. I do not believe that man has yet, or ever will, die that death. Jesus tasted that death instead of every man. Man was completely saved from that death.

Jesus was as a Lamb slain from the foundation of the world. The reason of our dying now is because our bodies lack that nourishment which only the tree of life can give. Please read Gen. 3:23, 24. Adam and his posterity die because of his transgression. The tree of life was removed, so that they could not eat and live forever; but they will all—both just and unjust—be made alive, to receive that life or death set before them in the gospel. Man was set back again on probation for the same length of time, and just the same as at first, with the exception of having Satan as a ruler during probationary days, and having the tree of life removed which resulted in this first death.

We can understand now what is meant in John 3:36, and 8:52. The life spoken of here, which the wicked will not see, and the death which the righteous will not die, is that life and death set forth in the gospel. He that keepeth Jesus' sayings, will not taste of that death: of course then he that does not keep his sayings will taste of it; and must be raised from the dead in order to do so. This first death is the penalty of no law. The Bible terms it only a sleep. I am glad that it is just as it is, and hope that the awakening time will come very soon.

If Adam was exempted from the penalty of that law, at that time, the whole human family must have experienced a salvation in him. It would be common to all. This may not be the common salvation of which Jude spoke; but it is common salvation, because it is common to all. All have experienced it. So far Jesus is a common Savior—a Savior of all men. It is through him that we live, and move, and have our being. If Jesus had not promised to undertake man's part, the whole human family would have died in Adam, the day that he eat of the forbidden fruit; and it is through Jesus that we have this life. He is the author of it. He is the Prince of life.

Special salvation is salvation from sin. Eternal salvation is from eternal death—"the second death." Special salvation is to those that believe in Jesus as a present Savior. Eternal salvation is to those that believe in Jesus as their present and future Savior, and obey him in all things. If man was not exempted, but only reprieved for a short time from the penalty of that law, there would not be completeness in that salvation. If special salvation does not save us entirely from sin, it would not of itself be complete. But now common (that which we have through Adam), special and eternal salvation are each of themselves complete. It was in view of eternal salvation that we are now spared; it was also in view of special salvation. Without special salvation, there will be no eternal salvation, and the whole thing will be an entire failure. The whole foundation of God rests on this doctrine of special salvation—salvation from sin, which is "true holiness." Then let us talk holiness, write it, and preach it every where. Why not?

Help was laid upon one that was mighty. Man in his fall lost all that he had. Jesus gave every thing that he had to redeem him, even his own existence. While on the cross, he bowed his head and breathed out his life. He was dead. But God raised him from the dead. He raised him for the purpose of completing the great work he had already begun—the redemption of fallen man. "But now (God) commandeth all men every where to repent; because he hath appointed a day, in the which he will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom he hath ordained; whereof he hath given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead. He remained on the earth forty days after his resurrection; then he led his disciples out as far as Bethany, and lifted up his hands and blessed them; while he was blessing them, he was parted from them, and carried up to heaven.

We have the assurance that he will come again from the far country to complete his great work. God raised him up for this purpose. We can trust him. Paul believed in Jesus as the Savior of all men, and the present Savior of those that believed, and could trust him. Hear him say:—"For therefore we both labor and suffer reproach, because we trust in the living God, who is the Savior of all men, specially of those that believe." When the proper time comes, Jesus will leave the mercy seat, and come forth to bless his people—the holy ones—and to re-establish the earth, carrying out the Creator's design in its creation.

If we would be among his people then, we must be made holy previous to that time; for without holiness no man shall see the Lord. Our future is sealed before Jesus leaves the mercy seat. At the judgment day, he that is unjust will be unjust still; he that is filthy will be filthy still; he that is righteous will be righteous still; and he that is holy will be holy still. No change will then take place in character.

MANY admire Christ's wisdom who will not be guided by it.

SPIRITUAL ADULTERY.

J. R. SMITH.

"The woman which hath an husband is bound by the law to her husband, so long as he liveth; but if the husband be dead, she is loosed from the law of her husband. So, then, if while her husband liveth she be married to another man, she shall be called an adulteress; but if her husband be dead, she is free from that law; so that she is no adulteress, though she be married to another man. Wherefore, my brethren, ye also are become dead to the law by the body of Christ, that ye should be married to another, even to Him who is raised from the dead, that we should bring forth fruit unto God."

They that are Christ's have crucified the flesh with the affections, and have made no provisions to fulfill the lusts thereof. When Rebecca consented to be conducted to Isaac, she had some sacrifice to make, and was willing to give up father and mother, kindred and friends, and freely consented that every bridge behind her should be burned, and that every obstacle should be removed, to prevent her return to the land of her birth. She had pledged her hand and heart to another, and with them she had transferred her interests and her affections. There was no reservation on the part of Rebecca; she made a full, final, and unconditional surrender. But, oh, how many there are in the nominal church to-day, whose hands are pledged, and whose names are written upon the church books as the promised bride of Christ, and yet are looking back towards Egypt, having never burned the bridges behind them. They profess to be united to Christ, and yet are dying a lingering death for the want of that constancy and decision that governed Rebecca.

For the want of these religious principles, what vast multitudes have made shipwreck of their domestic bliss, and domestic faith. For the lack of these principles, our legislatures and courts are thronged with applicants to be released from the obligations of their marital vows; and for the want of these the church and the world are filled with divorced members of the mystical body of Christ. They are striving to serve God and the world; professing to be united to Christ, and yet billing and cooing with their old paramours. They honor Christ with their lips, and draw nigh to him with words, while their hearts are given to another. They call him Lord, Lord, and do not the things which he commands them. They once received the word with joy; but their joy and faith in God were like the morning dew and the early cloud, which soon vanished away. When afflictions and trials came, when reproach and persecutions gathered around them, their courage failed, and their little stock of grace vanished like the mirage in the desert. They profess to be united to Christ; they have a name to live, and yet they are dead—dead weights—living stumbling blocks, that clog the wheels of the car of salvation. They neither enjoy communion with God, nor the fellowship of saints; and consequently, they are of all men the most miserable. They have fed on the leeks and onions of Egypt so long, that they have no relish for manna, or the grapes of Eschol.

They were once lights in the world, but their light has become darkness; and oh, how great is that darkness! They have never suffered the sub-soil plow to go deep enough to break up the fallow ground of their hearts, and turn up the roots of bitterness to wither and die in the divine sunlight of God's blessed truth. The outward surface appears smooth and fair to look upon, but underlying all this fair surface is a strata of rock which has never been disturbed; and if the gospel plow could be allowed to enter deep enough to bring it out, and turn it up to the light so that men could look at it and see it as God sees it, they would be surprised to see the amount of rottenness and dead men's bones which underlies this fair surface. As multitudes anciently followed Christ for the loaves and the fishes, which under his divine benediction multiplied, and famishing multitudes were satisfied; so they follow him to-day. They often run well for season, but not having burned the bridges behind them, they are looking back towards Sodom, and sighing for the leeks and onions of Egypt. They never started with a full determination to gain the promised land; consequently, they have found the cross of Christ to be heavy. They have found the road to be rough and thorny, and confess to have made many crooked paths; and by their vacillating course and inconstancy to Christ, they have become alienated from the life of God. They are drones in the church, gathering no honey for themselves, but standing in the way of others, and discouraging by their example the workers in the hive. They are no helpmates to their affianced husband in his glorious undertaking, and their sham marriage will be nullified when Christ shall gather his lawful bride.

When those who have made a covenant with him by sacrifice shall be gathered into the banqueting halls of the royal Bridegroom, while the false and disloyal bride will be forever banished from his presence, none but those having on the wedding garment will be admitted into the bridal chamber. "There shall in no wise enter into it anything that defileth, neither whatsoever worketh abomination or maketh a lie; but they which are written in the Lamb's book of life." The Bridegroom will have a pure bride. He loved her and gave himself for her; and when the grand coronation day shall be ushered in, and the marriage ceremonies shall be celebrated, she will be presented unto him faultless; and she will be a glorious bride, arrayed in her robes of royalty, without a spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing. She will be a chaste virgin, holy, undefiled, and without blemish. May the Lord help us so to live that we may keep our garments pure, and unspotted from the world, with our loins girt about, and our lights burning; watching and waiting for the coming of the royal Bridegroom.

REVELATION 16:13.

J. P. MARQUAND.

"I saw three unclean spirits, like frogs, come out of the mouth of the dragon, the beast, and the false prophet."

The book of Revelation being a book of symbols, let us analyze this text. We are told by our brethren that the dragon means the military power, the beast means the civil power, and the false prophet means the ecclesiastical power. For the sake of argument we will admit it; and now what are the three unclean spirits that come out of them, who are said to perform so important a work in the last days, even to gather the whole world to a general conflict? We answer, that they are unclean, and resemble frogs, who are filthy animals, living in muddy water and on the land. In searching the Bible to find out the character of these spirits, we would call them the world, the flesh, and the devil; or, the lusts of the eye, the lusts of the flesh, and the pride of life. We would go still further, and call them sin, death, and hell. These three spirits are said to "work miracles"; that is, to be invested with power; and they are to work out a great problem, to unite and gather all the wicked in the earth and under the earth in one grand Waterloo battle.

The time of this battle is close at hand. It is the last one that shall ever stain this earth. It will be the counterpart of the one that took place in the heavens when Michael and his angels fought, and "Satan fell like lightning from heaven," and came down to this earth. It will be a conflict between light and darkness, between truth and error, between right and wrong, between God and Satan. Every christian knows what will be the result of this battle; the arch enemy of God and man, the accuser of the brethren, will be cast down and put to flight, and go to his own place, with all his numerous allies and friends. A lake of fire will be prepared, which will consume and make an utter end of all evil; then there will arise out of the smoke and debris of this last battle "a new heavens and a new earth," wherein God will reign in and through his saints; and this will finish up all things. Then will be heard the everlasting song welling up from millions of the redeemed—Jehovah hath triumphed, his people are free. The ransomed of the Lord shall then return to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads, and sorrow and sighing will flee away forever. Then we shall look back at all the way that God hath led us, and see how great is the deliverance from our sad state of sighs, sorrows, tears, doubts, fears, anxieties, perplexities and tumults; and in ecstasy of joy give God the glory, and ascribe to him honor, power and majesty forever and ever.

Poor, weary, tried child, can you not gather a little strength in looking at "the recompense of the reward"? Come, derive a little comfort from anticipation, and say in your heart, I will continue to struggle on in doing right, and trust God who has said, "Unto the upright there ariseth light in the darkness." All things shall work together for good to those who work righteousness, and live out the truth. Many spirits are gone out into the world, and they have taken on them the form of Antichrist; therefore, believe not every spirit, but compare them with the truth and the Scriptures, and if they speak not according to the law and the testimony, reject them; but pray for the baptism of God's Holy Spirit, which will lead you into all truth, and into Christ, and give you patience, love, bowels of mercy, tenderness, long-suffering, and virtue. This earth is soon to be the theatre of the grandest display of God's power ever known—the last-day battle. Which side are you on, neighbor? and for whom do you fight? Are you equipped and ready? Do you see the leader—King Immanuel—his bright robes and dazzling purity, his majestic air, his noble heart, his loving face? and are you ready to say, This is our King, Brother, and God; we have waited for him, and he will save us?

CHRIST IN YOU THE HOPE OF GLORY.

Most sublime thought! And is it possible? Truly it is even so, for he has said, "Behold, I stand at the door and knock; if any man hear my voice and open the door, I will come in unto him, and will sup with him and he with me." Glory to God! While I am penning these very thoughts I feel the power indeed within. Oh, how grand! "I am the vine, ye are the branches. He that abideth in me and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit, for without me ye can do nothing."

The plan of God is to make us his own children; therefore, we must be partakers of the divine nature, which is life of itself. We read, "But if the spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his spirit that dwelleth in you." Jesus exhorts us to do the same, inasmuch that he hath said, "Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus, who, being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God." Jesus humbled himself, and if Jesus be in us and we in him, we shall be of the same mind; and if so, we shall be exalted in due time. "For it is God that worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure."

Jesus suffered, and if we have Christ in us we shall also suffer. Peter said, "Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an example, that ye should follow in his steps, who did no sin, neither was guile found in his mouth. Who when he was reviled, reviled not again; when he suffered he threatened not, but committed himself to him that judgeth righteously."

"Christ in you the hope of glory!" Have we Christ in us? Is he being built up in us? Do we bear the fruits of the Spirit, which are love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, and temperance? Do we have these fruits, or is the carnal mind in us? Are we merely dreaming of Christ and of his kingdom, or have we Christ in us? If Christ, be in us, then the affections and lusts of the flesh have been crucified. Let us stop and reflect a moment. Is Christ in you? Do you hunger and thirst after righteousness? If you do, let Jesus come in. Grieve him not, for he loves you, even unto death. Shall we accept him? God grant that we may before it is too late. Jesus has gone away, but he will come again. He said, "I go to prepare a place for you, and if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself, that where I am there ye may be also."—Token of Truth.

ADVICE.

"Giving no offence in anything, that the ministry be not blamed."—2 Cor. 6:3.

There is no position that man has ever been called of God to occupy, which is so responsible, as that of a gospel minister. Although not many wise men after the flesh, or mighty, or noble, are called, as Paul says in 1 Cor. 1:26, 27; and that God hath chosen the foolish things of this world to confound the wise; yet Paul says in writing to Timothy respecting a bishop or pastor (Webster)—"Not a novice, lest being lifted up with pride he fall into the condemnation of the devil." Therefore, it is very important that we should understand the sense in which these words were spoken. It is evident our help must be from God; yet we must be workers together with him, and study to show ourselves approved of God. The relation of pastor and church is very sacred, and should be sustained with the utmost care to avoid offence or blame; for Jesus says—"Be ye therefore wise as serpents, and harmless as doves." Offence or blame is more easily avoided then reconciled; therefore a church should work in harmony with their minister or pastor, and all should work as a unit. But should there be some that could not work with their minister, then, if possible, get a minister that all can work with, that no offence be given and the ministry be not blamed.

Thirty-three years of experience in pastoral duties have taught me many useful lessons, and perhaps a few hints on the subject would not be out of place. A minister should never insist, or even consent, to remain as pastor to any church, if there is an honorable minority opposed to his remaining, though his situation be ever so lucrative; for should he persist and remain under such circumstances, the result would be to his injury, and the injury of the church in the end.

A minister should never speculate out of his brother ministers, although he may conclude their talents ever so much inferior to his; for we should do to others as we would wish others to do by us, and esteem others better than ourselves.

A minister should never omit the truth, or court the applause of men, or the popularity of the world, for the sake of friends; for Jesus says if we love the world, the love of the Father is not in us.

A minister should never undertake to build himself up on the downfall or ruin of others; for Jesus said—"With what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again."

A minister should respect the poor, and visit them, and adapt himself to their wants, and be courteous and familiar with all, having a good report of them which are without, lest he fall into reproach, and into the snare of the devil.

A minister should give no occasion for ill names, such as sticking-plaster, stingy, covetous, lazy, partial to the rich, tattler, crosspatch in his family, and swineish; but he should be a man of common sense, "giving no offence in anything, that the ministry be not blamed; but in all things approving" himself as a minister of God, "in much patience, in afflictions, in necessities, in distresses, in stripes, in imprisonments, in tumults, in labors, in watchings, in fastings, by pureness, by knowledge, by long-sufferings, by kindness, by the Holy Ghost, by love unfeigned, by the word of truth, by the power of God, by the armor of righteousness on the right hand and on the left, by honor and dishonor, by evil report and good report; as deceivers, and yet true; as unknown, and yet well known; as dying, and behold we live; as chastened, and not killed; as sorrowful, yet always rejoicing; as poor, yet making many rich; as having nothing, and yet possessing all things."

A minister should study human nature as well as theology, and adapt himself to the condition of the people, as Paul has said in 1 Cor. 9:22—"I am made all things to all men, that I might by all means save some." Some ministers lessen their influence and usefulness, or give offence, by long sermons, long prayers, and talking so long after they get through, wearying the congregation with unedifying remarks. Therefore, a minister should learn the wants of the people, and well mature his subjects, so as to give them the cream of his thoughts, and feed them with the bread and water of eternal life, so that the ministry be not blamed.—Religious Observer.

THE RESURRECTION OF JESUS.

J. H. CLARK.

"Come and see the place where the Lord lay."—MATTHEW 28:6.

These are the words of an angel from heaven. There is no doctrine of greater importance than the resurrection of Jesus. It is the key-stone of the christian arch, which spans the gulf of death. If Jesus is not risen from the dead, his whole mission is a lie, and the end of all men is that they perish. The apostle Paul was not mad (as Festus affirmed) when he preached the resurrection as the hope of the fathers. While persecuting the church, and hailing men and women to prison, the Lord met him in the way, and he was stricken down by the light that shone from heaven, and the voice said, Saul, Saul, "why persecutest thou me?" Paul never forgot those three days of blindness. He saw the Lord, and heard his voice. Nothing could ever after this shake the faith of Paul. He affirms that Christ "was seen of Cephas, then of the twelve, after that he was seen of above five hundred brethren at once; of whom the greater part remained unto this present, but some are fallen asleep. After that, he was seen of James, then of all the apostles; and last of all, he was seen of me also, as of one born out of due time."

Paul was confident. He knew; and in writing to the Corinthians, who seemed to be doubting his authority, he said, "Have I not seen Jesus Christ our Lord?" The disciples were ignorant of the resurrection of Jesus. And after the death of their Master, they were in a state of despondency, verging on despair, which seized them soon after the crucifixion. All was darkness during the three days the Savior lay in the grave. "One trusted that it had been he which should have redeemed Israel; and besides all this, to-day is the third day since these things were done." The depth of their disappointment is revealed by the simplicity of this testimony. They had no hope; not the faintest ray relieved the midnight gloom that had already enwrapped their spirits. "This is the third day," and they were about to resume their former avocations, and pass by the whole thing as a delusion. The friends of Jesus desponding, his enemies triumphing over his death and burial, and to their minds an end put to the whole affair. And as a precaution against the dregs of fanaticism, they guarded the tomb until the excitement should have passed away.

Now, in the end of the Sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, very early in the morning, they came to the sepulchre, bringing the spices which they had prepared, and they found the stone rolled away from the door. For behold there was a great earthquake, and "the angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it. His countenance was like lightning, and his raiment white as snow." The keepers did shake, and became like dead men. And they (the disciples) entered in, and found not the body of the Lord Jesus. And "behold two men stood by them in shining garments," which said—"Why seek ye the living among the dead? He is not here, but is risen; remember how he spake unto you when he was yet in Galilee, saying, The Son of man must be delivered into the hands of sinful men, and be crucified, and the third day rise again. And they remembered his words." Luke 24:1–8.

There was no delusion in all this. The holy women had brought sweet spices, that they might come and anoint him, as soon as possible. After the Sabbath was past, the disciples came to show their affection to their supposed dead Jesus, by anointing him with the sweet spices which they had prepared for that occasion. Mary, the mother of Jesus, was one of those who came, whose heart was lacerated by the murder of her holy son. She had come, attended in her sorrow by others. They did not come expecting to witness a resurrected, living Savior, but her beloved dead son. They came weeping, sorrowing, and praying, to the grave of Jesus. No funeral dirge could speak with a voice of woe like those "sweet spices which they had brought that they might come and anoint him." This shows that they had no expectation of his resurrection. And when they found not Jesus in the sepulchre, they were perplexed. Just at this moment an angel answered and said unto them, "Fear not ye, for I know that ye seek Jesus which was crucified. He is not here; for he is risen, as he said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay; and go quickly, and tell his disciples that he is risen from the dead." The language of God's angel broke the gloom,—"He is risen, as he said." "He is not here." To satisfy the disciples that Jesus was not in the tomb, he says, "Come, see the place where the Lord lay."

Peter, on hearing the news, came quickly to the sepulchre, and went in and saw the place where the Lord had lain; but there was no Jesus there. He saw the linen clothes, and the napkin, that was about his head, wrapped together. He saw and believed. Blessed are they who believe, that have not seen.

Remember, as you draw near the door of the sepulchre, that Jesus has lain there before you. The dark mansions of the dead that were once so gloomy, are now lit up, from the fact that Jesus has arisen from the dead, and holds the keys of death and of hell. His glorious and triumphant resurrection gives hope to the believer in Christ, that when the last trump of God shall sound, the dead will come forth to life. Jesus went up to heaven, where he now sits at the right hand of power. He announced to John, on Patmos Isle, "I am he that liveth, and was dead; and behold, I am alive forevermore." When Jesus comes, we, who are his disciples, are to be made like his glorious body, and to live with him forever in his kingdom. May we be washed in his precious blood, and live worthy of such an exaltation.

PROMISES.

J. W. THOMAS.

"Exceeding great and precious." 2 PETER 1:4.

There is a great God in heaven. He has great wisdom, great glory, and great power. He made this great universe with a word, —the earth, with its oceans, seas, lakes, rivers, mountains, valleys, hills, forests, meadows and deserts; the firmament, with its sun, moon and stars. "All things were created by him, and for him." Surely he is a great being. But he is good, as well as great. He loves men,—poor, sinful, mortal men; and he has made great provisions for their present and eternal happiness. He has given them "exceeding great and precious promises, that by these" (that is, by faith in them), "they might escape the corruption that is in the world through lust, and be made partakers of the divine nature."

Men have sinned and gone away from God. If they will repent and come back, God has promised to forgive and receive them. Many great and precious promises are held out to induce men to return unto the Lord. Here is a promise of pardon: "Seek ye the Lord while he may be found; call ye upon him while he is near. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon." Isa. 55:6, 7.

Here is a promise of a new heart: "Then will I sprinkle clean wate upon you, and ye shall be clean; from all your filthiness, and from all yonr idols will I cleanse you. A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you; and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you an heart of flesh. And I will put my spirit within you, and cause you to walk in my statutes, and ye shall keep my judgments and do them." Ezekiel 36:25.

Here is a promise of full salvation: "For it pleased the Father that in him should all fulness dwell; and, having made peace through the blood of his cross, by him to reconcile all things unto himself; by him, I say, whether they be things in earth, or things in heaven. And you, that were sometime alienated and enemies in your mind by wicked works, yet now hath he reconciled in the body of his flesh through death, to present you holy, and unblameable, and unreproveable in his sight; if ye continue in the faith grounded and settled, and be not moved away from the hope of the gospel." Col. 1:19–23.

Here is a promise of the Holy Spirit. "Then Peter said unto them, Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost. For the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call." Acts 2:38, 39.

Here is a promise of constant peace in the midst of a stormy world. "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on thee; because he trusteth in thee. Trust ye in the Lord forever; for in the Lord Jehovah is everlasting strength." Isa. 26:3, 4. "These things I have spoken unto you, that in me ye might have peace. In the world ye shall have tribulation; but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." John 16:33.

"Godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come."

Here is a promise that our Savior will come again. "Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions; if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also." John 14:1–3.

Here is a promise touching the saints' inheritance: "We, according to his promise, look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness." 2 Pet. 3:13. Are not these exceeding great and precious promises? Are they yours? Do they comfort you and inspire you with hope? Thank the Lord for them. There are more in the Bible. Search and see. In the promises I trust.

CRUCIFIXION.

Men fall by exalting his own will above God's will; to be restored he must exalt God's will above his own will. That is the choice which Christ submits to each of us, the subjection of self-will to the righteous rule of the divine will; the crucifixion of self and the exaltation of Christ.

The Lord will do the crucifying if we will do the consenting; it is for us to choose and for him to perform; he will unlock the door and consent to a thorough renovation; he will stay the old man if we will surrender to his power. That is the policy of the gospel—to destroy and create anew; to crucify the flesh and enthrone the Spirit; to blot out the image of sin, and impart the image of holiness; to kill the old man, and create the new one after the likeness of Christ, in righteousness and true holiness.

The work begins at conversion, the flesh is kept under control as dead and buried, by the power of grace through faith. If we are able to reckon ourselves as dead, Jesus will make the reckoning true, for he is "able to keep us from falling," and in the resurrection, mortal flesh will be changed to glorified, spiritual bodies, and our redemption will be finished.—Baptist Union.

THE EUROPEAN SITUATION.

Europe has evidently been the principal theatre of prophetic development since the ending of the Jewish polity, the destruction of their city, and the manifestation of the Apocalyptic Babylon. All Bible students, who have watched the unfoldings of foretold events through the wonderful ages of christian development, have criticized with great interest the movements of European rulers and captains.

While Babylon was the mistress of the world, God taught his servants to turn their eyes to the land of Shinah, to witness the special manifestation of his controlling providences, guiding his church, and ruling the nations. When the time of Babylon's appointed rulership was drawing to its period, great events, chronicled in the sacred Book, were seen rising in threatening grandeur around and in the doomed city.

So it was with Persia and Grecia, each filling its prophetic mould, during its day, with events which attracted all eyes, and filled all hearts with hopes and fears of coming wars and great revolutions.

Following these in divine order came the Iron kingdom, with crushing tread, over a bloody path, to the earthly throne, laying its heavy hand upon the conquered kings of Europe, and floating its defiant eagle over a political world. When the terrible gates of her war temple opened, all the world trembled; and when her captains were seen marching her invincible warriors toward a city, all hearts fainted, and all its neighbors watched with sleepless anxiety to witness its death struggle.

Prophetic pens had written the dark history of a Roman Harlot, clad in gorgeous apparel, indelibly stained with the sacred blood of Jesus' friends. She became rich, and spake blasphemously, just as foretold; and during the appointed days of her bloody rule and haughty triumphs, all the world watched the signals of papal displeasure, and listened with fearful anxiety to hear the terrible thunders of the vatican bulls.

But those dark and fearfully tragic scenes were suddenly swept into the wonderful past when the Corsican, the rod of God's chastisement, marched the infidel Franks to the secret dens of inquisitorial wrath and the desecrated temples of proud and blasphemous priests, and forever broke the galling chain of priestly dictation.

Following these scenes of world-wide excitement, according to the prophetic calendar, the conquered mistress buries her eighth wedded lord in the grave of desertion, but proclaims herself no widow, and the ruler of earth, ecclesiastical and political, by divine appointment. This position will be assumed and proclaimed with "great words" (Dan. 7: 11), which will produce exterminating war between Roman priests and kings, or church and states, introductory to the closing scenes of the Roman period. Rev. 17: 16.

When the hand of Omnipotence brings these wonderful predictions out upon the dial of time's clock for their accomplishment, the eyes of all the world will be turned to see the movements of the antagonistic hosts, as they will be gathered by kings and priests for a great clash of arms—the last great battle. The question of strife will be so important, and the circumstances so alarming, that each party will call to arms all the warriors they can command, as the prophet said, "Let all the men of war draw near." The case will be so urgent, that they will call them from the field and shop, requiring less plowshares, and more swords, thus fulfilling the passage—"Beat your plowshares into swords, and your pruning hooks into spears." These events are presented as introductory to "the day of the Lord," when the angel shall "put in the sickle," because "the harvest is ripe."

The horn having mouth and eyes, seen by the Hebrew captive in Babylon, and more fully explained by the scarlet beast and harlot woman seen by the christian exile on Patmos, has been signally duplicated by the Roman church and confederated empires, which shed the blood of scores of millions, who faithfully adhered to Christ and a pure gospel. That church ruled kings and changed times and laws until she reached the limit of her license, when, in spite of accumulated wealth and prestige of power, she lost her dictatorship, and plunged into the sea of vassalage and insubordination.

In this condition she prayed and petitioned, threatened and wailed; but God suffered none to elevate her again to the lost throne. She assembled a vatican council, which uttered the sealing "words" of blasphemy, arrogating to her priest-god the divine attribute of infallibility. God had said, "Because of the great words which the horn spake" "the beast was slain, and his body destroyed, and given to the burning flame." Dan. 7: 11. The import of these words may be understood by the indignation of the Roman kings being kindled by them, against her, which will result in her complete and final overthrow. Rev. 17: 16.

The words evidently express a determination to deprive the kings of something which they all possess and desire to enjoy. That which is most coveted and cherished by kings, and which distinguishes them from all other men is the possession of political sovereignty—an independence of all dictation from superiors—to be masters of all and servants to none. The dogma of papal infallibility makes the pope superior to all kings—the rightful arbiter of all political questions, depriving them of real sovereignty—the principle most dear to them. It makes the kings truly the vassal subjects of the pope; consequently they all naturally rebel against this decree.

It seems to us that these predictions are most perfectly fulfilled by the war making circumstances now existing. All know that the present unparalleled preparation for war in Europe is principally caused by this religious question of whether the kings or the pope shall be clothed with supreme political power.

Nearly all the European nations have passed laws of universal conscription, making all their subjects of proper age soldiers, thus fulfilling the prophet's language—"Let all the men of war draw near." The present European armies, as now enrolled, number about nine millions, having been increased nearly three millions in the last two years. Fifty years ago the number was about three millions. This conscription and armament has produced such a strain upon the resources of the nations, that it is evident it cannot be borne but a brief period.

The German nation is feeling the pressure very much, and Bismarck understands that the empire has reached its highest point of military strength, and is in a better comparative condition for the expected struggle than she can be at any future time. France is arming and drilling her soldiers, and rapidly raising her military standard, so that a delay will give her an advantage over Germany. The Catholics are also preparing in every possible way to assist France in her designs of revenge on Germany, and also to establish the supremacy of the Pope.

They are now drilling their soldiers, evidently for that purpose, in all parts of this country, and doubtless in many others. This also makes delay a disadvantage to Germany, for they can add more to their strength in the delay than she can. Added to this is the fact that the Catholic priests are constantly using their influence over the German people, to prejudice them as much as possible against their government, so as to weaken it in the final struggle.

These considerations caused the German Cabinet to determine to immediately sound the war bugle again, which would inevitably drag into the bloody coil all the European nations. When this was known, all the world quivered with intense excitement and terrible forebodings of unparalleled bloodshed. The emperor of Austria hastened to have a private interview with the king of Italy, and the emperor of Russia with William and his cabinet at Berlin. Every journalist wrote paragraphs of exciting war news.

But what conclusions did the royal counsellors come to? They said peace must be continued. We are not ready, and cannot drink this bitter cup at present. God had foretold that they would "refuse to drink," so that their refusal to launch their ships of state upon the bloody sea is only a part of the prophetic arrangement. In harmony with this they sounded the note of peace, and so all the world quieted their fears, and cry safety, again. Paul said, "When they shall say peace and safety, then sudden destruction cometh upon them," "and they shall not escape." As much as if he had said they will for a time escape, and so cry peace; but this will only be a sign that they will be compelled to suffer war at last, as the woman is compelled, in the final issue, to suffer the pain of deliverance.

Austria was not ready to have the peace of Europe broken, for she had not extended her railroads south into Persia as she designs, to carry her armies to suddenly attack the Sultan in Palestine, and so take Constantinople.

Austria is changing her cannon and getting her army up to the grade of present European armament, so that she is not quite ready.

Italy's treasury is empty, and she is trying every means to obtain money to increase her defences, and bring her army and also her navy up to the war standard; and so she asks for a delay.

England is decidedly in favor of peace, for she has made no arrangements to increase her power or extend her dominions by a general war; therefore she cries constantly for peace.

France has astonished the world by her gigantic efforts to pay the enormous indemnity to Germany, and also by the rapidity with which she has increased her military defenses and efficiency of her army; but she is not ready, and therefore uses all her diplomatic influence to continue peace for a time.

The Pope had made his arrangement to establish Catholic rulers on the thrones of Spain and France, and thus obtain the standard bearers for a mighty army of the faithful, and crush the opposition of all kings to his universal dominion. But the Republicans have triumphed in France, so that the tide has turned against him there, and Alfonso has been defeated in nearly all his efforts in Spain to establish the authority of a truly papal government; thus the Pope is not ready to strike the first blow.

The present position of the great European powers is clearly a determined resistance to an immediate war; thus they "refuse to drink"; but they evidently feel that it is only a delay of the fearful conflict, for which they have made such astonishing preparations.

A correspondent of the London Times, in speaking upon this subject, says:—

"The Cologne Gazette, remarking that the English Government had issued a diplomatic circular to promote the preservation of peace, says: 'The present English Government thereby shows that it considers England a European power, and will not push to extremes the favorite doctrine of non-intervention. The hopes of peace cannot but be strengthened by the friendly reception of the English circular at Berlin, Paris, and, indeed, everywhere. Another favorable circumstance is, that Austria has declared itself quite in accord with the negotiations at Berlin, and, in fact, has taken part in them, the Austrian Ambassador, Count Karolyi, at the special instance of the German Cabinet, having received plenipotentiary powers. The French, arm as much as they like, will not be able to attack, so long as they do not succeed in severing the peace union of the three Emperors. This conviction is strengthened by the meeting at Berlin, and to us Germans it can certainly seem only just if the first State to break the peace of Europe is treated by the others as an enemy. . . . . Russia had first offered its mediatorial offices should there have been any serious complication. The Court of St. James made a similar offer. The Governments of Austria and Italy likewise inquired if their interference would be needed.' We thus see that while critical events were apprehended, Russia, Austria, England and Italy offered to mediate between Germany and France. It is supposed that the Russian propositions were accompanied with offers of eventual support."

We understand Russia to offer eventual support on this principle: Germany says, I am prepared, and can be no stronger a year hence than I am to-day; but my antagonist, France, will be stronger then; therefore a delay will be a disadvantage to Germany. Russia says: I am not ready to-day; and if you will wait, I will make up to you in the final struggle the disadvantage you suffer by the delay. This proves that the present peace cry is only a postponement of the "clash of arms," for which they have prepared.

This seems to fulfill the prophecy most perfectly; for they must "cry peace and safety" when "sudden destruction" is about to come "upon them."

The present position of the prophetic nations certainly appears to be in harmony with the very last prediction of Gentile rule. Let us be waiting, for the end is evidently "at hand." There is no time here for controversy, or grudging one against another, for the Judge standeth before the door. May our hearts be filled with the love of God and the patient waiting for his Son from heaven.

WHAT IS CHRISTIANITY?

To the above inquiry, we find the following answer in the New York Daily Herald:

"Theoretically, Christianity is a belief that Christ is the Son of God, endowed by the Father with full power to lift sinful humanity up out of the degradation and corruption of sin and death into that spiritual realm where divine love is the all prevailing element, and where peace, harmony and joy bear undisputed sway. We learn in the first chapter of Matthew wherein the sonship of Christ differs from the sonship of all human beings, thus becoming a connecting link, as it were, between God the Father and his earthly children, and hence the appropriate receptacle of the superhuman power confided to his care."

We think the foregoing is a very correct answer, as far as it goes. It seems strange that candid men, who believe this, should hesitate to come at once to this Savior, who offers so great salvation. But it is a sad fact, that only a few will consent to stop sinning, and go to this loving Jesus and ask for pardon. While he has shown his love for our race in every possible way, he is still treated with contempt by the great mass of people. Though they be as drowning men, in mid ocean, they refuse to enter the only life-boat offered freely to save them from death. O what madness! What intense folly! It is unaccountable, only on the ground that sin blinds and stupefies the moral sensibilities, producing a dense darkness, so that a man does not see his perilous condition. He is like one dreaming of fairy lands, adorned with beautiful flowers, charmed with sweet songs, and delightful landscape scenery, while he is actually in a den of lions and rattlesnakes, every moment exposed to their fury and poison, till he submits to the dear Savior to take him out of his perilous condition. This he will not do till awakened from his delusive dreams to see his horrid situation. Let all who read this make extra efforts to arouse the careless sleepers before the angel cries, Time shall be no longer.

THE SPRINGFIELD NATIONAL ADVENT CAMPMEETING.

We would say to our friends on the line of the CENTRAL VERMONT RAILROAD, who propose to attend this meeting this year, that in order to secure reduced fare, it will be necessary to have at least twenty-five persons go over the Road paying regular fare. Last year we failed of having this number, but having given passes to the friends before we knew just how we should come out, the Railroad officials kindly accepted them without requiring us to pay for the passes thus furnished. Now will some one in the various places on this Road see about how many expect to go to the meeting, and write me? and if we get enough, we no doubt can arrange for half fare on the Central Vt. Road.

A NEW CHURCH.

Satan is trying to get up a new church; or, more properly speaking, a union of Church and State. In order to secure success, he finds it necessary to have a religious phase connected with his varied systems. Man has an inherent element that leads him to seek religious exercises, and Satan takes all possible advantage of this to turn it to his own account, and to the ruin of the man. He takes much pains to mix up mysterious things with it, so as to excite the wonder of the simple. The more of splendor he can mix with it, the more sure he is to succeed. This has been clearly demonstrated in the history of the Roman Catholic church.

In these last days Satan has been most faithfully at work in efforts to get up something to draw in the mass of the Protestants who will not embrace the Catholic religion. This he has undertaken to do by Spiritualism in its varied forms and phases.

His first move was to make the people believe that they could hold conversation with the spirits of their dead friends. In this he has had wonderful success, because it was in harmony with the corrupted theology, that had been received from the Catholic church. When they believed his great lie to Adam and Eve—"Ye shall not surely die" (Gen. 3: 4), then it was quite easy to believe that communications might be received from the supposed living spirits through mediums. If he could but establish this belief in their minds, he had gained his most important point, because then they would be prepared to receive communications from the mediums, who were under his control. Like a skillful telegraph operator, he and his angels send such messages as they think will best accomplish their fiendish object. He says through his mediums, that the messages come from departed human spirits; whereas, they all come from him and his demons. We believe we speak advisedly and truthfully when we say no disembodied human spirit ever made a communication, or ever will. It is absurd, and therefore impossible. The Scriptures, philosophy, common sense, reason, facts, and science, all harmonize in saying there are no communications from the dead, between death and the resurrection. But Satan has succeeded, through Paganism, Papacy, and Spiritualism, in persuading the mass of the world to believe they may receive communications from friends now dead. On the strength of this belief, he is now making a world-wide effort to destroy, or corrupt, what little of pure religion there is remaining. One of his last devices consists in an effort to form a new organization, or union of Church and State, in which woman shall be at the head, and take the lead. How far he may be successful remains to be seen.

We learn that women have met and organized, what they call "The United States Church." In their declaration of principles, they say "Women shall control the church; men shall control the State." They say, "When they become the party in power, they will overthrow and extinguish the priesthood, and give the church to woman, for her sphere of action." Then they say, "There will be no more tall steeples." It should be remembered that this movement is under the control of the spirits of demons. They are doing all they can possibly to stir up strife and confusion, and destroy what there is left of Christianity. They say, "Statesmen do not legislate for our benefit, and theologians deceive us; therefore, we are, and of right ought to be, a free and independent government, enacting our own laws for our own welfare."

Are not these strange times? Satan is very busy in preparing for the last great struggle, when he will be most signally and eternally defeated by our coming King. The battle of Armageddon is hastening.

A WORK FOR THE TIMES.—We have just received a new book from the pen of Bro. I. C. Wellcome, entitled—"THE TOBACCO PLUG, AND CIGAR, shown in their true character, with some of their terrible results upon mankind." It contains seventy-two pages, and is sold for 15 cts. single; $1.50 per doz., and $10 per hundred by express. For sale at this office. This is just the thing to give to your friend who uses tobacco. The work should have a very extensive circulation.

LEND A HELPING HAND.—Our readers could afford us valuable aid, if they would send us any choice selections of prose or poetry that they may find in their readings of other papers, or books. Let all help to fill "our paper" with the richest gems of thought that can be found.

THE HOLINESS MOVEMENT.

The holiness movement is going forward with great power, in all parts of the world, where the followers of Christ are known. It is very remarkable, that it should occur now, when the mass of the churches are so conformed to the world, as to be destitute of saving grace; but it looks like the special preparation for the coming of Christ. We look upon it as one of the bright omens that we are now near the Marriage Supper of the Lamb, when the bride is truly getting ready. It is a solemn hour, of fearful importance; and yet the great body of church members are sleeping as soundly as was Jonah in the storm, when he was trying to run away from the cross, that required him to warn the people of their danger.

Men have seen and felt the importance of attention to the subject of holiness of heart; of entire consecration to Christ; of living free from condemnation; but when they have heard the reproachful words spoken against the subject, like Jonah they have shrunk from the cross, as others have from confessing the great truth, that the coming of Christ is at hand, and are losing ground in consequence. It is an hour when brave men are needed, who are willing to sacrifice all for Christ,—good name, friends, comfort, everything, for the sake of arousing professors of religion to prepare to meet our coming Savior. Satan will do all in his power to hedge up the way of such; but let them trust all in the hands of Jesus, and they have nothing to fear.

The following extract from a letter of Pres. Asa Mahan, dated April 19th, 1875, and published in the June number of the "Guide to Holiness," will give some idea of the holiness movement in Europe.

CONFERENCE ON HOLINESS.

"I have just met Professor Paul Vernier from Germany. At Basle, in Switzerland, he attended a conference for the promotion of personal holiness—a conference like that of Oxford and presided over, like the latter, by Mr. Pearsall Smith. The sessions of this conference were attended daily, and with the intensest interest, by upwards of five thousand persons, not only from that city, but from all the country. When Mr. Smith leaves Basle, he goes to hold a similar conference in the capital of Wurtemberg. At Berlin he had just held a similar conference. The facts I now state Prof. Vernier received directly from Mr. Smith himself. Finding that none of the other churches would hold the crowds that desired to attend, the Emperor opened his own, the military Church of the Empire, and this great auditorium was daily crowded to its utmost capacity by the most attentive audiences—audiences not only from the city, but made up of representatives from all parts of the Empire. While in Berlin, Mr. Smith was sent for by the daughter of the Emperor, the Grand Duchess of Baden, and princess Elizabeth, for special consultation with him in respect to 'the way of holiness.' At the residence of the Secretary of State, Von Bulow, Mr. Smith, also by special invitation, met a circle of upwards of a hundred individuals a circle constituted of leading clergymen, professors from the university, and dignitaries of the Empire, all assembled for one exclusive purpose, to learn of this man 'the way of the Lord more perfectly.' The leading works recently published in this country on the higher life have been translated into the German language, and more than 120,000 copies of the same have already been called for.

Mr. Smith, I would here state, crossed the ocean, and visited the Continent prior to the great meeting, next month, at Brighton, in consequence of a special invitation sent over by the Chaplain of the Emperor of Germany, and other ministers and individuals of the highest standing in that country, France and Switzerland. Permit me to put this question before my own countrymen: Why has this layman been thus sent for, instead of learned professors in our colleges, and leading preachers who have a well-known European reputation? Is it not because he does not represent in his teachings what they ought to do, but do not, in theirs, namely, the most fundamental truths and principles of our divine religion? Is it not because his teachings do, and theirs do not, meet what is most rapidly coming to be the conscious want of Christendom?"

STRANGE PRACTICES.—It is said that a Spiritualist Society has been organized in the West, with which is connected a prominent man, and editor, who issues "marriage certificates for 'mystic ties'; that is, married at night, divorced in the morning." A writer says: "I know of hundreds who have taken his certificates of union."

M. G.

SOUND TEACHING.—In another column will be found an article from the pen of David N. Lord, one of the ablest theological writers of the age. It is entitled, "Knowledge comes, but wisdom lingers." He believes we are near the coming of Christ.

RHODE ISLAND CAMPMEETING.

At a special meeting of the Campmeeting Committee, June 19th, 1875, at Wyoming, R. I., the following Preamble and Resolutions were adopted and ordered to be printed in the Crisis:—

Whereas, We have repeatedly sought the protection of law that other States vouchsafe to protracted religious meetings within their limits without success, and

Whereas, We have repeatedly been thwarted by verbal arguments not performed, therefore

Resolved, That the Campmeeting at Coventry Centre stand suspended until we are protected by law, lease, or written agreement (from parties owning real estate around the camp-ground), that shall effectually protect future meetings from the annoyance and detriment caused by hucksters' shops, wagons, tents, stands, etc., being set up around and near the ground.

Resolved, That there shall not be any campmeeting called or holden at Coventry Centre the present year except by the unanimous consent of the whole committee.

Attest, J. P. HAZARD, Clerk.

SINNER, are you prepared to stand before the great tribunal? Can you meet the burning gaze of Him that sitteth on the throne? Are you sure that when they which pierced him shall look upon him, your voice will not join in the universal wail because of him? There are to be two classes, two sentences —only two. "Come, ye blessed!" "Depart, ye cursed!" Which shall be yours?

NOTES BY THE WAY IN N. C.

TO THE A. A. M. SOCIETY.

Dear Brethren:—I left my home June 1st, to proclaim the precious truths of the Bible in this hilly country. Stopped over one day at Ooltewah, Tenn., and saw a few of the brethren and sisters. The church there is very sad over the death of Bro. Silas Smith. June 2nd, I took the cars at 6 A. M., and at 6 P. M. found myself nearing Johnson City, Tenn., where I met Bro. O. F. Goodwin, who had come with mules from Caldwell Co., N. C., to meet me, a distance of eighty miles. As we had only two days in which to ride over that long road through the mountains, we thought best to start immediately, and try to go ten or twelve miles that night. At seven, we mounted our mules and started. Notwithstanding we heard it thundering in the distance, and saw a heavy cloud rising, we thought perhaps it would not rain.

We rode at a rapid rate till about dark, when it began to rain terribly. We called at a farm-house to stay over night, but they would not take us in. When I took my shawl from my saddle, I found I had lost one pair of my saddle bags, in which were my clothes, and all my books save my Bible and hymn book. By this time the rain poured in torrents. The lightning flashing very fast, gave us some chance to see the road before us, in which ran much water. We started back in search of the lost saddle bags, having learned too that we had missed the right road. We had gone perhaps a half mile from the house where they refused us lodging, when a tremendous stroke of lightning came so near us as to darken our eyes with green smoke, and fill our nostrils with fumes of sulphur. Bro. Goodwin was about six steps in front of me. I called to know if he was "all right." No answer came. I felt sure that he and his mule were both killed. I really felt sad beyond expression. He was a stranger to me. We had met for the first time about one hour before, and had spent that hour talking over these glorious truths which he had written me to come and preach in his community. And now to think he is killed here in this strange woods, and I left alone with him, and it so dark. I could see nothing save by the flashing lightning. A few minutes more of horrible suspense, when another flash enabled me, through the heavy air yet filled with the smoke of the heavy stroke, to see the bulk before me enough to see that he was still on his mule. I praised the Lord for it.

After a few minutes he heard me, and I found that he had been so stunned that, for a time, he was almost insensible. We rode out of the little skirt of woods into an open lane, to get as far from trees as possible. Here we sat on our mules. The rain—it seemed as though the very heavens were opened. Here I thought of Bro. Bowman's expression in the Crisis last year—"Boston preacher with a New England gospel." Then I thought of Bro. Grant saying that he was greatly annoyed with "dust" over a part of his homeward trip from Califonia. Well, I thought, if Bro. Grant was with me now, and if it was daylight, he would not find much "dust" to annoy him.

Here is a great field for work, but not much for ease and pleasure. Wish some of those brethren who see good times would try it a while. After some time, we rode on, and luckily found the saddle bags by the lightning. We then wandered till we came to a magnificent farm-house, owned by Bro. Wm. Range, who it is said "belongs to the church, and always fills his place"; but he has forgotten the command—"Be careful to entertain strangers," and would not take us for love or money. May God bless him, and teach him that "not every one that saith Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven, but he that doeth the will of God." Matt. 7: 21. I pray that he may never be turned away in a strange country on a rainy night. We then gave a colored man on the place a dollar to guide us back to the hotel, and at ten o'clock we called at the house which we had left in the evening, and praised the Lord that it was even so well with us.

Next morning (Thursday, June 3d) we started again, and Friday night arrived at Bro. Goodwin's, having rode eighty miles in two days, all through the mountains, where there is some grand scenery, deep ravines, magnificent rocks, towering in some places above the tree tops. It is said that the road through this mountain-pass, from E. Tennessee to North Carolina, makes one thousand short turns around rugged hills and deep hollows. Some places, it seems that we rode a mile and could look across the deep hollow, and see the road in a few rods of us.

We were almost worn out with the trip, but Saturday morning began meetings in an apple orchard belonging to Bro. Patterson Coffey, near Bro. Goodwin's mill. I spoke twice on Saturday, and twice on Sunday. Good attention and much interest manifested. There was some little excitement on Sunday by some questions being asked. The good Bro. undertook to upset the truth, but a signal failure caused him to become apparently agitated, and to cause by his conduct some hard feelings toward him. May God bless him, and enable him to come to the truth.

Tuesday night, we held meeting in Bro. Goodwin's house. Wednesday morning, went to Johns River, eight miles, where we met Bro. R. H. Moody, a prominent Baptist minister, who kindly invited us to speak in his church. After entering the church, he asked the privilege to follow us and upset anything I might say that was not in harmony with his feelings or faith. We spoke forty-five minutes. He then spoke fifty-four minutes, and told the people that he found but little objection; but perhaps I had ingeniously given them a bait for the first, knowing that honey would catch more flies than vinegar. I told him that he was like the lion who kindly invited the fox into his den, just to eat him up.

Thursday night, back to Bro. Goodwin's. Had a pleasant season. Friday, back again to Johns River. Met Bro. Moody again, with his Bible, ready for a battle. I learn since that he had spoken to an old citizen to preside over the meeting. I told the people that I would prefer speaking in Bro. Coffey's mill, where I could feel free. When the time came to open meeting, I invited Bro. Moody to take seat and follow me. I then told the people that I came here not to tear down churches, or to build up churches, but to preach truth. That I thought in a free country I should have the right to preach what I believed to be truth unmolested, as any other denomination. I told them that if Bro. Moody's friends wanted him to tear up our views, let him submit a proposition to me, and as soon as a moderator could be appointed, I was ready to go at it right, and discuss in the spirit of kindness. He then said he would not challenge me, but would preach his views when he pleased, charging the people not to say that he was afraid of me; "for," said he, "I am not afraid of any of you." I thought that surely it did not require carnal bravery to carry on God's work, but deep humility of soul. He carried his Bible away without discharging his heavy load. He treated us in the spirit of kindness, and the best of feeling prevailed in the audience.

Saturday, 12th, spoke A. M. and P. M., with good attention and increasing interest; but Bro. Moody was gone to another appointment. Last night had a pleasant social meeting at the house of Bro. Drury Coffey. Bro. O. F. Goodwin has assisted in the meetings with much zeal, also an aged Bro. Healand, of the M. E. Church, from Lenoir, has freely assisted us, and proved to the world that he loves Jesus. I have been here nine days, and held eleven meetings. Will speak twice to-day (Sunday). Pray for me.

JOHN A. CARGILE.

Colletsville, N. C., June 13th, 1875.

Correspondence.

From Bro. B. Spaulding.

Bro. Grant:—There is a variety of opinions in relation to "the Sanctuary." Some think it is the whole earth, to be cleansed at the end of 2300 days, or years. Others think it is our hearts, which are cleansed and become temples of the Holy Spirit. Others think it is a sanctuary in heaven, which Jesus has been cleansing ever since 1844; and others think it is a portion of the earth bounded off in Zech. 14: 10, and Jer. 31: 38–40. Webster says the meaning of the word sanctuary is, a sacred place, a place of refuge, or a house of worship. I acknowledge myself to be a believer in this last idea.

We read that Jesus is to stand upon the Mount of Olives, and the mountain will cleave in the midst, split, or divide, and half move to the north, and half to the south. This would produce a great valley, or plain, where the Lord our God and all his saints will come, or be gathered. "And all the land will be turned to a plain, from Geba to Rimmon, and it shall be lifted up and inhabited in her place, from Benjamin's gate unto the place of the first gate, unto the corner gate, and from the tower of Hananeel unto the king's wine-presses; and men shall dwell in it. And there [in that place] shall be no more utter destruction, but Jerusalem shall be safely inhabited."

That is the cleansed sanctuary, to be cleansed after 2300 days. Jer. 31: 38–40 gives nearly the same boundaries, and says this portion of land shall be called holy to the Lord; "it shall not be plucked up nor thrown down any more forever." Zechariah says—"There shall be no more utter destruction" in that place. But outside of that place destruction will go on until the wicked are all destroyed. A great tumult from the Lord will be among them (the wicked on the outside), and they shall lay hold every one on the hand of his neighbor, and his hand rise up against his neighbor, fighting among themselves. This agrees with Rev. 22: 15—"For without are dogs, and sorcerers, and whoremongers, and murderers, and idolaters, and whosoever loveth and maketh a lie." These are without the cleansed sanctuary. "And they [the saints] shall go forth and look upon the carcasses of the men who have transgressed." Isa. 66: 24.

This, then, is the sacred place, the place of refuge for the saints, the cleansed Sanctuary. Moses speaks of it in Exodus 15: 17—"Thou shalt bring them in and plant them in the mountain of thine inheritance, in the place which thou hast made for thee to dwell in; in the sanctuary, O Lord, which thy hands have established." David speaks of this sanctuary in Ps. 78: 54—"And he brought them to the border of his sanctuary, even to this mountain, which his right hand had purchased." Ps. 91 shows the safety of God's people in the place of refuge,—not afraid of terror by night, nor of the arrow that flieth by day, nor of the pestilence which walketh in darkness, nor of the destruction which wasteth at noonday. "A thousand shall fall at thy side, and ten thousand at thy right hand; but it shall not come nigh thee. Only with thine eyes shalt thou see and behold the reward of the wicked." "There shall no evil befall thee, neither shall any plague come nigh thy dwelling. Thou shalt tread upon the lion and adder, the young lion and dragon shalt thou trample under feet.' "I will deliver him and honor him; with long life will I satisfy him, and show him my salvation."

Thus will be blessed those who dwell in the secret place of the Most High, in the sacred place, in the place of refuge, in the cleansed sanctuary, which will be cleansed at the end of 2300 days.

Chelmsford, Mass., June 21st, 1875.

From Bro. Geo. Thomson.

Dearly Beloved:—I wish to drop a line through our beloved paper to acknowledge more particularly the kindness of a band of little pilgrims, grand-children of my dearly beloved brother, Eld. Hough. Those little ones no doubt contributed their all to make up a donation for unworthy me. May God abundantly bless them.

I have had the great pleasure of enjoying a part of our campmeeting. Being providentially located on the ground, I was able to be wheeled out to some of the meetings. How precious! How my heart rejoiced! Praise the Lord!

I acknowledge with many thanks the following sums: Ten grand-children of Elder Hough, 10 cts. each—$1.00. Their names can be found in the following lines:—

Faithfully responds each dear darling youth,
Having each received blest, ever rolling truth;
Angelic nature never is enthralled,
Love us each. Lord loves all
Meekness is noble, never is estranged,
Wisdom in love leaves its alms maintained.
Calmly outspeaking, relieving all such,
And loving, believing each ravishing touch.
Jerusalem overhead hasteneth near,
Maturing and ripening year.

Will our "young pilgrims" find out the names?

Obituaries.

BERRY. In Taunton, Mass., April 4th, 1875, of consumption, Charles A. Berry, aged seventeen years, seven days.

About six months previous to his death his mind, weakened by illness and hard study, became deranged, and it became necessary to remove him to the asylum, where he died. The most of the time he remained in a helpless, speechless condition, unable to eat, save liquids, which were given with great care. He gave evidence before his derangement that he had sought and found a Savior, and his last conscious rational words were of heavenly things.

It was my sad privilege to visit him and see the terrible havoc disease was making. My poor boy! no answering voice came back as I begged for just one word. No look, when I implored just one glance. All was silent, unknown, and dim to his senses then. Quietly he passed down the river, and so fell asleep. Farewell for awhile, poor Charlie! Thy sorrowing mother's farewell kiss 'mid falling bitter tears—a father's pent up silent grief—thy brothers' and sisters' weeping anguish, loving grandparents' and relatives' sorrow, were all unknown to thee! Sweetly, peacefully sleep on! Life's toils, pains and struggles are over. Thy dear face is gone from our sight, but not from our memories. Thy loved voice is silent to our ears, but not to our hearts. Yes, thou art gone. We sorrow deeply, but not in hopeless grief. Thy grave we deck with flowers; the grass is green above it; sweet melody floats amid the trees, and softly whispers the summer wind around thy silent grave. In hope of what is coming, we see its portals open. A voice calls thee to awake Thine eyes open from the sleep of death, and "see the King in his beauty." Thy tongue speaks words of joy The light of heaven beams from thine eye; the roseate bloom and form of youth and health overspread thy face and form. Again we clasp thy hand, and feel thy warm embrace. We feel that the "weeping may endure for a night, yet joy cometh in the morning." And so we wait its coming. J. N. B.

HENRY. At Bunker Hill, Illinois, Saturday, June 12th, 1875, Mrs. Nancy M. Henry, wife of F. W. Henry, aged forty-eight years.

The deceased was born in Canada, May 9th. 1827. Her parents were Massachusetts people, named Gibbons. From her earliest youth she was an earnest, practical christian. Before her eleventh year she had read her Bible through three times by course. When 15 years of age she became connected with the M. E Church. June 15th, 1845, she was married to F. W. Henry, who survives her, and by whom she had six children, three of whom are now living. Twenty-three years ago she accepted the doctrines of the Second Adventists, and in a public address gave her reasons for her faith. Since that time she has preached whenever opportunity offered, oftentimes making journeys occupying months, her great design being to reach those classes who do not habitually attend a house of worship, and inculcate in them a Bible reading spirit. She was a life-long abolitionist, and a zealous advocate of temperance. Her de th is probably due to a fall from a wagon, near Vernon, Mo., some seventeen months ago, where she was to preach. This resulted in disease of the pleura, from which she suffered greatly, submitting to two operations, at one time seventy ounces, and at another time forty ounces of fluid being drawn from her. She died at ten minutes before nine o'clock, on Saturday, calmly, and professing a strong fai h in her Savior. The funeral services were held on Sunday, Rev. G. W. Bainum, of the Congregational church, officiating.—Bunker Hill Gazette.

HOWLETT. In Charlton, Mass., April 29th, Bro. John Howlett, aged eighty-seven years and six months.

Bro. Howlett had lived out his forescore and more years before he gave his heart to the Savior. Then, by the faithful labors of his grandson, Bro. H. H. Tucker, he was persuaded to bow in submission to the Lord. Infirm as he was, yet by the help of his two staves, he was able to walk from the carriage to the water's brink, and there was buried beneath the yielding wave, showing his faith in the death and resurrection of Jesus the Savior of sinners. He maintained his hope until the last. Words of comfort were spoken from the Scriptures to his bereaved wife and children by the writer. S. AYRES.

THOMAS. In Sederville school-district, eight miles west of Portland, Oregon, May 31st, Bro. Preston Thomas, aged forty years.

Another of the number of believers has fallen asleep. He became obedient to the faith of Christ, Sept. 8th, 1872. He embraced the present truth, and remained firm in the faith. His faithful attendance upon the means of grace, and his peaceable walk with all, wakes a feeling of sympathy in us. His sufferings and trials were many. But our Savior is soon coming, and those who lived and believed in Jesus, and in the end of their lives fell asleep in him, shall with the prophet David be satisfied when they awake in his likeness. M. M. NORTON.

ROLLINS. In Alton, N. H., May 24th, 1875, of dropsy and cancer, Bro. John Rollins, in the eightieth year of his age.

Our brother suffered much for months before he closed his earthly pilgrimage, but that hope that he embraced in early life was his support. He longed to see Jesus, his best friend, and be made like him. His strict integrity, christian life and character has been such that I think his children and friends feel that it would be well to imitate him. The subject selected by the deceased, to be used on the funeral occasion, by the writer, was 2 Tim. 4: 6–8. The F. Baptist minister assisted in the exercises. J. G. SMITH.

DAVIDSON. At Manchester, N. H., June 13th, 1875, Minnie F., only daughter of Bro. Samuel R. and Sr. Thodate Davidson, aged nine years and one month.

Yes, dear little Minnie sleeps the sleep of death, while her afflicted parents and brother mourn her sudden death. Minnie was a good little girl, beloved by all who knew her, and soon Jesus will come and call her back to life, to bloom immortal among the never-fading flowers of Paradise restored. The funeral service was conducted by the writer, assisted by Bro. Park, of the Free Baptist church at Manchester. Sermon from 2 Kings 11: 26. "Is it well with the child?" JOSEPH W. WHITE.

PORTER. In Bonny Eagle, Me., June 12th, 1875, Sr. Addie C. Porter, wife of Samuel Porter, aged 37 years.

Sister Porter embraced the Savior a few years ago, under the labors of Eld. M. Stevens. She was a believer in those truths that distinguish us as a people. She was loved by all who knew her. She leaves a husband and three children, and other friends to mourn her loss. May God sustain the afflicted ones. Funeral services by the writer, assisted by Bro. C. H. Sweet. G. F. HAINES.

CLASSON. In Bangor, Me., June 18th, 1875, of quick consumption, Sr. Mary E. Classon, of Searsport, Me, aged twenty-two years.

Sr. Classon leaves a husband and two small children to mourn her loss. She was converted to Christ and baptized last fall, and enjoyed the blessed hope of soon seeing Jesus. She was very strong in the faith that the dead know nothing, but that Jesus was very soon to come and give us immortality. May the Lord sustain the bereaved. Z. B. C.

FOREIGN NEWS.

FRANCE.

PARIS, June 25 The loss of life by the flood at Toulouse is appalling. In the St. Cyprian quarter 215 corpses have been already found. The violence of the torrent frustrated the efforts to rescue the unfortunate inmates of the houses. Several men were drowned in the attempt. Twenty thousand persons were deprived of means of subsistence in Toulouse alone. The disasters elsewhere are almost of equal magnitude. The lower part of the city of Morssac, on the Tarn, is hidden under water. At Tremaulette in the department of Arriege, five houses only remain standing out of 1400.

In the district of Faix, in the same department, two villages are completely submerged and many bodies have been found. Crops of all kinds throughout the immediate districts have been destroyed.

The troops and authorities are doing everything in their power to save life and property. The rain has ceased, but it is feared that the melting of the mountain snows will raise the waters of the Adaur still higher.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

SOUTH AMERICA.

New York, June 25 A letter from Maracaibo, May 29th, gives an account of the earthquake at Cucuta on the 18th: "The first shock leveled every wall of the city, burying in a single instant 8000 people out of a population of 10,000. Several who were not killed died from their injuries, and many were murdered by robbers, who plundered in bands. The shocks continued and the fires burned much property. Those saved fled to the neighboring country and encamped. When the news reached Maracaibo two steamers were sent with food and clothing to the sufferers by the American Consul.

New York, June 24. The famous printing establishment known as the Aldine press was destroyed by fire this evening. The loss is estimated at one hundred thousand dollars, partly insured. The establishment occupied a large building on Liberty street, running through the entire block to Maiden lane.

The presses, machinery and plates burned were among the finest in the city and probably in the country. The July edition of the Aldine paper was partly printed and the edition was consumed by the flames.

DEDICATION.—Dear Brn. and Srs.:—The Second Advent Society in Lawrence, Mass., have through the goodness of God been permitted to erect a Chapel, 40×60, for the worship of God. It is pleasantly situated on Concord St. We expect (D. V.) to dedicate Sunday, July 11th, and we cordially invite brethren and sisters in the neighboring towns and villages to spend the day with us, and labor for the spread of the truths we so dearly love. Let us make one grand rally for Christ. Truly time is short, and what we do must be done quickly. Let us not only set the house apart, but consecrate ourselves anew to the work of the Master. W. J. H.

GROVE MEETING.—A grove and tent meeting will be held at Bowdoin's Point, Prospect, Me., commencing Saturday, July 3d, at 2 P. M., and hold over the 4th, if the Lord will. Ministers of the word are expected (probably, F. A. Baker, and O. P. Trundy). For the Brn., OLIVER R. BOWDOIN.

M., and hold over the 4th. The grove will be fitted up for tenting. We expect a large tent will be pitched for meetings in case it should be stormy. For the accommodation of the poor, bring clothing and provision, all who can. Those that can, bring your small tents. Let us have a friendly greeting once more in Christ, and contemplate his coming soon, with joyful hope. The day of trouble is upon us. Let all come who love our Lord Jesus Christ, and strive for peace in Christ, and let it be our chief aim to be ready for the day of the Lord, and get others ready. Preaching brethren are invited to come and labor for their Master Will our scattered brethren in that region do all they can to make the meeting interesting?

Do come up to this feast, and let us have an old-fashioned meeting; one in which the Holy Spirit in power shall rest on the encampment, and be present to convict of sin and judgment to come. Bring small tents and camp on the ground, those who can. Let there be a representation of all the churches by delegates within the bounds of this conference. Make an especial effort to attend this quarterly session.

AN APPEAL.

The season has now arrived when the special work of holding Tent Meetings should be begun. The Mass. Conference has a good Tent ready again for service in the harvest field of the Lord; and the question is: Shall it be sent forth once more with good and faithful laborers to gather in sheaves for Christ, and give the warning of the coming day of God? In order that this may be done, there must be a sacrifice made by the friends of Jesus, and means given to sustain in this way his precious cause.

It is proposed that the Tent this year be taken into new fields, and where our precious faith has not as yet been heard. If this is done, there will be a special necessity for contributions on the part of our churches and people in general, to defray the expenses of these meetings in these new places.

As the Committee, chosen at the late Conference to have the charge of the Tent and make arrangements for the work in connection with it, we invite all who have the means and the heart to give in sustaining this mode of reaching the people, to do so as soon as they can, that we may know how far to go in promising the Tent where it is already requested.

Contributions and pledges can be sent to the Treasurer, ELD. C. GOODRICH, Boston, Mass.

EDITORS: A. A. Hoyt, H. F. Carpenter, A. W. Sibley, Frank Burr, M R. Phettpplace, C. Mendenhall. TERMS: Sixty cents a year. Send for sample copies. Agents wanted.

PRICE REDUCED.

The great Map of History, twenty-two feet long, and about thirty inches wide. This valuable work, of which mention has been made in the Crisis, we now have a supply of, and will send to those who may order at the publisher's reduced price of $12.00 per copy, by express. We have them on rollers, and in book form, and can supply either way.

The best method of using the chart or map of history is to hang the frame on the wall of the room (the map being in the frame, of course), by the two hooks in the upper bar of the frame, high enough to stand, or sit, in front of it, and there examine or study it.

Students and beginners in history should occasionally look over the map in its entire length—drawn out on the wall, or tables, or on the carpet—until they are well acquainted with the entire outlines, plan and compass of the map, which embraces all history. AG'T.

GOD'S BEAUTIFUL CITY.

Far, far away, amid realms of light,
Hid deep in the azure beyond our sight,
Stands a beautiful city, so high and so bright,
Where is known no sorrow, nor death, nor night.
Beautiful city!
O blest abode! O, home of God!
Whose streets by the feet of the sinless are trod.

They roam through the gardens of endless spring,
They crowd all thy portals on rushing wing;
While the echoing domes of the palace ring
With the hymns of the angels that shout and sing.
Beautiful city!
Hark! hark, again! the angelic strain,
As gleams through the crystal that burnished train.

There the life-fires brighten, and burn and roll
Over diamonds that sparkle, o'er sands of gold,
Where to breathe the sweet air yields a bliss untold,
And the dwellers immortal shall never grow old.
Beautiful city!
We pierce the skies with longing eyes,
And yearn to inherit the golden prize.

It is said that the King, in his power sublime,
When the last sands drop from the glass of time,
And our world shall be robed in her Eden prime,
Will bring down that city to gladden earth's clime.
Beautiful city!
Bright capitol where saints will dwell,
And reign on the throne with Immanuel.

As jewels flash on the brow of a queen,
As the jasper and ruby in crowns are seen,
God's city, wrapped in its silver sheen,
Will be set like a gem in the new earth's green.
Beautiful city!
City of flowers and beautiful bowers!
Come down and illumine this dark world of ours.

I have heard in the city they wait for me;
That its gates stand open wide and free,
That the ransomed the King in his beauty may see,
And live in his presence eternally.
Beautiful city!
In royal state blest mansions wait,
And beckon on through the pearly gate.

I shall go where the summers will always bloom;
I shall walk no more amid trial and gloom;
I shall bid farewell to the withering tombs;
I shall deck my brow with the conqueror's plumes.
Beautiful city!
Let us enter in, a crown to win!
Our words but half tell of the glory within.

"KNOWLEDGE COMES, BUT WISDOM LINGERS."

The present age is often denominated the age of progress; and it is by many, and perhaps most, either confidently asserted, or carelessly imagined, that the church has advanced as largely in its peculiar sphere of culture, as the literary, the scientific, or the political world. Were the question, however, impartially tried, whether those of the present day who are devoted to the study of the sacred word, and who speculate and write on theology, have on the whole a juster understanding of the subject of their profession, and hold a larger share of truth, and a smaller sum of error, than their predecessors a century ago, it is very far from being either certain or probable that the verdict would confirm the popular persuasion. Instead, the more thoroughly the state of theological knowledge and faith in the several branches of the church is scrutinized and understood, the more clearly we apprehend it will be seen, that considering the whole circle of truths which the question affects, no absolute progress whatever has been made; that the improvements that have taken place in some departments, have at least been counterbalanced by retrogradations in others; and that in the aggregate, as numerous, as palpable, and as fundamental errors are now held; and Christianity as inadequately understood, and as fatally perverted, as at any period since the Reformation.

In what branch of theological knowledge has any essential advance been achieved? The response which the learned themselves would generally return would probably be—in the interpretation of the Scriptures. And undoubtedly great progress has been made in developing and demonstrating the laws of the sacred languages, ascertaining their usages, and perfecting the means of determining the important improvement. Great, however, and creditable as it is, it is as obvious as it is singular, that it has proved almost wholly barren of the effects which we should naturally have anticipated from it.

There is no fact more indisputable and conspicuous in the history of modern cultivation, than that the improved philology of the last seventy-five years has had no efficient beneficial influence on the faith of its cultivators. So far from it, those who have become most celebrated for their skill in the mastery of its intricacies, and the largeness of their attainments, have been the most distinguished either for the misconception or the rejection of Christianity. This is a very significant fact, and fraught with an effective confutation of their views, who are indulging the expectation of a speedy conversion of the world to Christ, from the superiority of the enginery with which the ministers of his word are now furnished. Let a catalogue be made of the great and fundamental errors that are now held by large numbers, and set off with all the embellishments of learning, and urged on the faith of the multitude with all the arts of eloquence and zeal, and they will be found to be as numerous and portentous as at any earlier period. There are as many, for example, in the sacred profession now, as at any former time, who deny the personality of the Deity, and either resolve him into a mere idea, or else confound him with his works. Pantheism has a very considerable body of open advocates; while there is probably a much greater number who, without being aware of it, are deeply infected with its principles. There are as many probably now as there have ever been, who disbelieve the inspiration of the Scriptures, and also the divine origin of Christianity.

By far the greater number, it is generally acknowledged, of both the Protestant and Catholic clergy of the European continent, are substantially infidels. Of those who admit the divine Original of Christianity, there are as many probably as there have been in any age, who reject or misrepresent its most essential truths; who entertain false views of Christ's person; who misconceive the object of his mission; who misjudge of the nature of his religion; and who build their hope of salvation on mistaken grounds, both in respect to him and themselves. In those branches of learning also—the philosophy of the intellect, the conscience, the will, and the affections,—which exert the most important influences on theology, as great errors are now entertained, as have ever prevailed.

There was probably never a greater proportion of the speculative than at present, who hold that the freedom of the will is of such a nature, that the mind necessarily acts in its volitions independently of influences, and irrespective of conscious reasons, and deny therefore, in effect, at least, the reality of the Spirit's renewing agency, and the possibility of the moral government. There was never a greater number than now, probably, who held that reason is a competent judge in respect to the proper subjects of a revelation from God, and of authority to reject whatever does not concur with its imagined dictates. We do not regard these philosophical and theological errors as the necessary consequence of the more accurate analysis of language, or higher cultivation in other branches of knowledge which has been attained, nor as having any natural connection with them. They spring from a wholly different cause. We refer to them as demonstrating the inadequacy of mere skill in the art of interpretation, to produce faith in the truths which God has revealed, and as showing the necessity still—after men have received a knowledge of his salvation—of a supernatural power to lead them to accept it.—David N. Lord.

SEASIDE CAMPMEETING.

I have just visited Seabrook church, and found them in good working order, spiritually and temporally. They have got the preachers' stand up and finished, ready for campmeeting, and the ground nearly seated. They are young in the cause; and a few years ago Seabrook was one of the lowest places for enterprise and morality, saying nothing about Christianity,—so says an old inhabitant; but God began a work through the labors of a young brother (not a preacher), and a great many were converted, and are now serving the Lord in earnest. It does one good to see how heartily they take hold in meeting. They are all united, as yet, and will be, unless some hobby-rider divides them, as has been done in many places.

They want a few facts stated for the benefit of all concerned. The ground is within a few rods of the R. R.; is dry and good, with a pure brook running through it. The salt water sets back within sixty rods of the ground. There is a good place for ladies to bathe, in a house for that purpose. Within ten minutes walk is a wharf, where there are boats to carry people to ride on the only quiet bay within ten miles. A ride of fifteen minutes on this bay takes you to the beach, which is six miles. By team, it takes an hour and a half, and costs 50 to 75 cts. each way. The fare on the boat, both ways, is 15 cts. It is said by those who live there, that people from the different beaches and neighborhoods come to this same bay for sailing and fishing.

These facts are due to those who have written letters to the committee in regard to the matter. The committee wish me to say that this meeting is located for the benefit of a large class of poor people, mostly fishermen, who do not attend meeting anywhere, and are all rejoiced in the appointment of this one. They are helping by their money or work on the ground. It is as good a missionary field as can be found in New England; and the people from the four watering places, a few miles away, will attend the meeting, and carry tracts and the light into places which we cannot reach in any other way. There are three new houses building where rooms will be let cheap. They have written for some of the old preachers—Brn. Grant, Couch, Ross, etc.,—to preach the word. I think they will have a good little meeting, if the brethren come to help these young beginners in the cause. H. MUNGER.

HOW TO STUDY THE BIBLE.

We submit a few remarks on the best mode of studying the epistles, and the leading principles of their interpretation, for the use of the intelligent inquirer.

1. We have first, then, to consider the best mode of studying the epistles of the New Testament; and the first thing we would suggest is, that the student, having fixed upon some particular epistle, should make a point of reading the whole of it at one sitting, without any regard to the ordinary division of chapters and verses. This reading should not be cursory and casual, but diligent and systematic. It should be with a close attention to the scope and tenor of the whole. We must not pick out a verse here, or a word there, and ground a doctrine thereon. We must strive to find out what is the main subject and tendency of the whole epistle; or, if it has several parts and purposes in it, not depending on each other, nor in subordination to one chief aim, we must strive to discover what these different matters are, where the one is ended, and where the other begins, marking the boundaries of each.

After having thus read over the whole epistle at one sitting, at least twice, and having gathered for himself a general idea of the whole, the student should next ascertain, if possible, such particulars as (1) Who the writer is? (2) When and where it was written? (3) To whom it was addressed? (4) What was the particular state of the parties at the time they were thus addressed? physically, mentally, morally, and spiritually?

A full understanding of these points, though not essential, is nevertheless of real importance and value in the thorough examination of the epistle; for though the general design of the whole of Scripture is the instruction of the world, and the edification of the church, in every age, still there was an immediate and specific design in regard to every book; and a knowledge of this design cannot but be of great and real value.

These things having been ascertained, as far as possible, the student should next endeavor to put himself in the position of one of those to whom it was originally addressed, bearing fully in mind the above mentioned particulars, and should again read the whole anew at one sitting as before. I am perfectly sure that the student of Scripture, who shall faithfully pursue this method of study, will arrive at a clearer conception of the whole, than could ever possibly be reached by one who does not so study it, though he should have spent toilsome years in consulting commentaries of all ages, and of all countries.

2. But second, we have to consider a few of the leading principles of interpretation.

1. First, then, we should remember that the meaning of Scripture is not to be determined by modern notions and systems, but we must cast ourselves back into the very times and places, and realize the very ideas and modes of thinking of the writers themselves.

2. We should remember that there are many things recorded in Scripture that are not for our imitation or approval, but are rather beacons for our warning and avoidance. This arises from the Scriptures being so much of a historical nature, containing accounts of the opinions and actings of men, of all characters, good, bad, and indifferent.

Besides, we should remember that authority is not attached to any and every particular passage of Scripture; it is "the teaching" of Scripture as a whole that is authoritative, not that of any and every particular verse, clause, or section.

3. We should remember that when any doctrine is to be proved from Scripture, it should be attempted chiefly, if not entirely, from those passages where it is purposely discussed, rather than from those where it is only incidentally mentioned.

4. We must remember that in applying the Scriptures in proof of any doctrine, it is needful to ascertain if all that was meant by the writer be actually expressed, or if not expressed, what it is that is necessarily implied to complete the passage; e. g., Romans 10:9.

5. We must remember that no article of faith can rest solely on a metaphor, parable, or single obscure and figurative text.

6. We must remember that the Scriptures often speak of God after the manner of men, which, nevertheless, is to be understood in a sense worthy of the great God, who is a "Spirit."

7. We must remember that nothing can be a doctrine of Scripture that is contrary to reason. If such appear to be the case, we should suspect our own interpretations of Scripture, and re-examine them accordingly.

8. We must remember that the Hebrew and Greek languages have some peculiar idioms of their own, which must be fully ascertained before we can decide with any confidence.

9. We must remember that the Scriptures are not written scientifically, and in a guarded legal way, but for the multitude, and in a popular form, using the popular language of every-day life, containing elliptical and other expressions that are found in all similar works of the same time, and place, and character.

10. Tenth and lastly, we should remember that we ought not to put into the earlier writings of the Old Testament, teachings which, true though they be, are chiefly, if not exclusively, of the New.—Rainbow.

WAR vs. THE GOSPEL.

Not one word or deed of the meek and lowly Jesus, even remotely, sanctioned war. While the gospel proclaims "peace on earth, and good will toward men," the war spirit introduces hatred and malice toward them. While the one would set apart one day in seven for rest and the worship of God, the other renders such rest and worship utterly impossible, by making God's day one of amusement and hilarity, the favorite day for the commencement of battles. While the one encourages meditation, the cherishing of emotions of sympathy, love, compassion and humanity, the other fearfully arouses the baser and more ferocious passions of our fallen nature. The one pronounces blessings on the peacemaker and on the merciful; but the other offers glory, the applause of men, emolument of social position, to the war-maker.

The gospel inculcates a forgiving spirit, and bids its followers, if smitten on the one cheek, "to turn the other also." War knows no forgiveness, but desolates the whole nation for the offences of a few. The gospel demands that we return good for evil; the war code knows no such spirit, but deals out evil for evil, insult for insult, blow for blow, and blood for blood. The gospel encourages industry and economy, but war diverts from the usual pursuits of industry, fearfully destroying the bone and muscle, and just to that extent reducing the productiveness of the nation.

While the one would improve the condition of man, socially and morally, the other wages war on every interest of humanity. Indeed, the cost of war and intemperance exceeds all other expenditures, burdening the honest laborer with exorbitant taxation, to support what only curses our humanity. The one blesses and elevates man, the other curses and degrades him. The one breathes the spirit of mercy, love and kindness to all; the other rankles with malice, hatred, revenge and cruelty. The one is of God, and in all respects indicates its high origin; the other is of the enemy of all righteousness, and as truly shows its low origin.—Selected.

TENT MEETING REPORT.

Dear Brethren:—I presume that many of the readers of the Crisis would like to hear from time to time of the work of the Master in this great Western field; and as we shall (the Lord willing) spend most of the summer laboring with the tent in this State, I purpose to inform you occasionally of our success.

We pitched the tent for the first time this spring in Jefferson, the county seat of Green Co., Iowa, May 28th. Our views had never been preached there, and none of our faith lived there, that we were aware of, and so we put up at the hotel. Brn. P. F. and H. C. Willoughby and their wives, with a few others, lived six miles out of town. Bro. P. W. Hough, an experienced man in the work, is with us to help tell the glad story. He is an old veteran, and an able preacher. The people came out very well, but not as well as we desired. The preachers used their influence against us, and thus were many of the members of their churches kept from coming to hear; but some came out, and notwithstanding the evenings were cold, and part of the time quite rainy, the interest kept steadily increasing to the close of the meeting. Sunday, June 6th, we baptized one person, who rejoiced in Christ's pardoning love; and Wednesday afternoon we buried six more willing souls in the likeness of Christ's death, and raised them up as we trust to walk in newness of life; and in the evening we organized an Advent Christian Church of twenty members.

We expected that that would close our labors there, but one earnest soul desired to follow the Lord fully, and so Thursday morning, June 10th, we again repaired to the river and baptized her. We also gave out an appointment for an open-air meeting on the street next Sunday, at 3 P. M. We left an excellent interest, and we trust that the work has but just begun, and with the labors of Brn. P. F. and H. C. Willoughby, who are both able preachers and good men, doubtless many more will be gathered in. A number who did not unite with the church came to us at the close of the meeting and bade us God speed. We pitched the tent here in Scranton, also a new field, and ten miles from Jefferson, yesterday, and the prospect is encouraging. More anon. J. RIDLEY.

PLANTING HILL BY HILL.

"In the morning sow thy seed, and in the evening withhold not thine hand."

In God's furrowed fields around us,
He has work for all who will;
Those who may not scatter broadcast,
Yet may plant it hill by hill.

Yearning hearts are often near us,
Conscious of their Spirit-need;
These are hills prepared by heaven
To receive the precious seed.

Shall we find these hills, and plant them?
Shall we scatter when we may?
Or shall idle hands stand waiting
Till the seed-time pass away?

Glory waits the faithful workmen
Who perform their Master's will;
Then, O christians! will ye weary
Of this planting hill by hill.

Soon life's spring-time will be over,
And its autumn days will come;
Happy then will be those workmen
Who have sheaves to carry home.

FINE FEATHERS AT CHURCH.

Harper's Bazaar is certainly not very Puritanic on questions of dress. Perhaps the good people who are more under bondage to fine dressing than they suppose, will like to know its opinion on this subject of dressing for church.

The best bred people of every christian country but our own, avoid all personal display when engaged in worship and prayers. Our churches, on the contrary, are made places for exhibitions of fine apparel and other costly and flaunting compliances with fashion, by those who boast of superior wealth and manners. We shall leave our gewgawed devotees to reconcile humiliation in worship with vanity in dress. This is a problem which we confess we have neither the right nor the capacity to solve.

How far fine clothes may effect the personal piety of the devotee we do not pretend even to conjecture; but we have a decided opinion in regard to their influence upon the religion of others. The fact is, that our churches are so fluttering with birds of fine feathers that no sorry fowl will venture in. It is impossible for poverty in rags and patches, or even in decent but humble costume to take its seat, if it should be so fortunate as to find a place, by the side of wealth in brocade and broadcloth. The poor are so awed by the pretension of superior dress and "the proud man's contumely," that they naturally avoid too close a proximity to them.

The church being the only place on this side of the grave designed for the equal rich and poor to meet together in prostration before God, it certainly should always be kept free for this common humiliation and brotherhood. It is so in the most of the churches in Europe, where the beggar in rags and wretchedness and the wealthiest and most eminent, whose appropriate sobriety of dress leaves them without mark of external distinction, kneel down together, equalized by a common humiliation before the only Supreme Being. The adoption of a more simple attire for church on the part of the rich in this country would have the effect, certainly not of diminishing their own personal piety, but probably of increasing the disposition for religious observance on the part of the poor.—Selected.

RESTING IN JESUS.

G. E. MERRILL.

"Rest for the weary!" How sweet are these words to the toiling, burdened pilgrim, as he travels on towards Canaan's happy land. Rest from what? Not from labor, for, a while in this life, we have work to do. Not from striving, for Jesus has said, "Strive to enter in at the strait gate." Not from watching, for we must watch unto the end. Yet there is "rest, sweet rest" in Jesus. There we can safely repose, secure from Satan's wiles, or the world's proud scorn. Though the billows may rise, and the winds may blow, yet we are safe in Jesus' arms.

Resting in Jesus, we can calmly look around on the most trying scenes of life, and say with the Psalmist, The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; he leadeth me beside the still waters. Resting in Jesus, we are ever happy at home or abroad. When we lie down upon our beds at night, we are blest with his presence; and when we rise in the morning, our song is of his loving kindness, and all the day long, no matter how arduous our labors, there is a peaceful rest and heavenly musings.

Reeting in Jesus, we can view by faith the promised land, while before us arise the heavenly hills of Canaan. Strengthened by the sight, we hasten on until, at last, our feet tread on Canaan's shore, and we walk the golden streets of the New Jerusalem to go no more out forever. The Lord help reader and writer, that we may enjoy this rest, sweet rest in Jesus.

Worcester, Mass.

CHRISTIAN PRACTICE.

All the ordinances, ceremonies, and professions in this world will be utterly empty without a holy life. Nearly all the precepts of the Bible aim at the production of practical righteousness. We must be actuated by right motives, and breathe the right spirit. Our conversation is to be seasoned with grace. We are to trample pride and self-conceit under our feet, and to lead a life of humility and prayer. No animosities or relations are to be indulged, but rather the spirit of forgiveness and good will to all. Whether we eat or drink or dress, we are to do all to the glory of God. This excludes all intemperance, vanity, trickery, malice, and slander. Surely the way of salvation is a narrow way. To walk in it, is to obey the Lord in all things. To walk in it, is to enjoy that divine fellowship which eclipses the glitter of earth. To continue this obedient walk, is to secure a fadeless crown in the coming kingdom.—Banner of Holiness.

MATTHEW HENRY says: "A meek man enjoys almost a perpetual Sabbath. Meekness not only gives great peace of mind, but often adds a lustre to the countenance. We only read of three in Scripture whose faces shone remarkably, viz.: Christ, Moses, and Stephen; and they were eminent for meekness."

IN MEMORIAM OF BRO. SILAS SMITH,

Who died May 14th, 1875, near Ooltewah, Tenn., of cancer on the neck, aged seventy-three years, two months, and twenty-nine days.

Another veteran pilgrim has gone, to rest from his labor and suffering until Jesus comes to release him from the power of the enemy. Bro. Smith had been a faithful follower of Jesus for nearly forty-seven years. For a long time he was associated in church relation with the Baptists. About eight years ago, he received and began to teach the news of the Lord's coming, and kindred truths, for which he lost his membership in that denomination. He then became a bold, humble and fearless advocate of truth, for which he suffered much persecution. The submissive christian spirit with which he bore all opposition, was indeed worthy of imitation by us who are left behind.

If he had personal enemies, it is nnknown to us; and those who opposed him in faith he ever treated with great kindness, visited them when he could, and prayed and talked with them. Although not a public preacher, he was often found traveling, distributing tracts from house to house, reading to the people, and praying with them. In his house strangers could always feel welcome. He suffered extremely for seven months. He always had a word of edification and admonition for his many good neighbors, who so long and faithfully attended him in his illness. May God reward them. He only can.

Three months before his death, he calmly requested the writer to preach his funeral sermon, from the words—"Blessed are the dead," etc.; to use the hymn—"Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep"; and also to prepare this memorial for the Crisis and the Christian, both of which he loved dearly. His last hours were peaceful and happy.

A short time before his death, he sweetly and with much composure sang the words—

"Go on, go on, we'll soon meet again
On the bright frontiers of glory."

He said his sufferings were but a refining crucible, to prepare him for the Master's use. He raised both hands toward the throne of God, and prayed earnestly for five minutes; then folding his arms, he quietly closed with the words—"Even so, come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly. Amen." All was over without another word or struggle, and the pioneer pilgrim sleeps in Jesus, leaving, besides a disconsolate widow, five orphan children, scattered in different parts of the country, to mourn his loss; but not without hope. At the burial words of comfort were kindly spoken, and prayer offered by Bro. Jas. Rogers, of the M. E. Church. His funeral sermon will be preached, the Lord willing, on the first Sunday in July, by the writer. JOHN A. CARGILE.

THE UNRULY MEMBER.

The tongue is called in the Bible "an unruly evil." Our own experience accords perfectly with the statement, and observations on the tongues of others have satisfied us of the fact. We think the following rules, if carefully followed, will be found of great use in taming that which has not yet been perfectly tamed:

Never use your tongue in speaking any thing but truth. The God of truth, who makes the tongue, did not intend it for any other use. It will not work well in falsehood—it will run in such inconsistencies as to detect itself. To use the organ for publishing falsehood is as the use of the eye for hearing or the ear for smelling.

Do not use your tongue too much. It is a kind of waste-gate to let off the thoughts as they collect and expand the mind; but if the waste-gate is always open, the water will soon run shallow. Many people use their tongues too much. Shut the gate, and let the streams of thought flow in till the mind is full, and then you may let off with some effect.

Look into the pond and see if there is water enough to move the wheel to any purpose before you open the gate; or, think before you speak.

Never put your tongue in motion while your respondent has his in motion. The two streams will meet, and the reaction will be so great the words of neither will reach the other, but come back in a blinding sprinkling upon himself.

See that your tongue is hung true before using it. Some tongues, we have observed, are so hung that they sometimes equivocate considerably. Let the owners of such turn the screws of conscience until the tongue moves true.

Expect that others will use their tongues for what you do yours. Some claim the privilege of reporting all the news, and charge others not to do so. Your neighbor will not allow you to monopolize the business. If you have anything to be kept secret, keep it to yourself.—Selected.

YORK CO. A. C. CONFERENCE.

By appointment, the York Co. Conference met with the church at West Parsonsfield, Thursday, June 3d, 1875. The meeting was called to order by the President, Jere. Hill, at 2 P. M. Prayer by Bro. Haines. Preachers present—J. Hill, G. Gay, G. F. Haines, M. Stevens, and J. N. Remick. Brn. L. W. Gowen, C. H. Coleman, and A. Stillians, came in during the meeting. EXPECTATION OF A GREAT WAR, AND THE SECOND COMING OF CHRIST.

The London Times of May 29th said:—The four services at Her Majesty's theatre on Friday, May 28th, were densely crowded, it being known that Mr. Moody in the afternoon was to preach his farewell sermon, and give his farewell address to the young converts in the evening. Mr. Sankey, by special desire, sang the hymn, "Jesus of Nazareth passeth by." Previous to doing so, he said, as that would be the last afternoon he would probably sing there, he trusted that by divine grace many would be led by the singing to the throne of God.

Mr. Moody, in commencing his address, said there was something to him very sad in that meeting. He had never enjoyed preaching so much as he had since he came to that place.

Before taking his leave of his audience, many of whom he would never see again, he wished to say that, though he was no alarmist, he desired to express his conviction that the world was on the eve of some very great event—some very great change. He could not say what was going to happen, but if he read his Scriptures rightly, it might be the coming of the Lord, or some great war.

A few years before the civil war in America broke out, there was a great religious revival, as though God was preparing the souls of those who were to fall in it for entering into his kingdom.

Mr. Moody then preached from the words spoken to Noah, "Come thou into the ark, thou and all thy house." Many people of the present time did not believe the world was going to be burnt up. Well, in the days of Noah there were many who, though they worked in building the ark, laughed and scoffed at Noah at night when they had done their day's work, and pointed him out as an old fanatical fool. Still, the time came; and when Noah went in, God shut the door, and when the flood was coming on no doubt many knocked at the door and cried out, "Let us in." So it was in the present time. Many regarded religious believers who are looking for the second coming of Christ as a body of fanatics; but none should doubt the words of holy writ, but prepare for the coming of the Lord.

Some of the London newspapers, commenting on the above, say they agree with Mr. Moody as to a great war being at hand; but these conclusions they arrive at purely from political circumstances and conditions.

On the following evening, in course of his address at the Victoria Theatre, the Earl of Cavan stated that he fully endorsed and most thoroughly agreed with these remarks of Mr. Moody as to coming judgments.—Signs of Our Times.

THE BIBLE.—What a wondrous book this Bible of ours is! When you have read it through a score of times, you may have only strolled over the surface, looked at the land, or ploughed at most the upper soil. If you take one passage and dig deep for the treasure that coucheth beneath, you will find it inexhaustible. The book has in it a matchless fulness. It were as possible to measure space, or to grasp the infinite in the hollow of your hand, as to investigate the entire compass of Holy Scripture. It is high; I cannot attain unto it. It is broad; I cannot reach its boundary. But oh, what an abundance of provision, and what a fulness of comfort there are stored up in the promises of God's word.—Spurgeon.

THERE are two kinds of hope; the one is of nature, the other cometh of faith. The natural hope is a special gift and benefit of God, which after a certain manner doth help and comfort a man that is troubled and vexed; that he do not utterly despair; but in the midst of adversity hopeth that in a while it will be better, and so waiteth and tarrieth till the adversity be overthrown.

HOME AND HEALTH.

THE TOBACCO HABIT.

Tobacco, says the Materia Medica, is a narcotic. And what is a narcotic? A narcotic, in medical language, means a stupefier—a deadener of nervous and muscular energy. Now, tobacco possesses this quality in a pre-eminent degree. Alcohol and opium are also narcotics. Tobacco differs not essentially from them in its effects upon the system, only that neither the first excitement nor subsequent depression is so great. In full doses, tobacco is a deadly poison. A moderate quantity introduced into the system, even applying the moistened leaves over the stomach, has been known very suddenly to extinguish life.

In whatever form tobacco may be employed, a portion of its active principle finds its way into the system; hence all those distressing affections—nausea, pain in the head, vertigo, etc., which are produced when first using it. And it is only by the most rigid perseverance that many systems can overcome these distressing effects, when acquiring the habit of its use; and the fact that many do overcome them, may be adduced as an illustration of the perversion of taste, as well as the capability of the system to be so educated as to receive with pleasure what was at first disagreeable, and to bear with impunity what was at first the source of injury. Yet, notwithstanding this seeming tolerance, many who have, perhaps, for the space of thirty years, rolled the weed as a sweet morsel under their tongue, and who have always carried their quid on the same side, are not aware that they can no more change it to the opposite side, than if they had never tasted it; they are as readily made sick as a new beginner; and by discontinuing its use for a little time, the system regains its original dislike for so loathsome and poisonous a substance.

People who have used this poisonous article a long time, and even when they become convinced that it is undermining their health, like the besotted rum drinker, find great difficulty in breaking off from its indulgence. Men of the strongest minds, capable of performing the geatest intellectual labor, make themselves slaves of the habit; they voluntarily submit to the bondage. But although great in other respects, he who cannot break the habit of using this poison, at any time and under any circumstances, lacks one important characteristic of greatness—self-command.

If tobacco is a narcotic poison, it needs no other argument to its hurtful tendency to health when habitually and daily used. In naturally delicate constitutions, and in those who lead a sedentary life, its ill effects are most conspicuous; in some such there are many instances that have come within the circle of my own observation, where disease of the digestive organs, heart and brain, has been induced and perpetuated by no other cause. Multitudes enjoy tolerable health who freely use it; but they are the robust, the strong, and the vigorous, who withstand many common causes of disease, but strong as they are, tobacco has a direct tendency to impair their strength and health.

But men are often so blinded by this great stupefier, that they cannot see the injury which it is constantly inflicting upon them. They say, "Look at me! it has never hurt me." This appeal is often made by men who from the associate habit of beer or brandy-drinking, have become actually puffy with soft fat, and their breaths redolent of that indescribably filthy and disgusting exhalation from liquor and tobacco; drenching the floor in a circle, and defiling your clothing with their constant expectoration, apparently unconscious of their filthiness and degradation.—H. P. Dutcher, in Evangelist.

BEING HIS OWN PILOT.

A bright boy who loved the sea, entered on a sailor's life when very young. He rose to quick promotion, and while quite a young man was made the master of a ship. One day a passenger spoke to him upon the voyage, and asked if he should anchor off a certain headland, supposing he would anchor there, and telegraph for a pilot to take the vessel into port. "Anchor! no: not I. I mean to be in dock with the morning tide." "I thought perhaps you would signal for a pilot." "I am my own pilot," was the curt reply.

Intent upon reaching port by morning, he took a narrow channel to save distance. Old, bronzed, gray-headed seamen turned their swarthy faces to the sky, which boded squally weather, and shook their heads. Cautious passengers went to the young captain, and besought him to take the wider course; but he only laughed at their fears, and repeated his promise to be in dock at daybreak. He was ashore before daybreak.

We need not describe a storm at sea; the alarm of breakers shouted hoarsely through the wind, and the wild orders to get the life-boats manned. Enough to say that the captain was ashore earlier than he promised, tossed sportively upon some weedy beach, a dead thing that the waves were weary of; and his queenly ship and costly freight were scattered over the surfy acres of an angry sea. How was this? The glory of that young man was his strength; but he was his own pilot. His own pilot! There was his blunder—fatal, suicidal blunder.

O, young men, beware of being your own pilots! Take the true and able Pilot on board, who can stride upon those waves, who can speak, "Peace be still," to that rough Boreas, so that "with Christ in the vessel, you may smile at the storm." To be emptied of self, that is your need. Send a message to heaven for help. Telegraph for a pilot. You will not ask in vain. And, encouraged by the help that is vouchsafed once, you will ask again, and seek grace to help in every time of need.—Selected.

A STRANGE PROVIDENCE.

"Do let me take these corsets off, mamma," I heard a young girl pleading with her mother; "they make my side ache, and my heart beats so hard against them that it tires me. Please let me take them off."

"Nonsense! You ought to have pride enough to wear them. You will grow up as round shouldered as a camel without them. Do you want people to think you are deformed?"

"But it hurts me to breathe, mamma. I can't breathe down; and I can't help trying to. I feel as if I was stifling."

"Say no more about it. Other girls breathe and you are not made differently from them, I suppose. Look at Martha Aberly. There's a pretty figure for you. A regular dumpling. Her mother does not believe in corsets. When your figure is properly formed, it will be time enough to talk about it."

It is four years since, but the frail, lovely girl has for three years been wearing the dress which requires no lacing to make it fit. A white marble cross in the burial place shows the grave where she rests. It is called a sad providence that thus removed an only daughter, so sweet in temper, so promising in talent. But Providence had nothing to do with it, in my opinion. I think that there are many careful, church-going mothers who will be terribly dismayed when the day of final reckoning shall come, to see the wealth of fresh, happy life that God meant to blossom out in excellence and beauty upon the earth, but which was untimely crushed and blighted by their own insane worship of fashion.—Selected.

"SWEET HOUR OF PRAYER."

LUCY M. CHAFFEE.

Once more in the name of Jesus
We meet in this place of prayer.
How sweet is the saints' communion!
How quiet this evening hour!
Looking up to our heavenly Father,
Approaching the throne of his grace,
Upon us the breath of His Spirit
Descends with its comforting peace.

And one of the grand old chapters
Sounds out from the sacred Word,
Which takes us to John in Patmos,
And the saints on the mount of God.
Led up antitypical Pisgah,
Just over its Jordan we see
The delectable plains of the country
Long promised, believer, to thee.

There stands, in its glory, the city—
The ransomed rejoice in its light,
With forever and ever no sorrow,
Nor sickness, nor dying, nor night.
We look, and we long to pass over,
To finish our pilgrimage here,
To look on the King in his beauty,
And find what it is to be there.

For the gates of the heavenly Salem
Are open for us, we are sure,
And its Lord will soon welcome us through them,
If only we wait and endure.
Of its glories which tongue cannot utter,
Nor spirit nor heart comprehend,
The brightest, the chiefest, the dearest
Is Jesus, the Alpha and end.

So the heart of each loving disciple
Breaks out into singing to-night,
And gathers new strength for the warfare,
The battle for God and the right.
So in prayer, and in song, and confession,
The blessing of Jesus is given,
In this place where he meets with his people,
And makes it a "gate of his heaven."

MORMONISM:

OR,

WAS JOSEPH SMITH A DIVINELY INSPIRED PROPHET?

WM. SHELDON.

CHAPTER I.

If the Book of Mormon is what it claims to be, it was translated from ancient records by inspiration, Joseph Smith being the inspired translator; hence, if the Book of Mormon contains internal proof of its fallacy, conflicting both with itself and with the Bible, the claim of Joseph is thereby invalidated, as true inspiration cannot clash with itself. Furthermore, if the numerous revelations given through Joseph Smith are proven to contain gross errors, his claim to inspiration will thereby be proven incorrect, and consequently the Book of Mormon cannot be a sacred production.

In other words, the claims of Mormonism to divine origin, stand or fall with a correct answer to the simple question, Was Joseph Smith a true prophet? If he was not a true prophet, the Book of Mormon is not true; and if we prove the Book of Mormon untrue, we thereby prove Joseph a false prophet. Nor can this mode of argument be evaded by the assumption that even the Bible contains discrepancies, as these may be attributed to errors in translating or transcribing; but not so in the productions of Joseph Smith, as they are given at once in the English language, without any chance for errors in translation.

We propose to present and defend several propositions, either of which, if demonstrated to be correct, will prove Mormonism a system of human origin.

I. A divinely inspired prophet would not claim to have received from an angel, and to have translated by inspiration, a book in conflict with the Bible, as worthy of endorsement. Such is the Book of Mormon presented by Joseph Smith. We will now refer to several instances in which the Book of Mormon conflicts with the Bible.

1. The Book of Mormon locates the death of Christ on the wrong day of the month to agree with the Bible. In the book of Helaman, chapter 5, section 4, Samuel, the Lamanite prophet, foretells a sign to be witnessed, indicating the time of the death of Christ, this sign to consist of a three days darkness. And in the Book of Nephi, chapter 4, section 2, we read: "And it came to pass in the thirty fourth year, in the first month, in the fourth day of the month . . . then, behold, there was darkness upon the face of the land. . . . And it came to pass that it did last for the space of three days." The prophecy of Samuel affirmed that the darkness should begin "in that day that he shall suffer." Nephi affirms that it began "in the thirty-fourth year, in the fourth day of the month;" so this locates the death of Christ on the "fourth day" of some month.

(1) He did not die on the fourth day of the Jewish month (and that was the time they brought from Jerusalem), for he died at the passover, which falls on the fourteenth day of the first month. Here the Bible and the Book of Mormon are ten days at variance. Which is right?

(2) Though the Nephites are said to have reckoned their years from the coming of Christ, beginning nine years after he came (Nephi, c. 1), there is no intimation of a change in counting of months; but if there were, and the first month was commenced with the birth of Christ, by taking Christmas as a starting point (Dec. 25th), the "fourth day" from this epoch would be Dec. 29th for the death of Christ, three months too early to agree with the Bible, which says that he was crucified at the passover.

If they counted their time from the birth of Christ as given in the Bible, instead of the time given by tradition, the disagreement is just as great; for Gabriel visited Mary in the sixth Jewish month, answering to the latter part of August and first part of September, nine months after which Christ was born; that is, in the latter part of May, or first part of June; which would make the "fourth day" of the "first month," reckoned from this epoch, over two months too late to agree with the Bible time of Christ's death. On this point the Bible and the Book of Mormon are irreconcileably in conflict, whether we allow the Book of Mormon to use Jewish time, or to count from Christ's birth. If the Book of Mormon is right in its statement about the time of Christ's death, the Bible must be wrong. Which is right? This fact is fatal to the claim of Joseph's inspiration.

2. The Book of Mormon locates the birth of Christ too late in the world's history to harmonize with the Bible, claiming that Lehi left Jerusalem in the first year of Zedekiah's reign (1st Book of Nephi, chap. 1,) and that Christ's birth was six hundred years from that epoch: "The Messiah cometh in six hundred years from the time my father left Jerusalem." (2nd Book of Nephi, chap. 11). But the Bible locates the first advent of Christ chronologically forty-seven years earlier; for with the first year of Zedekiah began the seventy years captivity, which ended with the first of Cyrus, of whom God said: "He is my shepherd, and shall perform all my pleasure; even saying to Jerusalem, Thou shalt be built" (Isa. 44: 28); and Gabriel said to Daniel: "Know therefore, and understand, that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and build Jerusalem, unto Messiah the prince, shall be seven weeks, and three-score and two weeks" (Dan. 9: 25), that is, sixty-nine weeks of years, or four hundred and eighty-three years. Thus counting seventy years from the going forth of the commandment back to the first of Zedekiah, and adding the remaining four hundred and eighty-three years to Messiah, we have just five hundred and fifty-three years from the first of Zedekiah to Messiah, instead of six hundred years, as stated in the Book of Mormon. So the Messiah of the Book of Mormon came too late to be the Messiah of the Bible, as well as being crucified on a different day from the Bible Messiah. To claim that the Bible is right, is to condemn the Book of Mormon, and its reputed inspired translator; to claim that the Book of Mormon is right, is to condemn the Bible. Which book shall fall? But let us look further before deciding.

3. The Book of Mormon disagrees with the Bible as to the place of Christ's birth; for in the fifth chapter of Alma, it is stated; "And behold, he shall be born of Mary, at Jerusalem." But the Bible often affirms that he was born at Bethlehem instead of Jerusalem. Here again the Bible and Book of Mormon are in conflict. Surely the Book of Mormon must present a different Christ from the Bible—one born forty-seven years after, born in another town, and dies on another day of the month. It is sometimes affirmed that being born "at Jerusalem," may mean near Jerusalem. A theory that needs such tinkering as this, stands self-condemned. Another effort is made to establish the idea that one part of Jerusalem might have been called Bethlehem; but this will avail nothing, even if it were true; for from the Bethlehem in which he was born, "they brought him to Jerusalem." Luke 2: 22. This they could not have done if he had been already in Jerusalem. Bethlehem was about six miles from Jerusalem—another town entirely.

4. The Book of Mormon clashes with the Bible in its claims concerning the Melchizedek priesthood under the law. It is said in the tenth chapter of the book of Alma: "There were many who were ordained and became high priests of God. . . . Yea, humble yourselves even as the people in the days of Melchisedek, who was also a high priest after this same order which I have spoken, who also took upon him the high priesthood forever. And it was this same Melchizedek to whom Abraham paid tithes; yea, even our father Abraham paid tithes of one tenth part of all he possessed." Not only do we here learn that Abraham paid tithes (which means a tenth) to Melchizedek, but we are told that it was "tithes [or a tenth] of one tenth part of all he possessed;" that is, a tenth part of a tenth part; or, a hundredth part; while Paul says: "Abraham gave a tenth part of all" (Heb. 7: 2), instead of a mere "tithe [or tenth] of one tenth part," which would be only a hundredth. This difficulty cannot be obviated by pleading the ignorance of an inspired translator, for that would be a virtual repudiation of his inspiration.

Furthermore, the Melchisedek priesthood is here located under the law, several hundred years before the crucifixion, with a plurality of Melchisedek priests officiating at once; whereas, Paul after saying, "The priesthood being changed, there is made of necessity a change also of the law, affirms: "After the similitude of Melchizedek there ariseth another priest." Heb. 7: 12, 15. According to Paul the priesthood was changed, and this made a change of the law necessary; which could not have been true if the Melchisedek priesthood had existed previously in connection with the law. Besides, Paul mentions only one more priest of the Melchisedek order, and that was Christ: "another priest" does not mean a plurality. Why was a "change" of the law necessary in order to the introduction of the Melchizedek priesthood in the person of Christ, if it had long been in existence under the law? It will avail nothing to say that it was because Christ did not spring from the tribe of Levi, for neither did these priests spoken of by Alma.

The fact is, Christ was Melchizedek's only successor in that particular priesthood; and preparatory to his officiating, there was a "change of the law," as well as of the priesthood. The two priesthoods were not operative, under divine sanction, at the same time; for "if therefore perfection were by the Levitical priesthood (for under it the people received the law), what further need was there that another priest should rise after the order of Melchisedek?" Heb. 7: 11. Melchizedec and "another priest" (Christ), of the same order, are the only Melchizedek priests spoken of in the Bible. One preceded the law, and the other succeeded it. Yet the Book of Mormon makes the two priesthoods run parallel with each other, and makes Paul's talk about "another priest," as the result of a change of the priesthood, all superfluous. What need of a change of the priesthood if both could exist together?

5. The Book of Mormon locates the Aaronic priesthood among the descendants of Manassah, instead of Levi, in opposition to the Bible.

According to the Book of Mormon, the Nephites were descendants of Manasseh. "And Aminadi was a descendant of Nephi, who was the son of Lehi, who came out of the land of Jerusalem, who was a descendant of Manasseh." (Alma, chap. 8). The priesthood, under the law, was restricted to the tribe of Levi; yet among this people who descended from Manasseh, the priesthood was operative, though "the law was engraven upon the plates of brass" brought out of Jerusalem, and these plates "did contain the five books of Moses," confining the priesthood to the tribe of Levi. Turning to the fourth chapter of the second book of Nephi we read: "And I, Nephi, did build a temple." Again: "And it came to pass that I, Nephi, did consecrate Jacob and Joseph, that they should be priests." In the eleventh chapter of Mosiah many priests are mentioned, and Alma is called "High priest." Here the priesthood, under the law, is held in opposition to the law. Would God sanction the violation of his own law, before its abrogation? To believe the Book of Mormon, is to believe that he did.

6. The Book of Mormon conflicts with the Bible in locating the second coming of Christ in the past. Over thirty years after Christ's ascension to heaven, Paul affirmed: "Unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time, without sin unto salvation." Heb. 9: 28. But according to the Book of Mormon, Christ came the second time from heaven, in person, within one year from the time of his ascension to heaven; thus either Paul was incorrect in his chronological location of Christ's second coming, or the Book of Mormon is incorrect in its affirmations about the matter. In the first part of the fourth chapter of the Book of Nephi, the death of Christ is located in "the thirty-fourth year, in the first month, in the fourth day of the month;" and in the last part of the same chapter we read: "And in the ending of the thirty-fourth year, behold I will show unto you that the people of Nephi who were spared, and also those who had been called Lamanites, who had been spared, did have great favors shown unto them, and great blessings poured out upon their heads insomuch that soon after the ascension of Christ into heaven, he did truly manifest himself unto them, showing his body unto them, and ministering unto them."

This was "in the ending of the thirty-fourth year," while the crucifixion is placed in the first month of the same year, nearly a year apart. In the fifth chapter of the same book, it is said: "And it came to pass as they understood, they cast their eyes up again towards heaven; and, behold, they saw a man descending out of heaven; and he was clothed in a white robe, and he came down and stood in the midst of them. . . . And it came to pass that he stretched forth his hand, and spake unto the people, saying, Behold, I am Jesus Christ."

This certainly makes a second coming from heaven, and that, too, within a year after his crucifixion; so if this is correct, Paul was mistaken in placing the second coming of Christ still future about thirty years after this event is alleged to have transpired; and if Paul is correct, this statement in the Book of Mormon cannot be true; and if not true, the book falls, together with its author, and his claims to inspiration, and also the whole system predicted upon the book and the revelations of its prophet.

Not only does the Book of Mormon locate the second coming of Christ from heaven within a year after his crucifixion, but also his third coming; for in the last part of the eighth chapter of the book of Nephi we read that "he ascended again into heaven;" and in the first part of the next chapter it is stated that the next day "Jesus came and stood in the midst, and ministered unto them;" and it is also affirmed that he taught the people "for the space of three days," and also that he raised some from the dead. It will avail nothing to affirm that Christ appeared several different times to his disciples after his resurrection, on the other continent; for that occurred before his ascension into heaven, and did not involve a descent from heaven; nor can the remarkable visions of Stephen at his death, and Paul at his conversion, be made to appear parallel cases; for in these instances there was no personal descent from heaven, but only miraculous sight and hearing.

7. The Book of Mormon, claiming to have been written without a knowledge of the New Testament, and much of it before the New Testament was written, repeatedly quotes from the New Testament. In the book of Esther, sixth chapter, purporting to have been written many centuries before the first advent, and to have been translated and transcribed by Moroni, we read concerning "the Scripture which saith, there are they who were first, who shall be last; and there are they who were last who shall be first." Mark this point: this is the most ancient record spoken of in the Book of Mormon on this continent, preceding the writing of Lehi and Nephi; and as Esther's people came from the tower of Babel, and could have brought with them no Scriptures of a later date from the other continent, and as none of the old Testament Scriptures were then written, what Scriptures can here be referred to but those in the New Testament, where we find similar language? "The Scripture which saith," can be found nowhere else. In Luke 13: 30, we read: "There are last that shall be first, and there are first that shall be last;" and in Matt. 19: 30, "Many that are first shall be last, and many that are last shall be first." If he were only writing a statement similar to Christ's, it would be different from an affirmation that it was said in Scripture, even before the Old Testament was written, or at least before Esther knew of its having been written, he being a descendant of those who emigrated to this continent at the confounding of language, before the Old Testament was written.

Again, in the fourth chapter of the Book of Mormon we read: "For do we not read that God is the same yesterday, to-day, and forever; and in him is no variableness neither shadow of changing?" Yes, we "read" it, but where? In the New Testament, which claimed to be unknown to Mormon—a part of this language being found in Heb. 13: 8, and a part in James 1: 17. But how could Mormon "read" this language, "In him is no variableness," except by having the only book in which it was written? It is not to be found in the writings of the Nephite or the Lamanite prophets, or in the writings they claim to have brought over the water. The other clause, "The same yesterday, to-day, and forever," is often put into the mouths of these prophets; but this one has never been.

Then I press the question, Where could they "read" it? Only in the book of James; and this fact betrays the Book of Mormon, and proves that its origin is not what its prophet claims for it, and if not, both the book and its prophet fall together. Again, in the eighth chapter of Moroni, Mormon is made to say, "The whole need no physician, but they that are sick"—language borrowed from the Savior; and so in numerous instances.

This is a vein of weakness running all through the book, constantly cropping out, showing that the real author of the book had either read or heard much of the language of the New Testament. Inspiration would not thus have courted distrust.

8. The Book of Mormon blunders into the claim that about one hundred years before the first Advent, the name "Christian" was in common use on this continent, thus clashing with the Bible which affirms: "The disciples were first called christians at Antioch." Acts 11: 26. In the twenty-first chapter of Alma, we read: "He prayed mightily unto his God for the blessings of liberty to rest upon his brethren so long as there should a band of christians remain to possess the land." Again: "All those who were true believers in Christ, took upon them, gladly, the name of Christ, or christians." Either Paul was wrong in saying they were "first called christians at Antioch," or the Book of Mormon here invalidates its own claim to antiquity. It is useless to conjecture that Paul meant that they were the first on the other continent merely; he meant what he said—"first." Here Paul and Joseph clash, and which will suffer by the collision?

9. The Book of Mormon conflicts with the statements of its prophet about the disposal of the plates from which the book claims to have been translated; the book affirming that they had once been "hid up," that Joseph was to take them out of the ground, and that after being translated they should again be "hid up," while the prophet claims to have given them to the angel.

In the eleventh chaper of the second book of Nephi, it is said: "Wherefore, when thou hast read the words which I have commanded thee, and obtained the witnesses which I have promised thee, then shalt thou seal up the book again, and hide it up unto me." We learn that when Moroni "hid up" the plates, he buried them in the ground, in a box; so we must look for Joseph to hide them in a similar manner: but did he do it? No; for his apostle Taylor, says: "Concerning the plates, Joseph had them in his possession for some time . . . when he got through translating, they were delivered again to the angel." So he did not "hide up" the plates, as stated in the Book of Mormon, but gave them to the angel; and here is a disagreement in testimony. Really, if the angel was so willing to take charge of the plates after Joseph had got through with them, why did not Moroni give them into the hands of an angel instead of hiding them in the ground? It will not obviate the difficulty by saying that perhaps the angel hid them after Joseph gave them to him, for the express statement is: "Thou shalt seal up the Book again, and hide it up unto me." It will not do for the angel to do what the book says Joseph was to do; and that the angel did not hide them is intimated in the claim that he "came down from heaven" and showed the plates to the three witnesses, another proof that Joseph did not hide them.

10. The Book of Mormon conflicts with itself. If we demonstrate this fact, it cannot be gainsayed by the ordinary method, affirming that the Bible also conflicts with itself; for minor errors found in the Bible are attributable to faulty translation, which cannot be an excuse for the Book of Mormon; it claims to have been translated by inspiration directly into the English language. We will call attention to a number of instances in his book as samples of collision.

(1). In the thirteenth chapter of Nephi, Jesus is represented as saying to three of his American Nephite disciples: "Ye shall never endure the pains of death; but when I come in my glory, ye shall be changed in the twinkling of an eye, from mortality to immortality." In the next paragraph it is added, after speaking of a transfiguration, "Whether they were mortal or immortal, from that day of their transfiguration, I know not." But in a single paragraph before, Christ is represented as saying that they should be changed "from mortality to immortality" at his coming in glory; now this writer does not know whether they were mortal or immortal, in the face of these plain words. But an attempt is made to escape the dilemma in the latter part of the same chapter, by saying: "And now, behold, as I spake concerning those whom the Lord had chosen, yea, even three who were caught up into the heavens, that I knew not whether they were cleansed from mortality to immortality. But, behold, since I wrote, I have inquired of the Lord, and he hath made it manifest unto me, that there must needs be a change wrought upon their bodies."

But this does not change the fact that Christ is represented as plainly stating that their change from mortality to immortality should take place at his coming; and immediately Nephi says he did not know whether they were mortal or immortal—equivalent to saying that he did not know whether Christ lied or told the truth.

(2) The first chapter of the book of Omni represents Mosiah as going from the land of Nephi to Zarahemla, about three hundred years after Nephi reached America: "And they discovered a people who were called the people of Zarahemla. Now there was great rejoicing among the people of Zarahemla; and also Zarahemla did rejoice exceedingly because the Lord had sent the people of Moriah with the plates of brass which contained the record of the Jews."

In the next paragraph we are told: "Their language had become corrupted; and they had brought no records with them; and they denied the being of their Creator; and Mosiah, nor the people of Mosiah could understand them." Yet the same paragraph tells us that they came out of Jerusalem at the time Zedekiah was taken to Babylon—about three hundred years previously. At this time they rejoiced that the Lord had sent Mosiah; and yet did not believe there was a Lord in existence. Glad of the records, yet could not understand each other's language—their language having been so corrupted in a little over three hundred years, with no surroundings to dilute it, or different language to mingle with, or mislead. To believe the Book of Mormon is to believe all this. "And Mosiah was appointed to be their king."

(3) The Book of Mormon clashes in its statements about the plates hid by Ether, who descended from those who came to this continent at the time of the confounding of the language at the tower. In the last part of the last chapter of Ether, it is stated that Ether "hid them in a manner that the people of Limhi did find them." In the first chapter of the book of Ether, Moroni says: "And now I, Moroni, proceed to give an account of those ancient inhabitants who were destroyed by the hand of the Lord upon the face of this north country. And I take mine account from the twenty-four plates which were found by the people of Limhi." A part of the record which Moroni takes from these plates found by the people of Limhi, reads thus: "And it came to pass that the Lord said unto the brother of Jared, Thou shalt not suffer these things which ye shall see and hear, to go forth unto the world, until the time come that I shall glorify my name in the flesh . . . ye shall write them, and seal them up that no one can interpret them; for ye shall write them in a language that they cannot be read. And, behold these two stones will I give unto thee, and ye shall seal them up also with the things which ye shall write. For, behold, the language which ye shall write, I have confounded; wherefore I will cause in mine own time that these stones will magnify to the eyes of men these things which ye shall write. . . . And the Lord commanded the brother of Jared to go down out of the mount from the presence of the Lord, and write the things which he had seen; and they were forbidden to come unto the children of men until after he should be lifted up upon the cross; and for this cause did king Benjamin keep them, that they should not come unto the world until after Christ should show himself unto his people. . . . I am commanded that I should hide them up again in the earth."

According to this story, the people of Limhi found twenty-four plates, giving an account of the people that came from the tower, and the Lord's revelation to Jared's brother—that Jared's brother was to seal up the record on these plates, together with two stones called interpreters—that this was forbidden to come to the children of men till after the crucifixion—and that king Benjamin kept them for a while. The other story is quite different, which claims that instead of their being kept by king Benjamin at all, the people of Limhi did not find these plates till after king Benjamin's death, and his son Mosiah was reigning in his stead; that instead of their not being interpreted till after the crucifixion, that Mosiah translated them hundreds of years before the cross; that instead of finding the stone interpreters with the twenty-four plates the people of Limhi only found breastplates and rusty swords; that instead of having the translation done by the means of these stone interpreters (which were never found), Mosiah previously possessed other stone interpreters, by which he translated the twenty-four plates, in violation of the prohibition of their translation before the cross; all of which will appear from the following quotations. In Mosiah, 4th chapter, we read that after Msoiah was crowned king, his father, "king Benjamin, lived three years, and he died." In the first of the next chapter it is stated: "After king Mosiah had had continual peace for the space of three years," he sent a company of sixteen strong men, including Ammon, from Zarahemla, who journeyed in the wilderness forty days before reaching the "people of Limhi." This carries us past the death of Benjamin; and Ammon is then just about to hear of the twenty-four plates; so king Benjamin never saw them. In the same chapter we read:

"And he [Ammon] also rehearsed unto them the last words which king Benjamin has taught them, and explained them to the people of king Limhi. . . . And the king said unto him, Being grieved for the afflictions of my people, I caused that forty-three of my people should take a journey into the wilderness, that thereby they might find the land of Zarahemla; that we might appeal unto our brethren to deliver us out of bondage; and they were lost in the wilderness for the space of many days, yet they were diligent, and found not the land of Zarahemla, but returned to this land, having traveled in a land among many waters; having discovered a land which was covered with bones of men, and of beasts, etc., and was also covered with ruins of buildings of every kind: having discovered a land which had been peopled with a people who were as numerous as the hosts of Israel. And for a testimony that the things that they had said are true, they brought twenty-four plates, which are filled with engravings; and they are of pure gold. And behold also, they have brought breast-plates, which are large; and they are of brass, and of copper, and are perfectly sound. And again, they have swords, the hilts thereof have perished, and the blades thereof were cankered with rust; and there is no one in the land that is able to interpret the language or the engravings that are on the plates. Therefore I said unto thee, canst thou translate? And I say unto thee again, knowest thou any one that can translate? for I am desirous that these records should be translated into our language. For, perhaps they will give us a knowledge of a remnant of the people who have been destroyed, from whence these records came; or, perhaps they will give us a knowledge of this very people who have been destroyed; and I am desirous to know the cause of their destruction. Now Ammon said unto him, I can assuredly tell thee, O king, of a man that can translate these records; for he hath wherewith he can look, and translate all records that are of ancient date; and it is a gift from God. And the things are called interpreters; and no man can look in them, except he be commanded, lest he should look for that he ought not, and he should perish. And whosoever is commanded to look in them, the same is called seer."

Again, in the ninth chapter, we read: "Now Limhi was again filled with joy, on learning from the mouth of Ammon that king Mosiah had a gift from God, whereby he could interpret such engravings." And in the tenth chapter it is said, "And it came to pass that the people of king Limhi did depart by night into the wilderness. . . . And after being many days in the wilderness, they arrived in the land of Zarahemla, and joined his people, and became his subjects. And it came to pass that Mosiah received them with joy; and he also received their records, and also the records which had been found by the people of Limhi."

It is further stated in the twelfth chapter: "Now king Mosiah had no one to confer the kingdom upon; . . . . after having translated and caused to be written the records which were on the plates of gold, which had been found by the people of Limhi, which were delivered to him by Limhi; and this he did because of the great anxiety of his people, for they were desirous beyond measure to know concerning those people who had been destroyed. And now he translated them by means of those two stones which were fastened into the two rims of a bow. Now these things were prepared from the beginning, and were handed down from generation to generation, for the purpose of interpreting languages; . . . . and whosoever has these things is called seer after the manner of old times. Now after Mosiah had finished translating these records, behold, it gave an account of the people who were destroyed, from the time they were destroyed, back to the building of the great tower, at the time the Lord confounded the language of the people."

Here we may well pause and compare the two records:

1. Moroni says the plates found by the people of Limhi were kept by king Benjamin, that the world should not see them; but the book of Mosiah says that the people of Limhi did not find the plates till after king Benjamin was dead.

2. Moroni testifies that they were not to be translated till after Christ was "lifted up upon the cross;" but the book of Mosiah informs us that they were translated by king Moriah, "and caused to be written," even hundreds of years before the crucifixion; and yet Moroni pretends to translate them again after the cross.

3. Moroni informs us that the stone interpreters of the brother of Jared were sealed up with the plates; but the book of Mosiah makes no mention of finding stones with the plates, though Ammon talks to Limhi about stone-interpreters possessed by Mosiah off in a distant land. What became of these sealed interpreters?

4. Moroni tells us that Jared's brother's stone-interpreters were sealed up with the plates that Limhi's people found, for the express purpose of enabling the finders to translate them; yet according to the book of Mosiah, the finders could not translate them, not finding with the plates anything but swords and breast-plates; and finally, Ammon tells king Limhi that Mosiah "hath wherewith he can translate," called interpreters; and after a while the plates are carried over to Mosiah in Zarahemla, and Mosiah translates them with his own interpreters "set in two rims of a bow." But what became of the interpreters that were sealed up with those plates found by Limhi's people?

5. Mosiah not only had interpreters before receiving the twenty-four plates found by the people of Limhi, but he had previously exercised his gift in interpreting languages, and his uncle Mosiah before him, also, by which Ammon knew that he possessed this gift; and an instance is given of its exercise in a book written by Omni, before the book of Mosiah: "And it came to pass in the days of Mosiah, there was a large stone brought unto him, with engravings on it; and he did interpret the engravings, by the gift and power of God." So Mosiah did not need the interpreters of Jared's brother; but still the question continues to come up, since they were sealed up at God's bidding, what became of them? And as Moroni claims to have had them, where did he get them?

After Moroni represents God as saying to Jared's brother, "These two stones will I give unto thee, and ye shall seal them up also"—that is, with the plates—"wherefore I will cause in mine own due time that these stones shall magnify to the eyes of men these things which ye shall write," Moroni adds: "After Christ had truly showed himself unto his people, he commanded that they should be made manifest. . . . Behold I have written upon these plates the very things which the brother of Jared saw;" again he adds: "I am commanded that I should hide them up again in the earth. . . . and he also hath commanded that I should seal up the interpretation thereof: wherefore I have sealed up the interpreters." Where did he get them, seeing they were not found when the people of Limhi found the twenty-four plates, with which they were hid?

6. Mosiah's stone-interpreters, "set in two rims of a bow," which he possessed previous to the finding of these twenty-four plates by the people of Limhi, "were prepared from the beginning, and were handed down from generation to generation, for the purpose of interpreting languages" (Mosiah, 12th chapter); while the "two stones" possessed by the brother of Jared were given to him by the Lord after confounding the language at the tower, without any "rims of a bow." But when Nephi came to America, he is very careful to tell us about bringing Laban's sword, Lehi's compass, and the brass plates taken from Laban, but not a word about these precious stone-interpreters, which "were prepared from the beginning, and were handed down from generation to generation." Where did Mosiah get his interpreters, seeing they were not imported from Jerusalem, and seeing preceding generations on this continent were unknown to him till after he possessed these interpreters? Here is another puzzle, or crooked story.

HIDDEN TALENTS.

Talents, opportunities, graces, are wrapped and laid away. Immense quantities of capital are hidden that ought to be in active service. The moment faith flags, napkins are in use, just as money is concealed when commercial confidence is shaken. Talents are sensitive to the least wavering of faith. The conference meetings show it, the empty pews indicate it, contribution boxes feel it, mission boards suffer from it, ministers are starved, churches decline, missionaries driven from the field, gospel enginery blocked by it. There is talent, money, power enough in Zion, to speedily convert the world in the hands of God; but the stewards have hid them in napkins. Much more is hidden than is in use.

This hiding of talent is wasteful and dangerous. We loose the use and the talent also. The opportunity passes, the ability departs, spiritual life dies out, indolence becomes more indolent, selfishness more selfish, timidity more timid, stammering tongues more stammering, ignorance more ignorant, indifference more indifferent. When the light becomes darkness how great is that darkness! If we have one talent the only safe way is to use it. By using, it is sure to become two, and the two to four, and the four to eight. "To him that hath shall be given-" The very worst thing to do is to wrap our talent in a napkin.

THERE are a hundred successful men where there is one contented man. I can find a score of handsome faces where I can find one happy face—happy in all weathers, and radiant with the suushine of the heart. I can even find a score of working, zealous christians where I can encounter a single christian, who, under the o'er-brooding love of God, sits as a robin does on its bough, singing and swinging, without one trouble in its heart, or one discord in its minstrelsy. A down-right contented christian is rare, and all the more attractive for his rarity. What did Paul mean when he said, "I have learned in whatever state I am, therewith to be content"? He meant that he was perfectly willing to be where God had placed him, and to do what God told him, and to suffer what God laid on him, and to work, through manifold pains and persecutions, his mighty mission to his race. He was not content without work, but content with work.

CRUCIFIED WITH CHRIST.

"I am crucified with Christ; nevertheless, I live; yet not I; but Christ liveth in me; and the life which I now live in the flesh, I live by the faith of the Son of God." Gal. 2: 20.

Crucifixion is a mode of execution for crime. It is the cutting off a person from liberty, society and life. It represents a person as unworthy of longer enjoying the confidence and happiness of social life. When applied literally, it represents men as unworthy of political blessings, the protection of government and the privilege of living among men. When used religiously it implies a cutting off from religious society, and to be deprived of church associations and fellowship. When used morally, it signifies death to certain moral life, the cessation of certain moral acts, either good or bad. When applied spiritually, it implies the ending of certain spiritual control or government.

Death to sin is the ending of evil spirits' control, the subduing and controlling of evil passions. A literal crucifixion ends a sinner's stealing and murdering; so a spiritual crucifixion ends a sinner's love of the world, pride and rebellion against God.

A man is politically crucified when he takes a position which causes his party to withdraw from him its sympathy and suffrage. A man is crucified financially when he loses his credit and reputation in the commercial community, so that his business is ruined. A man is ministerially crucified when his reputation as a safe and wise teacher and leader is destroyed.

Every government and community has its standard of judgment, by which it acquits or condemns all its citizens. These standards are designed to represent the will and purpose of public sentiment, so that they vary at different times and places, according to the variation of those sentiments. Therefore all who do not harmonize with public sentiment are necessarily condemned by their standard, and cut off from their sympathy, patronage and fellowship.

As long as public opinion in any community is antagonistic to the divine government, all who defend the divine principles must oppose the human, and so cause themselves to be condemned by public opinion. It was this principle which produced the crucifixion of Jesus Christ, and will also produce martyrdom or religious crucifixion in all his followers. It must be so in the nature of things until the human standard is changed from the sinful and depraved to the heavenly and divine.

When Christ came into this world he truly represented the sentiments of heaven, relating to men, as to their hopes, duties and destiny. This was so directly opposed to their false hopes and corrupt desires that they sought determinedly to condemn him by their standard, and thus silence him in his teachings which condemned them. This opposition was more strongly manifested by the most religious classes; because he came as a religious Teacher, which naturally aroused the opposition of all religious teachers whose positions were attacked as false by Christ.

The Jewish teachers were not so much incensed against Christ on account of his new theology, as on account of his opposition to their tradition. Christ raised a standard of faith and life which required men to occupy a very different position from that raised to the Jewish teachers, which would, if received, make theirs unpopular, and draw men from their ranks to Christ. It was principally this which produced the murderous cry in the hearts of the infidel Jews, and resulted in the crucifixion of Christ.

When they heard his unanswerable arguments, and saw his convincing miracles were drawing "all men" unto him, they hastened to assemble a council, and said, "What do we? for this man doeth many miracles. If we let him alone, all men will believe on him, and the Romans will come and take away our place and nation." John 11: 47, 48. The opposition which resulted in Christ's death, did not arise from real hatred to his doctrines or miracles, but because they tended to deprive the leaders of the Jewish church of their honorable places and rich salaries.

As men have been crucified for breaking civil law, enacted by men, so have christians been religiously crucified for breaking the traditions and ecclesiastical customs of a worldly and unsanctified church. To be crucified with Christ is to be crucified upon the same principles and for the same reasons that he was. He was slain because he testified against the false religion of the Jews.

The early christians were rejected, and many slaughtered, because they lifted up their voice against Paganism. The church of the middle ages was reckoned heretical, driven from society, and martyred, because she denounced as blasphemous and wicked the theology and practices of the Catholic church. The true church in each period followed Christ in kindly but plainly testifying against all false religion, and worldly, ceremonious, unholy worship.

It will therefore follow if the principles have not changed, and there is still a true and false church in the world, that the true church will find her cross and crucifixion with Christ in faithfully testifying against the damning traditions of an apostatized christian church, and its worldly, pompous, unsanctified worship. The legitimate results of such testimony will be persistent opposition, a cry of bigotry, sectarianism and exclusiveness. The faithful will be accused of wickedly rejecting fellowship and christian union.

Such certainly have been the facts in all ages and dispensations of God's government down to the present period. If the same principles remain, and the same battle is still being fought, and the true church is still testifying for God against false religion, relying upon God's faithful word for the proof of this testimony, and is being crucified, cast out as unworthy of christian confidence, who are the parties and what are the particular points of difference, causing this war? We have no right to assume that any particular denomination of christians exclusively constitute the true church; but it is composed of all true servants of Christ, who receive and proclaim all the truth of God's word, designed by him to teach, reprove and warn this generation. It is all, who, regardless of caste or fellowship in society, religious friendship or hatred and crucifixion, will proclaim faithfully those truths which will teach all men of this generation, their relations to God, his loving favor or threatened judgments.

God has given divine truth, specifically appropriate to each generation, relating to their particular sins, duties and dangers. Such truths are always offensive to those condemned and threatened by them, causing those who proclaim them to be hated and rejected.

The true prophets, Christ, and his apostles, and all their successors, as true christian teachers, have been for the same reason rejected and crucified.

Noah and Lot were despised because they taught the people that God's judgments were hanging over them on account of their crying sins. Jeremiah was thrust into the pit of the king's prison because he taught him, as instructed by God, that he should be carried in captivity to Babylon. Christ was crucified by the Jews because he taught them that they were hypocrites, and on account of their national abominations, God would send destructive armies and demolish their city, and scatter them as outcasts among the Gentiles. The apostles were condemned as heretics, and unworthy of the society of good men because they taught that Christ's gospel should take the place of Moses' law, and that christian baptism should be substituted for circumcision.

This kind of teaching was what produced the cross upon which they were crucified. Paul said, "And I, brethren, if I yet preach circumcision, why do I yet suffer persecution? then is the offence of the cross ceased." Gal. 5: 11. Paul could have had fellowship and union with the popular worshipers of his time if he could have hidden his real christian position, and not have taught, when in their assemblies, that baptism must take the place of circumcision. The open profession of his faith caused his crucifixion with Christ. It would have been a great relief to Paul and all the faithful servants of God in all ages, if they could have been allowed to take a conservative position upon the special questions of difference, thus ending the war and forming an alliance.

Human nature strongly inclines christians to compromise the antagonism, and thus save their disgrace and crucifixion. This has proved the most fatal snare to the church of Christ in all ages. It inclines her to be silent upon those truths particularly objectionable to the world and unholy professors, so as to receive their approbation, and enjoy the society of honorable men; thus securing a higher caste than can be obtained by a fearless proclamation of "the present truth," which invariably produces concision and crucifixion.

God is impartial with his people, and as he requires some of them to proclaim truths hated by unbelievers, he will see that all, in their day, are furnished with and required to proclaim such truth, so that each generation of his people will have its cross to bear, upon which it must suffer persecution with Christ.

Upon this infinitely important subject Jesus said—"If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me; for whosoever will save his life shall lose it; and whosoever will lose his life for my sake shall find it." Matt. 16: 24, 25.

O, ye servants of Jesus Christ, be careful how you allow Satan to tempt you to withhold the truth which brings upon you the indignation of this wicked generation, for the sake of enjoying the false sympathy and good will of those who determinedly reject and despise those truths you have solemnly promised God to proclaim. J. C.

CHRIST'S COMING.

There is a marked change in the tone of many religious papers, and the writings of their correspondents in relation to the coming of Christ. They are now speaking of this great event as being near, and showing the importance of being ready. They represent that we may expect the Lord in our day. The interest on the subject is growing rapidly in all directions. Holy men, educated men of strong ability, are making bold announcements to the church of Christ, saying her Lord is about to return and set up his kingdom. Our exchanges and correspondence from both continents bring this heart-cheering news. The subject is receiving special attention from many of the most active and devoted ministers and lay members of the different churches. The coming of Christ and holiness of heart are twin subjects, that should be bound together by an indissoluble bond. They started together in the first century; they were revived again in 1842 and onward; and as we are now almost to the great event of Christ's coming, we may expect to see a waking up on these two most important subjects. The coming of Jesus will be a most glorious scene to those who have a pure heart, but a terrible calamity to all others.

The subject of preparation is now of the highest importance. Is the reader ready? This should be the leading thought. There should be no further delays in this matter. Drop all other business till the clear witness of the Spirit is obtained, saying, "all is well." This is a subject of too grave importance to be left doubtful. Eternal life is at stake. In a short time we believe it will be known who shall live forever. Those who have put all into the hands of Christ have nothing to fear. He will keep them, so long as they consent to let him be their guide and protector. He loves to support those who are willing to let him be their leader. Why not submit to him without any reserve? Let it be an unconditional surrender for time and eternity. One in that condition secures the largest, best liberty it is possible to enjoy. His work then becomes a love service. "He whom the Son makes free is free indeed." Let all prove this saying true by happy experience. It is our blessed privilege. M. G.

HOLINESS MOVEMENT.

The holiness movement is spreading wonderfully. A holiness convention has just been held in Brighton, England. Some eight thousand people were present. Twenty-three ministers were there from Switzerland, sixty-eight from Germany, twelve from Holland, ten from Italy, twenty-four from France eleven from Belgium, and several from Spain. It appears that the Lord is really calling up all to prepare for his coming. But in order to be ready, they must be "pure in heart," and "dead indeed unto sin." We believe the church of Christ, on earth, at his second coming, will be as fully prepared to meet him at his appearing as the one he left at the time of his ascension. A clean heart will be essential for all who will be permitted to be at the marriage supper of the Lamb. Without this qualification they cannot be admitted into the city of the great King. No defiled person will be in that redeemed company. We read: "There shall in no wise enter into it any thing that defileth, neither whatsoever worketh abomination, or maketh a lie." Rev. 21: 27.

The Scriptures inform us that men are defiled by roots of bitterness, evil thoughts, adulteries, fornications, murders, thefts, covetousness, wickedness, deceit, lasciviousness, an evil eye, blasphemy, pride, foolishness; all these evil things come from within, and defile the man." Mark 7: 21–23. Does the reader find any of "these evil things" in his heart? Then he is not ready for the coming of Christ, and would not be permitted to go into the New Jerusalem, no matter how correct he may be in his theology. No doubt the devil believes the truth of the Bible most fully, but he holds it in unrighteousness. So there are many men, who are very correct in their views of Bible truth, but their hearts are defiled. A clean heart is called "the temple of God;" "but if any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are." 1 Cor. 3: 16, 17.

If the Spirit of God does not dwell in us sufficiently to take out all these defiling things just mentioned, then we are not fitted for the coming of Christ. Barely believing in his coming, and being able to defend this glorious truth, and others of kindred importance, is not enough to pass one through the pearly gates of the holy city, If his heart is defiled, he is unworthy of a place with the pure.

It is equally true that one may have a clean heart before he understands what the Scriptures teach about the immediate coming of Christ, the mortal nature of man, and the final destruction of the wicked. Should he see these truths, and reject them because they were unpopular, or for any other reason, then it would bring him into condemnation, and consequent defilement.

If it be claimed that one cannot have a clean heart till after he has a correct view of all the doctrine of the Bible, we might well say, Who, then, can be saved? The Pope is the only one who claims infallibility. In order to be justified, one must live up to all the light and truth within his reach. This, every true christian man will do. No one can do better.

Let it be remembered that a man's purity is not graduated by the amount of light and truth he may possess, but by his full acceptance of Christ as his all in all, in connection with an unconditional surrender of all to him for ever, with a complete, unwavering trust in the cleansing power of his blood, and a firm purpose to follow and obey him in all things. When he will put himself in this condition, whether he have much light or little, much or little knowledge, the Lord will be pleased to take up his abode in him, fill him with the Holy Spirit, and a clean heart is the result. This places him in a condition where he can truly love the coming of Chrst, and feel all ready to meet him at at any moment.

The great holiness movement, now in progress, is leading men and women out of all denominations into this blessed state, and making all one in Christ, whether they may have been Baptists, Methodists, Congregationalists, Presbyterians, Quakers, Adventists, or any other class of believers in Christ. The spirit of love that binds them together in Christian union is stronger and more abiding than any sectarian bond that had existed between the members of either particular sect, before they received the gift of the Spirit. This is a well-known fact by all who have had the blessed experience. It is the "one Spirit" that produces the union and not a harmonious belief in the points of doctrine. Sectarians unite on creeds; christians on character. The former is likely to produce strife, confusion, and backsliding, the latter, peace and harmony, a steady growth in grace, and full preparation for the coming One.

We are watching the holiness movement with great interest, as one of the bright signs of the times, showing that Jesus will soon make his second advent to this world, when he will set up the everlasting kingdom. We are longing for the opening of the glad day. M. G.

STRANGE THINGS.

In an article headed "strange things," published in the Crisis of June 16th we copied the following from the Christian Times, in relation to the position of Dr. N. H. Barbour: He "proclaims that the Lord has come and raised the righteous, but has not been seen by the living as yet, but has commissioned him [Barbour] and his followers especially to preach the gospel, yet seven years, and to proclaim the hour of his judgment."

He complains that "injustice" has been done him, because the statement "misrepresents" his views. We are not guilty of knowingly misrepresenting him or any other person; and when convinced that we have done so, we shall ever be glad to make a correction. He has sent us a brief expression of his views, which we have carefully examined, and fail to see wherein the copied paragraph has at all misrepresented him, unless some one should conclude that he had received a commission "to preach the gospel," "by dream, vision, or revelation," which is not claimed, as, he thinks, the article intimates. But as he assumes to be commissioned to preach "that the 1335 days of Dan. 12, . . . are ended," and that "the resurrection began Feb. 14th, 1875," we think he must have some special "commission," because we do not find any such thing warranted by the "commission" "found in Matt. 28: 19." The words included in the quotation marks are from his note to us, containing his complaint.

He further says: "In short, we believe . . . that for a time after he [Christ] comes, the world will be in ignorance of the fact." It will be seen that his note of complaint states the same things embodied in the paragraph taken from the Times. According to his teaching, Christ came secretly, Feb. 14th, 1875, and commenced the resurrection of the righteous dead. We see no room to make an apology or correction for what we published June 16th in the Crisis. M. G.

QUERIES.

In compliance with a desire of some, I forward a few questions for you to answer, through the Crisis, at your earliest convenience. P. W. HOUGH.

First, is the term nephesh chaiyah, which is rendered "living soul," ever used from creation to the flood to represent anything else but a living being of some kind?

Ans. It is not. Neither is it ever used in the Bible after the flood "to represent any thing else but a living being of some kind."

(2) Did the Lord Jehovah, immediately after the flood, give this term a second meaning; viz., life?

Ans. The term nephesh was used to represent life, and applied to animals, in Gen. 1: 20, before the creation of man. When this one word is used to denote life, it may be applied to either man or beast, before or after the flood.

(3) Does not one of these two meanings give us the proper definition of this term whenever it occurs?

Ans. We think not. The same word nephesh (not nephesh chaiyah) is frequently used to express desire; which is neither "life," or a "living soul"; but is an attribute of a "living soul." The same remark would be true in relation to the term "life," when translated from nephesh.

(4) Is it not used to represent a dead man or beast?

Ans. The term mooth nephesh signifies a "dead soul," as in Num. 6: 6. The word nephesh alone never means a dead man or beast; but the word nephesh may represent a man or a beast, dead or alive; hence, when a living soul is to be specified, the term chaiyah is prefixed, as in Gen. 1: 21, 24; 2: 7; and when a dead soul is to be named, the term mooth is prefixed, as in Num. 6: 6.

(5) Wherever it is used in its second sense; viz., life, does it not point to some being, dead or living?

Ans. When nephesh means life, it may be applied alike to man or beast; and always refers to a personal being, who either had, or now possesses the attribute of life.

(6) Is not psuche, in Greek, the equivalent of the Hebrew word nephesh?

Ans. Yes.

(7) Is it ever used except in these two senses?

Ans. The Greek word psuche, the equivalent of nephesh, is used in the same three senses as the Hebrew: (1) a being; (2) life; (3) desire.

(8) May not the Bible student, by carefully consulting the context, determine in what sense it is used, whether life or being?

Ans. We think he may easily decide from the text and context which of the three uses of nephesh or psuche is meant. M. G.

CHURCH POWER.

The following thoughts are worthy of consideration:

"We will say, that the government of the church is an absolute monarchy, and the Lord Jesus Christ is the absolute monarch, on whose shoulders is the government, and in whose hands are the reins. That his will, published in the New Testament, is the sole law of the church; and that every society or assembly, meeting once every week in one place, according to this law, or the commandments of this king, requires no other head, king, lawgiver, ruler or lord, than this mighty One; no other law, rule, formula, canon or decrees, than his written word; no judicatory, court or tribunal, other than the judgment seat of Christ. That every such society, with its bishops and deacons, is the highest tribunal on earth to which an individual christian can appeal; that whosoever will not hear it, has no other tribunal to which he can look for redress. To suppose that two churches have more power than one, that one hundred have more power than one, or that the bishops of one hundred churches, with any other delegates sent from the churches, have more power than one church, is to place the power or authority in men, and not in the one king or head. For if numbers create greater power, it is the power of men—it is human authority, and not the authority of God.

That ecclesiastical authority which is capable of increase, which accumulates with the numbers that combine, is not the authority of God, nor of his word; for his authority and that of his word are one and the same in all circumstances. Now if one church has not the right or authority to make any law for the government of itself, all the churches on earth combined have not a right nor authority to make a law to govern it. If they have no right to make laws, they have no right to dictate doctrinal sentiments, and if they have no right to dictate doctrinal sentiments, they have no right to impose on it interpretations of Scripture; and if they have no right to do any of these things, they have no control, no jurisdiction, no authority over it whatever. So that in fact there is no other authority recognized, allowed, or regarded, by a society of christians, meeting in one place as a church of Jesus Christ, than the authority of its king or head."

It is quite evident that the teaching of the Catholic church is precisely the opposite of this, which is a good evidence that the foregoing is correct. If all professed christians would be guided solely by the words of Jesus, there would be a very happy state of union among his children, and many more world be brought to Christ. All of his disciples should follow him as their only lawgiver. His word should be considered as absolute. From it there is no appeal. We cannot go against it and be right; and no one should attempt to step between him and his followers. He is their perfect leader, and their submission to him should be complete in all things.

It is the privilege of all christians to be guided by an open Bible, which no man, or set of men, have a right to shut. No Synod, Conference, or Presbytery, has the right to dictate what a man shall believe. That matter rests between himself and his Lord, to whom alone he is responsible. When churches get up their iron-bedstead creeds, by which to bind their members, we think they go beyond the teaching of Jesus, and wound him in the house of his friends. This has been very prominent in the Roman Catholic church, but should not be allowed by Protestants. Remember, "If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed." M. G.

STRANGE THEORIES.—In a late paper (June 1875), published by Dr. N. Barbour, we find the following strange statements: "I am fully satisfied, and can prove, that the six thousand years from Adam ended in the autumn of 1873, . . . and that the 1335 days, prolonged to their utmost, extend only to Feb. 14th, 1875." "The day of the Lord began, chronologically, in 1873, where the six thousand years ended." "I believe we are in the day of the Lord, . . . that we are in the 'time of the harvest,' and the resurrection of the dead in Christ has begun, because the 1335 days of Dan. 12 have ended." We may well inquire, What next? M. G.

THE Paris papers publish a Papal Encyclical renewing the excommunication pronounced against the Old Catholics of Switzerland, and censuring the authorities for protecting them.

THE TRACT FUND.

THE ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY, at a meeting on Springfield camp-ground, August 13th, 1874, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

TENT MEETING IN EAST WILTON.

We pitched our tent in East Wilton, June 11th. We formerly lived here, and it was where we first found those precious truths, that Jesus was soon coming to redeem his people and give them the earth for an everlasting inheritance. My mind was carried back nineteen years, when I left my former associations and business to preach the gospel of the kingdom at hand. The same little cottage house stands by the river that I sold, the same scythe shop where I worked, the same well that I went to for water, when a brother asked me the question, if I believed that God would keep man in conscious torment eternally? which I think was the instrument in the hands of God of awaking me to the study of the Scriptures, although the brother believed in conscious torment.

Oh, the many hours I studied the blessed Bible, no one to lead me or help, only God's Holy Spirit. I was afloat. I wanted to find anchorage. The old theory looked horrid. It made our heavenly Father appear unjust. I sought for truth as for hid treasures. In my searchings I found the thirty-seventh Psalm, where I found solid foundation. Here I saw for the first time that the earth was to be given to the saints, and the wicked would be cut off, and be as though they had not been. There I saw that man was not immortal, and the importance of Jesus' coming and the resurrection of the dead.

What light! How could I keep it hid? I must let it shine. The Spirit said, Go. I did not confer with flesh. The sweet promise is, "Lo! I am with you always, even to the end of the world."

But what a change. Many of those I associated with at that time now sleep. Others still live who never have heard these blessed truths in that place. Bro. Poor is the only one of our faith in the place. We set our tent on his land. The children came in from other places. Our meetings were good, and a few were interested in our faith, and wanted us to stay longer. We endeavored to show them what we could in the time, that Jesus was at hand, and the only safety was to be all ready for the event, by an entire consecration to God.

Sunday was a good day. Three sisters put on Christ by baptism. Sweet peace filled their hearts as they gave expression of praise for what the Lord had done for them. Peace and joy always follow obedience. It is better to obey than sacrifice.

Dear Brn. and Srs., let us yield ourselves servants to Christ in all things, that our fruit may be unto holiness, and the end everlasting life. "Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus, who, being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God." "But as he which hath called you is holy, so be ye holy in all manner of conversation." "Because it is written, Be ye holy, for I am holy." "Seeing, then, that all these things shall be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation and godliness, looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Savior Jesus Christ."

May we be found without spot at his coming, is my prayer, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

WISCONSIN CONFERENCE REPORT.

According to appointment, the annual conference of ministers and church delegates met at Prairie du Sac, on the 10th of June, and elected its officers—George Howard, president, and Wm. Sheldon secretary. The following committees were appointed: Committee on business: P. Hitchcock, E. P. Graves, and G. W. Turner. Committee on ordination: Wm. Sheldon, F. J. Grott, S. J. Adams, W. S. Shears, G. W. Turner, Brn. S. W. Thurber, Frank Burr, and other visiting brethren, were invited to take part in our deliberations. The following ministers were received into the conference: Robert White and Stephen Bentley. Considerable time was spent in receiving reports from ministers and church delegates, many of which were specially interesting, but too lengthy for the paper. The quarterly meeting reports from the four districts were encouraging.

Experience has taught us that the conference cannot be held in connection with the campmeeting without diminishing the interest of one or the other, or both; so after candid deliberation, a vote was passed to separate the two, and hereafter hold our conference in the winter season. A committee was appointed, consisting of B. T. Moore, Geo. Howard, and Wm. Sheldon, to select the time and place for the next conference. Officers were then elected to take supervision of the four different quarterly meeting districts, as follows:

Southern district: Wm. Sheldon. Eastern district: G. W. Turner. Northwestern district: S. J. Adams. Southwestern district: Philo Hitchcock.

After consultation, the following preamble and resolution was passed:

Whereas, The W. A. C. P. S. has been passing through severe trials financially and otherwise; and,

Whereas, Said trials are not yet fully ended; and believing that said Society is honestly and earnestly working for the advancement of the cause of Christ:

Whereas, A proposition for the relief of the W. A. Publishing Society has been made, in which it is agreed to duplicate by donation all money raised by bona fide new subscribers to the A. C. Times, said donation to be applied on Society debt; and,

Whereas, The proposition embodies the idea of helping those who help themselves, and the new subscribers thus obtained will be a benefit even without the donation; therefore,

Resolved, That in consideration of these two objects to be attained, we, as individuals connected with the Wisconsin A. C. Conference and deeply interested in the prosperity of the A. C. Times, do pledge our hearty co-operation in this work of securing new subscribers, and that we will do all in our power to enlarge the subscription list.

The camp meeting with which this conference was connected was a meeting of interest. Some were converted, some reclaimed and many were strengthened and enlightened. Besides our own ministers, we were assisted by Brn. A. F. Seymore, S. W. Thurber, and Frank Burr. The meeting was harmonious, and the brethren were pretty unanimous in pronouncing it an excellent meeting. The closing sermon by Bro. Thurber left a very solemn impression on many minds, and the Lord's Supper was an impressive scene. This meeting will infuse a new interest into many parts of the State, as delegates and ministers return baptized with new zeal. WM. SHELDON, Sec.

Correspondence.

From Bro. J. M. Stetler.

Dear Brn.:—Never in my life have I had such a deep yearning of heart to be present at any religious meeting, as I had to be with you at your last conference held at Chelsea, in April last. Circumstances prevented me from attending, but my heart was with you, and my prayers were for you; and when I read the report of your doings, I was led to praise God that there was one body of Advent Christians that were not afraid to pass laws by which they might be governed, and kept free from church dividers and those who only seek to proselyte.

I have read Bro. Munger's letter, and one from A. H. Smith in Crisis of May 26th, and my heart was led to rejoice that there are a few Joshuas left, that will lead the people in the right way. When quite a young man, not more than seventeen years of age, I joined the Baptist church. I might have remained and perhaps been an honored member of its body; but I heard the heavenly message, "Behold the Bridegroom cometh." I believed it with all my heart. I was young then, just beginning active business life; but love for the precious truth brought me out from amongst them, and I have had no disposition to return again, though I might have had the opportunity if I had wished it, as Abraham had; but I could not do it, any more than I could have cut off my right hand.

It is now over thirty years since I came out, and, though lonely has been my way, with many trials, and many bitter, scalding tears have I shed because of my unfaithfulness and wanderings, yet God has been merciful to me, and blotted out all my transgressions for Christ's sake. I now enjoy that sweet peace which flows like a river, and I do rejoice when I find dear brethren and sisters standing out where God has led them, holding up the banner of truth. We have taken a bold stand for the truth, and it has shaken the theological world to its centre; and shall we now fold our hands and cry, Peace? No, never; we bid a hearty welcome to all, both saint and sinner, to come over on the Lord's side, and take a decided stand for God and his truth. We feel that we have the sword of the Lord and of Gideon. We are on our way to the New Jerusalem, and we mean to fight our way through, the Lord helping us. Victory is sure, for our Captain is on ahead, and we have no time to tarry with a cold-hearted, world-loving, Christ-professing church; but we sincerely pity them, and pray, Lord, have mercy on the blind leaders of the blind.

Long have we been waiting; many times been disappointed in the realization of our blessed hope; but it becomes more sweet as we are growing old, and heart and flesh are failing us. We feel a letting go of earthly enjoyments, and a stronger taking hold of the heavenly. Earth has but few charms left for us. We have loved earthly objects, but "they all do fade as a leaf," and our affections take hold of dear ones in Christ. "By this shall ye know that ye have passed from death unto life, because ye love the brethren." This was happily verified to us in the late sickness of our beloved Bro. Boutell, when it was thought he could not recover. How my heart went out towards him, more than to any earthly kin. Though not much acquainted with him, yet his memory is dear, and this a true test of christian fellowship. The Lord help us to prove faithful to the end; then a crown of glory will be our great reward.

Philadelphia, Pa.

From Sr. C. Daggett.

To my dearly beloved Brothers and Sisters in the Lord. "I . . . beseech you that you walk worthy of the vocation wherewith you are called, with all lowliness and meekness, with long-suffering, forbearing one another in love; endeavoring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace." "Be ye therefore followers of God, as dear children; and walk in love, as Christ hath loved us, and hath given himself for us, an offering and a sacrifice to God." And let not "covetousness, . . . nor foolish talking, nor jesting, . . . be once named among you." See that you "walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise, redeeming the time, because the days are evil." And be not drunk with the love of the world, and the pride of life; or with the love of money, which "is the root of all evil"; but "be filled with the Spirit." Let us be sober, and watch unto prayer, for "the end of all things is at hand."

coming alarmingly corrupt, and violence fills the earth, as in the days of Noah. See the terrible record of crime in the papers. The professed church of Christ is fast departing from the true gospel. Wealth, pride, cold formality and lukewarmness, are taking the place of love, faith, the Holy Ghost, and all the christian graces. The last notes of warning are being heard all over the land. Yes, all nations have heard. The end is near. The whole world is troubled, and fearful about what is coming. All are anxiously expecting some great revolution; but the Bible tells us the King of kings is coming. There is no place of safety now for a moment, only in Jesus. He is the Ark where we can run and be safe.

For nearly forty years has this solemn warning of the end at hand been sounding to this generation. Earnest men have gone to every part of the world proclaiming the second advent, as John did the first. Hundreds of ministers are this day giving the warning everywhere, while the mass are asleep, ministers and people, and the day of the Lord will come upon them like a thief. But, thank the Lord, "ye, brethren, are not in darkness, that that day should overtake you as a thief"; for you are up and sounding the alarm, like faithful watchmen. The Lord knows who you are, and he will be with you to the end. You will have the glorious reward and crown, and the blessed assurance of "well done." You will hear the blessed sound, "Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." I tremble for the rich in these times, while covetousness is one of the great besetting sins, and so many are holding on to their property, with such a miser's grasp, and laying up treasures for the last-day fires, while so many are starving in every direction. They will have to give a sad account in that day when the Lord makes up his jewels.

The Lord help us all to heed the warning and be ready, is the prayer of your sister, waiting for Jesus.

Franklin, Mass.

From Sr. S. M. Brown.

Dear Brn. and Srs. in Christ:—Praise the Lord for his wonderful works to the children of men. It is some time since you have seen my name in the columns of the Crisis, nevertheless I am still on the Lord's side, and my hope and confidence in Christ I have not cast away. No, not for all that this world can afford would I forfeit this hope, for this is what bears me up under all the trials, temptations, and difficulties of this life. Praise the Lord for the gospel hope—the hope of seeing Jesus, and being made like him.

While seeing the list of nineteen deaths in our paper, I am led to say, O Lord, how long shall this state of things be? How long shall thy people have cause to mourn and weep on account of the cruel work of the enemy? Brn. and Srs., look up and rejoice, for the time is soon coming when death shall be vanquished, and its sting be all gone. Praise the Lord. The dead in Christ will rise first, then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up to meet the Lord in the air, and ever be with the Lord. Oh glorious hope! how cheering to know that though our loved ones are taken from us, we shall see them then, no more to be separated, and, best of all, we shall see Jesus, our Elder Brother, live and reign with him forever.

Let us be faithful, and fight manfully the battles of the Lord; run with patience the race set before us, looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith, that when the Master of the house cometh he may find us all ready to welcome him, and say Lo, this is our God, we have waited for him, and he will save us. Come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly. By the grace of God I'll meet you in the kingdom. Pray for me.

North Somerville.

From Sr. O. N. Morse.

Dear Brn.:—I believe the coming of the Lord draweth nigh, for the wickedness of the earth is great, just as our Savior has told us in his sure word of truth. Though heaven and earth are to pass away, his word shall not pass away until all is fulfilled. Bless God for the great and glorions promises in the Holy Bible. Truly it is a lamp unto our feet. My faith is strengthened daily to press my way onward for the prize that lies at the end of the christian race. Although trials come, and the path grows rough as we near the harbor, yet Jesus says, "My grace is sufficient for thee."

I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he will stand at the latter day upon the earth, and the day of bright glory will soon dawn. The blessed promise is sure, that when Christ who is our life shall appear, we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is; and every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself.

Although, with my dear husband who sleeps in Jesus, waiting for the great morning of the resurrection, to come forth to die no more, I have been trying to run the race with patience, ever looking to Jesus the author and finisher of our faith, ever since 1844, I have my eye still fixed for the glory that is to be brought unto us at the revelation of Jesus Christ; and if he tarry I will wait for him, for he will surely come and not tarry.

Virquoa, Wis.

From Bro. S. R. Hood.

Dear Brethren of the true unmysticated faith of the gospel of the Son of God,—I desire to let you know that there are a few of like singular and precious faith down here in the sunny South, Ettawah and Cherokee counties, Ala. We are contending for the faith once delivered to the saints, but, I am sorry to have to say, we are derided, scoffed at, and persecuted, by those who once delighted to call us brethren.

But, praised be the name of the Lord, who refreshed our spirits by the coming of Bro. J. J. Smith into our midst, who mightily and earnestly contended for the near approach of the kingdom of God and his Christ, and the possessing by the saints of the Most High of all the renewed earth (Paradise) under the whole heavens. He preached at our church, Lebanon, June 4th; at night, at Union church (Baptist); at 11 o'clock A. M. and 4 P. M. at T. Garrett's; Sunday, 6th, at Lebanon; at night at Gadsden; next day at 11 A. M., and 4 P. M., and at candle lighting, he lectured from the chart in the Court House. At all these times and places he was well received, and we hope his labors will be abundantly blessed wherever he goes. From here he went to Spring Creek Valley, and to Galesville, to preach several days and nights. May the Lord bless his good mission among us.

Gadsden, Ala., June 24th, 1875.

Extracts from Letters.

Bro. A. Conklin writes from Ingalls, Kansas, May 27th, 1875:—"Bro. Moss and myself have been holding meetings in different places, and have just returned home from Russell Co., where we had a glorious time. We organized a little band of believers in the soon coming of the Master. Three were baptized, and the Spirit of the Lord was with us. Bless his name. Bro. Moss is poor in this world's goods, and has poor health. He is some fifty years old, and has been a long time in the Master's service. He is a useful man of God. His Bible is worn out, and if you would send him one, he would use it in the Master's work. He is worthy.

Dear brethren, let us waken up, and put on 'the whole armor of God,' and try to live in the work of our Master, for we have not long to work. May God give us strength, and aid us by his Holy Spirit to call sinners to the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world, for the time is soon coming when he that is filthy will be filthy still, and must be lost forever. There are many good people in darkness. May God inspire our hearts, and cause us to preach his word, and let the light shine in dark places, for the field is ripe for the harvest.

Our Lord is near at hand to reward every man. We must all stand before the judgment bar of God, and hear our doom—Depart, or Come, ye blessed of my Father. Dear reader, stop and think for a moment, and ask, Am I ready to meet him should he come to-day? Be ready to meet him in peace. If not, do prepare, I beg of you, to make ready to meet your King, for he soon will come, and will not tarry. The supper is ready. Will you refuse to take of it? May God help you to come to Jesus, and let him bless you, is the prayer of your unworthy brother and friend."

Bro. S. G. Lowe writes:—"We commenced our meetings in East Lebanon June 16th, and closed June 27th. The first Sabbath it was thought there was five hundred people out to hear, who were much interested. Ministers present—Brn. Johnson, Garfield, Bickford, and Chamberlin.

Sunday, June 27th, had an excellent meeting. Bro. Chamberlin was with me. There was an interest to hear. The result of our meeting we shall have to leave till the Lord comes."

FOREIGN NEWS.

London. It is reported that the latest news from Burmah is not satisfactory. The king, it is said, refuses to allow the passage of British troops through his territory. It is believed that this condition will be insisted upon by this Government.

The Standard's special dispatch from Pesth reports that the loss of life by the tempest of yesterday exceeded the first reports. One hundred and twenty dead bodies have been found in the Danube, and many more must have been carried away by the current.

A special dispatch to the Daily News says that the number of men, women, and children drowned in Tolouse alone is roughly estimated at 2,000.

Paris, June 30. The subscriptions received for the sufferers by the inundation are unprecedentedly large. The total amount to date is $200,000, The list opened by President MacMahon already reaches 40,000. It is announced that 100,000 persons will be wholly dependent on public charity for months to come.

Madrid, June 29. A royal ordinance has been issued commanding that members of Carlist Juntas, and all families of which any member is in the Carlist service, be expelled from Spain; and directing that the property of Carlists be confiscated and devoted to indemnifying communities suffering from Carlist requisitions.

London, June 29. A dispatch from Buda Pesth to the Standard says a furious thunder storm passed over that city to-day. The lightning was incessant, and hail fell in such quantities that the roofs of the houses and the surrounding hills were covered two feet thick with ice. The waterfall was extraordinary. Torrents swept through the streets of Buda, carrying men, vehicles, and every thing movable down into the river. Many houses were suddenly flooded and destroyed before their inmates could escape. Five hundred of the inhabitants are missing and at least one hundeed have been drowned or killed by falling walls. All the railways are interrupted.

Hoosick Valley Tent.

The third series of tent meetings in the Hoosick Valley tent, this season, will commence at North Adams, Mass., Wednesday evening, July 7th, and hold as long as the interest demands. The Hoosick Valley Conference, commencing at the same time, will also meet in the tent. Come, preachers, all; and come, delegates, and all others, who can, to the conference. Bring your blankets, so as to camp out in the tent if more convenient so to do.

Those expecting tent-meetings, must make up their minds soon, as others are stepping in before you. Those coming first will be first served. Those wishing for tent-meetings, please correspond with H. K. Flagg, chairman of tent committee, Rutland, Vt.

H. K. Flagg, A. W. Sibley, Tent Committee.

Tent Meetings.

The Hoosick Valley Tent will be pitched for the fourth series of protracted meetings this season, in Rutland, Vt., so as to commence Wednesday evening, July 21st, and continue evenings and Sabbaths until over Tuesday evening, August 3d, two weeks. These series of meetings are to be held in conjunction with the Rutland Advent Christian Church, and all other christians who love the appearing of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, and are willing and ready to labor for the triumph of God's truth, and the salvation of sinners. By this means, we expect to reach a very large class of people who are comparatively ignorant of the last crowning truths of this gospel age.

K. H. Flagg, A. W. Sibley, Tent Committee.

Dedication.—Dear Brn. and Srs.:—The Second Advent Society in Lawrence, Mass., have through the goodness of God been permitted to erect a Chapel, 40×60, for the worship of God. It is pleasantly situated on Concord St. We expect (D. V.) to dedicate Sunday, July 11th, and we cordially invite brethren and sisters in the neighboring towns and villages to spend the day with us, and labor for the spread of the truths we so dearly love. Let us make one grand rally for Christ. Truly time is short, and what we do must be done quickly. Let us not only set the house apart, but consecrate ourselves anew to the work of the Master. W. J. H.

Notice.—We purpose holding religious services each pleasant Sunday, during the summer, in Chatfield's grove, Wolcottville, Ct., which, through the kindness of the owner, Mr. Chatfield, has been fitted up expressly for these meetings. When the weather is unfavorable for the out-of-door meetings, we shall worship, as heretofore, in the Town Hall. Messrs. Austin & Ladd's band wagon will leave Granite Block for the grove at 10 o'clock A. M. and 12.45 P. M. Fare each way, 10 cents. Preaching by different brethren, as the Lord shall direct. A hearty welcome to all who love Jesus.

A. W. Bradford, for the brethren.

Quarterly Meeting.—There will be a quarterly meeting of the A. C. Quarterly Conference of N. W. Kansas held with the Advent Christian Church of Smith Grove, Lincoln Co., about four miles south from Battle Creek P. O., Lincoln Co., commencing Friday evening, Aug. 6th, and holding over Sunday, and longer if the interest shall demand. All the friends of Jesus are earnestly requested to be present, and help to advance the Master's cause. Lovers of the Lord, who are waiting for his return, let nothing keep you from this meeting. Pray for God's blessing to attend it, and come prepared to work for Jesus, and do, as well as receive, good.

Meetings in Erie, Pa.—There will be, the Lord willing, religious services every Sunday in the Good Templar's Hall in Central Block, near the Railroad Depot, commencing July 11th, 1875, at half-past ten A. M. and three and seven P. M. We hope the friends of the soon coming King to reign, will help in this matter. It is a missionary effort, and only two laboring brethren to take hold of it; but they feel that the Lord will help. They have hired the Hall for three months, and we have engaged to do what we can in preaching the word of life to those who may come and hear. Brethren, pray for us. J. T. Ongley.

The National Union Convention for Holiness will unite with the National Temperance Convention in its meeting at Sea Cliff, beginning July 13th, and also hold special consecration meetings from Wednesday, July 28th, to Monday, August 2d. The National Union Convention for Holiness will be held at Sea Cliff, and a meeting will also be held in Massachusetts, at some convenient time and place to be designated.

J. Couch, for Committee.

Notice.—As the Mass. Tent Committee are about to start the Tent, they will need some money. Will those brethren and sisters who have subscribed for this purpose, send to the Treasurer, C. Goodrich, Crisis Office, Boston, Mass., as soon as convenient?

Notice.—Arrangements have been made with J. H. All who want lumber for frames must write immediately to J. H. Downing, Alton Bay, N. H. Mr. Downing will furnish nails, windows, doors, butts, screws, etc., at Boston prices. H. K. Choate, Benj. Young, For Committee.

Tent for Sale.—As I have received no calls as yet for the tent, or tent meetings, I have concluded to let Mr. James Field, of Rochester, N. Y., the maker of the tent, have it, and dispose of it at its fair valuation. Therefore if anybody wants a second hand tent, it can be purchased of him, and he will see to overhauling it, and that it will be all ready for use; also a set of lamps can be had with it, and other fixtures. Those friends who aided me in getting the tent, when it is sold shall have returned to them their equal share after a dividend is made. Please write to me your request. Those wanting the tent, write to James Field, Rochester, N. Y.; on other matters relating to it write to me, at Lincolnville, Crawford Co., Pa. John T. Ongley.

J. R. Hall, for the Brn.

Homes Wanted for three intelligent and healthy boys, aged three, seven, and ten years. Any of the brethren wishing to take one as his own, can do so, and confer a great favor, as the children are motherless, and it is the wish of the father (who is poor and friendless) that they be cared for by those of the Advent faith. Who will take one, and thus help to save three precious lives in this and the world so soon to come? Please inquire of O. M. Brailey, Amherst, Mass.

Tent for Sale.—There is a tent for sale on Alton camp-ground for fifty dollars, located on Manchester Avenue. A good bargain. Any wishing one please correspond with J. G. Smith.

Conn. Campmeeting.—The Lord willing, the Conn. Campmeeting will commence on the old ground, near Plainville, Saturday, Sept. 4th, and continue till Sept. 13th. Particulars in due time.

AN APPEAL.

The season has now arrived when the special work of holding Tent Meetings should be begun. The Mass. Conference has a good Tent ready again for service in the harvest field of the Lord; and the question is: Shall it be sent forth once more with good and faithful laborers to gather in sheaves for Christ, and give the warning of the coming day of God? In order that this may be done, there must be a sacrifice made by the friends of Jesus, and means given to sustain in this way his precious cause.

It is proposed that the Tent this year be taken into new fields, and where our precious faith has not as yet been heard. If this is done, there will be a special necessity for contributions on the part of our churches and people in general, to defray the expenses of these meetings in these new places.

As the Committee, chosen at the late Conference to have the charge of the Tent and make arrangements for the work in connection with it, we invite all who have the means and the heart to give in sustaining this mode of reaching the people, to do so as soon as they can, that we may know how far to go in promising the Tent where it is already requested.

Contributions and pledges can be sent to the Treasurer, Eld. C. Goodrich, Boston, Mass.

B. Young, L. Boutell, C. E. Barnes, I. I. Leslie, Protracted Meeting and Tent Committee.

Notice.

The members of the Mass. Second Advent Christian Conference are requested to send to the Secretary their names and address, that each may receive a certificate of membership, according to a vote of the Conference.

I. I. Leslie, Sec., Box 5140 Boston, Mass.

Tremont Campmeeting.

The Annual Campmeeting at Tremont, Mass., will commence Monday, July 19th, and continue to the 28th. Arrangements will be made to supply all with board and lodging. All who can are requested to bring Tents.

Brethren in the Lord, do make arrangements to attend this meeting, especially all who reside in the southerly part of this State. Come at the commencement, if possible. We intend to secure good profitable laborers, those who are prepared to bring out an exposition of those prophecies especially applicable to these times, and now in process of fulfillment, when the church will be delivered. This may be the last annual gathering we shall be permitted to enjoy before the Lord will gather his own to himself. Let us do what we can to save the perishing before it is too late. Bro. Munger will have charge of the meeting.

Henry V. Davis, for the Committee.

Alton Bay Campmeeting.

The Alton Bay Campmeeting will commence, if the Lord will, August 21st, and hold over two Sabbaths. J. Couch.

Notice.—The Mechanic Falls Campmeeting will commence Saturday, August 28th, and continue over two Sundays. Particulars hereafter.

Wm. H. Mitchell, for the Com.

Campmeeting.—The Pittsfield, Me., Campmeeting will commence, if the Lord will, Sunday, Sept. 5th, and hold over Sunday, Sept. 12th.

Jer. Carr, for the Committee.

Vermont Campmeeting.—This meeting will commence Sept. 4th, and continue till Sept. 13th. Bro. E. A. Stockman and others are engaged to be at this meeting. H. F. C.

The Maine Union Tent will be pitched in Wiscasset July 8th. Meetings afternoons and evenings, and over Sunday, July 11th.

H. B. Sevey.

THE PEARLY GATE.

E. A. BOYNTON.

When Christ our Savior comes to reign,
This groaning earth shall smile again.
From sin and death 'twill then be free,
And there in beauty, too, shall be
A city fair, exceeding great,
With golden street and pearly gate.

To that fair city comes no night,
For God himself shall be its light.
Unfading splendor fills the place,
And joy lights up each smiling face;
And glory in eternal weight
Is found inside that pearly gate.

Whate'er we lack while lingering here,
And toiling on from year to year,
Of health and wealth, of rest and ease,
Of things to comfort and to please,
We'll find them all, if we will wait,
When once inside the pearly gate.

The trials, too, we have to bear,
Of pain and sorrow, grief and care,
Let's bear them well, with cheerful song;
We shall not have to bear them long,
For all our troubles, small and great,
Will leave us at the pearly gate.

Earth's precious things are bought and sold;
Their price is counted out in gold;
For them in vain the poor may sigh,
But king or prince can never buy,
With silver, gold, or vast estate,
An entrance through the pearly gate.

But he who trusts in Christ the Lord,
And lives obedient to his word,
It matters not how poor he be,
He'll find an entrance full and free
To all the boundless joys that wait
Inside that glittering pearly gate.

Dear reader, would you like to share
The glories Jesus doth prepare?
Then come and welcome; come to-day,
Lest, should you venture to delay,
You find yourself at last too late,
And closed for aye the pearly gate.

Unnumbered thousands meant to go
To that bright home now offered you;
But as they lingered day by day,
The dark-winged angel came that way;
And now, alas! their mournful fate;
They'll never pass the pearly gate.

Whatever pathway others trace,
I mean, by God's assisting grace,
To keep the narrow, heavenly way;
And then upon the last great day,
When Jesus comes in royal state,
He'll lead me through the pearly gate.

St. John's, Mich., June, 1875.

HOLINESS TO THE LORD.

F. F. DINGLEY.

Holiness, I understand, is a state of being. It is a state of being holy. It signifies wholeness, and denotes that state of being which exists between us and the Lord. It is a state of union between us and the Lord. The command is:—"Be ye holy." "Every good tree bringeth forth good fruit; but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit. A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit . . . Wherefore by their fruits ye shall know them." No person can live a holy life unless he possesses holiness of heart. Living a holy life is only the fruit of being holy. Paul says to the Romans: "But now being made free from sin and become servants to God, ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting life." Sin is opposed to holiness. Only one sin separated Adam from his Maker. It separates us from the Holy One. Holiness unites our hearts with Jesus, and with all true believers. It brings us nigh unto God the Father. It grafts us into the living and true Vine. It harmonizes the body of Christ. It answers our Savior's prayer: "Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through thy word; that they all may be one, as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee; that they may be one in us, that the world may know that thou hast sent me."

Jesus came to seek and to save that which was lost. Man, by his fall, lost his union with his Maker. He lost his goodness. He was sold under sin. In view of eternal salvation, persons are lost without a Savior—lost in sin. Unless saved from sin, we are under the law of sin, and must suffer the penalty of that law, which will result in what the Bible terms "the second death;" for there will be no one to taste that death for us, and we shall have to taste it for ourselves. No one can redeem himself from sin. Being sorry for past sins, and forming good resolutions for the future, will not obliterate the stains of past guilt, and reinstate us in the favor of God. No human arm can reach the sinner's case. Jesus, upon whom the law had no demand, who knew no sin, came to open a way for us to be saved from sin. "Thou shalt call his name Jesus," says the angel, "for he shall save his people from their sins." He was manifested to take away our sins; and in him is no sin." "Neither is there salvation in any other; for there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved."

He was made to be sin for us; that we might be made the righteousness of God in him. His blood was shed for the remission of sins; "for without shedding of blood is no remission." His blood cleanseth from all sin, washes away every stain, and brings us into a sacred nearness with the Father. "The Lord laid on him the iniquity of us all." "He was wounded for our transgressions; he was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed." "Be it known unto you, therefore, men and brethren, that through this man is preached unto you the forgiveness of sins; and by him all that believe are justified from all things from which ye could not be justified by the law of Moses." He will have all men to be saved, and to come unto the knowledge of the truth. The free gift is to all. "Wherefore, he is able to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by him, seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for them." "The Spirit and the bride say, Come, and let him that heareth say, Come. And let him that is athirst, come; and whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely." The will is all that is needed in order to obtain full salvation. Whosoever will may obtain it. It is free to all that will accept it.

"Free to all a healing stream, Flows from Calvary's mountain."

Thank God for a free and full salvation. But something must be done on our part. Let us see what it is. We will listen to Jesus our divine Master. "Whosoever he be of you that forsaketh not all that he hath, he cannot be my disciple." "He that loveth father or mother, . . son or daughter, more than me, is not worthy of me." "There is no man that hath left house, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my sake and the gospel's, but he shall receive an hundred fold now in this time," "with persecutions; and in the world to come life everlasting." These passages take in a giving up of all for Jesus, if needs be, lands, homes, friends, relatives—a full consecration of all. Paul suffered the loss of all things for Christ Jesus his Lord, and considered that of little worth. Nothing is too good to give up for Jesus. We should prefer him to lands, houses, or any earthly treasure. We should seek to please him in preference to self or any friend, or relative, however dear they may seem to us. Nothing ought to come between our hearts and Jesus. We must give him our whole heart, our all. If we give him our whole heart, open the whole of it to him, he will wash the whole of it and make it pure. "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."

Jesus sanctified himself for us, that we might be sanctified through the truth. If we would have a home in his kingdom, we must sanctify ourselves. The inheritance will be given to all those that are sanctified. Let us hear what Paul says about this sanctification: "Wherefore when he [Jesus] cometh into the world, he saith, Sacrifice and offering thou wouldest not, but a body hast thou prepared me. . . . Then said he, Lo, I come to do thy will, O God. . . . By the which will we are sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all." That is, by our having our all consecrated to Jesus, and having this same mind or will that he had—"Lo, I come to do thy will, O God,"—"not my will, but thine be done." Sanctification on our part will then be complete so far; but there is something lacking yet. The pardon has not come. Let us have the rest of that verse: "through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all." There we have it—sanctification complete, pardon full. But we must believe in Jesus as a present Savior from sin. We must have faith in the blood. We must believe that it will cleanse from all sin; and the pardon will come.

Jesus says: "Sanctify them through thy truth." This doctrine of giving up all for Jesus is true. This doctrine of sinking out of our wills into his is true. This doctrine that Jesus' blood will cleanse from all sin is true. We have been sanctified by obeying these truths. Then we are all right so far. We may not then feel so happy as some do, but we feel free in Christ, our sins are all gone.

"Oh, the blood, the precious blood!
That Jesus shed for me
Upon the cross, in crimson flood,
Just now by faith I see"

Our all will then be on the altar; let us keep it there. So long as we do, we shall be at peace with God; Jesus will be ours, and we his. "Unto you therefore which believe, he is precious." We are then nothing of ourselves, but weak, frail creatures; but are complete in Christ, our head. Our righteousness although nothing but filthy rags, will then be exchanged for Christ's holiness. "Now stand fast in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage." "There is therefore now no condemnation to them that are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit. For the law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death." The "second death" is here meant. We are not now under the law of sin and death, but under grace. Christ hath redeemed us from the law of sin and its curse. Jesus' death exempted Adam from the penalty of the law which he broke in the garden. His blood exempts us from the penalty of the law which we have broken. Without the blood on our hearts we are utterly lost.

We must remember that we have done nothing to merit this salvation, "but according to his mercy he saved us, by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost, which he shed on us abundantly, through Jesus Christ our Savior." We can do nothing to merit eternal salvation. If we obtain it, it will be because we live by the faith of the Son of God here, and are found in him at last. As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him. Obey him in all things. His will is best for us. It is best for his cause. Others, by seeing our good works, may be led to glorify God in the day of visitation.

Jesus says: "Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you." Again he says: "If therefore thine eye be single, thy whole body shall be full of light; but if thine eye be evil, thy whole body shall be full of darkness." It is for our welfare here spiritually, physically, and temporally, to obey Jesus in all things. It is not safe to disobey him. He loves us and cares for us; he wishes us to prosper in all things. Satan hates Jesus. All that he cares about us, is to do everything he can to hinder us from embracing Jesus as a present Savior from sin, so that we may at last lose that eternal life, which he came to bring to light. Let us beware of Satan, and cling close to Jesus. The tree of life was removed so that man could not eat and live forever in his sins. No person can live forever unless saved from sin. The tree of life is removed, but Jesus is placed in its stead for us. "In him was life; and the life was the light of men." Jesus is that bread of life, of which a man may eat and not die. Jesus says:—"Whoso eateth my flesh and drinketh my blood hath eternal life; and I will raise him up at the last day." Again he says: "My meat is to do the will of him that sent me, and to finish his work."

Our meat is to do his will. If we believe in him as a present Savior from sin, and do whatsoever he commands, we shall grow up into him in all things, and shall at last obtain that life which will never fade away. But we cannot obtain it, till Satan's term of reign expires. We cannot become independent of Christ, our head, in any respect, till we arrive at that world where the tempter can sway no power, and where the King of righteousness shall reign in full command, and prosper. Till then our righteousness must be in him, our all in him, and we in him. We must abide there. Our trust must be in his keeping power, and our mind stayed on him. We are now only children in the embryotic state, and our life is hid with Christ in God; but when Christ who is our life shall appear, we shall be like him; we shall then come into full possession of that life, which will never be taken from us.

Make no christian living your standard of what is right in faith and practice, however high his name, his rank or his learning. Let your creed be the Bible, and nothing but the Bible; your example Christ, and nothing short of him.

REMEMBRANCE OF DIVINE WATCH-CARE.

BEULAH MATHEWSON.

Perhaps some of the readers of the Crisis who are not familiar with the biography of Mr. Archibald Bower, the great historian of the Popes, may be profited by reading an incident in his life where a retrospect of God's care, or, in Scripture language, remembering the way the Lord had led him, so encouraged his depressed and fainting spirit, that he could trust God for future emergencies.

Mr. Bower was born in Scotland, but was sent over to Italy by his parents, who were Papists, at the age of five years, to an uncle, to be educated at a Papist College, where was a great Inquisition. He made such proficiency in his studies as to be chosen Professor at an early age. Soon he was chosen to fill the office of Counsellor of the Holy Tribunal. This was considered a very honorable position, with a salary of two hundred pounds sterling, a fine home, with many other privileges. But when brought to perform the duties of this tormenting murder, his whole being revolted, and determined him to leave a religion so terrible, and embrace that proclaimed by angels on Bethlehem's plains—"Peace and good will to men."

From that time forth, he revolved in his mind every possible method of effecting his escape. He knew the difficulties were most formidable, and if he failed the consequences would be terrifically fatal. But being obliged by the Inquisitor General to apprehend a dear friend, a young nobleman recently married, because he had made some slight remark against doing penance, he, with a demoniacal guard, was obliged to bring him to torture, which terminated his life in three days.

This circumstance decided him to make an adventure the most desperate (says his biographer) ever undertook by man. It was some time ere he could get courage to solicit the Inquisitor General to make a short pilgrimage to Loretta, lest his emotion should betray him. But the opportune moment arrived when engaged in some pleasant conversation he made the request, which was immediately granted, and he mounted his horse, and after some ten miles he took the by-roads through the Adriatic States into Switzerland. The nature of the by-paths he was obliged to pass prevented his traveling over one hundred miles in seventeen days, during which time he lived on goat's milk, and an occasional coarse bit purchased from the peasants, selecting the best place nature afforded for repose for himself, and where there was grass for his horse.

Having fasted nearly three days, he was compelled to strike into the highway and enter the first house he came to, and while waiting for the lady to bring his victuals he discovered a paper over the door describing his person most minutely, and a reward of £800, if carried alive to the Inquisition, and £600 for his head. Two men placed their eye on him, and he narrowly escaped, and for several days and nights was greatly distressed with hunger and cold, and exceedingly perplexed as to what course he should pursue.

One dismal, dark and wet night, he could neither find shelter nor ascertain where he was, or what course he should pursue, but finally perceived a light at a great distance, towards which he attempted to proceed, and discovered a very narrow, uneven track, which required the utmost caution to travel. After severe labor he reached the hut, from which this light had emanated. He knocked and called, until some one looked out and demanded who he was, and what brought him there? Mr. B. replied that he was a stranger, and had lost his way.

"Way," cried the peasant, "there is no way here to lose."

"Where am I?" said Mr. B.

"In the Canton of Berne."

"Thank God!" exclaimed Mr. B. in raptures, "that I am in the Canton of Berne."

"Thank God you are!" replied the peasant, "but, for God's sake, how came you here?"

At Mr. B.'s request he opened the door, when he (B.) inquired if they had heard anything of a person who had lately escaped from the Inquisition?

"Aye, yes, and God grant that he may be safe and keep out of their hands," said the peasant.

Said Mr. B., "I am the very person!"

The peasant clasped him in his arms, and kissed him, and hastened to call his wife, who made one of her best courtesies and kissed his hand. Both expressed their regret that they had no better accommodations for him.

The good man hastened to get off Mr. B.'s wet clothes, and wrap something about him until they were dry, while his wife prepared the best food the house afforded, after which he enjoyed some repose of body and mind. Morning came, and with it breakfast with the pious Swiss couple.

Now we come to the point of remembering the past care of our Father. Nothwithstanding the mercies enjoyed through the night, Mr. B. was depressed. He may have felt as did David after the victory of obtaining Saul's skirt—"I shall one day perish by the hand of Saul." The peasant reproved him for distrusting that Providence which had so wonderfully preserved him thus far, and insisted upon his returning a little way, to show him the fearful path he had come the preceding night, ere he brought him on his way to the Protestant minister of Berne.

Mr. B. found he and his horse had passed a dreadful precipice, where the breadth of the path would scarcely admit a horse, the very sight of which made him shudder. The value of this counsel and reproof from this humble peasant to the learned Mr. B. can hardly be comprehended by those not habituated to the command—"Thou shalt remember all the way the Lord thy God hath led thee." If this poor peasant had not the letter of the word upon his tongue, he had the spirit which enforces what the word does teach.

After viewing the fearful way he had passed, the Swiss brought him on his way, where he was soon as warmly greeted by the minister at Berne, as he had been received in the humble cabin the night before, with the addition of more elegant entertainment. But hope was inspired in his breast to trust the providential care of that God who had thus far sustained him. And while passing through many dangerous positions on his way to England, which in due time he reached in safety, the Lord wonderfully upheld him.

It was the custom of the ancients to set up a pillar of stone in the place where God had signally blessed them. Such events were worth being remembered. But they knew that poor, weak human nature, when brought into straits, was liable to the temptation that God takes no interest in their insignificant case, and it is extremely doubtful whether he ever did do anything for them, etc. Three times did Jacob set up monuments of stone as witnesses; but when his darling Joseph was taken, and sore famine pressed upon him, a demand was made for his precious little Benjamin, he seemed to have forgotten the celestial ladder on which God's angels came down to administer to him; also God's host of angels that delivered him from Esau's revenge, and the occasion of God's honoring him with a new and significant name. God is against him now, he thinks, because of these afflictive providences. He is led in the bitterness of his soul to exclaim—"Now all these things are against me." But the sequel proved they were the very things for the salvation of himself and family.

We are all liable to sorrow and depression, but let us like David remember the times and places where God has blessed us, thus inciting hope, whether it was at Jordan, Hermon, or the hill Mizar. Then with him call upon ourselves to hope and trust, being assured of future occasions of praise.

After God had given Israel victory over the Philistines, Samuel determined God should be praised for the past. What if Satan did suggest dark things in the future? No matter. Says this holy Judge of Israel—"Hitherto hath the Lord helped us." And here he erected a monument and named it Ebenezer, or the stone of help. Whatever might be in the future, the Lord should have grateful emotions of praise for what he had already done.

Praise is always comely; and here it seems particularly acknowledged by God in no more suffering the Philistines to come into the coasts of Israel. 1 Sam. 7:13. However dark and impenetrable the clouds may be which Satan may lower over us, let our minds be settled upon this fact, that God is good, and say it. If the tempter tells you that you do not feel it, ask him what difference that makes about the fact? And is it not right to tell the truth, whether we especially feel on the subject? It is one of the most effectual means of getting rid of the tempter. Praise to God is exceedingly obnoxious to his satanic majesty.

THE FIRM BANK.

The promises of God in the Bible are the bank bills of heaven. Earthly banks may fail, but the heavenly bank cannot. The following lines—supposed to have been written by the Rev. Rowland Hill, at a time when public credit in Great Britain was shaken by the failure of several banks—beautifully unfolds the idea:

I have a never-failing bank,
Of more than golden store;
No earthly bank is half so rich,
How then can I be poor?

'Tis when my stock is spent and gone,
And I without a groat,
I'm glad to hasten to my bank
And beg a little note.

Sometimes my Banker smiling says,
"Why don't you oftener come,
And when you draw a little note,
Why not a larger sum?

"Why live so niggardly and poor?
Your bank contains a plenty;
Why come and take a one-pound note,
When you might have a twenty?

"Yea, twenty thousand ten times told,
Is but a trifling sum
To what your Father has laid up,
Secure in God his Son."

Since then my Banker is so rich,
I have no cause to borrow;
I live upon my cash to-day,
And draw again to-morrow.

I've been a thousand times before,
And never was rejected;
Sometimes my Banker gives me more
Than asked for, or expected.

Should all the banks of Britain break,
The bank of England smash,
Bring in your notes to Zion's bank—
You'll surely get your cash.

And if you have but one small note,
Fear not to bring it in;
Come boldly to the bank of grace—
The Banker is within.

All forged notes will be refused,
Man-merits are rejected;
There's not a single note will pass
That God has not accepted.

'Tis only those beloved by God,
Redeemed by precious blood,
That ever had a note to bring—
These are the gifts of God.

The Bank is full of precious notes,
All signed, and sealed, and free,
Though many doubting souls may say,
"There is not one for me!"

Base unbelief will lead the child
To say what is not true;
I tell the soul that feels self-lost,
These notes belong to you.

The leper had a little note:
"Lord, if thou wilt, thou can";
The Banker cashed this little note,
And healed the sickly man.

NOT "FOR," BUT "BY," OR "THROUGH."

A. PARMALEE.

"By grace are ye saved, through faith."

If men are saved for their faith, on the principle of debt and credit, then they bring God in debt to them. But this is impossible. If they are saved for believing, on the principle of cause and effect, then the unwashed and unsanctified, the unholy and profane, the abominable and disobedient, who believe in God and the Lord Jesus Christ, and the devils, are saved; for the "devils believe and tremble." "We know who thou art," they confessed, when the "Master of the house" was about to cast them out of his afflicted ones. If men are saved on either of the above principles, the gambler may rise from his games, acknowledge his faith in the Son of God, and settle himself again in security at his godless calling. All the thieves and cut-throats in the universe could do the same, and keep adding to their plunder in their unlawful way.

Do not think, dear reader, that because you believe in the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, and all that is taught in the Bible, that you are a favorite of God. You believe in the unconsciousness of the dead, the personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth, the resurrection of the dead, and the final destruction of the wicked. The devils know as much about this as you do, and I doubt not, more than some of us. If these truths make you any better than those who differ with you, it is by or through your faith and not because you believe them.

The salvation of Noah from destruction with the rest of mankind furnishes an excellent illustration of the idea I seek to convey. Heb. 11:7 reads—"By faith Noah, being warned of God of things not seen as yet, moved with fear, prepared an ark to the saving of his house; by the which he condemned the world, and became heir of the righteousness which is by faith." There was, first, the warning; second, the belief of the warning; third, the preparing of the ark. Nor was this all; Noah's salvation was not perfected until he entered into the ark.

Now suppose Noah had heard the warning, believed every word God had said, but from indifference as to his and his family's fate, had refused or neglected to follow God's directions; do you think his faith would have saved him? No more will yours or mine unless we, "by a patient continuance in well doing, seek for glory and honor and immortality." "To those who are contentious, and do not obey the truth," says the record, "indignation and wrath."

"Though I understand all mysteries and all knowledge, and have all faith so I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing." "Knowledge puffeth up, but charity edifieth." "As many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God. Now if any man have not the spirit of Christ he is none of his." "The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, faith, meekness, temperance." "He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches." "If there be, therefore, any consolation in Christ, if any comfort of love, if any fellowship of the Spirit, if any bowels and mercies, fulfill ye my joy [says Paul], that ye be like-minded, having the same love, being of one accord, of one mind. Let nothing be done through strife or vain glory, but in lowliness of mind let each esteem others better than themselves."

O, my God, why cannot these lovely principles rule in the hearts of all who trust in thee? Christians, let us not boast of our knowledge, or glory in party names. Jesus did not come into the world to make sects and parties, but to save sinners, and if our works are not to this same end, we have not the spirit of Christ.

THE WORK IN ALABAMA.

J. J. SMITH'S REPORT.

Dear Brethren:—After my illness during last winter, I labored for four months mostly with our churches and intermediate points, to which I had many pressing solicitations. I find a willingness to hear and investigate Bible truth is increasing. Our little bands of "like precious faith" are working and waiting for Jesus, are in harmony, and growing in grace and a knowledge of the truth.

On the 28th of May I set out on foot to preach a few weeks in the Coosa River country, about eighty miles south. Bro. Cargile and myself had been requested to hold a two days meeting at Norwood's Chapel, which we had consented to hold on the 29th and 30th. We met with large gatherings of the people, but as one man, claiming the right to control the Chapel, refused us the house, the neighbors had prepared seats in a grove. We had a very pleasant time, Brn. Crawford and Waldrop being with us and laboring to good effect.

Bro. C. promises to be very useful as a teacher of the Word. Our teaching, as presented by Bro. Cargile and myself, together with our religious literature, brought him out of skepticism into the full light of the gospel. He is a man of good mind, is well informed, of unblemished christian character, and zealous in trying to win souls to Christ.

On the 31st, walked about twenty miles. Stopped with a stranger for the night, who, on learning that I was a preacher, sent his children out to invite his neighbors in to hear me preach. Had a house full of attentive hearers. Was very kindly treated and invited to call again. June 1st, walked sixteen miles, when, a storm arising, I stopped with a farmer. Learned that he was one of the two men who last year sent a message for me or Bro. Cargile to come and preach the doctrine they had read in some of our tracts. We proposed to have a meeting in his house, but the storm continuing late, we did not get out a notice. We talked, sung and prayed with the family, who seemed to be edified and comforted.

June 2nd, walked to Brandon Station—six miles, took the cars six miles, thence on foot again over a rough mountain almost destitute of inhabitants for twelve miles. This brought me to the Coosa valley, and I learned that Bro. S. R. Hood lived about four miles further on. Although I was worn out with a hard tramp and almost overcome with heat, I pressed forward and reached Bro. Hood's in the twilight. Oh, what a greeting! How kind the reception by all his loving family. For a time my weariness was forgotten. But it soon returned; my muscles were sore, my bones ached. It will not be so in the kingdom. Thank the Lord for that "blessed hope."

Bro. Hood is the man of whom I wrote some months ago as having been converted to the truth by the reading of a single tract. And by preaching the truth in love he has won several ministers and many of their church members to the same precious faith.

Bro. H. had not received my letter authorizing him to make appointments for me. I rested, June 3d, till afternoon. Bro. H. furnished me with a mule to ride six or seven miles. Stayed for the night with a Bro. Coates, who got a few together while we lectured on the Prophetic Chart, to show that the gospel age must soon close, and Jesus come to save us. One old sister shouted for joy. It was a pleasant season to us all.

June 4th. Rested until evening, when I met a small congregation at Bro. Hood's (Baptist) church, and preached.

June 5th. Being church meeting day at Bro. Cornelius' (Baptist) church, Bro. Hood and myself went over the Coosa River to it. This is in another Association, which has condemned "materialists." After consultation with his brethren, Bro. C., the pastor, said to me:

"Bro. Smith, the brethren desire you to preach. They are hearty in it. I know that our Association has passed resolutions of opposition, but I am not afraid of Associations. The church is as high authority as the Association."

I preached to them accordingly. Had pressing invitations to visit them again. Afternoon, I lectured on the Chart to an assembly who seemed much interested.

June 6th. Returned four miles, to Bro. Hood's church. Discoursed twice to the people, there being many out. After the second discouse, Bro. H. and myself rode to the city of Gadsden, Etowah Co., twelve miles. Here is a thriving Baptist church which has not taken ground for or against the materialists. Bro. Hood being well known and highly esteemed by these brethren, might preach in their church without a dissenting voice; but to bring a stranger in their midst who might be expected to teach the very doctrifies already denounced by their Association, might stir up strife in their church. I was unwilling to have an application made for the use of their house. The use of the Court House was secured. We furnished lights. I preached to a small gathering on the saints' inheritance, and announced meeting for 11 o'clock next day.

June 7th. Preached and lectured three times to increasing numbers; the last time, to more than could be seated. The Lord blessed me with strength, and filled me with the spirit of love and tenderness. From the many cordial invitations to re-visit them, I think a good impression was left. Some said that they did not see how the Baptist church was to be split by such preaching. Others, that they did not see the bugbear.

Oh, but I did want some tracts for this people. I hope within three months to visit them again. Who will send me copies of the World's Crisis, the A. C. Times, Bible Banner, or Christian, or tracts, for this new field? Send to my address, care of Eld. S. R. Hood, Gadsden, Ala. Send by the 1st of Sept. I do not feel fully armed when out in the field without tracts.

June 8th. Returned with Bro. H. to his home, thirteen miles, much worn from the heavy work of the last few days, and loss of sleep. Bro. Hood's church with few exceptions are with him in the faith; portions of several other churches are with him. It remains to be seen whether his Association will retain the churches tainted with heresy another year. The September session will decide.

June 9th. Bro. Hood went with me on his own mules, twenty-four miles, and introduced me to other brethren of "like precious faith," to whom Bro. Cargile had recently paid a visit, as he has reported to you. The brethren here have had much bitter opposition from their Baptist brethren. It is somewhat abating, now that the strife-monger, who for money led the opposition, has left the country.

Notice of our arrival was sent out with an appointment for preaching at night, at Spring Creek church. Had a small congregation. It is now wheat harvest, and the people are overworked to save the crop, yet many, after the day's toil, soon become so interested that they come to our meetings.

June 10th. Preached to nine persons in Gaylesville. It seems that but few knew of this meeting, and there was another gathering to take them off. Bro. F. R. Bankson left me with Brn. Puckett and Livingston, the latter lately excluded from the Bapsist church for preaching our heresy. I preached seven times in this community. I am told that, since Bro. Cargile preached here, much of former prejudice is giving way.

June 15th. Preached at Baker's Chapel, Northern Methodist house, to an attentive audience. Subject, the coming kingdom. There were three ministers present, some taking notes. At the close, one of them announced his appointment for next Sunday, and the subject, "Immortality of the soul." I suppose it was intended as a refutation of what Bro. Cargile had preached there. This is the first instance in which I have known the Northern Methodists to join issue with us; though I have often been invited to preach in their houses, and held some very interesting meetings with them. I have heard of more strange "doctrines of men" on this trip, than any for years; Swedenborgianism, Spiritualism, Transmigration, et cetera. I saw one poor deluded wretch, who affirmed that his soul had transmigrated a number of times, and now, he says, he is developing into a god, and says all who do not own his divinity will ere long feel his power. I inquired what his soul occupied last before becoming a god? The reply was, "a Durham bull." Looking over my chart, he seemed well pleased with the symbolic animals, but would admit of no interpretation but his own, and insisted that the rough goat, with the great horn, was the United States of America.

If the Lord spares this generation, now rising up, to come to maturity, what will be their religion but Atheism? Is a whole generation to be given up to believe a lie, that they all might be damned? Surely you do not have so many elements of discord at the North as we have!

My health is now good again. I have not yet had a return of bronchitis this summer, as usually I have had. I am trying to labor in word and doctrine to the extent of my strength. A short time at home occasionally, to see to the wants of my family, and take needed rest, is all I can stay at home, with so large a field to labor in, and so few laborers to perform the task. Pray for more laborers. Yours in love,

Long Island, Ala. J. J. Smith.

HOME AND HEALTH.

DO NOT WORRY ABOUT YOURSELF.

"To retain or recover health, persons should be relieved from all anxiety concerning disease. The mind has power over the body, for a person to think he has a disease will often produce that disease. This we see effected when the mind is intensely concentrated on the disease of another. It is found in the hospitals that surgeons and physicians who make a specialty of certain diseases are liable to die of them themselves; and the mental strain is so great that sometimes people die of diseases which they have only in imagination. We have seen a person sea-sick in anticipation of a voyage, ere reaching the vessel. We have known persons to die of an imaginary cancer in the stomach, when they had no cancer or any other mortal disease. A blindfolded man, slightly pricked in the arm, had fainted and died from believing that he was bleeding to death.

Therefore well persons to remain so, should be cheerful and happy; and sick persons should have their attention diverted as much as possible from themselves. It is by their faith that men are saved, and it is by their faith they die. As a man thinketh so is he. If he wills not to die, he can often live in spite of disease, and if he has little or no attachment to life, he will slip away as easily as a child will fall asleep. Men live by their souls, and not by their bodies. Their bodies have no life of themselves, they are only receptacles of life—tenements for their souls, and the will has much to do in containing the physical occupancy of giving it up."

I take the above from the Conn. Southington Reporter. Undoubtedly the casual reader will skip over the article brought forward, and lay the paper down with the exclamation "that's so." But to the critic or thinking man, he can discover at a glance an impenetrable fog and bundle of inconsistencies.

For instance, the mind has power over the body; for a person to think he has a disease, will often produce that disease. This looks plausible upon its surface; but underneath and behind lie cause and effect which gives force and character, and we can find that disease in the crude to be the parent of disease in the abstract. Instead of the mind controlling the body, we find the exact opposite, namely, the body controlling the mind.

"That the brain is the organ of the mind, but that all its conditions similarly affect the mentality. And since all the states of the body and brain act reciprocally—consequent on that vast net-work of nerves which ramify throughout every part and parcel of the body, and terminate in the brain—of course all existing conditions of the body similarly affect these nerves, and thereby the brain—and therefore the mind, rendering all the states of either body or mind reciprocal which those of the other. Is the body sick, or weak, or exhausted, or inflamed, or sleepy, or exhilarated, is not the mind equally so?

Then to originate great thoughts, or to conceive pure and exalted sentiments, must not the brain be in a vigorous state? And in order to acquire cerebral vigor, must not all the bodily functions be equally vigorous? And to this end, must not those health laws which cause this vigor be observed? Of what avail the learning of the sickly scholar, the talents of the invalid, or the goodness of the pious dyspeptic? They can do nothing, can enjoy nothing—are but a burden to themselves and friends. Can we think, or remember, or study without that energy furnished by the body? No more than move machinery without motive power. How, then, can that boy become a great or learned man without possessing physical vigor? Or that delicate and beautiful girl a capable or good woman, wife or mother without possessing animal vigor?

Let it be forever and everywhere remembered, that both judgment and memory, reason and poetry, eloquence and philosophy, even morality and religion, all the virtues and all the vices—in short, one and all of the human functions, are carried forward by animal power. Even the very sensual pleasures of the debauchee are exercised by this very animal force, and weaken when and because it declines. And as physical power depends on the observance of certain physical laws, the violation of which weakens both body and mind, of course the first duty of every human being to himself and Creator—of parents to their children—of ministers to people—writer to reader, and one to all, is to learn and obey the health laws."

Therefore the brain being the generator and producer of thoughts, it, on becoming diseased, its product, which is reason and thought, must of necessity become diseased in like manner. Dare any dispute the fact of hereditary insanity? Further, can an ethereal principle transmit insanity?

Notice the inebriate with his brain inflamed with poisonous liquor. What is the result? His mind at once becomes deranged and inflamed in a corresponding manner. Apply the antidote to the body, and as a product you get the principle, and so in the reverse. This is a rule that works well both ways.

Then give me the cause and I will hand you the effect; or show me the effect, and by following up the same stream I will find the cause.

Again, "men live by their souls, and not by their bodies." This is startling intelligence. "Men live by their souls and not by their bodies." I inquire with earnestness, what or who is man as enumerated in the third person in the above? If man is not a body or soul, but depends upon soul for a livelihood, he of necessity must be somebody. But can he be anybody without a body? And if no body, why talk about anybody? C. S. Branch.

FRUIT AS FOOD.

In an article on "Fruit as Food," in Herald of Health for July, we find the following interesting statement:—

"While writing these pages there has sat upon the floor, enjoying an English picture book, a little fat, rosy-cheeked boy of some four summers, who has this spring, for the first time in his life, had the privilege of eating at his every meal of all the fruit he may desire. More than once he has partaken of nothing else but fruit. He has never heretofore been a healthy child; he has suffered from colds, throat difficulties, ear-ache and children's complaints generally. For weeks, in all the changing of a fickle season, he has known no ills of any kind, and seems perfectly free from his old weaknesses, and is getting very fleshy and robust. In fact, one might meet with ten thousand children and find none as rosy-cheeked, healthy, and as full of life and cheerfulness as this lad. He eats but two meals a day, and nothing except at meal-time. He uses no meat or butter, or sugar. It is but one of those demonstrations of what nature will bestow upon those who obey the law of choice as to what is best; taste and relish being sure guides, especially with less perverted childhood."

PRAYER OF THE AGED.—Ps. 71: 9.

J. LYLE.

O Father, thou alone art God,
Through endless years thou art the same;
I fall before thee and adore thee,
Our Father, hallowed be thy name.
May such an one as I draw near,
And speak to thee in earnest prayer?

Cherub and seraph near thee dwell,
Angels of might in word and deed;
But of them all I would not call
On one for me to intercede.
My Advocate before thy throne
Is Lord of angels, thy dear Son.

Increasing years of mortal life
With their sad weight are bending me;
I strive in vain strength to retain,
But ah, the grave's my destiny!
Fond objects of the past have fled,
And left me with a hoary head.

Forsake me not, O heavenly Friend,
Forgive my wandering and my sin;
Thy book of truth from early youth
My guide and counsellor has been.
Bless me while trembling on time's shore,
Ere I go hence to be no more.

And oh, when death's long night is gone,
When morning stars shall sing again,
Let me arise with glad surprise
To hail my Lord's millennial reign.
Then crowned with endless life I'll raise
With thy redeemed my song of praise.

MORMONISM:

OR,

WAS JOSEPH SMITH A DIVINELY INSPIRED PROPHET?

WM. SHELDON.

CHAPTER II.

II. The so-called inspired translation of the Bible by Joseph Smith, clearly proves that he was not an inspired prophet, when compared with the Book of Mormon. This translation, according to its preface, "was begun in June 1830, and finished July 2, 1833," but not published till after 1866. We invite attention to several important points.

1. In the Book of Mormon we have many texts quoted precisely as they occur in our version, while in the inspired translation they are changed, thus making Joseph's inspiration repudiate itself, for both books claim to have been translated by inspiration; hence, if the Book of Mormon is an inspired book, the so-called translation of the Bible is wrong, for the two clash; and if the so-called inspired translation is right, the Book of Mormon is wrong, for the two come in collision, and true inspiration will not clash with itself; and whether one or both of these books are wrong, Joseph Smith is thereby proved an untrue prophet, for he was the translator of both books, and a true prophet could not produce an untruthful book; and when he is thus proved a false prophet, both books are proven unreliable, so far as the translation depends upon Joseph, for an uninspired prophet could not translate any book "by the spirit of inspiration." Every collision between the Book of Mormon and the inspired translation in the rendering given of the same texts of Scripture, is a valid argument against Joseph's claim to inspiration, as divine inspiration cannot thus make war on itself; and when Joseph's claim to inspiration is broken, he is proven a false prophet, for a true prophet would not claim the gift of translation, and pretend to exercise it, when he is void of such a gift.

In the Book of Mormon the claim is made, as before shown, that within a year after Christ's ascension to heaven, he returned to earth to visit the Nephites living on this continent, and tarried with them at one time three days, doing miracles, and teaching the people; after having thus taught them, he added: "Behold, ye have heard the things which I have taught before I ascended to my Father." Nephi, 7th chap. In this rehearsal of things which he had taught before he ascended to heaven, much of the fifth, sixth, and seventh chapters of Matthew are quoted precisely as found in our common version; and one of three conclusions is inevitable, either Joseph had our Bible before him to copy from, or Christ really endorsed our rendering when talking to the Nephites, or else Joseph's inspiration was at fault in reporting Christ's conversation to the Nephites; for in the inspired translation, there are over thirty variations from the quotations given in the Book of Mormon. If the Book of Mormon is right in making Christ endorse the precise phraseology used in the common version, then Joseph is wrong in his "spirit of inspiration" by which he repudiates what Christ endorsed. But if Joseph's "spirit of inspiration" is right, by which he changes from the common version, how did either Christ, or Nephi, the recorder of Christ's sayings to the Nephites, chance to give the precise phraseology used in our Bible, especially if it is wrong? How did this happen? Did Christ, in telling the Nephites what he had taught on the other continent before his ascension, blunder into a wrong statement (for it must be wrong if Joseph's translation is right), or did Nephi in reporting what Christ had said, chance to give the precise language used in our version, not knowing a word about our version?

How is it that the Book of Mormon and our Bible attribute the same phraseology to Christ, while Joseph repudiates it when he translates by inspiration? Take a few samples. The Lord's prayer is repeated in the Book of Mormon just as we find it in our version: "And lead us not into temptation." Nephi, 5th chap. But in turning to Joseph's inspired translation, it is found to read: "And suffer us not to be led into temptation" (Matt. 6: 14), or, "And let us not be led into temptation." Mark 11: 4. The question is not as to which translation is preferable; but if the common version is wrong, how came Christ to repeat it wrong to the Nephites, or how came Nephi to record it in this wrong form, having never seen our version? And how came Joseph in translating from the plates to give the same rendering found in our version, and when translating the Bible to repudiate that rendering, and substitute another? The fact is, when preparing the Book of Mormon our version was freely used, with all its defects; and when the inspired translation was arranged, forgetting that the rendering of certain texts had been endorsed by incorporating them into the Book of Mormon, they are changed,—thereby repudiating by inspiration at one time, what had been endorsed by inspiration at another time,—thus making the Book of Mormon, and the inspired translation condemn each other: so one or the other must fall; and if either one falls, Joseph falls with it, and drags down the other with him, so far as its translation depends on him.

Not to be tedious, we will content ourselves with a few samples of quotations from our common version found in the Book of Mormon, in contrast with Joseph's subsequent inspired translation of the same texts, so that all may see that what is endorsed by his kind of inspiration at one time, is repudiated by the same kind of inspiration at another time.

Our version of Matt. 5: 40, is quoted verbatim in the Book of Mormon: "And if any man will sue thee at the law, and take away thy coat, let him have thy cloak also. And whosoever shall compel thee to go a mile, go with him twain." Nephi, chap. 5, But in the inspired translation Joseph renders the same text thus: "And if any man will sue thee at the law, and take away thy coat, let him have it; and if he sue thee again, let him have thy cloak also. And whosoever shall compel thee to go a mile, go with him a mile; and whosoever shall compel thee to go with him twain, thou shalt go with him twain."

If our common version is wrong, how came that wrong version in the Book of Mormon? If Joseph's version is the real language of Christ, why was not that language used in the Book of Mormon instead of the exact wording of our version, which did not exist for hudreds of years after the Book of Mormon claims to have been written on plates? Were our translators inspired to use the precise words found on those plates, so long before Joseph found the plates, and that too when the words were wrong, if Joseph's inspired translation is right? If Christ, on his visit to America, really used the words found in the Book of Mormon, and if Joseph is right in representing him as using different words on the other continent, how did it happen that our translators used the very words that Christ uttered on this continent to the Nephites, and not the words that he uttered on the other continent to the Jews?

Our version of Matt. 6: 33, is quoted verbatim in the Book of Mormon, as language used by Christ: "But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." But in the inspired translation, Joseph renders the same text thus: "Wherefore, seek not the things of this world; but seek ye first to build up the kingdom of God, and to establish his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." If Joseph's rendering is right, how came the wrong rendering in the Book of Mormon? And how happens it that this wrong rendering precisely agrees with the common version? Or rather, how did our translators obtain the precise phraseology used on the plates of Nephi so long before our translation was made, having never seen or heard of those plates?

Our version of Matt. 7: 1, is found verbatim in the Book of Mormon: "Judge not, that ye be not judged." Nephi, chap. 6th. But Joseph's inspired translation reads: "Judge not unrighteously, that ye be not judged; but judge righteous judgment." How did the common version finds its way into the Book of Mormon, if that was really written so long before our translation, especially if our version is wrong?

Our version of Matt. 7: 9–11, is quoted without a change in the Book of Mormon: "Or what man is there of you, whom, if his son ask bread, will he give him a stone? Or if he ask a fish, will he give him a serpent?" But Joseph's inspired translation repudiates this rendering, which somehow found its way into the Book of Mormon, and substitutes the following: "What man among you, having a son, and he shall be standing out, and shall say, Father, open thy house that I may come in and sup with thee, will not say, Come in, my son; for mine is thine, and thine is mine? Or what man is there among you, who, if his son ask bread, will give him a stone? Or if he ask a fish, will he give him a serpent?" If Joseph is a true prophet, this last rendering must be right; and if this is right, the other must be wrong, and if wrong how came it in the Book of Mormon which claims to have been written (this part of it) by an inspired Nephite apostle of Christ, and to have been translated by inspiration through Joseph? And how chanced our version to be wrong, and yet precisely the same contained in the Book of Mormon? Was our version borrowed from the Book of Mormon before the plates were found, or did the Book of Mormon borrow our version after the plates were claimed to be found?

Our version of Matt. 7: 23, is used word for word in the Book of Mormon without variation: "And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity." Nephi, 6th chap. But Joseph's translation is different: "And then will I say, ye never knew me: depart from me, ye that work iniquity." If Joseph was divinely inspired to translate this text thus, and the Book of Mormon was also translated by "the spirit of inspiration," after receiving the sanction of God and angels, one of whom discovered the book to Joseph, how can the collision between the two inspired translations be reconciled? They are positively irreconcileable. And we have here presented a mere sample of over thirty such inspired repudiations of the Book of Mormon. We are compelled to conclude that Joseph's inspiring power needed a little instruction in grammar, after reading his translation of many texts, of which Rev. 1: 3, may be taken as a sample: "Blessed are they who readeth, and they who heareth and understandeth the words of this prophecy, and keepeth those things that are written therein." Was inspiration so weak in Joseph that it could not talk straight? Or did it not know how to talk correctly? It is not surprising that uninspired translators should sometimes talk a little crooked, but an inspiration that is so familiar with all other languages, ought to be better acquainted with the English language.

It will avail nothing to conjecture that inspiration only dictates the thoughts, and leaves it wholly with the inspired person to select language to express those thoughts; for if this were so Balaam's ass would hardly have been understood; nor would those disciples on the day of Pentecost have spoken intelligibly in different languages. Inspiration gives the language, as well as the thoughts.

2. The necessity for an inspired translation is argued from a statement found in the Book of Mormon concerning the perversion of the Bible: "For, behold, they have taken away from the gospel of the Lamb, many parts which are plain and most precious . . . and after these plain and precious things were taken away it goeth forth unto all the nations of the Gentiles." 1 Nephi, 3rd chap. Then in a revelation through Joseph, recorded on the one hundred and forty-fifth page of the Book of Covenants, it is affirmed: "Thou shalt ask, and my Scriptures shall be given as I have appointed, and they shall be preserved in safety; and it is expedient that thou shouldest hold thy peace concerning them, and not teach them until ye have received them in full." Here we are informed, not only that much has been taken from the gospel revealed in the Scriptures, but that through Joseph these missing Scriptures should be restored "in full." The statement is emphatic: "My Scriptures shall be given," not in part, but "in full." So, if this inspired translation is what it purports to be, it will really contain all that God recognizes as his Scriptures. But, upon examination, we fail to find the prophecy of Enoch, mentioned in the Bible. Mormons have long argued the incompleteness of the Bible, as an argument to pave the way for the reception of the Book of Mormon.

Mr. Taylor, one of Joseph's apostles, in a public discussion, thus appeals to his opponent: "Where is the book of the wars of the Lord? (See Rom. 21: 14), and also the book of Jasher? Josh. 10: 13. I wish some information about the book of the statutes of the kings of Israel (1 Sam. 10: 25); and also the book of Enoch (Jude 14)." These books are not in the inspired version. Why are they omitted? Could not inspiration find them as well as many other things put into this translation? If the Bible was defective without them before, is it not now equally as defective in this respect? Did Joseph really receive God's Scriptures "in full," and still leave several books out of the list?

Nephi, in the third chapter of his first book, speaks of the prophecies of Zenock, Neum, and Zenos, as being recorded on the plates of brass brought out of Jerusalem; and a similar reference is made in the book of Nephi, fourth chapter, in these words: "Yea, the prophet Zenos did testify of these things, and also Zenock spake concerning these things, because they testified particular concerning us, who are a remnant of their seed. Behold, our father Jacob also testified concerning a remnant of the seed of Joseph. And behold, are not we a remnant of the seed of Joseph? And these things which testify of us, are they not written upon the plates of brass which our father Lehi brought out of Jerusalem?"

Here are several prophets spoken of, whose prophecies are recorded on the plates of brass, with the prophecies of Isaiah, and Moses, and others. Now if the Scriptures were to be restored "in full," in this inspired version, why were these left out? If the Book of Mormon is reliable, the prophecies of these prophets are a part of the "Scriptures," for they are expressly called so in the immediate connection of the last quotation: "He that hath the Scriptures, let him search them." Very often these brass records are called "Scriptures," in the Book of Mormon. Then, in order for Joseph to receive the Scriptures "in full," he should have received these ancient prophecies, uttered and recorded before Lehi left Jerusalem. But we look in vain for them in the inspired version.

3. The inspired translation conflicts both with the Bible and with itself concerning the creation of man, in affirming that God created man spiritually even before they were created naturally: "For I, the Lord God, created all things of which I have spoken, spiritually, before they were naturally upon the face of the earth; for I, the Lord God, had not caused it to rain upon the face of the earth. And I, the Lord God, had created all the children of men, and not yet a man to till the ground, for in heaven created I them, and there was not yet flesh upon the earth, neither in the water, neither in the air; but I, the Lord God, spake, and there went up a mist from the earth, and watered the whole face of the ground. And I, the Lord God, formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul; the first flesh upon the earth, the first man also; nevertheless, all things were before created, but spiritually were they created and made, according to my word." Gen. 2: 5–9.

"And he called upon our father Adam, by his own voice, saying, I am God; I made the world, and men before they were in the flesh." Gen. 6: 52.

This was the teaching of Joseph's inspiration when he commenced his translation; but being off of his guard when he reached Paul's epistle to the Corinthians, he spoiled his own theory by the following translation: "The first man, Adam, was made a living soul; the last Adam was made a quickening spirit. Howbeit, that which is natural first, and not that which is spiritual; but afterwards that which is spiritual. The first man is of the earth, earthy; the second man is the Lord from heaven. As is the earthy, such are they also that are earthy; and as is the heavenly, such are they also that are heavenly. And as we have borne the image of the earthy, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly." 1 Cor. 15: 44–49.

Here we have the fact presented that the "first man," instead of being spiritual, was "of the earth"—"that which is natural first"—"afterwards that which is spiritual;" just as in the history of Christ who became the second Adam; he firstly possessed a mortal body, or natural body, and it was "sown a natural body;" afterwards it was "raised a spiritual body." Here is the divine pattern: Christ "became the first fruits of them that slept"—a sample of the spiritual, or immortal, being thus "made a quickening spirit." As the "second" cannot precede the "first," no reference can here be made to Christ's pre-existence, but to his material existence in its natural and immortal stages. Joseph affirms that the first man was made "in heaven"—Paul says "of the earth." Joseph says man was first made "spiritually;" Paul says, "natural first;" but in due time "we shall also bear the image of the heavenly." Here Joseph's translation is in conflict with itself, as well as with our version.

A clashing inspiration cannot be of God.

4. Joseph's inspired version clashes with itself, and with reason by giving two natural fathers to Joseph, the husband of Mary who was the mother of Jesus, in rendering Matt. 1: 4. "Jacob begat Joseph," and in translating Luke 3: 30, Joseph "was from the loins of Heli." Certainly he could not have been begotten by Jacob, and also have come from the loins of Heli. The common version simply says that Joseph "was the son of Heli;" and so he was by marriage, Heli being the father of his wife Mary; so with this version there is no collision between the two statements; "Jacob begat Joseph," and by marriage Joseph "was the son of Heli;" but when the text is so tinkered as to read, Joseph "was from the loins of Heli," there is an irreconcileable collision. Is this the result of true inspiration?

5. The inspired version contradicts itself in its statements about the creation, or else it teaches the propagation of pre-existent spirit-fish, spirit-fowl, spirit-beasts, as well as the propagation of the species of spirit-men. It first gives a record of man's creation on the sixth day: "Let us make man in our image" (Gen. 1: 27), subsequently adding: "Not yet a man to till the ground, for in heaven created I them, and there was not yet flesh upon the earth, neither in the water, neither in the air" (Gen. 2: 6), and then proceeds to speak of man's earthly creation thus: "And man became a living soul; the first flesh upon the earth." Gen. 2: 8. Remembering the affirmation here made, that at the time God was about to create man, "there was not yet flesh upon the earth, neither in the water, neither in the air," and also that man was "the first flesh upon earth," we turn to the record of creation on the fifth day, and sixth day, before the alleged spiritual creation of man:

"And I, God said, Let the waters bring forth abundantly, the moving creature that hath life, and the fowl which may fly above the earth, in the open firmament of heaven. And I, God, saw that all things which I had created were good; and I, God, blessed them, saying, Be fruitful, and multiply, and fill the waters in the sea, and let fowl multiply in the earth. And the evening and the morning were the fifth day. And I, God, said, Let the earth bring forth the living creature after his kind; cattle and creeping things, and beasts of the earth after their kind; and it was so. And I, God, made the beasts of the earth, after their kind; and cattle after their kind; and everything which creepeth on the earth, after his kind." Gen. 1: 22–26.

Now, if at the time the Lord created man, there was no "flesh" on earth, in air, or water, and if man was "the first flesh upon earth," here is either a square contradiction, or else these fish in the water are spiritual fish, these fowl in the water are spiritual fowl, these cattle and beasts are spiritual cattle and spiritual beasts; and more than this, these very fish, fowl, cattle and beasts are commanded to "Be fruitful and multiply." What, spirit-fish multiply, and spirit-fowl, spirit-cattle and beasts multiply? Then what kind of water "brought forth abundantly" these fish and whales? Was it spirit-water? And was it spirit-earth that these beasts and cattle occupied? And still worse, it is said of these: "And to every beast of the earth, and to every fowl of the air, and to every thing that creepeth upon the earth, wherein I grant life, there shall be given every clean herb for meat; and it was so." Vs. 32. What, was God proposing to feed spiritual beasts and fowl on herbs?

It is said to man, on the sixth day, "Be fruitful and multiply." Vs. 30. Are spiritual men to multiply, or propagate their species? Again: "And I, God, said unto man, Behold, I have given you every herb bearing seed, which is upon the face of all the earth; and every tree in the which shall be the fruit of a tree yielding seed; to you it shall be for meat." Vs. 31. What, be meat for spiritual men? Spiritual men feeding on literal herbs? If the herbs and trees are spiritual, they yield spiritual "seed." Moses only recapitulates man's creation in the second chapter, and taught no such spiritual nonsense as Joseph's inspired version indicates, such as man's pre-existence, feeding on herbs, and propagating his species before entering the flesh; and the pre-existence of all animals, to feed on herbs, literal or spiritual, such as yield their seed, these animals also being commanded, before there was flesh on the earth, to "multiply," or propagate their species. Turn which ever way you will, Joseph's inspired translation involves its advocates in a dilemma. If this idea of human and animal propagation of the species previous to possessing flesh, is not relished; if this idea of feeding spirit-men and spirit-beasts on herbs before the existence of flesh, is not relished, the only way to escape the dilemma with all its absurdities, is to take the position the creation spoken of in the first chapter was a creation of fleshly beings; and when that position is taken, the translation of Joseph flatly contradicts itself, saying, "there was not yet flesh upon the earth, neither in the water, neither in the air."

These things were all made before man; yet Joseph's inspiration says that man was "the first flesh upon the earth." If God made "men before they were in the flesh," and in this condition commanded them to multiply, would he command an impossibility? If not, then it is possible for men to propagate their species out of the flesh; and if death takes men out of the flesh, why may they not then propagate their species? And if any men can so do, why not all men, and thus augment Satan's kingdom interminably? Has not Joseph here introduced a sentiment that annihilates the object of creation? If the human family could multiply before the creation of flesh, why was flesh ever created?

6. Joseph's inspired translation betrays its weakness in introducing baptism in the days of Adam, either under a Greek term, hundreds of years before the Greek language existed, or under the pretence of translating the Hebrew into English, in using a Greek word with an English termination; for all scholars know that the term baptize, instead of being an English word, is simply a Greek term transferred, with an English termination. In pretending to translate into the English, why leave the term untranslated, as far as the English is concerned, and simply translate it into Greek? He might just as well have translated it into French or German, as into Greek. God is represented as saying to Adam: "Be baptized in water." Gen. 6: 53. Would true inspiration have selected this long controverted Greek term, instead of some well understood English word, to communicate to people familiar only with the English language the idea of Adam's immersion in water, if he really was thus immersed? Besides this, if Adam's baptism, as recorded by Joseph, was a true pattern, all subsequent baptisms are faulty: "Adam cried unto the Lord, and he was caught away by the Spirit of the Lord, and was carried down into the water, and was laid under the water, and was brought forth out of the water; and thus he was baptized." Gen. 6: 67.

Why was not baptism subsequently administered on the same principle, if this was really God's work? Has God since changed his own plan? Why not have done as in the case of Joseph's baptism? Else why was not Joseph baptized after the same pattern? Both were baptized, it is claimed, when there was not a valid administrator on earth; then why were not both baptized alike? Will God repudiate his own practice? Is he changeable?

CHRIST OUR SALAVTION.

C. HELME.

Man being brought into this state of salvation, he loves God with all his heart; every affection, appetite, and desire being purified, refined, and fixed on and centred in God. He loves him with all his soul, the whole life being occupied with and devoted to his service; for as he lives by God, he lives to and for him. Such were the martyrs; they counted not their lives dear to them, so that they might properly confess and glorify Him who had brought them out of darkness to his marvelous light.

He loves him with all his mind, his understanding, judgment, and will; with his spirit, the whole of the intellectual principle; all his rational powers being influenced by the spirit of love, and employed in rendering a reasonable service to his God. And he loves him with all his strength; all his rational and intellectual energies being combined in his acts of devotion and acts of obedience. As he thus loves God, he also loves his neighbor as himself. "Love worketh no ill to his neighbor, therefore love is the fulfilling of the law." He lives to God's glory by receiving good from him to do good to men. By the finger of God the moral law is written on his heart, and by incessant acts of loving obedience it is transcribed in his life.

But, say you, Who is sufficient for these things? He in whose heart Jesus lives and rules, and whose blood has cleansed him from all unrighteousness. He who wills in God's will, lives in his life, is strong in his strength; who walks by faith, and not by sight, who is crucified to the world, and the world to him, whose feet are fixed on the Rock of Ages, and who can do all things through Christ, who strengthens him.

Reader, all things are possible to him that believeth.

HOLINESS TO THE LORD.

F. P. DINGLEY.

Perhaps the words in Gen. 2: 17, rendered "in the day" is wrong, and should be rendered "after the day." Some read it—"In the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt become mortal." In case that either of these renderings is true, Jesus must have pawned his life before the foundation of the world. That is, he must have promised that if man sinned, he would pay the demand of the law, and open a way whereby he might be saved from sin. This may be the case. Paul begins his letter to Titus thus:—"Paul a servant of God, and an apostle of Jesus Christ, . . . in hope of eternal life, which God, that cannot lie, promised before the world began." Peter, while speaking of Jesus, says:—"Who verily was foreordained before the foundation of the world; but was manifest in these last times for you, who by him do believe in God that raised him up from the dead, and gave him glory."

Jesus is spoken of in Revelations as being a "Lamb slain from the foundation of the world." It seems to me clear that the sole reason of our falling in death, or as the Bible terms it, sleep, previous to obtaining the life or death set forth in the gospel, is the removal of the tree of life. I may be mistaken in this view; if I am, I am willing to be enlightened. I never close my heart from receiving light on any subject in our creed—the Bible. I do not belong to any synagogue, but the household of faith. I stand free in Christ. But I mean to hold fast that form of doctrine which I have till I see good reason for letting it drop.

Jesus came to pay the penalty of that law which was broken in the garden. Paul says:—"God sent forth his Son . . . made under the law." Now if he was made under the law, which man broke in the garden, of course it must have had a claim on him while he was here in the world. If this is true, it proves that there must have been a time previous to his being born in this world that he had an existence, and the law had no demand on him. He existed with the Father in person, and had glory with him before the world was. He was rich. His Father loved him. He loved him more than any earthly parent can love; but he so loved the world that he freely delivered him up for us all.

"O, 'twas love, 'twas wondrous love!
The love of God to me;
It brought my Savior from above,
To die on Calvary."

It was in view of some being saved from sin that he delivered him up for us. If there had been no way opened for persons to be saved from sin, and had been none to comply with the requirements of the gospel, after such a way was opened, I believe that Adam would have been put out of existence the day he ate of the forbidden fruit. Jesus did not pawn his life upon uncertainties, for that all-seeing eye looked down the stream of time, and saw an innumerable company coming out of great tribulation, having their robes washed white in his own blood.

He loved the church and gave himself for it; that he might sanctify and cleanse it with the washing of water by his word; that he might present it to himself a glorious church, not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing; but that it should be holy and without blemish." He gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works. He came specially to save those that believe; for unless there had been some that would believe, he would not have come. I believe he would come, if he saw only one that would heed the call of mercy. He came to save every one that could be persuaded to repent and be saved.

In Paul's first letter to the church at Corinth, he says:—"Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God? Be not deceived; neither fornicators, nor idolators, nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor abusers of themselves with mankind, nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners, shall inherit the kingdom of God. And such were some of you; but ye are washed; but ye are sanctified; but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus and by the Spirit of our God." Such persons as these were just the ones that Jesus came to save. "God commendeth his love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." He lived for God; but he died for us. He did not seek to please himself. Reproaches fell on him. He died an ignominious death. He suffered without a murmur. In his life and death he set forth an example, that we should follow in his steps. He died for all, that they which live should not live unto themselves, but unto him who died for them and rose again. He has redeemed us from the curse of the law. He has got the power to conquer Satan. He has bought us. We are not now under Moses, but under Christ. He is our lawgiver,—our school-master. He is that prophet unto whom we should hearken in all things. The gospel requirements are to do whatsoever he commands us.

We should seek to please him in every thing that we do. We should not seek to please him from a slavish motive, but out of love to him, because his will is best for us and for his cause. We are commanded to yield our members servants to righteousness unto holiness. We yield our members servants to righteousness, when we yield to Jesus. Inasmuch as our righteousness, our trust, our all is in him, we are not complete without him. We are holy only when we are in him. We are unholy when we are out of him. Jesus says:—"Abide in me, and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine; no more can ye, except ye abide in me." The branch cannot be plucked from the vine every few times in a month and be grafted in again and continue to grow. It must abide there continually. Just so with us. We must abide in Christ without interruption. We must draw continual nourishment from him, in order to be kept continually, and to grow up into him in all things. The beloved disciple said:—"Whosoever abideth in him sinneth not." Well said. Their all is given up to Jesus. Their every purpose is bent on doing Jesus' will. Jesus is uppermost in their thoughts. They seek to keep self down and Jesus exalted. Their theme is Jesus' righteousness; their trust, Jesus' keeping power. They are nothing of themselves, but Jesus is all in all. They do not keep themselves, but are kept by the saving power of God. Who gets the glory?

Some persons talk and write as though persons professing holiness were establishing their own righteousness. But not so. We are upholding Jesus in all things. We are preaching him as a present Savior from sin. Without him we can do nothing. We are safe only when we are in him. To get near him is not enough. We must get in him. We must be begotten. We must be begotten, if we would be born to that new life, when the Life-Giver comes. "He that is begotten of God keepeth himself [by grace], and that wicked one toucheth him not."

While in this world, we must be in Christ; afterward we shall be with him. "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature; old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new." His desires and purposes have become changed. He loves to do the things he once hated, and hates the things he once loved. His desires for the sinful pleasures of this life have become faded. He loves purity. He begins to foretaste the glories of the life to come. It sweetens his life here. It purifies it. Inasmuch as death hath no more dominion over Christ, the Head; seeing that he ever liveth, he knows that he shall live also.

The Bible is God's word; Jesus, his dear Son. Sin severs us from Jesus, the true Vine. It retards christian growth. It separates us from our God. "But your iniquities have separated between you and your God." Will the Bible license us to do anything that will separate us from our God? Of course it will not. Nothing is necessary that will separate us from our God. Sin, then, is not necessary. God is angry with sin. His word opposes it. "Let not sin therefore reign in your mortal body, that ye should obey it in the lust thereof." "Likewise reckon ye yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord." "Awake to righteousness and sin not." "Sin is the transgression of the law." As Jesus is our lawgiver, all the principle that we need while under the gospel is a principle to hearken unto this Jesus in all things.

Another thought comes in here. We will let John the beloved disciple express it: "My little children, these things write I unto you, that ye sin not. And if any man sin [happen to sin], we have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous." O thank the Lord, we need never despair, so long as we have such a merciful intercessor. Jesus' pitying eye is upon us all the day long; and he longs to have us keep free from guilt.

We must always have a principle to not grieve him knowingly; and his blood will purge us from every evil conscience. But we must confess all of our erring to him. It grieves our Savior to have us sin in the least; but in case that we do sin, he loves to have us confess to him so that he can set us free. It is wrong for us to try to cover our misdoings; we must confess them to Jesus, and to each other, if needs be. "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." What a precious friend he is to us! It seems too bad to grieve such a friend. We ought to fear lest we do. We must not grieve his Holy Spirit whereby we are sealed until the redemption of the purchased possession.

(To be concluded.)

BEYOND.—The church says—My kingdom is at hand; my sun is about to rise; I shall soon see the King in his beauty. Beyond the death-bed and beyond the grave, she sees the resurrection. Beyond the troubles of the hour, and the storm that is to wreck the world, she casts her eye, and feels transported into the kingdom that cannot be moved, as if already she had taken up her abode in the city of peace and righteousness.—Bonar.

SUGAR HILL.

Sugar Hill is an elevated district, connected with the group of White Mountains, in the eartern part of the town of Lisbon, Grafton Co., N. H.

We came here June 4th, seeking rest from our exhausting, wearing office duties. This we needed very much. We came to this place because we know of no other upon our cursed earth where there are more advantages offered to recuperate a wearied head and saddened heart than this sequestered, christian settlement, among these smiling hills. It presents a great contrast to the crowded city, with its pestilential vapors, corrupting, damning, moral influences, ever varying ceaseless confusion, with its perplexing cares, and heart sickening strife. Among these "lasting hills" we enjoy the sweet invigorating mountain breezes, infusing life, and almost youthful vigor into the relaxed organs, and the pure crystal waters from a thousand gushing and never failing springs. Here we can enjoy a mental feast of inspiring pleasure, as the eye drinks in the sublimity of God's handywork in painting these almost countless hills and far stretching valleys with the darker shades of evergreen, the lighter hues of spring time foliage, and the ever charming green of the annual grasses. The ear is constantly charmed with the melodious music of forest songsters, and the constant echo of lowing herds and bleating flocks as they are grazing far up on the sides of the verdant hills. Added to these are the deeper tones of roaring winds and murmuring waterfalls.

When we wish to draw a little nearer to the Creator of all things, in the contemplation of the mighty wonders of his government and the grandeur of his works, we seat ourselves upon the summit of this sweet hill where the celebrated White Mountain range stands before us in all the sublimity of their vastness, and the grandeur of their varied forms, changeless positions, and lasting silence. We have often inquired, with a deeper toned emotion than all the works of men can produce, Who laid the foundations and reared these vast pyramids with such creative skill? When did these cloud-capped mountains arise? When were they stationed as changeless sentinels, to witness the ever varying seasons, and count the passing ages, and tell the rise and fall again of many generations? The answer seems to echo from the world above—God, the creator of all things, laid these foundations, and established these mountains in their places, where they must stand as the monuments of his power and greatness until his fiat shall roll them down and break them up by the last day earthquake. Then they shall be cast into his fiery furnace, and purged from the curse, to be moulded, by his skillful hand, into the glorious "new earth."

This place, for physical, mental, and spiritual rest, is certainly much superior to the crowded, filthy, whirling, wicked city. But the curse has laid its withering, destroying hand heavily even upon these mountains and hills. Death has thrown its fatal coils around all life, vegetable and animal. Since we enjoyed the refreshing sweetness of scenes and associations here a year ago, vegetation has withered, and its flowers and beauty have faded in the autumnal winds. The foliage of the forests and fruit trees have faded and fallen under the drifting snows of a howling winter. New made graves have dotted the green lawn cemeteries, where those we then greeted lie silently asleep. Weeds of mourning have shaded many households, and caused bitter weeping around many hearthstones. Satan also has found his way even into these retired regions, and christian neighborhoods and wedded hearts have been alienated, christian fellowship has been broken, and infidel principles have been promulgated. Surely no place will escape the curse, no people escape the temptations of Satan.

But the christian standard was long ago unfurled, and floated triumphantly over the inhabitants of this beautiful place. Here the bitterness of repentance and the joys of pardon have been experienced by many. Here the sweetness of holy fellowship and the power of heavenly devotion have long produced the echo of sacred song, and the hearty response to divine truth. The glorious proclamation of the speedy deliverance of the waiting church, and the long-prayed-for coming of the absent Bridegroom at hand, early in its announcement, sounded among these hills, and caused many warm hearts to rejoice, and christian loins to be girded, and lamps to be trimmed in expectation of meeting the coming King.

Although many seats among the happy virgins have been vacated by removals, emigrations, death and apostasy, yet some of them have been filled by conversions to the faith, so that a strong, well disciplined, efficient church, looking for the speedy personal advent of Christ still remains.

They still enjoy the faithful watch-care and pastoral labor of Bro. N. Wheeler, which has proved, under Christ, a great blessing to this people. They previously enjoyed the care and labor of Bro. I. H. Shipman for more than twenty years, which was also a great source of prosperity and blessing.

Bro. E. A. Stockman's recent visit and labors in this place were evidently productive of much good to the church and people.

We have enjoyed the meetings of worship very much, especially the social meetings. The brethren and sisters are trained to all take part in the worship, which gives from thirty to seventy-five exhortations in a meeting.

One of the greatest advantages enjoyed in these meetings is that none are so lengthy in their prayers and exhortations that all cannot have an opportunity to share in the exercises. We believe there is nothing so injurious to the spiritual interests of a meeting as to have a few monopolize the time, and crowd out the more weak and timid ones from doing their duty. It is unwise and unjust, and yet it is one of the most common faults in our meetings. We do hope all who are in the habit of talking long in meetings will take this to themselves, for we mean you.

To the praise of God we will say we have enjoyed a most sweet and refreshing rest again at the home and with the truly christian family of Bro. C. B. Parker. We have found many happy pilgrim homes in our journeyings, but never one where we found more gospel peace and undisturbed quiet than at Bro. Parker's. May the blessings of Christ's salvation rest abundantly upon them and all the true Israel, that we may have our hearts set upon the heavenly Eden home, and press with restless longings to the bright portal, and enjoy the eternal rest promised to the people of God.

WHITEFIELD CONFERENCE.

The Quarterly Conference, holden at Whitefield, N. H., commencing June 15th, was a very good meeting. There was a good representation of preachers present, among whom there seemed to be christian fellowship and harmony. All seemed to realize that we are occupying a period crowded with grand events, many of them prophetically ominous of a mighty change—a world-wide revolution. All felt impressed with the idea that God had called us as a people to do a specific work, to preach the gospel of the kingdom as a witness to all nations. A most responsible and solemn duty. The last finishing probationary work of the church, which needs great care and heavenly wisdom, that it may be successful in faithfully warning all, and saving as many of the perishing as possible—plucking their fellow-men as brands from the burning.

If God has called us to do such a work, and to take such a position before the world, the first leadings of the Spirit and providential openings which gave us a marked prophetic position in the religious world is the correct one to occupy, and should be kept and defended at all hazards until the Judge shall appear. If we find proof that we have not been called of God to do such a work, let us, like an honest and honorable people, confess our great mistake, and give up the prophetic position at once, and no longer claim to have been called of God to take such a stand or do such a work.

But, as we cannot honestly make such a confession, let us not cowardly and dishonorably give up the faith, little by little, and so strike hands with those from whom we had to part to do the work we understood God had called us to do.

When we came with a fresh unction from the sanctuary, commissioned of Christ to proclaim the last solemn message of his gospel to all the nations, we were ejected from the communion of our endeared christian brethren for no other reason than because we felt conscientiously bound, by sacred covenant with God, to take this prophetic position. As long as the principles remain the same which produced the separation, there can be no real union until one of the party yields its position. We most earnestly and devoutly pray for true christian union with all of Christ's followers; but we cannot see if we followed Christ by accepting this special faith, and our brethren who did not accept it broke this union by rejecting us because we thus followed Christ, how God calls us to unite with them, not in our position, but theirs; for they have not changed, but say they will unite with us if we will give up our sectarianism; that is, cease to make prominent this special faith.

The New Hampshire Conference, which has the largest ministerial membership of any Advent Conference on the continent, is a unit upon these grave questions, and stands firmly in the original position, contending that it should be maintained with the spirit of love and kindness to all, but with firmness and unyielding loyalty to Christ.

The meetings at W. were well attended, and the Word preached was received with gladness by the faithful and with conviction by the unsaved. The church has suffered for the last few months for pastoral watch-care and labor, but is standing firmly in the truth, and waiting with earnest longings for the glorious morning of Christ's appearing.

We had the privilege of attending this session one day, and enjoyed the greetings of old and tried friends, the smiles of familiar faces, in our native State, with great pleasure.

May God abundantly bless and defend the cause of truth in the old Granite State, is the prayer of her unworthy son.

OUR NATIONAL CAMPMEETING.

It is now only about a month to our great national campmeeting, at Springfield, Mass. Let much prayer be offered, that it may surpass all others in its glorious results. Let us assemble there this year for no other object but to glorify God in efforts to lead sinners to Christ, and persuade as many as possible to be ready for his coming. Let us meet together to worship God "in the beauty of holiness." Let every one decide to come fully up to the Bible standard of christian character. Let us not be contented with any half-way work. Let our motto be, "All for Jesus." It is right and noble to devote our whole being to his service, who has done so much for us, and has promised to do infinitely more, if we will be faithful to his cause. The more completely we submit to do his will, the easier we can get along, the sweeter and deeper our peace, and the brighter the hope of the future. It is our privilege to live free from doubts and fears, and to be filled continually with perfect love and peace.

It is purposed to hold special meetings again in the "Tabernacle," for the promotion of holiness. During the last four years, these meetings have been seasons of unusual interest and profit, but we hope that this year they will surpass all others. Let those interested, pray much that many hearts may be filled with the Holy Spirit at the Springfield meeting.

SIN.

Is sin an eternal necessity? What is the answer of the reader? Do not go any further till this question is fairly settled in the mind. Stop and think with cool candor. Say, do you believe sin is to be an eternal necessity? It is admitted by the ablest writers, and by the instinctive common sense of all, that sin is not a necessity. A necessity is not a criminality. A necessity may be a calamity, but not a crime. All men inherit more or less of the natures of their parents, and sometimes their rum and tobacco appetites; but they have no ground to ask pardon for inheriting an Adamic nature, or a bad appetite, more than for having two eyes. There can be no blame attached to the child for being born blind, or with strong passions. It may be considered a calamity, but a calamity is not a criminality, unless it is occasioned by our own carelessness or neglect. When there is a remedy offered for the calamity, and it is rejected, then the further continuance of the calamity may become criminal, but not before. If one has inherited a disease from his parents, it is a calamity. But if a free remedy is offered, and refused, he alone is responsible after the refusal for the continuance of the disease; and so far as his usefulness, happiness, and ability to provide for himself and family are hindered by the disease, so far he is criminal, when he has rejected the remedy. When man was made he was endowed with the power of choice, and of obeying or disobeying right laws. This was and is his inalienable right; otherwise he would not be a moral, or accountable being, worthy of reward or punishment.

Before the creation of man, it appears from the Scriptures, provision was made, prospectively, to deliver man from sin, in case he should be led to disobey his Creator. Just as in the army, surgeons are sent out so that in case any should be wounded, their wounds may be properly dressed. So Christ was in the plan of salvation, prospectively, before man was created; so that a remedy, through faith in his blood, was immediately ready as soon as man had sinned. For this reason no one needs to continue in sin five minutes. The pardon is as ready the moment of the sin as ever, provided the sinner asks at once with a penitent heart, and turns away from his sin. It is his own fault, if he allows sin to remain upon him, because a complete remedy is freely offered; hence sin ceases to be a necessity after the remedy can be obtained. But man was made with power sufficient to resist all temptation; therefore the first sin was not a necessity, neither the second, nor any other succeeding ones committed by mankind. The fact that the crime might have been avoided is the reason why it is a sin. We come now to the question at the head of this article—

"Is sin an eternal necessity?" In order to have an affirmative answer to this inquiry proper, man must be placed where he cannot avoid sinning, with no possibilty of pardon, or death. If he should be allowed to die, he would cease to sin. Would it be right to place man in such a terrible condition, and then punish him for his continued sinning? Does the Bible teach such a horrid doctrine? Nay, verily. But it is taught in popular theology. If it be asked in what way? we answer, it is well known that it teaches that the wicked will live eternally, because they are of necessity immortal; and as they will continue eternally opposed to God, they must continue sinning eternally; and as there can be no pardon for them, it follows that sin would thus become an eternal necessity. But if it is a necessity, it ceases to be a crime; therefore they should be excused and released from such an awful condition.

It is admitted that in this world sin is not a necessity, and that future punishment is for voluntary sinning during the present life; and yet it is taught that the eternity of the torment is because the person continues to sin eternally. We ask again, is it right to place a man in a condition where he cannot help sinning, and then punish him for what he cannot possibly avoid? It is too bad to impute such a character to our heavenly Father, and thus cause men to hate him and his blessed word.

The Bible teaches most plainly that all the wicked will be "destroyed," and thus sin will be "finished," and all that live eternally will be in harmony with the Most High and his dear Son, our Savior. "Sin when it is finished bringeth forth death." James 1: 15.

Thank the Lord, the time is coming when there will not be a living sinner in all the world. Only the saints are to live eternally. Hence we come to the positive conclusion, if we adhere to the Sacred Scriptures, that sin is not to be an eternal necessity.

FERNWOOD CAMPMEETING.

It was our privilege to attend the National Campmeeting at Fernwood, N. J., for the promotion of Christian holiness. It began June 23d, and ended the first of July. Fernwood is about five miles from Philadelphia. There were about one hundred and forty tents on the ground, besides the great Tabernacle. The meetings were excellent, and held at 5½, 8, and 10½ A. M., 1½, 3, 6, and 7½ P. M. There was nothing of the pic-nic character about this campmeeting, which is becoming so common in many of the ordinary campmeetings at the present day. Every thing was made to bend to the work of advancing the interests of the devotional element of the meetings. From half-past five in the morning till ten at night, very little recess was given between the meetings, except barely enough for meals. It is not common to find men so enthusiastically in earnest in religious matters, as are those who conduct the National Campmeetings for the promotion of holiness. If these are not true christian men, we should not know where to find them. Some of their preaching is rarely equaled in depth of thought, strength of logic, earnestness, devotion, and pointed application of the word of the Lord against the sins in the church and the world. The fashionable religion of the day, dressed in costly apparel, and decked with gold and pearls, finds no quarters in these meetings. The holy women, who take an active part in these meetings, are dressed in modest apparel. We frequently looked over the congregations without seeing a single woman professing to be a christian, who wore any jewelry, or other unchristian ornament. Yet many of these were women of marked intelligence, capable of filling almost any position proper for a woman to occupy. They dress, talk, and appear as women should who believe in the teachings of Christ and the apostles. It is truly a rich feast to enjoy meetings where such people are devoting their best energies to lead people to Christ.

We find the belief that we are near the coming of Christ is being entertained by strong men and women who are connected with the movement on holiness. We were invited to preach in Philadelphia, in a Baptist church, whose pastor is an eminent minister of Christ, enjoying the gift of perfect love, who believes Jesus is coming soon, and has been giving a series of sermons on the subject. He requested us to speak on the evidences which show our Savior will soon appear. We had a precious visit with him, in talking about the blessed hope. Many other men in the different denominations in Europe and America, are occupying similar positions, and the number is steadily increasing.

When in New York, we met one who has occupied a prominent position in the holiness conventions. During the past year he has been giving more than usual attention to the evidences of Christ's immediate coming. He greeted us most cordially, and remarked that the expectation of seeing Jesus soon had a very salutary effect upon his mind. It produced a healthy stimulus to his devotions and labors in the christian life. He could truly say he loved the appearing of Jesus. This brother was a Presbyterian. At the same time we met an able Baptist minister, who is a well-known editor, conducting a superior weekly for a portion of the Baptist denomination, and who has taken a prominent part in the holiness meetings. When speaking of the coming of Christ, he remarked that he should be rejoiced to have Jesus come at once.

When in Brooklyn, N. Y., we had a very pleasant visit with an eminent Methodist minister, who also believes we are living near the coming of Jesus. By invitation, we preached to his congregation, July 4th, and received an invitation to give a course of lectures in his church on the prophecies and signs of the times, as soon as the warm weather is passed. He, too, is deeply interested in the movement on holiness, and is preparing an able work on the subject. At 3 P. M., July 4th, some of the members of this Bro's church had a meeting in Leffert's Park, when we spoke to some twenty-five hundred people, who listened attentively. It was an occasion of more than ordinary interest.

Strong men are rising up in all directions, to help in the defense of the great truths, for the belief and advocation of which, our Brn. have been called many hard names, and been shunned in church and society; but, dear Brn., we can well afford to bear reproach for the truth's sake, and for Christ's sake. Do not be in the least discouraged, or ashamed, but press the battle with renewed zeal and courage. We believe without a doubt the great truths we have been publishing for the last twenty-five years. We believe they are sustained by the harmonious teaching of the Sacred Scriptures, and have only to be carefully and prayerfully examined, without prejudice, to be clearly seen and accepted.
M. G.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

We purpose to have an Agent in attendance at the various Campmeetings to be held in the New England States this season, to receive sums due on the Crisis and Pilgrim.

We hope our subscribers will make it a point to pay at the meetings, as it will be more convenient for them to do so than to send by mail, and less expensive for us than to send an Agent to the homes of our patrons.
AGENT.

MONTPELIER, VT.

We had the privilege of attending the Tent meeting, recently held at the capital of the beautiful Green Mountain State. The meeting commenced under unfavorable circumstances, and was rather thinly attended, until the last part, when good congregations were in attendance. God's servants present seemed to feel that if Christ was honored and sinners were saved, it would be accomplished by earnest prayer and faithful labor. God evidently heard their importunate supplications, and opened the heavenly window and gave his people signal blessings. The church was revived and greatly strengthened, backsliders were reclaimed, sinners were convicted, and we trust some of them were assisted to find grace to secure eternal life.

Tent meetings, when conducted wisely with good efficient labor, generally result in much good. Every thing should be done very soberly and carefully, so as to prevent levity and carelessness, to which they are more subject than meetings in houses. We attended this meeting two days.
J. C.

THE CAUSE OF HOLINESS ADVANCING.

One of the most sure signs of the near approach of the last days is the rapidity with which the holiness movement is spreading among nearly all denominations. Not only are books written with this end in view, but numbers of monthly, and some weekly papers are devoted to it as a specialty, and weekly meetings by scores and yearly conventions add to the momentum of the tide. But up to a late period, one department of the subject has been largely overlooked. We refer to purity of body. Much has been said and written about dispositions, tempers, ambitions, etc., but little reference has been made to physical appetites and lusts, which most profoundly affect religious life, and are ofttimes the real battle-ground between sin and holiness.

We are therefore glad to call attention to the series of works by Bro. S. H. Platt, of a more special character than most of the literature on this subject.

"THE POWER OF GRACE" over appetites, habits, etc., is just what its title imports,—an exhibition of the ability of grace to conquer these things; not by a long and toilsome struggle, but instantaneously, and so COMPLETELY, THAT NOT A CRAVING FOR THE OLD INDULGENCE SHALL BE FELT.

"PRINCELY MANHOOD" is an application, with wonderful and triumphant experimental illustrations, of the same truth, as related to the sexual nature particularly. There is no temptation more common, or more deadening to christian life, than that to the gratification, in some form, of lascivious thoughts, or lustful propensities. The church is poisoned to the core by it; and those most familiar with society have almost lost faith in the sexual purity of even ministers of the gospel. Had the teachings of "Princely Manhood" been heeded, much of the reproach now resting upon professors of religion never would have existed. This book strikes at the root, and begins with the first exposures of childhood to self-abuse; nay, before that, it demands that parents shall transmit to their children the safe inheritance of an unlustful temperament.

What "PRINCELY MANHOOD" does for men and boys, "QUEENLY WOMANHOOD" proposes to do for women and girls. It is an adaptation of the same matter in the main, to the female sex, with such additions as are deemed to be of importance. Many books have been published upon the sexual relations, but these stand alone in their treatment of the subject from the stand-point of practical holiness. We urge our readers, whether reading the books for themselves or not, that they may receive the impressions of the almighty helpfulness of grace, which they cannot fail to make, to procure them, and thus prepare themselves to aid those who do need help, and without it are in peril.

The publishers, S. Harrison & Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., have issued "THE WHISPERS OF PEACE"—a beautiful collection of choice religious gems—which they send FREE upon the receipt of a postal card giving the address.

THE TRACT FUND.

THE ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY, at a meeting on Springfield camp-ground, August 13th, 1874, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

NOTES BY THE WAY IN N. C.

TO THE A. A. M. SOCIETY.

Dear Brethren:—My last left me at Colletsville, N. C., Sunday morning, June 13th. Bro. R. H. Moody had told me I could not speak in the Baptist church, unless he was present to let me in; but having learned that he was not a church officer but only a member, the brethren of his own church in his absence opened the door and invited me in. Bro. Powell is the regular pastor.

We had an audience of about six hundred, so said. At 11 A. M. I spoke from Dan. 2: 44. The large crowd listened with almost breathless silence, and thus showed their eagerness to hear our views. Bro. Bowman preached in this same (Rocky Spring) church, two years ago. I spoke again in the afternoon. Sunday night spent the time with Bro. Henry Coffee and family. Had a pleasant time with his aged mother-in-law, who seems to love Jesus dearly. Monday spoke in a school-room jammed full. The people requested us to speak again in the afternoon,. We did so, and at night a crowd came where we were stopping, and we preached again. My lungs were almost worn out.

Tuesday, Bro. Goodwin and Bro. Patterson Coffey came with a hack and took me to the beautiful village of Lenoir. I spoke to a few on short notice at 4 o'clock P. M. in the Court House. Left an appointment for seven, but a stranger came forward, being a physician, and said I must not, for I was too nearly exhausted. The people were then notified to meet next day at 3 P. M. I then went with Bro. W. M. Puett, who with his christian wife made us feel at home. Wednesday, audience small. Went with Bro. James Healan, a Methodist minister, who treated us kindly. The regular clergy in this town gave us no countenance. I learned that they feared, if they should, that some of their flock might be encouraged to believe the heresy.

We closed our meetings here on Thursday night. Spoke to a fair crowd, from the words—"If a man die, shall he live again?" Job 14: 14. Stopped with Bro. Spainhour, who with his good motherly wife made us feel at home. In this village of Lenoir are several churches, none of which we were invited to occupy. This is the first village where we were not invited to occupy a church since we left De View, Ark. I fear that a great deal of the religion among the dignitaries consists only in Churchanity instead of a pure Christianity. We feel sure that men full of the Holy Ghost, who preach for salvation instead of "bread and butter," have hearts filled with love instead of selfishness.

I have determined, the Lord willing, to pitch a tent in this town, in which I can invite God's children of every denomination to come in and worship with me and call on sinners to prepare for the coming kingdom.

This (Saturday) morning, June 19th, I feel some better, thank the Lord. Last night I stayed with Bro. and Sr. P. Coffey, of the Baptist church. They love the truth, and Bro. C. is very earnestly investigating, like the noble Bereans, to see whether these things are so. Dear Brn. and Srs., pray for me and my family in Ala. The battle is hard, and tribulations and privations are all around us on every hand; but when the Master comes he will adjust all these things and give us joy for heaviness. I feel that he is soon coming, and will find but little genuine "faith on the earth." May God keep us unto the day of his coming, is the prayer of your Bro. in hope of eternal life,
JOHN A. CARGILE.
Mulberry, N. C., June 19th, 1875.

OUR LABORS.

To the Brn. and Srs. scattered abroad:—We have felt for some time past that a brief account of our labors might be both profitable and interesting to the church at large.

We came to this place five years ago last spring, and every year has witnessed accessions to our church, and during our sojourn here more than fifty persons have professed faith in Christ and united with us in christian fellowship and church order. But it has pleased the Lord to suffer our people to become scattered to a considerable extent, many of our most influential members having removed to other States; but we have reason to believe that it is all in the order of the Lord, as they are letting their light shine, and many are becoming very much interested in the truths of the Bible concerning the coming of the Lord and destiny of man.

But notwithstanding so many have moved away, our congregations were never so large as they are at the present time, and never more interesting; and we do not know of a single individual that has united with us, and afterward renewed his faith, although some have grown cold.

During the last eight months we have labored only half the time with the church in this place, and have been laboring in new fields and other places as the Lord has opened the way before us; and the result has been that we have been called to preach in five counties in this State, and quite an interest has been awakened, and still the cry is, "Come over and help us."

We believe there was never such an opportunity to reach the people and spread the truth as at the present time. Very many have become sick of the hollow-hearted theology and religion of a great many professors, and are crying out for a pure religion, and a theology that will abide the coming of the Lord. We need men of God, consecrated in heart and life; men who love the work more than the wages.

We are nearing the end of all earthly things, and what work and sacrifices we do and make must be made quickly. Never did the budding fig tree proclaim with more certainty that summer was nigh, than events that are now transpiring proclaim the coming of Jesus and the resurrection.

May the Lord help us to be ready.
E. MCCULLOCH.

OUTSET MUSINGS.

H. F. CARPENTER.

The signal is given, the cars are moving. Am I really going, going far away? Many times before have I been seated with my family in the cars, and felt the speedy chariots moving off with us; but are they now really bearing us to a distant coast? or are we dreaming? Am I really bidding adieu to the land of my birth, my childhood, my manhood, my espousal to Christ, my calling to the gospel work? Am I saying farewell to those fields of holy toil, where the blessings of God have made my heart leap and swell with joys celestial as I tried to tell the glad tidings of redemption through Jesus and his blood? Have I left the green vales and towering hills, ever grand and beautiful, of old Vermont, where for ten years past my heart's warmest sympathies have been enlisted in winning souls for Jesus, and in comforting and strengthening God's dear ones? My heart has had the joy of seeing churches rise up, conferences formed, missions established, and a blessed campmeeting in successful operation; and am I now, dearly beloved Vermont, bidding you adieu?

Have I said a long farewell to my dearly beloved fellow-laborer, Bro. A. A. Hoyt? How happily and blessedly we have wrought together in the Lord while God gave us souls! Have our labors together ceased forever? Those many tried and faithful brethren and sisters, those God-given friends so kind, so true, these long years of waiting, shall I see them no more? Their ministries of love we never can forget, but when shall we greet one another again?

That aged father, too, when will he press again the hand of his child? Will his bowed form go down to dust before I shall kiss again that furrowed cheek? How hard to part just now with the youngest son, all wasted for the grave, and only one child near by when I am gone to watch his failing years. Have I really gone? Have I gone forever from the bedside of my dying brother? Have I smoothed that wearied head, and pressed that fevered hand for the last time? Were those convulsive sobs, which saddened and pained the "good bye," our earthly parting? Must that dearest of brothers die, and I be far away and follow not to his quiet resting-place in the green, leafy cemetery? Is all this a dream? No, no; the despatched freight, the well-packed trunks, the full lunch baskets, the purchased tickets, the moving train, all declare it a reality. It is no longer newspaper talk we are en route for the Pacific coast.

But why, with so much forsaken; why, in spite of sad words and tearful eyes, is the heart so calm, so peaceful, so at rest? It is because He, who is more to the heart than native clime or beautified vale, more than the dearest and most beloved of friends, more than father or brother, more than the heart's choicest wish or anticipation, is speaking to us in whisperings that reach down to the depths of the soul, saying, "I," "I," "I am with you." With such a guest who could not be peaceful, and hopeful, too? With such a guest who could not forsake all and go the world around,—go to strangers, to strange trials and unknown labors; go to friends yet unproved and to many yet unmade? So we go, cheerfully singing—and we go forth in peace. May similar peace bless all the beloved in the Lord.

"Lord, I'm trusting still in thee,"

On the cars, June, 1875.

LOOKING FOR JESUS.

Dear Brethren:—The soon coming of the Son of man is a theme of deep interest to me; also, a preparation for that glorious event. Thoughts have impressed my mind relating to that subject,—Holiness, Sanctification, or a complete consecration. The entire separation from the world, its fashions and maxims, is necessary for a preparation for translation to meet the Lord when he comes. I have always supposed this the reason why the Lord gave us in his word the signs of his coming and the end of the world, so that man in full health and vigor might have full, complete readiness, by a death to the world, and a life unto God. Thus the importance of the signs; must they not be recognized in order for the preparation?

In other words, will a man prepare for what he is not expecting? A man has a promissory note on demand, but not knowing when it will be wanted, he will not keep himself in constant readiness to pay the demand, but will suppose a little time will be allowed him to pay it. But if a man is apprised the money will be soon wanted, and when called for it must be had, then he would keep himself in constant readiness. So, seeking a preparation implies the necessity of his believing the signs of Jesus' near approach. Then loving and expecting his coming Savior, he would be likely to make due preparation for the desired interview. This seems so to me.

There would be no getting ready for Christ's coming by those who did not expect him. Those who have the "hope" do "purify" themselves "even as he is pure." Then there is a stern necessity for all to have this hope that purifies and makes one like Jesus.

"Seeing ye have purified your souls by obeying the truth."

So if we are in that time when in the economy of God he has tabled by the inspired penman the signs of his speedy approach, there is a special reason for it. And I think it is that the eye of the church and world might be called, for their special benefit, to the blessed, thrice glorious event of the coming King, that all may be ready to hail him Lord of all.

Let us who have for years been looking to the signs, hold fast and hold out; they will bring our desired Redeemer, and redemption. Our interest in these soul-stirring, truthful declarations, which will result in the salvation of those who fully believe them, should be made manifest in our efforts to impress them upon others, in love, everywhere. L. BOUTELL.

THE PENN. MISSION TENT.

What is it doing? may be asked by some. I answer, nothing. Why not? The general answer to me is, hard times, not able to support a meeting and pay the expenses. I have offered it to the Southern N. Y. and Northern Penn. Conference, also to the Ohio Conference, for one third its cost. Word came after a while that they could not get any body to take hold and run it. A few have thought that it ought not to be sold, out of the State, etc.; yet nine-tenths have said sell it, and use the means to help myself in preaching the word.

Now, brethren and sisters, what shall be done in the matter? Who wants meetings? or who wants the tent? It is nearly as good as most new tents, forty by sixty feet large. I have also a lot of bills for tent meeting notices, cost 50 cts. per hundred; also quite a lot of "The Primitive Christian Faith," and "The Tree of Life"; retail price 20 cts. I will sell them for $1.50 per dozen, to get something to help support my family. Who wants some to scatter? I shall be glad to hear from any of the friends in relation to the above. Direct—JOHN T. ONGLEY, Lincolnville, Crawford Co., Pa.

Correspondence.

From Bro. M. W. Cate.

Dear Brn. Editors:—Permit me to say, through the columns of your much loved paper, to the brotherhood of like precious faith, that we of Western Missouri have been visited by a dreadful scourge. The fact is, we are in the midst of a famine.

Last year our crops were almost a total failure, by reason of drouth, chintz-bugs, and grasshoppers. By spring nearly all the provision and feed in the country was exhausted, and thousands of cattle died. This spring all tried their best to realize something to eat as early as possible from their gardens, but in this they were sadly disappointed; for untold millions of grasshoppers, hatching from the earth, soon commenced an indiscriminate destruction of nearly every species of vegetation, grass, gardens, field crops, fruit, and even the leaves, and not unfrequently the bark of the fruit trees; and after repeated plantings, the first of June found the farmers without a garden, without a standing crop, and in very many instances without food, feed or seed, and none of their neighbors had any to spare.

Man's extremity is God's opportunity. The grasshoppers have left us. The good Lord has stirred the heart of the benevolent in our behalf; seed and food have been sent from St. Louis, and other points. He has sent us rain in abundance. Nearly every tillable acre is now in crop or being planted, and faces, but a little while ago so sad, begin to look hopeful.

But now the important question comes up, What are we to subsist upon until the crop just planted matures? The provisions donated are nearly all exhausted, and many are nearly or entirely destitute, and have no means to purchase more.

I dislike to lay this case of want before you, there are so many calls on the benevolent. But I feel it a duty, as this is a case of imperative necessity; for, unless the people receive aid from abroad, some must starve to death.

Any that have a surplus of this world's good, and will send to this suffering people some relief, will be held in grateful remembrance, and receive the blessing of a merciful God. Anything for the suffering sent to the writer will be scrupulously appropriated to the most needy. Remember, we can get no breadstuff from the field before Sept.

My address is Hudson, Bates Co., Mo. Railroad Depot, Appleton City, Mo. Appleton City P. O. is a money order office. Money is the handiest, as flour is only $2.50 to $3.00 per cwt.

Dear Brn., it looks as though the time of trouble, such as never was, of which Daniel the prophet speaks, was not far in the distance. May we see to it that we are also ready when the Master comes. Yours looking for that blessed hope, W. W. CATE.

Hudson, Bates Co., Mo., June 28th.

From Sr. M. L. Moulton.

Dear Brn. and Srs.:—I feel to praise my dear heavenly Father for what he has done for poor unworthy me. How much we owe to him. I am really glad in my heart that the light from God's prophetic word ever shone upon my pathway, telling me that Jesus, who is our Life-giver, is very soon coming back to this earth, to set up his kingdom under the whole heavens. Then there will be no sorrow. It will be all joy and peace. It is blessed to know that we have such a hope of meeting our loved ones now sleeping in their silent graves; that they will be raised to life and immortality, to die no more. I feel just like putting my whole trust in the Lord, and being a faithful child. I am willing to do what little the Lord has for me to do in his cause. I can truly say,

"My all to Christ I've given,
My talent, time, and voice;
Myself, my reputation;
The lone way is my choice."

I feel that time is short that we have to work, and what we do must be done quickly. Let us live near to God, who has redeemed us by the precious blood of his dear Son. We may rejoice that we have been kept by the power of God and saved from sin by faith in the redemption that is in Christ our Lord.

Obituaries.

PERRIN. In West Woodstock, Ct., May 10th, Sr. Lydia J. Perrin, aged eighty-seven years.

Sr. P. united with the M. E. Church forty-seven years ago. She has truly adorned her profession of religion with a holy life and godly conversation. She was truly an example to the believers in faith, in purity, and in patience. About seven years ago she embraced the doctrine of the second personal coming of Christ to raise the dead and establish his everlasting kingdom on the renewed earth. She united with the Advent church at Woodstock Valley, Ct., of which she was a most worthy member at the time of her death. She often expressed a desire to live till Jesus comes, but death has done its work, and she now sleeps in Jesus. But we expect she will have a glorious waking up in the morning, when the last enemy (death) shall have been conquered. Funeral sermon by the writer, from Num. 23: 10.

FOREIGN NEWS.

LONDON, July 8. A letter from Buda says of the effects of the recent storms in that vicinity, the bodies of twenty-eight persons have been found and over one hundred people are missing. The destruction of property on the mountain slopes was fearful. None of the villas on the upper ground entirely escaped. Hundreds are destitute and houseless. Subscriptions have been opened and generally responded to.

In the House of Commons, this afternoon, the Hon. Mr. Disraeli stated that the cost of the Prince of Wales proposed visit to India, next week, is estimated as follows: Expenses out, £52,000; expenses while in India, £30,000; personal expenses and presents to potentates with whom he may come in contact, £60,000, making a total of £142,000 sterling. Mr. MacDonald and other members on the radical side protested against the proposed allowance as extravagant and excessive, and declared that the visit could be made on a more reasonable sum with dignity, and less expense to the nation at large.

During a revival meeting held by Messrs. Sankey and Moody in Camberwell Hall, to-night, a panic occurred, resulting in the death or injury of a number of persons. The hall was densely packed and several hundred people crowded the street in front of the building, endeavoring to gain admission. The crush was so great and the crowd so turbulent that the people became panic stricken, and an effort was made to clear the building. The pressure from the crowd outside, however, prevented any egress, and during the excitement many of the audience were knocked down and trampled upon. Several were killed and many seriously injured.

FRANCE.

PARIS, July 8. Severe storms have visited the northwestern part of Normandy, causing great loss of property and damage to crops. The town of Lisieux, in the Department of Calvados, is inundated and many buildings destroyed. The waters are now subsiding.

SWITZERLAND.

BERNE, July 8. A fearful storm visited the Swiss canton of Geneva and the French frontier, accompanied with hail stones of immense size. The glass in all the windows in the district where the storm raged was demolished and many persons were killed and injured.

In Brief.

— The insanity of Robert Dale Owen is attributed almost wholly to his grief over the exposure of the "Kate King" fraud, in which he had reposed the most implicit confidence as a genuine manifestation.

— It is anticipated that the hay crop will be very materially short this year. Just about how much the deficiency will be cannot yet be estimated. The Hartford Times estimates for Connecticut about two-thirds of an average. The value of an average crop is from $12,000,000 to 15,000,000, so that the loss to the State will be from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000.

— During a heavy thunder shower which passed over the south part of Alton on Tuesday evening, the lightning struck the house of Mrs. Stephen Philbrick. It entered at one end, passed between Mrs. P. and her son into the pantry, where it got into the coffee pot, piercing holes in the top and bottom, jarred a dipper into a tin water pail and soldered them firmly together. The cat was singed as smoothly as though she had been clipped, without otherwise injuring her. Mrs. Philbrick was so badly shocked that she was unable to see the next morning.

AN APPEAL.

The season has now arrived when the special work of holding Tent Meetings should be begun. The Mass. Conference has a good Tent ready again for service in the harvest field of the Lord; and the question is: Shall it be sent forth once more with good and faithful laborers to gather in sheaves for Christ, and give the warning of the coming day of God? In order that this may be done, there must be a sacrifice made by the friends of Jesus, and means given to sustain in this way his precious cause.

It is proposed that the Tent this year be taken into new fields, and where our precious faith has not as yet been heard. If this is done, there will be a special necessity for contributions on the part of our churches and people in general, to defray the expenses of these meetings in these new places.

As the Committee, chosen at the late Conference to have the charge of the Tent and make arrangements for the work in connection with it, we invite all who have the means and the heart to give in sustaining this mode of reaching the people, to do so as soon as they can, that we may know how far to go in promising the Tent where it is already requested.

Contributions and pledges can be sent to the Treasurer, ELD. C. GOODRICH, Boston, Mass.

B. YOUNG, L. BOUTELL, C. E. BARNES, I. I. LESLIE, Protracted Meeting and Tent Committee.

Notice.

The members of the Mass. Second Advent Christian Conference are requested to send to the Secretary their names and address, that each may receive a certificate of membership, according to a vote of the Conference.

I. I. LESLIE, Sec., Box 5140 Boston, Mass.

Tremont Campmeeting.

The Annual Campmeeting at Tremont, Mass., will commence Monday, July 19th, and continue to the 28th. Arrangements will be made to supply all with board and lodging. All who can are requested to bring Tents.

Brethren in the Lord, do make arrangements to attend this meeting, especially all who reside in the southerly part of this State. Come at the commencement, if possible. We intend to secure good profitable laborers, those who are prepared to bring out an exposition of those prophecies especially applicable to these times, and now in process of fulfillment, when the church will be delivered. This may be the last annual gathering we shall be permitted to enjoy before the Lord will gather his own to himself. Let us do what we can to save the perishing before it is too late. Bro. Munger will have charge of the meeting.

HENRY V. DAVIS, for the Committee.

We have plenty of tent room to accommodate all. H. B. SEVEY.

NOTICE.—We purpose holding religious services each pleasant Sunday, during the summer, in Chatfield's grove, Wolcottville, Ct., which, through the kindness of the owner, Mr. Chatfield, has been fitted up expressly for these meetings. When the weather is unfavorable for the out-of-door meetings, we shall worship, as heretofore, in the Town Hall. Messrs. Austin & Ladd's band wagon will leave Granite Block for the grove at 10 o'clock A. M. and 12.45 P. M. Fare each way, 10 cents. Preaching by different brethren, as the Lord shall direct. A hearty welcome to all who love Jesus.

A. W. BRADFORD, for the brethren.

QUARTERLY MEETING.—There will be a quarterly meeting of the A. C. Quarterly Conference of N. W. Kansas held with the Advent Christian Church of Smith Grove, Lincoln Co., about four miles south from Battle Creek P. O., Lincoln Co., commencing Friday evening, Aug. 6th, and holding over Sunday, and longer if the interest shall demand. All the friends of Jesus are earnestly requested to be present, and help to advance the Master's cause. Lovers of the Lord, who are waiting for his return, let nothing keep you from this meeting. Pray for God's blessing to attend it, and come prepared to work for Jesus, and do, as well as receive, good.

THE NATIONAL UNION CONVENTION FOR HOLINESS will unite with the National Temperance Convention in its meeting at Sea Cliff, beginning July 13th, and also hold special consecration meetings from Wednesday, July 28th, to Monday, August 2d. All who want lumber for frames must write immediately to J. H. Downing, Alton Bay, N. H. Mr. Downing will furnish nails, windows, doors, butts, screws, etc., at Boston prices. H. K. CHOATE, BENJ. YOUNG, For Committee.

TENT FOR SALE.—As I have received no calls as yet for the tent, or tent meetings, I have concluded to let Mr. James Field, of Rochester, N. Y., the maker of the tent, have it, and dispose of it at its fair valuation. Therefore if anybody wants a second hand tent, it can be purchased of him, and he will see to overhauling it, and that it will be all ready for use; also a set of lamps can be had with it, and other fixtures. Those friends who aided me in getting the tent, when it is sold shall have returned to them their equal share after a dividend is made. Please write to me your request. Those wanting the tent, write to James Field, Rochester, N. Y.; on other matters relating to it write to me, at Lincolnville, Crawford Co., Pa. JOHN T. ONGLEY.

The great Map of History, twenty-two feet long, and about thirty inches wide. This valuable work, of which mention has been made in the Crisis, we now have a supply of, and will send to those who may order at the publisher's reduced price of $12.00 per copy, by express. We have them on rollers, and in book form, and can supply either way.

The best method of using the chart or map of history is to hang the frame on the wall of the room (the map being in the frame, of course), by the two hooks in the upper bar of the frame, high enough to stand, or sit, in front of it, and there examine or study it.

Students and beginners in history should occasionally look over the map in its entire length—drawn out on the wall, or tables, or on the carpet—until they are well acquainted with the entire outlines, plan and compass of the map, which embraces all history.

THE CHRISTIAN PILGRIM.

Lift up your heads, ye fainting souls,
And cast your fears behind;
The christian pilgrim should possess
A brave and active mind.

Be not dismayed though clouds appear,
Nor heed the falling rain;
Behind the haze are smiling skies,
The sun will shine again.

Should friendship fail and foes revile,
Let God avenge the wrong;
The darkest hour of sorrow's night
May end in joyous song.

There is an eye that sees afar,
An ear that hears your cry;
A hand to guide your steps at night,
When danger seemeth nigh.

Let unbelief no more have place
Within your anxious breast,
Lean hard upon His matchless arm,
And he will give you rest.

This world, with all its wealth and show,
May be compared to dross,
When placed beside the rich reward
That waits behind the cross.

Should God permit a crafty foe
To cast your spirit down,
He will not give to other hands
Your long-sought precious crown.

LETTER TO THE A. C. CONFERENCE AT MASTVILLE, N. Y.

Dear Brethren:—Instead of personal attendance on your session at Mastville, which duties and pre-occupations at or about home seem to render inconvenient, I send you a letter expressive of sympathy in the salutary work about which you are occupied, and which you are assembled to promote. It was represented to me that subjects of importance might be presented for examination, and that the situation of affairs as involving the interests of truth, and the welfare of churches and individuals attached to the great idea and expectation of the speedy second coming of Christ, was important and critical.

Errors in the inquest and discussion of a subject so vast and peculiar and interesting as the Advent of our divine Savior, need not perhaps justly be considered as surprising. Fallibility is certainly human. There is a very ancient adage, Humanum est errare—it is human to err; and yet, characteristic and inevitable as it must be, that misapprehensions and mistakes should arise, it cannot therefore logically be deduced that errors should be willingly repeated, or incautiously hazarded; or that, in misconceptions promulgated, there should be either credit, pleasure, or advantage. On the contrary, the conscientious mind can be but most painfully exercised in realizing the fact of a past instrumentality in the diffusion or championship of any interpretation or doctrine, which time has shown to be even partially incorrect. There is, indeed, a tendency which we cannot absolutely reprove, on the part of some, whose intellectual constitution and moral honesty render them both susceptible of sharp convictions, and earnest and zealous in their utterance, while, at the same time, these commendable qualities are not necessarily associated with perfectly clear perceptions, a sound understanding, and a high discretion.

In a time of reaction against widely prevalent faults, and of protest against the popular misinterpretation of Scripture, or against culpable and injurious silence on the great topic of a Messianic Second Advent—I say, in the time of such a reaction, it is impossible but mistakes should happen. By far the most urgent and characteristic, and, I fear, in some respects injurious and deplorable error, has related to the question of positive and definite time. It might be suggested that no one, who has experienced the pain and regret of a proved or believed inaccuracy of interpretation, should venture a remonstrance on the striking tendency to discussions, with attempted definitions and determinations of time. But an experience of the kind mentioned might constitute a qualification in part for some fraternal counsel. Who can tell, except he who has felt it, the painful and terrible humiliation of a consciousness of having even partially misinstructed his brethren? Who can understand the depth and power of that prostration before a God (howsoever full of pity), of an honest and devout mind, that deprecates with the most intense dread or regret the infliction of injury, by any act of misleading, arising from an overstrength of conviction on some point where silence might have been both more dignified and profitable than asseveration. I say, who can understand this? And why, then, should not a special estimate of value be set on discretion?

Ever since the origin of what is often denominated "the Advent movement," there has been a more or less frequent and powerful tendency to a designation of some set and special period, when the Second Advent not merely might but must occur. It may be very truly said that this peculiarity was simply the evolution and expression of honest and dominating conviction,—that it was the issue of a course of reasoning,—that it was the fruit of study and investigation. But the event has never yet in any instance verified the calculation. The whole series of predictions has been constantly marked by failure in this particular. And hence, in the retrospect, it is that pain and sorrow are engendered, when the aggregate of disappointments and disasters is surveyed, or the picture glides in panoramic vividness of miscalculations and miscarriages before the mind. How can it happen otherwise than that a sentiment of levity and contempt should be encouraged and strengthened among the ungodly, or that ridicule and reproach should find a powerful incentive, if not an actual justification, among those who love not the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ? Should not the ears of those who love that appearing, but who grieve at the dogmatic and erratic protestations of the special time-statisticians, tingle with the blood of intermingled sorrow and shame? The correction of tables and amendment of reckonings is a feature so familiar, that the merest allusion to it is sufficient. Will it be maintained that God ordained these errors of computation for some unseen or unknown good,—or even to verify the prediction of that scoffing which should be characteristic and perhaps diagnostic of the last times? He does indeed permit these errors to occur, but is his permission to be construed as an authorization? It seems to me, an interpreter, baffled in his scheme and defeated in his arithmetical and prophetic enterprise, however truly it might have been to him a labor of honor, or conscience, honesty and charity, would scarcely venture to allege the Divine endorsement of his action, with the instance or instances of his shortcoming vivid and afflicting in the view of himself and his brethren.

The fact is, it is one of the most singular features of this history, that any man, once involved in any such arithmetical and prophetic error of time, should ever allow himself to run the hazard of another discomfiture, by embarking in a new enterprise of interpretation of like character. One capital defeat, the natural result of defect in human knowledge and finite capacity, should seem properly to serve as an effectual restraint against indulgence in the same or similar ventures of prediction. One failure in this field of experiment, if such it should be called, would seem to include or entail a remedy against its occurrence. But if not, is there not some just occasion for lookers-on to stigmatize the apparent dogmatism in vaticinations of time as a species of mania? But there is that singular fact or feature in this matter,—call it a fascination or a fatality—enterprise or infatuation—a heavenly ardor or intellectual restlessness—enthusiasm or conceit—holy hoping and high-born faith, and possible ambition of knowledge or position not absolutely pure,—there is this feature, that the error repeats itself in spite of all the lessons and admonitions of past discomfiture. What is this peculiar trait of the human mind? How shall we attach to a fervent and noble longing for the appearing of Jesus infallibility of knowledge in assigning the date for its achievment? Does not the lesson of past inability discourage the repetition, and disprove the propriety of this positiveness? Look at the wreck of hopes—see the shattered fragments of expectation, which have marked the past. Far be it from me to speak otherwise than kindly and courteously, since I myself am so intensely conscious of fallibility and dependence.

There is, in all our inquiries and considerations on this subject, one evident fact worthy of attention: that there is this peculiar weakness and ever-recurring temptation of some minds, to suppose themselves specially favored and illuminated with Divine light. This is an infirmity of human nature, which God is able and I doubt not willing to forgive, when it is detected and repented of; but that it exists and is frequently developed, seems a fact indisputable in the sphere of observation. And when this idea or conceit becomes firmly rooted in the mind, it often proves difficult and nearly impossible of eradication. It is this imagination of what might be called favoritism with God, which constitutes the foundation for the supposed title to leadership in a new campaign of Advent horology. It is this, along with the honest belief in the necessary correctness of a course of careful reasoning and the value of thorough study, which again and again leads to a new embarkation of hope and fortune, interest, welfare, life, and everything, in a career of special preparation and special expectation in reference to a particular year, month, week, day, or even perhaps hour, for Messiah to come and claim his favorites thus seasonably warned and intensely looking for his coming.

We do not overlook for one moment the pure desire, the ardent longing, the entire consecration and devotion, of many at least who have thus unreservedly enlisted all in a scheme and campaign where specific time was the basis and inspiration, the life and strength, the origin and terminus of all their action or conduct. There may be not only an appearance, but an element of something like moral grandeur in the earnestness of believers in some instances, but there was after all, in every case heretofore, the harrowing if not heart-breaking feature of failure, and therefore necessarily incorrectness. The conclusion failed, therefore the reasoning was erroneous, in the particular respect (of course, we mean) of specific time.

Why, then, should this policy be still so pertinaciously pursued? Why should the venture be again and again renewed? Why should hopes be again and again raised, to be again and again disappointed and shattered? Why should men rise up and claim to be leaders and teachers, with authority, or inspiration, or intellectual acumen, or scriptural research, sufficient to justify a new claim to a new-following, in a new career, whereof positive and particular time is the glory and power, the foundation and strength, the beginning and fruition? Is it not most painfully evident that this more or less constantly recurring question is a fruitful agent of disastrous divisions, an element of discord, a prolific source of weakness, and, I might say, reproach? Is it not a cause of profound discouragement to very many brethren who cannot embark in these repeatedly recurring campaigns inaugurated by men, if honest, yet fallible? Is it of no consequence that churches are divided and broken? Is it a small matter that societies once flourishing and united have become reduced in numbers, weakened in resources, and almost paralyzed in action? Is it possible to see glory and beauty in the process of division and disintegration, or to suppose a special store of credit or honor in reserve for the dividers? Has not division proceeded hitherto sufficiently far, and reduction advanced, until at last it has threatened almost to culminate in something like a reductio ad absurdum? What a spectacle of denominational separatism throughout all nominal Christendom; and when a body, weak and few at the best, is still further and further reduced and divided, is it any wonder that hope and courage and enthusiasm should be put to their tension among those who love the Lord and his appearing?

And again, when some new failure of some new proposition or prophecy of the Advent has led some estimable brethren into some peculiar and unscriptural entanglement, some hypothesis of a resurrection already past,—for example, like that which the apostle himself lamented and reproved in his day—how can it be otherwise than that there should be superinduced both astonishment and regret at this expedient seized for escape from a dilemma, or refuge sought as a balm for a spirit wounded or sore from unrealized hope?

Brethren, let us beware of all the dangers of the way. They are many, and it may be, increasing. We need to be argus-eyed and hundred-handed, clothed and armed, watchful and wise. How great a virtue is discretion! If we ourselves err, some of us can say, no doubt—O, how true and profound is our sorrow and pain, to have ever in one least degree, or in one smallest particular, misled another! Who can not point to some folly or some vagary,—some error, which perhaps in almost an excess of self-reproach he imagines to have bordered on madness; not necessarily in the prophetic or interpretative field, but in a hundred or a thousand incidents and experiences of common life?

And in this view, the greater appears the marvel of that singular obliviousness, by which any person once overtaken in an interpretative mistake, should almost straightway rush into the same arena, and grapple anew with the hitherto insoluble problem of positive and definite time, to renew the exhibition of human infirmity, and, might I even venture to say, presumption? We should naturally look for that noble and becoming modesty that should restrain the explorer in this field from sudden declarations of achievment and correctness, when he is just fresh from an experiment of disaster and discomfiture. Modesty is then and there a most amiable and proper quality. He who, penetrated and prostrated with a sense of his error, regains his feet to walk more cautiously, may be no less beloved than if he had never mistaken; but he who learns no lesson of care from previous misadventure, but confidently renews his declaration of conquest over all difficulty, and presses on in imminent hazard of another disaster, undertakes more than the established dictates of prudence could be construed to justify.

But time fails, and I must pause. The letter, such as it is, I send, hoping that it may serve some possible good, though written with some haste, and no particular preparation. Very truly yours,

C. Colegrove.

FEED MY LAMBS.

W. G. HAGAR.

The following lines were written under very peculiar circumstances. The author had, for nearly eighteen years, been resisting the call of the Holy Spirit to preach the gospel, and it was during one of these unhappy days, when soul and body seemed ready to sink beneath the burden resting upon them, and after vainly seeking that rest in sleep which I could not find when awake, I was half resolved to submit and obey the command of God. While thus wavering and undecided, and suffering all the agonies of a guilty conscience, the Spirit of God spoke the following words to me:—

"There's perfect peace within thy reach,
If ye but heed my call to preach!
Go, feed my lambs, who have not heard
The beauties of my holy word."

What, I! a sinful worm of dust,
And so unworthy of the trust?
I fear my life would ill accord
With the teachings of thy word.

"Go, feed my lambs," the Spirit said,
"It was for these my blood was shed;
Tell them to choose 'the better part,'
And give to me their sinful heart."

Dispel my doubts, shake off my fears;
Dear Lord, I come to thee with tears;
Help me to choose the "better part,"
For lo, I come with contrite heart.

"Why doubt my word? Believe and live;
I did for thee a ransom give.
Feed thou my lambs, nor let them stray,
But keep them till the perfect day."

To feed thy lambs, dear Lord, I ask
That thou wilt aid me in the task;
Into their hearts thy Spirit send,
Ahd be thou with them to the end.

"Go, feed my lambs! point them to God,
And lead them in the paths I trod;
My yoke is easy, burden light,
To those who follow me aright."

BELIEVE GOD.

D. R. HARGRAVES.

Do I believe God? is a question of vital importance. One that every individual should ask. Do I believe that he will do what he has said that he will do? Were all things made as he said they were? And will things be through time as he said they would be? Many say that they believe God, but do their words and lives show this? Let us examine some of the words of God, given by his holy prophets. God said that he made man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into him the breath of life, and man became a living soul. Shall we believe the word? When God said unto Adam, if thou eat of the fruit that I have forbidden, "Thou shalt surely die," did he speak the truth? or did Satan, when he said, "Thou shalt not surely die?"

Shall we believe that the Lord only hath immortality? or shall we believe that every one of the children of men possesses it? When we read that eternal life is the gift of God through our Lord Jesus Christ, do we believe it? or do we believe that man possesses it by right of inheritance?

After looking in vain among the teachings of Christ and the apostles to find where they taught that man possessed immortality, shall we turn to heathen philosophy, and believe it, because we find it taught there? Was Plato greater than Christ? Shall we esteem his teachings as more reliable than those of the apostles, who were chosen by our blessed Lord, and by him commissioned to preach the gospel? I think not.

There are other things that it is necessary for us to believe, if we deem God reliable. We must believe that Christ came into the world to suffer, that through death he might obtain the right to redeem the world. The earth was cursed, and the sentence of death was passed on all mankind; and he gave his body, that he might have power to remove the curse, and redeem man from the grave; and shed his blood for the remission of sins, that he might give eternal life to as many as believed.

We must believe also that God has appointed a time when he will judge the world in righteousness, by his Son. If we believe the word, we shall have no hope that the world will grow better, but shall feel assured that the tares will grow until the harvest, and that the harvest will be the end of the world, when Christ will come in glory to give his saints eternal life, and to his enemies everlasting destruction.

These are a few of the things that we shall have to believe, if we acknowledge God to be true. His word cannot fail. Shall we believe God when all past ages have testified of his unchangeability? or shall we believe the teachings of men? Is it more safe to trust in man than in the living God? Reader, weigh the subject carefully, before you reject the word of God. Men of talent and learning are laboring hard to overthrow the word of God, but their attempts will be in vain. God cannot lie. Their foolishness is soon to be made known, but too late for correction. Whoever rejects the word of God here, will be rejected by the Lord Jesus Christ at the judgment.

Brethren, let us examine ourselves carefully, and let no unbelief creep into our hearts. Let us show by our lives that we believe that what God has promised he will perform. Let us strive earnestly to turn men from fables to the truth of the living God, and so being faithful, we shall have the blood of no man upon our skirts, and Jesus will reward us with a crown of life when he comes.

TENTH ANNUAL MEETING OF THE N. Y. ADV. CHRIS. CONF.

This conference held its Annual meeting with the church at Mastville, Cayuga Co., June 17th to 20th, 1875. It was expected that the new church which our brethren at Mastville are building would be finished and dedicated at this meeting, which, however, was not completed. But Bro. Miles had secured the Wayne Co. Tent, and our meetings were held in it.

Our first meeting commenced Thursday evening. Bro. P. A. Smith gave an interesting discourse from 1 Cor. 15: 20. The first business session was called to order by the Pres., M. R. Miles. Friday at 9 A. M., after prayer, the following committees were appointed: Devotional exercises—Brn. Baker, Palmer, and Crandall. On Business—Elds. W. J. Hobbs, R. H. Bateman, James E. Wells.

The following ministers were present:—M. R. Miles, Wm. Ingmire, Wm. Morrell, S. C. Gove, P. A. Smith, W. J. Hobbs, R. H. Bateman, A. P. Moore, Jas. E. Wells, A. H. Dunbar, B. P. Stevens, E. F. Sergisson, C. H. Williams, F. Douglas. Brn. C. F. Sweet, J. H. Luttenton, W. Vreeland, Chas. P. Greenman, and C. Colegrove, reported by letter. Brn. C. W. Low, A. C. Newell, D. Cogswell, L. Kerr, R. G. Wells, and I. Allen, made no report.

Quarterly collections were received from only six churches, as follows, by their respective delegates: J. S. Maynard, Rochester, $4. Levi Allen and Geo. Wilson, Ontario, $5. S. D. Crofoot, So. Butler, $3.60. A. H. Dunbar, Pineville, $1.92. B. P. Stevens (reported), Kendall, $2. E. S. Spooner and B. Crofoot, Mastville, $2.25.

The subject of combining the offices of Sec. and Treas. was introduced, and it was voted to make no change. The election of officers was postponed until 9 A. M., Saturday, also the reports of ministers and delegates.

The second business session was held Friday afternoon. The examination and standing of ministers was the first in order. The standing of Bro. D. Cogswell was reported to the Conference. The President stated that he had written Bro. C. a letter urging him to attend this annual meeting, but had heard nothing from him. Subsequently he saw an article published from him which sets forth his present position, and his relations to this Conference. Therefore the following preamble and resolutions were passed:—

Whereas, Our formerly very much esteemed Bro. Daniel Cogswell has in a recent publication declared that, in his relations to the N. Y. State A. C. Conference, he has embraced doctrines that will and do separate him from said Conference; and

Whereas, Said doctrines are opposed to the spirit and letter of the gospel in that he has greatly erred in saying that "the resurrection is past already" (or is now taking place), 2 Tim. 2: 17, 18, and that the Lord Jesus Christ has already made his second advent to this world (see in opposition Rev. 1: 7, and Luke 17: 23, 24), "and [thereby] overthrow the faith of some"; and

Whereas, He (D. Cogswell) has publicly declared that "we can never be united as in the past," thereby severing himself, as a member, from the said Conference; therefore, be it

Resolved, That it is the bounden duty of this, the N. Y. A. C. Conference, to disfellowship Eld. Daniel Cogswell as a member of said Conference, until such a time as he shall publicly confess said error and again declare his sympathy and union with this body; and be it further

Resolved, That we advise all churches within the bounds of this Conference, and who are in sympathy with its success, to reject all teaching and teachers who assert that the resurrection and the second coming of Christ are in the past, and all other unscriptural doctrines which in their nature and result divide the spirit, love and union of this Conference, or the churches within the bounds of this Conference.

It was voted that this whole matter be sent to the World's Crisis for publication.

Bro. Vreeland sent in his letter of resignation, which was accepted.

The Tent enterprise came up next for consideration. It was voted that Bro. Miles sell the old State tent, and the proceeds be placed in the treasury.

Saturday, 9 A. M., we met for the election of officers for the ensuing year. After prayer the meeting was opened for business. The election of officers being the special order, each ballot was declared unanimous as follows: For President, M. R. Miles, of Wolcott. For Vice President, R. H. Bateman, of Yorkshire. For Sec. and Treas., James E. Wells, of Ontario.

Reports of churches. The majority of our churches made no report, but we hope to hear from them at the next quarterly conference. The following churches did report: Rochester, Pineville, Butler, Kendall, Alton, Darien, Mastville, and Ontario. At Ontario they have commenced building a house, which will be completed next fall (D. V.). This is the fruit of one tent meeting held there last summer. The reports were encouraging and reviving from all the churches.

Reports and letters from ministers. We would ask too much space if we reported all separately. Suffice it to say, there was no evil report. The prospect is brighter, the cause is gaining strength, and all feel they will stand by the old ship until Jesus comes. A letter was read from Bro. C. Colegrove, and Conference voted to send it to the World's Crisis and A. C. Times for publication.*

The business meetings were marked with the spirit of love, harmony and peace. The devotional exercises were signally blessed and interesting; the coming of the Lord Jesus was the theme that seemed to occupy the minds of all. Friday, 2 P. M., Bro. S. C. Gove preached from Ps. 37: 1. In the evening prayer and conference meeting, after which Bro. Stevens gave a discourse on the first principles of Christianity, from Acts 16: 30.

Saturday, 2 P. M., Bro. Wm. Morrell discoursed on our "Hope," from 1 Pet. 1: 3. In the evening, at an early hour, we met for prayer and conference, when the Spirit of the Lord came upon us, and we felt that "heaven had come down our souls to greet." Preaching at 8½ upon the nature of future punishment, from Gen. 18: 25, by the writer.

Sunday morning. The pentecostal season we enjoyed last evening was vouchsafed this morning. Old and invalid pilgrims, who had been brought to the tent with difficulty, were melted to tears when the near coming of Jesus was spoken of. Many of the testimonies were tributes of heartfelt joy that the tent ever came to their place. A number that stood up for Jesus were converted infidels. What a glorious hope is ours! Over one hundred testified in this meeting. Truly our hearts burned within us.

After this feast of love, Bro. W. J. Hobbs preached a discourse on our "Home," from Rev. 21: 4. Following the morning meeting we repaired to the water, where Bro. B. P. Stevens buried three happy souls in the likeness of Jesus' death, thus showing their faith in his and our resurrection from out among the dead ones. At 2½ P. M., Bro. R. H. Bateman preached from 1 Cor. 15, on the first and second Adam. The celebration of the Lord's Supper followed the P. M. service. It was a very impressive occasion; a large number, one hundred and fifty, united in commemorating the death of Jesus on Calvary, and anticipating the glorious return of the crucified but risen Redeemer. In the evening we had another love-feast, followed by a sermon from Bro. C. H. Williams on practical duties founded upon Acts 26: 28.

The audiences were very large and attentive; the seating capacity of the tent could not accommodate all who came. Fourteen ministers were present at this conference, and there was the most perfect harmony through the entire meeting. A vote of thanks was tendered to the kind friends of Mastville for their hospitality.

Thus closed the tenth Annual Conference in Western N. Y. Indeed, it was good for us to be there. We hope to see more of our brethren and sisters at our quarterly and annual gatherings. Remember the adage—"In union there is strength." We must present a solid front. Our foes are pressing hard, and as the battle waxes hot, we need to gird on the whole armor for the conflict. The Conference needs your prayers, your sympathy, and a liberal supply of your means.

You will notice the meagre collections sent in to this Conference. As the stewards of the Lord, we must not let the cause of truth languish for the lack of financial support. Let every church see that the quarterly collections are taken up two or three weeks before conference, and if you do not send a delegate, put the money in a letter and send it to the Treasurer, address, Ontario, Wayne Co. Also let our brethren who are isolated from churches send in their offerings as above, at any time. At present we have no tent in the field. But, brethren, shall we discontinue our tent enterprise? Who wish to invest their money in this direction? We need a tent, and must have the money to purchase one. Calls are coming in from a number of places where they desire a meeting. How many will say, "I will do what I can"?

Brethren, shall we respond to the Macedonian cry—"Come over and help us"? The Lord help us to do our duty.

BE READY.

Church of the living God! hast thou heard the voice which spoke from heaven, "Surely I come quickly?" And hast thou responded to it gladly, "Even so, come, Lord Jesus?" Does his absence now lie heavily upon thy spirit? Does the promise of his return cheer thee? And is the thought of his speedy coming a most welcome hope in these days, when men's hearts are failing them for fear? Then how is this prospect operating? Is it full of quickening, animating, stimulating power? Is it kindling up your love into greater warmth? Is it increasing the intensity of your earnestness? Is it making the separation between you and the world a more decided thing? Is it imparting a deeper solemnity to your deportment, and attaching an unutterable importance to every word and action? Is it rebuking idleness, and sloth, and vanity, and frivolity, and levity, and selfishness? Has it uprooted and destroyed in you covetousness and worldliness, those two master sins of the evil age? And has it made you liberal and generous, enlarging your heart to give,—to give with no sparing hand so long as time remaineth?

Ah, brethren in Christ, we are surely far behind! Our religion is a poor, second-rate ineffective thing! We are dreaming when we should be working; we are pleasing self and indulging the flesh when we should be serving the Lord. We are indolent and yielding when we should be energetic and indomitable. We are shrinking and fastidious when we should be resolute and hardy. We sit idly in our tents, with weapons sheathed and banners folded, when we should be in the thickest of the fight, for the world's last conflict is begun, and the armies are mustering for the battle of the great day of God Almighty.

And you, ye men of the earth, whose portion is not among the things unseen, have you heard the voice that speaks to you from heaven,—"Fear God, and give glory to him, for the hour of his judgment is come?" Has the warning pierced your ears and broken your mad security? How long do you count it safe to remain unreconciled? And what short of reconciliation with God will avail you in the day when he ariseth to shake terribly the earth? And when is he to arise? Have you ascertained the time, that you sit so easy and unalarmed? The long pent-up winds are beginning to break loose; and the sudden bursts of tempest that have ever swept the earth, these few years past, are precursors of the world's last desolating storm. . . . Has this prospect no terrors for you, and have these terrors no urgency to compel you to consider the overwhelming necessity of betaking yourselves to the provided shelter, ere another day, with all its gloomy uncertainties, shall have dawned upon you?

Are you ready? Are you hidden in the clefts of that rock to which no weapon, no storm, no fire can reach? He alone is safe who has reached the hiding place; and that hiding place stands with its unfolded gates ready to receive you now. Will you enter? Or will you remain without? Remain without, and perish in the fiery storm! "For every battle of the warrior is with confused noise and garments rolled in blood, but this shall be with burning and fuel of fire." It is now, in these last days, as in the days of Noah. God's purpose of vengeance has been declared, the warning has come, and the judgment is making haste to follow. But the ark is still open, and the preacher of righteousness beckons you in. For one hundred and twenty years Noah preached, but the unheeding world heard him not. Then he entered the ark, and for seven days he remained there before the deluge came, and standing at the open door of the ark, he delivered God's last message of grace, entreating men to come in. It seems as if we were now in the period corresponding to these seven last days,—proclaiming God's last loving message to long-resisting man! For what, then, are you waiting? Are you lingering in the hope that the millennial day will softly steal in upon the world, and that then you will be converted with the rest? Alas for you! Do you not know that between you and that glory there lies a region as dark as midnight, and strewed with terrors such as earth has not yet witnessed? Why, then, do you wait without? There is room enough within, and will you not go in and occupy it? There is love enough, and will you not go in and taste it? There is blessedness enough, and will you not go in and enjoy it? It will cost you nothing; and you are welcome! The Father bids you welcome; and the son bids you welcome; and the Spirit bids you welcome; and angels bid you welcome; and every saved one bids you welcome; and with so many welcomes will you still hesitate or delay? Child of sin and sorrow, are you ready?—Prophetic Times.

DO NOT BORROW TROUBLE.

Do not borrow trouble!
Do not ring Hope's knell!
Trust your cause to Him who daily
"Doeth all things well!"

He will never give you
One more drop of woe
Than will serve to make you better
While you live below.

He will never rob you
Of a jewel bright,
But you'll find it far more radiant
In your crown of light.

He will never let you
Feel the cruel rod,
But to draw your spirit nearer
To the throne of God.

TOO NEAR THE WORLD.

Are not many professing christians living very near to the world? It does seem so, from the signs of the times. "Be not conformed to this world," says St. Paul. "Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world," says St. John; and he goes on: "If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him. For all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eye, and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but of the world. And the world passeth away, and the lust thereof; but he that doeth the will of God abideth forever." For this it is manifest that a professing christian who lives near to the world cannot do the will of God, and therefore cannot abide forever, in the sense of this passage.

It is truly sad to think how near we come to the world in great numbers of our doings. In popular amusements there are hundreds of thousands in all the christian churches who live as the world does. They go to operas, and circuses, and theatres, and to dancing parties; and no one can tell which is the worldling, or which is the christian in such places. In their social entertainments, a great many professedly christian people are just like the people of the world. If one should step out of the house where the church member gives his party, and into the place where the worldly man gives his, what difference could he see? Very little, if any at all.

Wine-drinking, dancing, jewels and gold, over-loaded tables, costing a great deal of money that could be better used in feeding the hungry and clothing the naked, and all the accompaniments of a gay and frivolous worldly scene, would he behold.

In the plans used to raise money for benevolent purposes, christian people come very near to the world; indeed, they sometimes follow its example fully. We often, too often, hear of juvenile operas; and at fairs, lotteries, and other arrangements for a genteel work of gambling are indulged in, by which money is to be realized for God's work. Quaint and ridiculous customs and manners to match, are often assumed by professedly christian young men and women, while the elder members look on with approving smiles and words, glad to hear that a vast amount of money has been taken in their silly shows; but never thinking, alas! of the number of souls taken in the meshes of sin in the midst of such scenes, or of the lowering of the standard of purity and faith in those who are trained to regard these methods as legitimate in helping forward christian work.—Golden Censer.

EXPERIENCE.

I can say like Laban of old, that "I have learned by experience that the Lord has blessed me" in his service. And I can say as Solomon did, "My heart had great experience of wisdom and knowledge" since I began to serve the Lord. He has led me in a way I knew not, and I realize that his Spirit and his word leadeth me continually. I rejoice in "tribulation also, knowing that tribulation worketh patience and patience experience, and experience hope, and hope maketh not ashamed."

No, when my heart is filled with the love of Jesus, and I have a hope that is big with immortality and eternal life, I am not ashamed to tell the world that I love Jesus' coming, that I expect to see him very soon. Bless the Lord, "I love to tell the story of unseen things to come, of Jesus and his love." "I do love him "because he first loved me," and died for me. Yes, unworthy as I am, Jesus died that I might live. "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believes."

May the Lord help us to believe and preach the gospel more fervently and present it in love; let it flow from the heart, and it will reach the hearts of those that hear it. We want it to reach the heart. Head religion will not save any one soul from perdition. We want perfect peace,—trusting in the Lord. J. W. Burroughs.

Labor conquers all things. Every thing that we do has to have a certain amount of labor expended on it to bring it to a state of perfection. However difficult it may appear, however impossible it may seem to be, remember, if you attack it with energy, and labor with all your might, your efforts will be crowned with success.

HOME AND HEALTH.

ABOUT CANCERS.

Sister Sophronia Porter, of East Boston, has had a very bad cancer drawn out of her breast, and is doing so well that she desires, for the benefit of others, to have the case made public.

Her cancer had been developing for a long time. Finally she went to a doctor who had had much experience in such cases, and he advised her to have nothing done for it, as it was of a bad character and inclined to turn inwardly. He thought if it were taken out she would not live through it.

Soon after she applied to Dr. Beard, of Natick, Mass. Dr. Beard also advised her to let it remain without disturbing it, assigning the same reason that the other Dr. had done.

Sr. Porter was so anxious to have it taken out, that Dr. Beard said he would draw it out, and he did so by the application of plasters. It is now seven months since it was drawn out, and she has felt nothing of it since.

She wants to make this statement for the encouragement and benefit of others who may be afflicted with the same complaint.

LOOK OUT FOR FEVERS.

The time has come when we shall expect to hear of numerous cases of typhoid, bilious, intermittent, and yellow fevers. Thousands of fever patients will be treated with calomel, blue mass, alcohol, and other poisons, and a large percentage of them will die. A lesser number will be so fortunate as to receive no medical treatment whatever, and most of them will survive. A few of the most fortunate of all will receive hygienic treatment, and such will recover almost without exception, with proper care.

But although typhoid and other dreaded fevers lose much of their terror under hygienic management, it is by all means preferable to avoid them entirely. A person who rigidly adheres to a strictly hygienic regimen need entertain no fears, even while others are falling victims about him. And a person whose habits have been only approximately correct can do much to prevent febrile disease and to mitigate its severity.

As preventives of fever, a few simple precautions are very important:

1. Keep the bowels regular by the use of graham bread and ripe fruits, and, if necessary, frequent percussion of the abdomen.
2. Keep clean by frequent bathing.
3. Avoid overwork, overeating, and indulgence in any depressing influences.
4. Secure abundance of sleep.
5. Avoid the use of flesh food and of animal fats, together with excessive quantities of sugar.

If premonitory symptoms of fever are felt, do not neglect to take immediate measures to prevent the threatened derangement of the functions. Do not imagine that you will be better to-morrow, but take warning by the admonitions of nature, and rest. Stop work, and stop eating. At least, forego your accustomed meals, taking nothing more than a little ripe fruit and graham or oatmeal gruel for a day or two. Take a warm bath and a pack; obtain all the sleep possible; and in many cases a "run of fever" will be prevented. Prompt and timely treatment would have saved thousands of lives. Health Reformer.

BATHING WHEN TIRED.

One of the most prevalent fallacies that disturb the public mind to-day is the idea that it is harmful to go into the water when heated with work, walking, running, or exercise of any kind. How many times, when boys, have we had that injunction laid upon us by anxious mothers, not to go into the water when we were warm or perspiring. But we often used to see our playmates go into the water when literally dripping with sweat, and could not understand how they could escape the dread consequences which we had always been led to believe would follow. The true rule seems to be, rather, not to bathe when the system is tired or exhausted, and if this rule is faithfully carried out, any one in good health may take a plunge bath in cold water, however warm they may be. When the system is fresh, it reacts quickly from the numbing effects of the cold dash, leaving the person feeling fresher and clearer than before; on the contrary, when worn with toil and fatigue, there is not that reserve force to draw upon, and the consequences are often quite serious. Let parents and all others disabuse themselves of that exploded notion, and only bear in mind the rule here brought forward, never to bathe when the body is tired and the system not in a condition to sustain further demands upon it.—Science of Health.

That great disinfectant, carbolic acid, should be on hand in every household, and if bought by the gallon or quart, it is cheap; if bought in vials it is dear. An objection hitherto has been its unpleasant odor, but this was on account of its strength. Solutions will kill the eggs of all kinds of vermin; will destroy ants in the hill, and annihilate the germs of diseases and plagues in stables and outhouses, but a general cleaning out is required in connection. All drains, sinks, and pipes conveying water should have a sprinkling.—Science of Health.

WATCHING FOR THE MORNING.

"My soul waiteth for the Lord more than they that watch for the morning."—PSALM 130: 6.

I am watching for the morning;
The night is long and dreary;
I have waited for the dawning
Till I am sad and weary.
I am watching for the morning,
When the sons of God shall show
All their beauteous adorning,
So dimly seen below.

I'm a stranger and sojourner,
A pilgrim on the earth;
A sad and lonely mourner;
Few own my noble birth.
But I'm watching for the morning—
O, when will morning come,
And change the world's rude scorning
For the fellowship of home?

They call me strange and gloomy,
But, oh! they little dream
Of the hopes that fill my bosom,
For I am not what I seem.
I am watching for the morning,
When He who for me died,
In triumphant state returning,
Shall take me to his side.

They often find me weeping
When I cannot tell them why,
For they know not the deep meaning
Of my spirit's sympathy.
I am watching for the morning
Of a bright and glorious day,
That shall hush creation's groaning,
And wipe her tears away.

The earnest expectation
Of all nature is abroad;
Waiting the revelation
Of the real sons of God.
And I'm watching for the morning
That shall set the captive free,
And shall change the chains of bondage
Into glorious liberty.

I will get me to the mountain
Till the shadows flee away:
I will ask of all the watchmen
For the tokens of the day.
I am watching for the morning,
The night is almost gone;
I hear the note of warning,
I will hie me to my home.

MORMONISM: OR, WAS JOSEPH SMITH A DIVINELY INSPIRED PROPHET?

WM. SHELDON.

CHAPTER III.

III. An examination of Joseph's claim to the Aaronic priesthood, and also to the Melchizedek priesthood, clearly proves that he was not a true prophet. We here quote the words of Joseph concerning the ordination of himself and Oliver Cowdrey:

"We, on a certain day, went into the woods to pray and inquire of the Lord respecting baptism for the remission of sins, as we found mention in the translation of the plates. While we were thus employed, praying, and calling upon the Lord, a messenger from heaven descended in a cloud of light, and having laid his hands upon us, he ordained us, saying unto us, 'Upon you, my fellow servants, in the name of Messiah, I confer the priesthood of Aaron, which holds the keys of the ministering of angels, and of the gospel of repentance, and of baptism by immersion for the remission of sins, and this shall never be again taken from the earth, until the sons of Levi do offer again an offering unto the Lord in righteousness.' He said this Aaronic priesthood had not the power of laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost, but that this should be conferred on us hereafter; and he commanded us to go and be baptized, and gave us directions that I should baptize Oliver Cowdrey, and that afterwards he should baptize me. Accordingly we went and were baptized: I baptized him first, and afterwards he baptized me: after which I laid my hands upon his head, and ordained him to the Aaronic priesthood, and afterwards he laid his hands upon me, and ordained me to the same priesthood, for so were we commanded. The messenger who visited us on this occasion, and conferred this priesthood upon us, said that his name was John, the same that is called John the Baptist in the New Testament, and that he acted under the direction of Peter, James, and John, who held the keys of the priesthood of Melchizedek, which priesthood, he said, should in due time be conferred on us, and that I should be called the first elder and he the second."

As this claim is the chief corner stone of Mormonism, it may be well to look at it somewhat critically. Here was a divinely inspired man engaged in translating ancient records, and still a sinner, not having yet been "baptized for the remission of sins," which implies, according to Mormon interpretation, the forgiveness of sins, and if sins are not forgiven previous to baptism yet here is a man chosen of God, placed in possession of a gift of inspiration, and actually set to work translating before being baptized; and what is stranger still, this same man had previously held several conversations with angels, as he claims, and had been told all about the book he was to translate, where it was hid, when to dig it up, and told him also that his sins were forgiven, but said not a word to him about baptism, in which act it is claimed that sins are pardoned; and more than this, he claims to have once seen God and Christ, and was told by God that all the churches on earth were wrong, told him also that his sins were forgiven him, but said not a word to him about being baptized for the pardon of sins. Why need such a man be left in darkness so many years, while having frequent interviews with angels? If baptism is "for the remission of sins" in the Mormon sense of the statement, instead of the Bible sense, why need Joseph have been baptized, seeing that his sins had been previously forgiven him?

But this messenger enjoined not only baptism upon him, but tells him it is baptism by immersion," thus showing his ignorance—tantamount to saying "immersion by immersion;" tautology; for Mormons believe that nothing but immersion is baptism. Those who believe in different modes of baptism can speak consistently about baptism by immersion, which is equivalent to a claim that though immersion is baptism, something else is also baptism; but for an angel who holds baptism to be immersion, and nothing else to be baptism, there is no excuse for talking about "baptism by immersion," but ignorance. If baptism is immersion, then this angel really talks about "immersion by immersion." Such an angel ought to go to school before discoursing on baptism.

This same angel intimates that the sons of Levi are again to offer an offering unto the Lord, which would be a repudiation of Christ, the great antitypical sacrifice, by again introducing the shadow. Such an angel needs to be informed by Paul that "we are sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all," through which only there is remission; for now, "there is no more offering for sin." Heb. 10: 10, 18.

This angel firstly ordains Joseph and Oliver, and then virtually repudiates his own act of ordination by commanding them to ordain each other. If his ordination was valid, why need they be ordained again? If his ordination was not valid, why did he foolishly engage in a superfluous work? Why not have commanded them to ordain each other at once, instead of first doing the work himself, and proceeding to repudiate it by commanding them to do it over after him? Does the work of angels need to be done over after them?

Orson Pratt, one of Joseph's apostles, discerning this dilemma, endeavored to extricate the angel therefrom, in which effort he only augmented the difficulty. He says: "It may be asked, why it became necessary for them to ordain each other, when they had already received an ordination under the hands of the angel? We answer, that in the church of God ordination always follows baptism instead of preceding it. And as they had not been baptized when the angel ordained them, it was necessary that they should be ordained after baptism, in order that they might exhibit a perfect pattern for all future ordinations." Then it follows that the angel had exhibited an imperfect pattern. Why did the angel outrage the order of God's church, and set an imperfect? He ought to have been tried for infringement upon divine order.

Now right in the face of this outrage, he commands them to ordain each other. Can he be trusted so soon after leaping the boundaries of divine order, and subverting the plan of God? What are his orders worth in face of his own outrage? Can he be trusted? Is there not some mistake about an angel that will act after this fashion? If he was ignorant, and came without being sent (and God would not send an ignorant angel on such business if he has any), he is not fit to meddle with the matter, and better not have undertaken the work. If he was an evil angel transformed into an angel of light, so much the worse. Such angels would be apt to set imperfect patterns.

1. But to what order does this angel ordain Joseph? To the Aaronic priesthood. But that order was never in the church of Christ, and it is a work that no good angel would do to try to put it there. It belonged to the law dispensation, and was "changed" in the same sense that the law itself was "changed"—that is, abrogated: "For the priesthood being changed, there is made of necessity a change also of the law." The law was "changed" in the sense of being superceded, and the priesthood was changed in the same sense; that is, as the law was changed in the sense of being superceded by the gospel, so the Aaronic priesthood was changed in the sense of being superceded by the Melchizedek priesthood, in the person of Christ.

2. Christ himself was never an Aaronic priest; hence, never ordained such priests: "For it is evident that our Lord sprang out of Juda; of which tribe Moses spake nothing concerning priesthood." Heb. 7: 14. How then did the Aaronic priesthood get into the christian church? It never had a place there.

3. In the entire history of the church we fail to find any reference to the officiating of Aaronic priests in the church of Christ. If such priests were officiating in the church, some allusion would have been made to the fact.

4. We are told that this angel was John the Baptist, he being "the last person who held the keys of the Aaronic priesthood;" and as he died at the very beginning of Christ's ministry, he could not have ordained Aaronic priests for a new church, especially as he lived under the law; and if he died in possession of the Aaronic keys of priesthood, this cuts off any chance for Aaronic priests in the church of Christ, till he appeared to Joseph in 1829; so if he appeared then for the purpose of introducing this priesthood into the church, he certainly came to graft into it a new appendage; and this would be reflecting on Christ; as if Christ had not rightly organized his own church.

5. There is no proof that John was ever ordained a priest. This point needs proof—not conjecture. If he was not an officiating priest, how could he hold the keys of the Aaronic priesthood?

6. Even if John had been an officiating priest, death would have cut off his claim to the priesthood, for Paul says that these priests "were not suffered to continue by reason of death" (Heb. 7: 22); so death ends the priesthood of each priest."

7. It is sometimes affirmed that John was raised from the dead before ordaining Joseph. We want the proof that he was ever raised; to assume this point is not to prove it; and even if he had been raised, as death ended his priesthood, he would need a new ordination before he could officially ordain anybody else. We have no account either of his resurrection, or subsequent ordination, so we cannot accept the claim that he ordained Joseph. If John was really ordained by anybody that told him he was John, how did he know that he told the truth, he having never seen John?

8. If it be insisted that it was John's disembodied spirit that ordained Joseph, the claim is equally as lame, for these priests were "not suffered to continue by reason of death;" so as death ended the priesthood, if John was a priest before death, it must be proven that his spirit was subsequently ordained before it could be qualified to ordain Joseph; and as Joseph had never seen John's spirit, how did Joseph know that it was John that ordained him? He is left with the naked word of his visitor, who might have been Satan transformed into an angel of light, especially as he made such a blunder in prematurely ordaining Joseph, which a true angel would hardly have done.

9. But this angel claims to have been sent by Peter, James, and John. Why did not a living Christ send him, instead of three dead men, if he was a good angel? It cannot be guessed that these three men were raised at the crucifixion, or at Christ's resurrection, as in the case of John, as they did not die so early. Did dead men send this angel to ordain Joseph?

10. This angel says that Peter, James, and John, held the keys of the priesthood of Melchizedek, which is an untruth; and so this could not have been a good angel, and therefore Joseph's ordination was not from a good source, coming from the hand of an angel with a falsehood in his mouth; for the Melchizedek priesthood belongs exclusively to Christ: "There ariseth another priest . . . after the order of Melchizedek" (Heb. 7: 15, 17); and "another priest" does not signify a plurality of priests, but one only; and that one is Christ, for "we have a great High Priest, that is passed into the heavens, Jesus, the Son of God."

11. More than this, Christ did not officiate as a priest of any order while on earth, beginning his Melchizedek priesthood after his ascension to heaven; for Paul affirms: "If he were on earth he should not be a Priest" (Heb. 8: 4); thus, as his priesthood did not begin till after he left the earth, he could not have ordained his apostles to this priesthood, or any other, included in his commission: "I have chosen you, and ordained you" (John 15: 16), for they could not have been Melchizedek priests before himself, even if he were to have successors in that office at all; and though he did ordain apostles and ministers, there is no intimation of his ordaining priests of either the Melchizedek or Aaronic order. Certainly he could not have ordained them to the Aaronic priesthood before the law was nailed to the cross, except from the tribe of Levi, even if he had been an Aaronic priest himself; nor could he have ordained them to the Melchizedek priesthood till after there was a "change in the priesthood," for the reason that this "change" is made a prerequisite to his own priesthood.

12. Not only is this Melchizedek priesthood confined to Christ, to the exclusion of a plurality, but it is also restricted to this age: "Thou art a priest forever"—eis ton aiona; for the age (Heb. 7: 18); hence, he can have no successors in this age, even if he should have subsequently. But Joseph not only gives him numerous successors in this age, but predecessors in the preceding age; and that too without a shade of proof.

13. Though there is a priesthood spoken of under the gospel, it is simply the antitype of the minor Aaronic priests, as Christ is the antitype of the High priesthood; and this antitypical minor priesthood is not restricted to the ministers of the gospel, as will be seen by reading the following texts, addressed to the church in general, and not to the ministry alone: "Ye also as lively stones, are built up a spiritual house, an holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to God by Jesus Christ." And again: "But ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people." 1 Pet. 2: 5, 6.

Christ officiates in the Holy of Holies, but the minor priests are offering up "spiritual sacrifices" in the antitypical "worldly sanctuary," even prayer and praise to Him who hath "washed us in his own blood, and hath made us kings and priests unto God" (Rev. 1: 7), each saint being his own priest, to offer his own sacrifice to God; for no priest can offer a spiritual sacrifice for any other man. While Christ has instituted a ministry, this is the only priesthood connected with the church, and is not restricted to the ministry. The Aaronic priesthood has had its day, and reached its antitype; while the Melchizedek priesthood belongs only to Christ, and cannot be exercised on earth in this age.

OF HEAVEN OR MEN.

J. HEMENWAY.

The doctrines entertained and advocated by the Adventists, and believed by many that are not identified with them, are either of God or man. If of the latter, should be rejected as untruthful and injurious to society. If of heaven, it is all-important that every believer should be identified with the truth. If God called out this people to proclaim the gospel of the coming kingdom and its kindred truths, he calls upon every one that sees the light to walk in the truth, and let the light shine in opposition to the darkness.

The doctrine of the coming kingdom is a dispensational truth, around which believers should rally and sustain with their influence and means. This is the truth that called out the people to take a stand on the Bible in opposition to tradition and modern skepticism. To make any other the leading truth, neutralizes our power for good, and strengthens the opposing influence that we have to overcome.

The doctrines of Jesus' coming, the resurrection, restitution of the earth, and destruction of the wicked, are ignored and rejected by the mass of religious denominations as being non-essential to the interests of the cause of Christ. If they are right, we are wrong, and should change our position, pull down our flag, and throw our influence with them. There is no middle ground for us to occupy; no compromise is justifiable; no position that nullifies our strength is consistent with a profession of faith in these great truths.

As a people, we should rally around the standard of truth, and exemplify in our lives the purity of the gospel of the coming kingdom. God calls for uncompromising, valiant men and women to come out and identify themselves with the truth. To mix with the masses and withhold the truth for the sake of their favor, or for fear of reproach, is inconsistent and cowardly, and results in barrenness of soul, and injury to the cause of God.

Dear reader, what is your position and influence as to these Bible doctrines? Do you believe them? Can you withhold your influence and means to support, and be justified before God? "He that is not for me is against me; and he that gathereth not with me scattereth abroad," is a truth that we do well to prayerfully consider.

Sanctification and holiness, through the Spirit, and a consistent belief of the truth, are more salutary than emotions created by surrounding circumstances. There is but one standard of christian character in the Bible, which is holiness unto the Lord, which is the outgrowth of truth in the heart, bringing peace, joy, and a consistent deportment in life. Is it consistent with a profession of faith in the great truths of the Bible, to occupy a position and give our influence and support to those that reject and despise the truths that we believe? Let us be true to God, to ourselves, and to the world, that we may be found on the side of truth and heaven when called to give an account of our stewardship.

"THY WORD IS TRUTH."

J. E. CLARK.

Men may have their ideas of the Bible, however erroneous those ideas may be, nevertheless, "thy word is truth." There are many persons that do not think for themselves, but they believe according to the example of others. They do not take the pains and trouble of thinking and examining for themselves. They believe as they do, because there is some one in whom they have confidence says so.

There is a class, or sort of men, who read only one side of the question. They have one sort of notions. They have a Goshen in the intellectual world where light shines; and, as they conclude, day blesses them, but the rest of the vast world lieth in darkness. They have a little heaven all by themselves, while the rest of mankind are outside of its shining gates. It is possible that other men may have some knowledge and understanding of the word of God. It is very evident there is much earth and rubbish, before we come to the gold. We have to clear away the traditions of men. We have to go directly to the word of God, and dig deep for the pure treasures. Sand and dross usually lie blended with the truth; but the gold is nevertheless gold. We may distinguish the pure gold from superficial glitterings. We ought not to be thrown off the track by assumed prejudices, or narrow-mindedness. We are not to be muffled up in our zeal, and infallibility of our own sect, so that we cannot look at the opposite side of the question.

Divisions and systems are made by men, and carry the mark of infallible on them. How often we hear it said, the founders, or leaders of my party, are good men, and therefore their tenets are true. True or false, solid or sandy, the mind must have some foundation to rest itself upon. The world is full of prejudice, which is a great hindrance to knowledge, and the truth of the Bible. To remove this great cause of ignorance, is for every one to examine himself, and for himself. We are apt to look at others prejudices. This is the mote which we see in our brother's eye, but never regard the beam in our own eye. We should give a patient hearing, and weigh the arguments on the opposite side; but prejudice often prevents this, and blinds the mind. He who resolves to be just, and yet will hear only one side, will be unjust in spite of his resolutions.

First, we must not be in love with any opinion, or wish it to be true, until we know it to be so; and then, we shall not need to wish it, for nothing that is false can deserve our good wishes. Men are fond of certain tenets, and think they must maintain them, or all is gone, though they have never examined the ground they stand on, nor have even made them out to themselves, or can make them out to others. We should contend earnestly for the truth, but we should first be sure that it is truth, or else we are opposed to God, and do the work of the devil, who is the father of lies.

Truth is all simple, all pure, will bear no mixture of anything else with it. To think of every thing just as it is in itself is the proper way. It is better to contemplate things as they really are. Truth needs but little hunting after arguments to make it good. Some men espouse opinions that best suit themselves, and then seek arguments to support them. Truth will support itself; it needs no help from us to support it. The proper way is to seek the truth. We should trace every argument to its true foundation, and not jump at conclusions, as too many do, which is a short and sure way to fancy and conceit.

Some men are quickly weary of any one thing. Constancy is what they cannot bear; they like something new, a change; some "new truth," as they call it; and they go hunting to find it. All that is to be found in books is not always founded upon the Scriptures; and consequently is not true. Many men write to support themselves, their opinions, and their party; and only search for what they can scrape together, that may favor and support their peculiar tenets. Such persons wilfully exclude themselves from the truth. "Thy word is truth." All we have to do is to read, believe, and obey the truth. Be not afraid of it. It will do you no harm. The word of God is unlike any other book. It is the word of God, and not of fallible man. Men may place false constructions upon it, yet, "thy word is truth." There is no corruption in it. It is pure from the hand of its author. It contains no fiction, for mean or ill ends. It is given to us for our happiness and true knowledge. It is that true study which is every man's duty; and yet how few search the Scriptures!

HOPE.

J. W. THOMAS.

"Good hope." 2 THESS. 2: 16.

The hope of christians is good for several reasons. It has a good foundation. God is its author. He who made the world, and filled it with tokens of his goodness, has given his people a "good hope." The oath and promise of the Almighty is surely a good basis for hope to rest upon. He is not a man whose existence is limited, and whose power is often insufficient to perform his word; but "from everlasting to everlasting, he is God," and there is no diminishing of hie power. His promises are "yea and amen in Christ Jesus." Heaven and earth would sooner pass away, than for one promise to fail of being fulfilled. In his word do I hope. Not on the assertions and opinions of men, who are fallible like myself; but on the oath and promise of the Almighty God, do I base my joyful expectation of things to come.

Hope is good because it embraces good objects. It reaches on beyond the transitory things of time, and lays hold of the fadeless splendors of eternity. In hope of eternal life which God, that cannot lie, promised before the world began. Our present life is brief. It passes away like the early dew or morning cloud. Our friends have gone, we are going, and all the families of earth are involved in the misfortune of a common mortality. In a little while life will have fled from every mortal being. "Who can keep alive his own soul?" Not one.

But beyond these scenes of changing vicissitudes, there rises to view a life of unending blessedness. "Being justified by faith, we are made heirs according to the hope of eternal life." Over yonder, on the hills of light, I see a white robed band, bearing palms of victory, and wearing crowns of eternal salvation.

A resurrection from the dead is included in the Bible hope. Christ has passed through the dark valley and left a brightness that has lit up all the graves of his saints. He has brought life and immortality to light, by dispelling the darkness of the tomb, and rising to his Father's right hand with flesh immortal. From thence we look for the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall change our vile bodies, and fashion them like his glorious body. I hear his voice rolling down from heaven in melodious accents, saying, "I am he that liveth, and was dead, and, behold, I am alive forevermore, and have the keys of hell and of death." He has the power, and the right to unlock every church-yard gate, and to tear the green turf from every grave. At the sound of his voice, all his sleeping saints in earth and sea will spring into conscious life and glorious immortality. "Then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, Death is swallowed up in victory."

Our hope embraces a "new heaven and a new earth." The dark and heavy burden of sin and crime that rests on this planet, making it a fit region for the habitation of fallen angels, shall be lifted; and over its bosom shall float the soft and mellow light of heaven, making it a paradise, in which good angels and redeemed men shall dwell in peaceful harmony. Here shall the thorn-crowned and crucified Jesus reign in unparalleled glory, and wear the crown of everlasting dominion.

"Beloved, now are we the sons of God; and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that when he shall appear, we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is. And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure." This hope has a good basis, embraces good objects, produces good effects. Surely this is a "good hope." God gives it. It is "through grace,"—all of God,—through Christ. Have you a good hope?

HOLINESS TO THE LORD.

F. P. DINGLEY.

(Concluded.)

We are in the world, but not of the world. We have been chosen out of the world. We are heirs to another world, better than this—a glorious inheritance, about to be ours. The apostle Peter had a foretaste of this inheritance in his day. He begins his letter to his pilgrim friends: "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who, according to his abundant mercy, hath begotten us again unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, to an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away; reserved in heaven for you, who are kept by the power of God, through faith, unto salvation, ready to be revealed in the last time." Paul suffered much affliction for his divine Master, and he also foretasted glory that should follow. He says: "I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us." We are in an evil world. The world is full of evil. Since Adam fell, the major part of the human family have yielded to Satan; and he has been leading them on in darkness, deceiving them in every possible way, and doing his best to keep them from embracing the true light of life. His spirit works now in and through them. He has blinded the eyes of them that believe not, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ, who is the image of God, should shine unto them. He hates our Lord, and does everything he can to thwart his purposes. He hates us. The world says so. Jesus says so. If we make a start in the divine life, Satan does his best to destroy our influence, so as to cripple our powers for good, and to hinder our progress.

There is almost every thing in the world to contend with; almost every thing to arrest our attention from the coming judgment and for the glories that is in reserve for the child of God. We are nothing of ourselves, but poor, helpless creatures. We cannot keep ourselves. But we need not despair, only keep on the watch and mind our Captain. He that is for us is more than all that can be against us. All heaven is interested for us. Jesus loves and cares for us. He giveth his angels charge over us. He remembereth us in our low estate. Hear him pray for us just before he left the earth: "I pray not that thou shouldest take them out of the world, but that thou shouldest keep them from the evil."

Jude, it seems, had his eye on this same keeping power: "Now unto him that is able to keep you from falling, and to present you faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy, to the only wise God our Savior, be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and ever." Paul says to the Philippians:—"In everything by prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known unto God. And the peace of God that passeth all understanding shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus." "By grace are" we "saved through faith; and that not of" ourselves; "it is the gift of God." Paul says: "By the grace of God I am what I am." The Lord said to Paul, "My grace is sufficient for thee." He trusted in him. He did not trust in his own strength or merit at all.

In the Crisis of May 19th, I saw an article in which the writer said: "We are living in a time when it requires an entire subjection to God on the part of the believer, to enable him to withstand the temptations of the devil." This is a true saying. But I would like to ask if there has ever been a time since man's fall, that we need anything less than an entire subjection of our all to God? I know that we are living in "perilous times." Satan has great wrath, for he knoweth his time is short.

But we need more grace. The consecration must be the same as in the best of times; but the grace more. We must not trust in our goodness keeping us. All the goodness we have comes from Christ. We are clothed upon with his righteousness, when we are in him; when we get out of him the robe will be taken from us. If we are kept, it is because we trust in Christ. If we are saved at last, it will be because we have trust in him. He will give us grace sufficient for the times in which we are living, and sufficient for our every weakness. He is able to make all grace abound toward us. "Let us then have grace whereby we may serve God acceptably with reverence and godly fear." But we must possess holiness of heart first, and then all needful things will be added.

This theme of holiness I love. The word holiness sounds good. I love the doctrine, because it restores that union between us and the Lord which was lost in Adam, and prepares us for the coming of that Just One. Sanctification on our part must take place before we can possess it. This is certain. If we are not sanctified at the beginning of the christian race, we must be some time after that. There must be a yielding of ourselves, and all that we have, to the Lord; a sinking out of our wills into his. In order to be sanctified wholly, there must be a whole yielding. If we will do our part of the work, the Lord will do the rest.

If the reader does not feel as though his all was given up to the Lord, and he sweetly resting in Jesus, I would say, give up all to him without any reserve at once; make choice of him as your friend; get in him, live by him, and you will find sweet peace now, and will be sheltered from the coming storm. Believe that Jesus saves you presently from your sins. Believe that he is able to keep you from every evil work. Trust him; rest in him; walk in him; live in him continually. Do his will as near as you know what his will is, no more nor less. Go where he goes. Do not go to any place unless he will go with you.

"Take the name of Jesus with you,
Child of sorrow and of woe;
It will joy and comfort give you,
Take it then where'er you go."

"And whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father by him." "And whatsoever ye do, do it heartily as unto the Lord and not unto men; knowing that of the Lord, ye shall receive the reward of the inheritance; for ye serve the Lord Christ."

O, it is blessed to be a follower of the meek and lowly Jesus. The world's people have only a faint idea of the blessedness that flows from such a life, and the glory that is to follow. Satan makes them think that to obey Jesus in all things would only make them miserable. He blinds their minds, and they are led on to sure destruction. What seems to us like getting into liberty, seems to them like going into bondage. The world's people, and half-hearted professors do not know how blessed it is to be a whole-hearted christian.

If we are not wholly sanctified, and are ever going to be, we must be soon. We are coming to the judgment. That day for which all other days were made is right upon us. Jesus is coming to gather to himself the purchase of his blood. Look which way we will, everything bespeaks that coming at hand. The signs foretold by Jesus, which should precede his coming, have been fulfilled in their order; and we are now living in a time, when the church should be fully prepared, and with eyes upward, looking for the coming of her glorious Deliverer.

"We are living, we are dwelling,
In a grand and awful time;
In an age on ages telling,
To be living is sublime."

Solemn events are just before us; solemn, but big with interest to the child of God. The hope which the church has cherished ever since our Lord was taken up into heaven is about to be consummated. What manner of persons ought we to be in all holy deportment and godliness, looking for and hasting unto the coming of the day of God, wherein the heavens being on fire shall be dissolved, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat? It seems to me that we, who profess to be looking for the speedy coming of the Lord from heaven, ought to be in the front ranks, in proclaiming and living out the principles of "true holiness." But we must first possess it, and then the fruits will follow.

The command to keep ourselves pure, will not profit us anything till we are pure. The wisdom that is from above makes men pure first; and then they are peaceable, gentle, and easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality and without hypocrisy. Purity of heart must be had first; and then we are ready for every good work. We are ready then for life here, ready for death, ready for the coming of the Blessed One. If the morning, then, finds us sleeping, we shall be all ready to awake and receive from the righteous Judge the crown of life, which is in reserve for his precious jewels. If that time finds as awake, we can look up with joy, and say; "Lo, this is our God; we have waited for him; and he will save us." The Master of the house is coming to save them that are all ready and waiting for him. "Therefore be ye also ready; for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh."

NOT A CHRISTIAN?

E. A. BOYNTON.

Dear reader, are you not a christian? Not a child of God? Not a friend of Jesus? Not an heir to the heavenly inheritance? Have you no treasures in heaven? No hope beyond this life? Then let me tell you something. My heavenly Father loves you, and offers you a home in his kingdom. His own dear Son has paid, with his life's blood, the price of your admission into that eternal world of glory. Would you not like to live with holy, happy men, and shining angels, where sin and sorrow never come?

Where sweetest music charms the ear,
And lovely scenes delight the eye:
Where comes no more the funeral bier,
The choking sob, the trickling tear,
But happy hearts are free from fear,
And none will ever die.

Yes, my friend, while you think of these things, your soul longs for those heavenly joys which God hath prepared for them that love him. Then come; delay no longer; repent of your sins, and give your heart to Christ, and all are yours.

"O turn ye, O turn ye, for why will ye die,
When God in great mercy is coming so nigh?
Now Jesus invites you, the Spirit says, Come,
And angels are waiting to welcome you home."

IF YOU put a hot coal in your pocket it will burn its way out. Ay, and so will a bad deed that is hidden make itself known. A fault concealed is a fault doubled; and so you will find it all through life. Never hide your faults, but confess them, and seek through God's help to overcome them.

"ZION HEARD AND WAS GLAD."

"Zion heard and was glad; and the daughters of Judah rejoiced because of thy judgments, O Lord." PSALM 97: 8.

Zion is a title given to the people of God, applying typically to the Jewish church, and antitypically to the true christian church. So also are the terms Judah and Israel used, and apply to the professed people of God of any place or generation. When these terms are used in prophecy connected with threatenings or promises, the particular class and generation to which they apply may be learned by the chronology and location of the judgments threatened and blessings promised.

Blessings promised to those who should be personally associated with the Messiah, while in probation, could not be applied to any class or generation not living at the time of his first advent.

What had "Zion heard"? The judgments of the Lord. What caused the daughters of Judah to rejoice? "Because of thy judgments, O Lord." What will the judgment introduce to produce this joy? "The Lord reigneth." Vs. 1. What judgments will introduce this glorious reign? The judgment when his "throne" appears, surrounded "with clouds and thick darkness" (verse 2); when "a fire goeth before him and burneth up his enemies round about," and "the hills" will "melt like wax at the presence of the Lord of the whole earth;" and "all the people see his glory." Vs. 5, 6.

"Zion heard and was glad;" heard of approaching signs and premonitory evidences of coming deliverance. Judah sees in the unfoldings of the prophetic drama, the certainty that her king is speedily to unfurl his banner and sway his sceptre over a renewed world, and exultingly lift her voice in the language of the prophet:

"Say among the heathen that the Lord reigneth: the world also shall be established that it shall not be moved: he shall judge the people righteously. Let the heavens rejoice, and let the earth be glad; let the sea roar, and the fulness thereof. Let the field be joyful, and all that is therein: then shall all the trees of the wood rejoice before the Lord: for he cometh, for he cometh to judge the earth: he shall judge the world with righteousness, and the people with his truth." Ps. 96: 10–13.

Is it not a subject of joy to the people of God to witness the God-given signs of this world's speedy deliverance from the curse? Shall they not rejoice that the convulsed "world shall be established, that it shall" no more "be moved"? Although the heavens now gather blackness, and howl with tempests, yet they shall be renewed, and their soft-breathing zephyrs shall forever be enjoyed, and Zion rest undisturbed by the howling tempests or wintry blasts. Let the heirs of the glorious kingdom rejoice that the field will be delivered from the blighting curse, the thistle and thorn, drought and flood. "Then shall all the trees of the wood rejoice before the Lord, for he cometh, he cometh to judge the earth."

The judgment, in anticipation of which the people of God will so greatly rejoice, is that one connected with which the Lord will come. God will cause to be heralded to his people this glorious coming, as the prophet said: "Behold, the Lord hath proclaimed unto the end of the world, Say ye to the daughter of Zion, Behold, thy salvation cometh; behold, his reward is with him, and his work before him." Isa. 62: 11. This is evidently the same as taught by the Savior: "This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world as a witness unto all nations, and then shall the end come." The prophet beautifully expresses the same joyful expectation again: "And it shall be said in that day, Lo, this is our God; we have waited for him, and he will save us; this is the Lord; we have waited for him; we will be glad and rejoice in his salvation." He then describes the particular manner of waiting for the Lord, and says—"Yea, in the way of thy judgments, O Lord, have we waited for thee." Chap. 26: 8.

The sentiment expressed is clearly this: The church in waiting for the Lord will pass over a "way" where "judgments" will be manifested, and these judgments will cause her to "rejoice," knowing that they are sure precursors of his speedy "coming." Jesus expresses the same things, impressively, when describing the same blessed "coming," and says,

"And there shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars; and upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring; men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth: for the powers of heaven shall be shaken. And then shall they see the Son of man coming in a cloud, with power and great glory. And when these things begin to come to pass, then look up and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh." Luke 21: 25–28.

He clearly presents a general woeful time upon the earth, caused by fearful sights and great signs in the heavens and upon the earth,—commotions, social and physical, war like demonstrations among the "nations" sea storms, with fearful roaring of waves, men generally awe struck, fearing sudden calamities which will threaten them on every side. He then expresses, as the prophets did, the joy that the knowledge of these things would give to Zion, and says—"And when these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads, for your redemption draweth nigh."

An uplifted head naturally and Scripturally expresses joy and hope; while a bowed head expresses disappointment and grief. The joy of the church, as expressed by these holy seers, produced by witnessing these judgments, is not caused by the fact that the world is convulsed and the nations distressed, but because these things are symptoms that the disease of sin and the curse is about to be removed from our groaning world, and a healthful, perfect state about to be enjoyed. It is because "redemption draweth nigh." The case of the world as seen by the church may be illustrated by a person having a friend suffering severe sickness, and is told that the only remedy that can restore health necessarily produces intense pain and convulsive spasms, just before health is restored; but if a painless stupor is produced, death must ensue. In this case the joy of the anxious friend would depend upon witnessing the looked-for pain and spasms. So it is with the expectant church. She is told that she must first witness the development of the Man of Sin, the dark age of fearful persecution to the church, followed by general convulsions in the physical world, with mighty revolution-struggles among the nations, the uncovering of festering, sickening, moral corruptions, ending with woeful battles, gleaming lightnings and rending earthquakes. Then the heavenly day of eternal radiance shall break upon the lurid darkness of a dissolving, ruined world.

Such is the prophetic road over which the church must pass to the land of heavenly rest.

Where, on this thorny and dangerous path, is the weary Bride of Christ? Has she passed the dark night of papal tribulation? Has Zion heard the news of last-day judgments? and does she rejoice because she sees in them tokens of speedy deliverance? What meaneth the exciting fact that our news columns are filled daily with the most startling announcements of destructive "earthquakes in divers places?" Why these whirlwinds "on the coasts of the earth," thunderings, lightnings and hail, as "the clouds pour out water"? What mean the wonders in the heavens and in the earth, "blood, and fire, and pillars of smoke"?

All things in this world, susceptible of change and revolution, are being "shaken." The earth and heavens are in a state of perturbation; all the elements show signs of general convulsion. Society is every where threatened with universal disintegration; for it is losing its adhesive power, and being filled with faction and disloyalty.

The commercial world is seriously afflicted with loss of confidence, general extortion, and alarming defalcations. Masters and servants are becoming fearfully antagonistic, "laborers" clamoring for their just "wages," while the "rich" "have heaped their treasure together for the last days."

The great Roman nations are preparing for "war" by waking "up the men of war," and causing "all the men of war to draw near," by universal conscription laws. "Plowshares" are being beaten into "swords" because soldiers are becoming proportionately much more numerous than husbandmen. The Lady of Kingdoms is lifting up her defiant voice in her Vatican decrees against the sovereignty of the kings, thus producing the predicted war between church and state, which must end, according to inspiration, in the utter demolition of Great Babylon.

Are not these the foretold judgments which should make God's Zion "glad," because she would see beyond them a fairer day, a more quiet resting place?

These alarming events certainly fit the prophetic mould exactly. Is there any body cheered with future prospects by hearing of the recent earthquakes in South America? Immediately following this, Iceland was shaken as a drunkard reels to and fro, and opened its ancient craters, vomiting forth the boiling, seething contents of its subterraneous furnace, scattering the ashes into the heavens, and falling far away to the depth of several inches, on the sides of Norway's mountains. Have not the "clouds poured out water" within a few months, and swept the people, beasts and property as the waters of Noah did the antediluvians? At Pittsburg, Pa., in the Rocky mountains, Southern California, Michigan, and many other places on this continent, also in China, Japan, Persia, and more recently in France and Bohemia, Moravia, Corinthia, the Tyrol and Banat. In China and Persia the floods destroyed thousands of lives, and many millions of property. In France the waters last month destroyed in one town 2600 houses and about 900 lives, and property to the amount of about sixty millions of dollars. The destruction in a number of other towns was very great. The loss of life and property in Germany was very great, but the statistics are not given.

If such events are not judgments of God upon the people, what shall we call them?

"Blood and fire" are also being alarmingly manifested in the most shocking and numerous murders, with rapidly increasing incendiary fires. All these things alarm the world, and their "hearts fail them for fear" as they watch the onward progress of the dark and fearful cloud. But some of God's people rejoice as these tokens of the culmination of the curse and the speedy introduction of the new and curseless world are seen.

WHICH?

It is sometimes said by those who do not believe that the gift of the Spirit takes place after justification, as an event distinct from it, that they received this gift when they were converted. If this is true, then it will follow that not one probably in a hundred, among the active members of churches are yet converted. Which side shall we take, that none are converted, only those who are filled with the Spirit, or admit that the gift of the Spirit takes place subsequent to pardon? Among all our acquaintance, we have not found more than two or three who gave satisfactory evidence that they received the gift of the Spirit within twenty-four hours after pardon. We believe it is the privilege of all to ask and receive this gift immediately after they are forgiven, yet but few find the way as soon as they might; so we believe it is the privilege of children to become christians from four to six years of age, but most wait till older. So the great majority of truly justified persons wait from months to many years before they put themselves in a position to be filled with the Spirit.

We think think nearly all who have received a clear evidence that they are filled with the Spirit, will testify that if that is what persons receive at conversion, then they were not converted before; yet they had a very satisfactory witness of the Spirit that their sins had been pardoned, before they sought and obtained the blessed gift, or baptism of the Spirit. It is not the backslidden portion of the church that receive this gift, but the best members, who are living for the most part of the time without condemnation, and yet feel an emptiness. The backslider must obtain pardon for his wanderings, or be restored to full justification, before he can expect to be filled with the Spirit, No doubt some mistake the witness of the Spirit, testifying that their backslidings are forgiven, for the gift of the Spirit that may be received after their justification. They feel so much better than when in their cold formalism, they take the witness of cleansing for the witness of filling. There is a positive distinction between the two. It is one thing to cleanse a vessel, another to fill it. We must be cleansed from all sin before we can be "filled with the Spirit."

Every person living in a justified, or pardoned condition, would be saved. No one can be justified in his sins. So long as known sin remains, he is in a state of condemnation; but mere pardon for his sins, including the evidence that the work is fully done, is not the same thing as the gift of the Spirit, which in almost every case is not till weeks, months, or years, after the clear witness of justification.

We say nearly all the active members of churches who have the clear evidence of the enjoyment of perfect love, testify that they were either not converted, at the time when they had a perfectly satisfactory evidence of justification, or else the gift of the Holy Spirit is an event after pardon. Which side shall we take? We think the Bible is very plain on this subject, showing that the gift of the Spirit is only for those who are first forgiven, and after that, it is their privilege to be baptized with the Spirit, and walk blameless before God.

No one can live a true christian life, and at the same time not be condemned, more or less by the world, and formal professors. Jesus and the apostles met with bitter condemnation, and were represented as very bad persons, which resulted in their untimely death at the hands of their persecutors, but the truly holy person has no feeling of hatred towards those who may endeavor to injure him. He can say, of a truth I love my enemies. This love is the fruit of the Spirit dwelling in him. The glory all belongs to Jesus, who produces this love by the power of his Spirit. It is a blessed condition, which no tongue can express. It is truly a peace that "passeth understanding." Praise the Lord for free and full salvation.

Dear reader, are you enjoying "perfect love?" Is the heart clean? Are you ready to meet Jesus?

OCEAN GROVE.

It has been our privilege to spend a few days at the Ocean Grove Holiness Convention, in N. J. It commenced July 9th and continued ten days. Ocean Grove is the most delightful and convenient place for a campmeeting we have ever seen. Disorder is unknown there. The whole place seems sacred, and is indeed consecrated to the Lord for religious uses. We have seen no other place where a christian can find such a pleasant retiring place in the summer as at Ocean Grove. The society is very choice, noted for intelligence and devotion. Many go there to get physical, mental and religious strength, and the number is rapidly increasing. The sea breeze gives a charm to the summer days, which would otherwise be oppressively warm. There are excellent opportunities for ocean bathing; also a beautiful fresh water lake, on which are some two hundred row boats that afford a pleasant and healthful exercise. There is a post office, telegraph office, stores, markets, bakery, and other conveniences, common to a small village.

There are over three hundred neat and comfortable cottage houses, and quite a number of tents, besides one large tabernacle. The camp-ground occupies the central portion, and is pleasantly shaded with oaks and pines. The whole ground wears a very inviting appearance. Yea, more, it is really charming, and leads one to think of the ancient paradise, and of the one to come, where sin and misery will be unknown.

Visitors can find good accommodations in the various boarding houses. Among them is the Howland House, very near the camp-ground. It is home-like, and well kept by Bro. Howland. It contains about sixty rooms, every one of which has two doors, one opens into the hall, and the other on to a pleasant veranda, which extends around the entire house. From several of these rooms one may have a view of the ocean, and the passing shipping. There is one feature of Ocean Grove society which is specially pleasing to a real christian, and that is the modest, plain apparel worn by the first-class women. A woman fashionably dressed looks as much out of place at Ocean Grove as would one in modest apparel at Saratoga, or Newport. Intelligent, holy women, at Ocean Grove, are setting an example worthy of imitation. A pure christianity is not often found covered with costly and fashionable apparel, or decked with gold, pearls, or diamonds, feathers or flowers. These things do not become the humble disciples of Christ.

At these holiness campmeetings the fashionable, formal, veneered, bejeweled, tobacco-using, croquet-playing, ease-minded, pleasure-loving religion, finds no favors or a support. They are after the old-fashioned, vital godliness, that makes a man a new creature, and affords a positive evidence of his acceptance by the Lord.

We found quite a number who believe Jesus is coming soon. The interest on this subject is steadily advancing. Prejudice is fast giving way before the clear evidence which shows we are near the great day of the Lord. The signs of the times begin to attract special attention, and the Holy Spirit is leading the humble disciples of Jesus to look up and rejoice because their redemption is at hand. We met at Ocean Grove able ministers who are looking for the speedy coming of the Savior. They have but recently commenced looking at the subject with favor, but they are satisfied it demands their attention, and we learn that some of them have already commenced talking to their congregations on the subject, and welcome to their pulpits those who can give the prophetic evidence, and the reasons of our hope. Let us thank the Lord for these encouragements, which are multiplying in all directions. Hold fast, Brn., we are surely almost home.

THE HEAVENLY FAMILY.

Please explain through the Crisis the following passage: "Of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named."—Eph. 3: 15. Who are the whole family in heaven?

J. A. C.

A family is composed of a company of persons associated together. Heaven, in this passage, evidently means the abode of the Lord. Who compose his family or associates? We think the ready answer comes—the angels. Heaven is their home. They constitute the heavenly family. They are to be the escort of Jesus when he returns. They are called "the holy ones." We read in Jude 14: "Enoch also, the seventh from Adam, prophesied of these, saying, Behold, the Lord cometh with ten thousand of his saints." Here the word saints would be properly rendered, holy ones. The term is applied to both holy angels and holy men; hence the Lord's family in heaven is composed of holy angels, and his family on earth of holy men. The time is coming when these two families are to be united. Then the family on earth will be made "equal to the angels" (Luke 11: 36), or the "family in heaven," and will not "die any more." We think Paul refers to this time when he says: "That in the dispensation of the fulness of times, he might gather together in one all things in Christ, both which are in heaven and which are on earth." Eph. 1: 1. They will all dwell together as one happy family, with Jesus in their midst, as a constant companion.

We believe the first union of the two families will be at the Marriage Supper of the Lamb, immdiately following the first resurrection, at the coming of Christ, and that the union will take place in the New Jerusalem. We think the scene is described in Rev. 7: 9–11, where the Revelator is shown in vision the innumerable company of the redeemed standing "before the throne, and before the Lamb, clothed with white robes, and palms in their hands," while "all the angels stood round about the throne," uniting with the saints in giving glory to God. This appears to be the time when Christ will gather together in one "the whole family in heaven and earth," who are named after him, and delight in his worship.

"A MOTIVE POWER."

We received a note a few days since from a devoted and intelligent lady, who says:—

"I have sometimes thought I should like to attend a campmeeting where the thought of the coming of our Lord was held prominent. My whole life, more and more, is given to waiting for this; for without study or theory on the subject, the fact has woven itself into my consciousness, and forms a motive power."

This is not a solitary experience, but they are being multiplied in all directions. As persons consecrate themselves entirely to Christ, as this lady has done, they are then led by the Spirit and word to see that the coming of Christ is a near event, and to feel anxious to hear on the subject. Devoted christian men and women in all denominations are having their attention turned to this blessed theme. The movement on holiness leads directly to this result. When one loves the Lord with all his heart, it is a natural result that such a person should desire the coming of Jesus, and seek for evidence in favor of his return. We believe this class will be rapidly increased till the Bride of the Lamb is all ready for the heavenly marriage.

HOLINESS CONVENTION.—Another Union National Convention for the promotion of Bible holiness is to be held at Sea Cliff, Long Island, N. Y., commencing at three o'clock P. M., Wednesday, July 28th, and closing Monday evening, Aug. 2nd. This will be a very important meeting, and those interested in this subject will do well to attend.

☞ NEXT WEEK we shall publish an interesting letter from Bro. H. F. Carpenter, who has safely arrived with his family in California, after a most prosperous journey.

FLOODS AND FLAMES.—The reports of floods and flames that come from various parts of the world are truly startling. The entire loss by the floods in the south of France is estimated at from sixty to seventy-five million dollars, besides the destruction of many lives. It is said "corpses have been counted by hundreds"; and "property lost has been estimated by millions of dollars. Twenty thousand persons are reduced from comfort to beggary. Nothing that has ever happened in America can be compared to it except Chicago's fire. But in that, little over one hundred persons perished." The sufferers by the Chicago fire found some relief from the Insurance companies. But there was no insurance against the floods in France. The poor in that country are exceedingly frugal, and many of them, after several years of economy, save enough to secure a comfortable home for old age; but the flood took away their all, and there is no chance to build up again. How uncertain are all things in this world. Let us set our affections on things above, not on things on the earth. Soon deliverance will come.

ROBERT DALE OWEN is said to be insane. He has been a noted defender of Spiritualism, and when the dark-circle phenomena were exposed, as in the case of Katie King and others, it produced sad effects on Mr. Owen's mind, and is reported as the cause of his insanity. When he saw his strong fort give way, on which he had placed so much reliance, the shock has resulted in shattering his noble intellectual faculties.

Mr. Owen is known as a man who honestly believed in the dark-circle performances, and who looked them as affording strong evidence for the support of the truth of Spiritualism. He has been known as a man of superior mental ability, and accepted as one of the strong men who have supported modern Spiritualism.

HOLINESS.—At the great holiness convention in Brighton, England, it is said every nation on the continent was represented except Turkey and Portugal. There were missionaries present from Persia, various parts of India, Palestine, China, West and South Africa, and Australia. The meetings were held in the palace of George IV. The city authorities gave the convention the free use of all the buildings. The results of the convention were glorious. The interest on the subject is rapidly advancing in all directions. Every true disciple of Jesus in the whole world should lend a helping hand to this closing work of the present dispensation.

M. G.

THERE is always a degree of short-coming and failure which we should charge upon ourselves before God, to meet which we need continually the cleansing blood of Christ.

THE TRACT FUND.

THE ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY, at a meeting on Springfield camp-ground, August 13th, 1874, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

FROM BRO. T. G. GREENE.

Dear Brethren:—Thinking it might be satisfactory to you and the dear ones scattered abroad to hear from me, I resolved to write you a brief account of my labor in the vineyard.

You doubtless remember that I informed you before of my becoming involved in debt, and was obliged to go to work, or do that which I deemed far worse. I have been working very hard to get on a level again, only preaching a part of my time, and of nights; but I am thankful to be able to say, that I am again in the field, and do hope and believe with the whole armor on.

I began a series of meetings at Oak Grove, Columbia Co., June 19th, and held over two Sabbaths. Although the house was filled to overflowing at the first meeting, the audience continued to increase in numbers and interest till the close, June 27th, when a large concourse of people collected from every direction in a beautiful grove previously prepared for the occasion; and one of the best open air meetings took place, after which we assembled at the beautiful stream called "Big Creek," and buried six in the likeness of Christ's death. May they continue faithful, is my humble prayer.

Thus ended one of the best meetings I ever attended. All appeared deeply interested in the subject, and never have I witnessed such attention, no one leaving his seat going out and in, no whispering and laughing during service. The people in Columbia Co. are the best behaved of any county I have yet visited, and are more intelligent and enlightened. Even the Methodists and Baptists who assembled gave us every attention I could desire, many inviting me to partake of their hospitalities and making their house my home.

By unanimous vote of the church I have consented to preach for them once a month, and hope with God's blessing much good may be done, when the church is properly organized and disciplined, which never has been the case. I have many calls from every direction to preach in new places, but am obliged to refuse many for want of means; but you may rest assured that I will do all for the cause in my power. O how much we need men who feel the "woe" resting heavily upon them, to labor in the Lord's vineyard; for the harvest is fully ripe, and now, if ever, the sheaves must be brought in. But we do not want any one to cause division by coming in among the little flock and teaching doctrines of men, or of devils; we do not want any who are wise above that which is written; but those who are meek and lowly and full of the Spirit.

Dear brethren, one and all, let us arm ourselves for the last bloody contest, buckle on the armor, and fight valiantly a little longer. Soon the song of triumph will be heard from pole to pole. The last great battle will soon be over, and then palms of victory and crowns of glory will be ours forevermore. Pray for me.

Olustee, Fla., July 2nd, 1875.

THE NATIONAL CAMPMEETING.

Dear Brethren:—Our national gathering will soon be upon us. The annual campmeeting at Springfield is an important one, and more so as we near the consummation for which we have so long been looking. It is to be hoped that this year the Lord will favor us with his special presence, by the Holy Spirit, so that great good may be accomplished in the cause of Jesus Christ and his soon coming.

This is the time to make choice of our helps to carry on this heavenly warfare, and in order for prosperity we should have the cause of truth and its prosperity by a spiritual growth in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ uppermost in our minds; so when we start for the meeting the inquiry should be, What will please the Lord? What will be best to build us up on our "most holy faith," and bind us more closely together? What course can we take that will lead others to see the beauty and loveliness of that Christianity that unites and makes all one?

If we come to the meeting as we should, self left behind, our wills so completely in harmony with Jesus as they should by those looking for their Savior, we shall have the best meeting ever held on the tented grove. So I beseech you, dearly beloved, leave everything that would gender strife, or jealousy, and lay yourselves out to do one another good, the most good possible. The Bible being our only rule of faith and practice, I hope to see the benign influence by the fulness of the divine Spirit exerting a mighty power to sweeten every motion and direct every movement in our acts and action as a body. It seems to me that everything is at stake here. Let love be the ruling action of every heart; sectarianism, bigotry and exclusiveness leave forever behind you; unite in the spirit of Christianity with all that will unite in the love of truth; let no little difference of opinion separate us. Where we have been unwise in the past, let us be wise in the future.

I hope the business matters will have a prayerful consideration, and that all will come to the sacred grove to do their duty under a sense of their deep responsibilities to the great Head of the church. Let all our selfish preferences, likes and dislikes, be swallowed up in the greatest good for the cause. There must be a oneness, a combined effort, a uniting of all the forces of God's chosen people by a holy unction that will give us power with God and his people. Christ, his word, his Spirit, his will, his coming, with the love of it, must be in us and through us, directing every thought, every act; this would give us an Advent, holy, sanctification meeting, such as all our meetings ought to be from this till Christ comes. O Lord! grant us such a meeting this year.

We that live in this generation, when the signs of our Lord's coming are seen all around us, making it certain that he will soon appear, are responsible for this light; so it is our bounden duty to let our light shine. Then let us hold fast the profession, or confession, of our faith without wavering. This is a national meeting of the lovers of Jesus and his soon coming. We are called upon to come (with all others) and confer together as to the best method of carrying out our faith, so that others may fall in love with it. I pray we may have divine direction.

My dear brethren, let us pray for this meeting, and for his people that may come, especially for the preachers and for one another.

CONFERENCE REPORT.

The Advent Christian Annual Conference of Nova Scotia assembled at Bear River, according to appointment, Thursday, June 17th. Preaching brethren present:—J. J. Woodworth, A. B. Swanesburg, Wm. Halliday, N. H. Reed, Stephen Woodworth, J. M. Tozier, and J. B. Fitch. Reports from the different churches showed that there had been quite a number converted and baptized during the past year, and that the truth is spreading extensively, especially in the western part of our province. From some quarters, although much coldness and indifference were reported as existing, still, hope was expressed of soon seeing a general awakening up to the duties and responsibilities devolving upon us as a people.

The prayer and social meetings of our Conference were good; the preaching earnest and to the point. The coming of Christ, resurrection of the dead, glorification, redemption of the earth, etc., were truthfully presented, and the necessity of conversion and a godly life shown to be pre-requisites in order to obtain a home in the kingdom of Christ.

The meeting-house was crowded with attentive hearers, and one young lady, who had come a long way to attend our meetings, fell in love with Jesus and his truth, confessed her Savior, and was buried in the likeness of his death in baptism, and went on her way rejoicing.

Conference held its first meeting for business on Saturday. The best of feeling prevailed in the transaction of the business. The unity of the Spirit was preserved throughout. Officers elected for the following year were, for President, J. M. Tozier; Secretary and Treasurer, James Morrison.

A resolution was introduced at this meeting which, after some discussion, was supplanted by the following amendment, which was carried and ordered to be forwarded to the World's Crisis for publication:—

"Resolved, That this Conference is of the opinion that the matters relating to the publishing of Eld. J. V. Himes as a wicked and immoral man, have been handled in such a manner as to present the appearance that the whole subject demands a thorough investigation."

One prominent feature of our meetings was the presence of several of the old veterans of the 1843 movement. Their earnest faith and telling testimonies proved that though disappointed in the past they were strong in faith, giving glory to God, and still looking for the coming King. Conference adjourned on Monday, June 21st.

JAMES MORRISON, Secretary.

Correspondence.

From S. P. Hayward.

Dear Brn. and Srs.:—Deriving much comfort from time to time by reading letters which I receive from those that are looking for the same Jesus that I am, and from words of cheer that I get every week from the Crisis, I in turn am glad to have an opportunity and a desire to add my testimony to the cloud of witnesses, and to urge all to run with patience the race set before them.

To-day is the day that has been set apart as a national holiday, and various ways have men celebrated what is called Independence day. But, alas! not one of them can truthfully say they are independent. Of all the creatures God has created not one is more dependent than man. Born into the world the most feeble creature, to be nursed from infancy into childhood by a mother's tender hand, then up the hill of youth and manhood, to pass over and down the journey through old age to the grave; and all along the pathway he has been dependent for his existence. Dependent upon his fellow men, dependent upon animals that are subject to him; and back of all this, dependent upon God for all blessings, for "from him cometh every good and perfect gift." "Which of you, by taking thought, can add one cubit unto his stature?" asked the Master. Not one, but all alike dependent.

Yes, when I realize that this hand that wields the pen to-day may become useless in death, and that there is no power but the power of God through Jesus can make it live again, I am glad that I am willing to be saved, that I am dependent upon Him who is able to save, and that he that believeth can be saved. And could we convince men that they were dependent upon God, not only for blessings to make life pleasant, but that they were dependent upon Christ the Life-giver for life and being beyond the grave, there would, I believe, be more inquiring the way of life, instead of many that say now there is no resurrection of the dead, to life beyond.

But so long as men feel they are independent and can never die, so long they will go on in wickedness, unthankful and unholy, and consequently without a saving faith in Jesus and his saving power. Nevertheless we are dependent, and are held responsible for the way we use our probation time, and shall be brought into judgment at the great day to be judged according to our works.

We may have a degree of freedom in this life, and use the breath even, which he gives us to praise him, in blaspheming; but there is no independence till after we have received it in the kingdom as a reward for a "patient continuance in well doing"; then we shall need no Savior to save from death, for there will be no death there. And may all that are striving make a full entrance, is the prayer of your humble servant.

East Pepperell, July 5th, 1875.

Obituaries.

BUNN. Bro. David Bunn, of the tribe of the Shinnecock Indians, Southampton, Long Island, N. Y., died June 18th, 1875.

I was at their "June meeting," which was instituted not only for the purpose of gathering the tribe together so far as practicable, but for the purpose of settling all individual difficulties in the tribe at least once a year. Bro. B. brought me to Sag Harbor to take the boat, and in our conversation he says: "Bro. Pratt, there has been a solemn impression left on the minds of the people, and I want you to come again this summer, and stay a week or two."

How little did I think that I was listening to the last words I should ever hear from his lips in this life. But it was so. Soon after, I opened a letter from his christian daughter which read as follows:

"Bro. Pratt:—It is just three weeks to-night since we bade you good bye, and since that time what changes, what sorrow, we have had in our little home. Father, dear father, is dead. Oh, how sad and lonely we are! Yes, he is gone, and we miss him everywhere. . . . . He was sick just a week, but we thought it was one of his old attacks of kidney complaint, and he would soon be better, but instead, he grew worse and feebler every day. He called the brethren and sisters to see him the night before he died to pray with him. His last wish was for them to pray, if it was the Lord's will, that he might get well again, but if not, His will be done. He got so happy that he got right out of his bed alone. We think that we have a good assurance that father was resigned to the will of the Lord; and if we are faithful we shall meet him again 'on that beautiful shore.' Father was seventy-three years, one month, and nineteen days old."

Truly a father in Israel has fallen. His aged and faithful wife, his kind and affectionate daughter, and her son, his dear kindred and tribe, and especially the little church over which he has had such watchful care, need the prayers and sympathy of the faithful, that the "Father of mercies" may comfort and lead them softly amid the briers and thorns of this world, safely to his "holy hill."

He sleeps. A life's hard toil is o'er;
He rests in peace, he'll wake to die no more.

H. PRATT.

SADDLER. John Saddler, of Mechanicsburg, Cumberland Co., Pa., died July 1st, 1875, aged sixty-five years, seven months, and twenty-six days.

Bro. Saddler embraced the doctrine of the personal and pre-millennial advent of Christ in 1843, and continued a faithful believer and earnest advocate of the doctrine until his death. He was also a believer in the doctrine of the sleep of the soul and the destruction of the wicked; and it was his request that the writer of his obituary should say that he died in that faith. We visited him twice during his sickness, and although we differed very much with him in his views of the state of the soul after death, etc., we admired his candor, and enjoyed the fervor of his religion and the degree and simplicity of his faith. He loved to talk of the love of God as manifested in the great plan of redemption, and the near approach of that glad day when the redemption in all its fulness shall be manifested. He had no fear of death, but spoke of it as being desirable. He fell asleep very peacefully.

On Saturday, the 3d inst., a large assembly of friends gathered at his late residence to show their esteem for the dead and for the bereaved. There were present nearly all the pastors of the place and members from all the denominations. They were addressed from the words of 1 Cor. 15: 57. Bro. Saddler leaves a wife and three adult children to mourn his departure, but to rejoice in the hope that, when the Lord comes, he will bring the departed with him. MARTIN STUTZMAN.

WILLIS. At East Farnham, P. Q., June 26th, 1875, Bro. Geo. W. Willis, aged forty years.

Bro. Willis sleeps in Jesus. He had been declining in health for nearly two years, until at last about two months since, he left his home in Seymour, Wis., for Canada, where he had formerly lived, in hopes that change of climate would produce a salutary effect, but such desires were not to be realized. Among kind and sympathizing friends who administered to every want, he lingered for a little time, slowly but surely wasting away. His desire to recover was very strong, and his confidence that such would be the case only forsook him at the very last. The friends seeing that recovery was impossible telegraphed to his wife, who was one thousand two hundred miles away, to come immediately. She arrived only in time to sit by his bedside a few hours, when he drew his last expiring breath.

Three things were remarkably noticeable. The absence of mental or physical suffering, the retention of his intellectual faculties to the very last, and his calm resignation and sweet peace in the Lord Jesus Christ. The occasion was improved by the writer, who addressed a large concourse of mourning and sympathizing friends from John 10: 10. May the Lord bless and comfort the weeping widow and fatherless children. Jer. 49: 11. E. G. CHADSEY.

HARDING. In Bristol, Me., June 24th, Sister Nancy, wife of Capt. S. Harding, aged sixty-four years.

Sister H. has for many years been a follower of Christ, and a firm believer in his immediate return, loving dearly to hear the news of his coming. She was a faithful wife, devoted mother, sincere friend, kind neighbor, and humble christian. Many of the servants of Christ have found her to be a mother indeed to them. She bore all her sufferings with much patience, rejoicing in Christ her Savior, and exhorting all who visited her to prepare for the coming judgment. She sleeps in Jesus. Bro. H., six children, several brothers and sisters, and many friends are made sad by her death, but comforted by the joyful hope of Jesus' soon coming to raise her to eternal life. May they all be prepared by grace to meet her in the eternal kingdom.

The funeral services were conducted by the writer, Sunday, June 27th, who gave a discourse to a large audience and many mourners, founded on 1 Thess. 4: 15, 18. I. C. WELLCOME.

MILLER. Fell asleep in Jesus, June 8th, 1875, Sr. Lois A., wife of Joseph Miller, of Ripley Hill, N. Y., of typhoid pneumonia, aged thirty-four years and seventeen days.

Sr. Austin was baptized by the writer in 1859, and was married by him to Joseph Miller, in 1860. She was a lover of the glorious truths of the Advent; yet for some time had become rather cold in the cause of her Master, not having the privileges of meeting as formerly. But for a few months before her death she and others in the neighborhood became interested in the cause of Jesus, and some souls were converted to God. Her great desire was for her husband, that he might be prepared to meet her in the blessed kingdom of God. She also leaves four dear children in a cold-hearted world. O Lord! direct for their good. JOHN T. ONGLEY.

FISHER. In Levant, Me., Dec. 28th, 1874, Bro. Wellington Fisher, aged forty-seven years.

He was a meek and courteous christian man, confided in and loved by all who knew him. His end was peace. May God sustain the widow and fatherless. Funeral sermon by the writer.

F. A. BAKER.

HOWARD. In Braintree, Vt., Jan. 17th, after a brief illness, Sr. Lucena, wife of Bro. Lewis S. Howard, aged sixty years, eight months, and fifteen days.

Sister Howard was a calm and quiet christian, having a strong hope of immortality through Christ, the Life-Giver, at the resurrection of the just near at hand. She passed away calmly in this blessed hope, leaving a husband and daughter to mourn, but not as those without hope. This affliction falls very heavily on Bro. Howard in his feeble state of health. Services at the funeral by the writer. Numbers 23: 10.

JEHIEL CLAFLIN.

DOE. In China, Me., May 8th, 1875, Bro. Jedediah Doe, aged sixty-six years.

Thus has death taken another from our midst, one beloved by all who knew him. He died in hope of soon seeing Jesus, and being made like him, to die no more. Bro. D. leaves a wife and one daughter, with a large circle of other relatives and friends to mourn his loss. May God bless them, with us, and help us all to be ready to meet him on the other shore. A. H. WALKER.

WATSON. In Rye, N. H., May 21st, 1875, Moody Watson, aged seventy-three years and four months.

We can truly say in his case, a christian has fallen asleep. Funeral sermon by E. B. WELLS.

ROBY. In Warner, N. H., July 6th, 1875, of consumption, Mary E., eldest daughter of George S. Roby, of Boscawen, N. H., aged fifteen years, six months, and nine days.

"Blessed are the pure in heart; for they shall see God."

LONDON, July 13. At Messrs. Moody and Sankey's farewell meeting last night one hundred and eighty-eight clergymen of the Church of England were present, far out-numbering those of any other denomination. Canon Conway of Westminster occupied a seat on the platform.

All those present were deeply affected. Mr. Moody, while speaking, was so overcome with emotion that he had to stop and was unable to conclude his address.

The following is the number of meetings held by Messrs. Moody and Sankey in London during the past four months, with the aggregate of attendance:

In Camberwell, sixty meetings, attended by 480,000 persons; in Victoria, forty-five meetings, attended by 40,000 persons; in the Opera House, sixty meetings, attended by 330,000 persons; in Bow, sixty meetings, attended by 600,000 persons; and in Agricultural Hall, sixty meetings, attended by 720,000 persons.

The amount of money expended for buildings, printing, stewards, etc., is $140,000. Messrs. Moody and Sankey have declined to receive any compensation from the committee.

From Zion's Herald:—"Rev. George Trask is in a fair way to have an efficient successor in Rev. I. C. Wellcome, of Yarmouth, Me. We have received a spirited tract from his pen, entitled, 'The Tobacco Plug and Cigar.' Its seventy-two pages are crowded with facts and figures, forming a terrible indictment against the foolish and vulgar habit and expensive indulgence of the use of tobacco. We wish it the widest circulation and the utmost success in its important mission."

From the Portland Transcript:—"Rev. I. C. Wellcome, of Yarmouth, Me., publishes a neat pamphlet of seventy-two pages, against the use of the 'The Tobacco Plug and Cigar,' being a friendly talk with those who use tobacco, with the hope of benefitting them in health, mind and money. It is a complete treasury of anti-tobacco argument and appeal. Sold for $10 per hundred, $1.50 per dozen, 15 cents single copy. Send order to the author." Sold at the Crisis Office.

THE COMING OF THE SON OF GOD.

I hear the roused lioness howl to her mate.
In the thicket at midnight they roar for their prey,
That shall glut their red jaws at the rising of day;
For wrath is descending on Zion's proud tower:
It shall come like a cloud,
It shall wrap like a shroud,
Till, like Sodom, she sleeps in a sulphurous shower.

For behold! the day cometh when all shall be flame;
When, Zion! the sackcloth shall cover thy name;
When thy bark o'er the billows of death shall be driven;
When thy tree, by the lightnings from earth shall be riven;
When the oven, unkindled by mortal, shall burn;
And like chaff thou shalt glow
In that furnace of wo;
And, dust as thou wert, thou to dust shalt return.

'Tis the darkness of darkness, the midnight of soul!
No moon on the depths of that midnight shall roll.
No starlight shall pierce through that life-chilling haze;
No torch from the roof of the temple shall blaze.
But, when Israel is buried in final despair,
From a height o'er all height,
God of God, Light of Light,
Her Sun shall arise—her great Sovereign be there!

Then the sparkles of flame, from his chariot-wheels hurled,
Shall smite the crowned brow of the god of this world!
Then, captive of ages! the trumpet shall thrill
From the lips of the seraph on Zion's sweet hill.
For, vestured in glory, the Monarch shall come,
And from dungeon and cave
Shall ascend the pale slave;
Lost Judah shall rise, like the soul from the tomb.

Who rushes from heaven? The angel of wrath;
The whirlwind his wing, and the lightning his path!
His hand is uplifted, it carries a sword;
'T is Elijah! he heralds the march of the Lord!
Sun, sink in eclipse! Earth, earth shalt thou stand,
When the cherubim wings
Bear the King of thy kings?
Wo, wo to the ocean! Wo, wo to the land!

'T is the day long foretold, 'tis the judgment begun;
Gird thy sword, Thou most mighty! thy triumph is won.
The idol shall burn in his own gory shrine,
Then, daughter of anguish, thy dayspring shall shine!
Proud Zion, thy vale with the olive shall bloom,
And the musk-rose distill
Its sweet dews on thy hill;
For the earth is restored, the great kingdom is come!

NOTES BY THE WAY FROM NORTH CAROLINA TO ALABAMA.

To the A. A. M. Society.

Dear Brethren:—My last left me June 19th, I believe, at Mulberry Mills, in Caldwell county, N. C. Sunday morning, June 20th, I bade an affectionate farewell to Bro. Goodwin, who was too sick to go with me to church. The thunder storm in which we rode caused him to have a severe billious attack. Pray for him.

After leaving him I went again to Johns River, eight miles, to deliver my last discourse to that people. I expected to preach in Bro. Coffey's Mills, but on my arrival found the audience all in the church house, and Bro. R. H. Moody, the champion of Caldwell Co., seated in front of the pulpit with his Bible. He told me he expected to follow me with a talk on the same subject.

I tried to preach from the "devil's lie," Gen. 3: 4. After I finished, I told him to proceed. He arose, and ordered me to come down from the pulpit before he would enter it. I was amazed. I sat still, and asked him to repeat it. He said—"Have a seat down here, and I will come up and preach." I obeyed, and went down to the table. He told the people he would not reply to me, but would give his views. But he did take up my points, and tried to upset them; and such a "batch of stuff" it has seldom been my lot to hear.

He said "there was no use to use Greek and Hebrew phrases there, where people did not understand them." He was the worst Scripture garbler I ever heard, for an educated man. The following is a sample of his quotations: "Thou fool, that which thou sowest is not that body that shall be." Oh consistency! thou art a jewel"; but, alas! I seldom find thee in modern theology.

I began at 11.15 a. m. He closed at 2.15 p. m., without intermission. I asked for five minutes to reply. He said no, I had no right to it. When I closed my discourse before him we had a melting time, and the Spirit seemed resting on the large attentive audience. I seemed to offend him, and he told the people that my exhortation was out of place, and intimated that it was an ingenious trick to cover up my rotten doctrine. When he closed I asked the people to meet me at the Mill at 5 p. m., and I would reply to him.

He came with the large and attentive crowd, and we tried to show how he had garbled truth and made base assertions without proof. At the close I asked him to follow me. He said he had nothing to say.

When I was extending the parting hand to the many dear friends in this strange country, one who had been bitter towards us gave me $1, and said—"Now look here, Mister, if we are churched, you must come back and preach for us." So I concluded that Bro. M. gained no favor with christians by jumping at my last discourse. He said it was because some had said he was afraid of me. I fear he seeks honor of men, and at the same time he is such a coward that he is afraid somebody will call him so. God pity him and give him a little more humility, which is the prime ornament of a christian.

Monday morning, I started for the cars (with my kind little friend, Finley Coffey, who is a very promising youth, fourteen years old), eighty or ninety miles through the mountains on horseback. Arrived at Blowing Rock in Wantaga Co., and stopped with Bro. Morris the p. m. at that place. I spoke to a crowded house at night and agreed to speak again next morning. Tuesday, June 22nd, by 8½ o'clock a. m., the house and porch were filled, and I spoke from Matt. 5: 5. We enjoyed a melting time, and feel that good was done. Two ministers present.

We mounted at half-past ten, and rode seven miles to Shull's church, where, despite the rain, I found a crowd awaiting to hear me. I spoke an hour and a quarter, and as I mounted some brethren came out to me and asked me to give them a call again, but nobody said have dinner; so we rode off in the rain. We rode nearly thirty miles that day, and spoke three times; the third time at night, in the dwelling of a Baptist minister, who invited me to preach, and charged us fifty cents. We reached Johnson City Thursday, June 24th, where I sorrowfully parted with my beloved friend Finley. At night I spoke in a Seminary building to an attentive crowd. Some brethren were so interested as to follow me to the Hotel and keep me up talking till a very late hour. Here I bought my own candles, and paid the landlord two dollars.

Friday, June 25th, came to Philadelpha, Tenn. Found the churches all closed against me, but a kind Bro. Mitchell opened his dwelling, where I spoke to a small crowd, on account of the Masonic Lodge and a heavy cloud threatening rain. Saturday, went to Mouse Creek. Sunday, the 27th, met my dear wife, who had come to enjoy a few meetings with me, which she seldom has the privilege of doing, as she has to look after home. Heard Bro. Robert Rice at 11 a. m. He paid no attention to me. I spoke at night and invited him to take part, which he did.

Monday, 28th, back to Philadelpha by earnest request. Spoke at night in the porch of a Bro. Hamilton, in a stone's throw of a church. The ladies sat on the porch, and the gentlemen out on the ground; but God blessed us nevertheless, and we felt at home. Tuesday, back to Mouse Creek. Spoke again at night. Wednesday, to Ooltewah, and rested over till Saturday. Met the church, and preached in the afternoon.

Sunday, July 4th, we tried to preach at the funeral of Bro. Silas Smith. The crowd was large, and the attention all we could ask. The Lord strengthened me, for I was nearly worn out. Bro. Hall, of the Orthodox ranks, closed with good effect. We then came together around the Lord's table. Bro. Hall assisted in the administration of the elements, and we felt the power of the Spirit.

We reached home Monday, July 5th. Found our dear ones well, and feel to praise the Lord for his goodness to us. We have spent the month among strangers in the flesh, but found many who are dear to us in the spirit of Jesus. In North Carolina are many friends of the truth, and Bro. Moody has said that he will preach the heresy out of them, or preach them out of the church. So we expect some will return to wallowing in the mire, but we feel sure that many love the truth well enough to breast anything that may arise. May God sustain them in every hour of peril. I have endeavored to give them practical, every-day Christianity, along with the doctrines which distinguish us as a people. This, my good Bro. Moody thought uncalled for, but the people seem to be awakening to a higher life, and I praise God for it; for the preachers have spent, I fear, too much time caviling over modes of baptism, and also growling for better pay, while Satan has been busy among them. The result naturally is, a great many creed-bound professors, and, I am sorry to say, very few Christ-like pilgrims.

"Well may thy servants mourn, my God,
The church's desolation;
Her pastors love to live at ease,
They covet wealth and honor;
And while they seek such things as these,
They bring reproach upon her."

O God, help us all to live nearer to thee, and spend our time in winning souls to be ready for thee at thy coming. I hope to see you, dear brethren, at campmeeting. Pray for me. John A. Cargile.

Stevenson, Ala., July 8th, 1875.

LATE TO MEETING.

HIRAM MUNGER.

I never knew people late to meeting who were punctual in other matters. It is annoying to the speaker, and to those who want to hear, to have people coming in after preaching has commenced. If meeting commences at half-past ten, preaching begins at eleven, and all can get there if they will, except something happens. There is a great fault with some, always late to meeting, that does not speak well for their religion or business tact, besides the bad example and the disturbance of the meeting.

Dr. Redfield said, when holding a protracted meeting, if the people were late, and he had begun to preach, he would rather they would go back than to disturb him and the whole meeting; that the preaching would do such but little good, if any, for such were generally lazy or proud of their fashions, and wanted to show them to as many as possible, and the devil knew if they came in late all would look around at them.

Dr. Redfield was a man of God, and God blessed his labors, if he did talk of these inconsistencies publicly. By so doing he revolutionized the habit of coming to meeting late, which is nine times out of ten. It is a lazy habit, and ought not to be countenanced, or go unreproved, for conscience' sake. He gave them the time of the place, and asked them to set their clock by it. It is a bad sign to pretend to have a timepiece ten to fifteen minutes out of the right time, which will account partly for the variation of some twenty to thirty minutes in different people getting to meeting. Some get tired of sitting before others come; then if they have a long sermon, patience suffers. Do think of this.

THE LOVE OF GOD.

T. L. WAUGH.

"And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us. God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him."—1 John 4: 16.

Who can fathom the infinite love of God to us? He so loved the world that he gave his dear Son to die for those who had rebelled against his laws, and who were therefore justly condemned to eternal death. Jesus came and suffered an agonizing death on the cross that we might live and thus escape the judgments that otherwise would surely have been meted out to us. This is the love that God hath to us. And I wonder how any heart can be so hard as to turn away from bleeding mercy, and spurn the only hope there is for poor sinners.

What a theme! The love of God! If it had not been for such love I never should have been led to seek him. It is the life of the christian religion. I can truly say that I love him, and I desire that others may be led to see the loveliness there is in Jesus. There is an irresistible power in love to melt the hardest heart—to bring back the wanderer from God—to unite the children of God in one bond of union. No matter how depraved, or how vile and polluted by sin, there is cleansing in the blood of Jesus.

If I should tell my present experience, it would be that I love God with all my heart; and the more I love him, the more I love my brethren and sisters, and they are all of God's dear children, and the more I love everybody else. I believe it is our privilege to live in the experience of perfect love. And the only way I have ever received this, was by just submitting to the Savior, and letting him fill me with his blessed Spirit. It is not by struggling, nor by constant pleading, but rather by yielding to obey. He is more willing to bless than we sometimes realize. Let us be true to Jesus, and seek to please him in all things.

Ye wanderers from God, come back to the fold of Christ. Stay away no longer, for Jesus longs to save you. It seems to me, people do not realize how much Jesus loves them, or they would not reject him. It should lead every heart at once to the feet of the dear Savior. I feel sometimes that I should love him even if he should cast me away with the wicked.

I plead with you, sinner. I entreat of you to come just now and "taste and see that the Lord is good." He died for you. He offers you life if you will have it on his terms.

"Oh, come, sinner, come, for the tide is receding,
And the Savior will soon and forever cease pleading."

CAMPMEETING REPORT.

Campmeeting Board convened on the New Hartford camp-ground June 19th, 1875, and was called to order by the Vice President, C. C. Ramsay. E. A. Marsh elected Sec. pro tem. Constitution called for and read. Then proceeded to the election of officers. For President, P. S. W. Deyo. Vice President, C. C. Ramsay. Elected by acclamation. For Secretary, E. A. Marsh. Treasurer, Eben Hurlburt. On motion, the old Board of Directors were selected by the President—Jasper Ingalls, D. S. Sampman, and Henry Peck.

Moved and carried that the Board be authorized to obtain a lease of the ground for five years.

Moved, that Art. 3, Sec. 3, of the Constitution be so amended as to read—"their term of office shall expire at the close of the next annual meeting." Carried.

Moved, that Art. 2 shall be amended so as to retain the delegates sent here from the churches, as ex-officio members of the Association. Moved and carried that we adjourn to Monday, 9 a. m.

Met according to motion of adjournment. Whereupon Jasper Ingalls was authorized by the Board, on motion, to take charge of the camp lumber and to let it to responsible parties as he may think best.

The President presented the following account of receipts and expenditures: Amount paid for groceries and other expenses, $140.-57. Amount paid out for traveling expenses of ministers, $56.20. Total, $196.77. The receipts from the grocery were $158.77. Contributions, $29.00, and balance in treasury $8.34; leaving a balance above expenses of 66 cts. There is still a small account left unsettled. The receipts and expenses of the meeting, it will be seen, are nearly the same this year, owing to there being another stand near the ground, and unfavorable weather.

The meetings were very interesting, and the preaching beneficial generally. The congregations were usually large and attentive. Eld. A. N. Seymour from Michigan, and Sr. M. J. Janes of Strawberry Point, rendered efficient assistance to the success of the meeting, and soul-stirring discourses were given by different ministers belonging to the Conference. A goodly number sat down to commemorate the last supper of our Lord, and we parted with the assurance that our work has not been altogether in vain.

Bro. Parmalee, from Cedar Falls, interested the children greatly with his charts, and with Bible stories also.

THE ONENESS THAT JESUS PRAYED FOR.

Jesus, in praying for his own, asks of the Father, oneness for his followers. "I pray for them: I pray not for the world, but for them which Thou hast given me. . . . I pray not that thou shouldst take them out of the world, but that thou shouldst keep them from the evil. . . . That they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in ns, that the world may believe that thou hast sent me."

The unity of the saints is a unity that is based upon spiritual sympathy rather than mental agreement. It rests upon a coincidence of deep, pure affection, rather than a sameness of intellectual opinions. It comes from the affinities of an inwrought, holy love, rather than from the frigid and formal tenets of a sectly creed. It is of the heart rather than the head.

In the most incipient and infantile experiences of the spiritual life, when the soul is newly born into the first loves and joys of a spiritual existence, in the very first dawnings of the divine life within the newly-justified soul, there is the consciousness of this spiritual traction, the experience of this joyous soul-affinity, the felt happiness of this drawing and divinely unifying love of the Spirit. Indeed, this feeling of kindly love for others, this experience of brotherly affection, is announced as a most conclusive and certifying proof of our real conversion—for "we know that we have passed from death unto life because we love the brethren." And this interior and upspringing affinity, this outgoing and outgushing feeling of oneness toward those who are Christ's, is not the result of agreed notions or absolutely harmonized opinions. It is not the offspring of compared and coincident beliefs and convictions concerning the points of doctrine or dogmas thst the sects hold and so strenuously inculcate. Were such notional agreement or coinciding convictions as to the theology of religion, made necessarily or conditionally antecedent to conversion, then conversion never would occur!

No two human minds, it may be, can be educated or trained to think invariably and precisely alike, to miutely agree upon the multitudinous and infintessimal details of theological belief, particularly when these details are so largely and so well-nigh universally non-essential. And, thank God, they do not need to. The grace that saves the soul and that unifies God's people, the love that inducts into christian fellowship and that tends to make all Christ's followers one, can be realized and enjoyed while yet the notions of the brain are uncoincident with immaterial dogmas, and unacquiescent in the mint-cummin-and-anise challenges of bigoted and creed-bound sects. Praise God!

The way to christian unity is through love. With a partial christian love, or a christian love that is in part only, the unity will be partial, or in part. When the christian love is perfect, in the sense that our blessed Savior designed in the redemption of his people, and in the meaning of his precious prayer in the seventeenth of John. Probably the most marked feature of the great holiness movement of our times, is the unifying effect which follows its course and its conquests. In the prevalence of holiness grace, and holiness love, God's people unite. They come together. They find oneness. In the presence of the all-pervading and all-fusing influence of holy love, denominational differences disappear, churchly dogmas drop out of view, sectly shibboleths lose their particularity of accent, and Christ's own are imperceptibly and irresistibly drawn into oneness. This all follows, because the subjects of this holy grace and love are necessarily brought into a true sympathy, for true symyathy (sun-pathos) is always of the heart, and never of the head. Sympathy means, feeling with and for another. This fellow-feeling is holiness, and holiness is in effect and experience, this fellow-feeling. Imbued with this precious love, this Christly sompathy, the followers of Jesus, feel as he felt, love as he loved, and come into unien with each other as really and as affinitively as they come into union with the blessed Savior himself, or as he is in union with the Father—"As thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us."—Banner of Holiness.

IN MEMORIAM.

Died at Ellington, Ct., April 16th, 1875, Lulie J. Smith, aged twenty-seven years.

Once again our hearts in sorrow
Bow beneath affliction's rod;
Once again are we reminded
All our mercies are from God.

Even in this great affliction
Father's guiding hand we see;
For he's laying up our treasures
Where he wants our hearts to be.

He has taken darling Lulie
From these scenes of toil and pain,
But we know that in the morning
She will be with us again.

All her mission here is ended,
All her earthly suns have set,
But her bright example liveth,—
Though asleep, she speaketh yet.

We who knew her best and loved her,
Feel her loss with throbs of pain,
But afar we hear the whisper—
To live was bliss, to die is gain.

So our hearts a comfort gathers
E'en beneath this cruel blow,
For we sorrow not as others,
Who our hope can never know.

Within the burial casket
Her marble form we've laid,
And yonder in the churchyard
Her resting place we've made.

"She shall sleep, but not forever,
There shall be a glorious dawn,"
Then we'll meet thee, dearest Lulie,
Safe among the blood-washed throng

BABIES IN MEETING.

WM. SHELDON.

We are far from protesting against carrying infants to meeting, for their attendance is a pretty sure sign that the mother is present; and certainly no class of persons need the benefit of meetings more than mothers do; but great caution should be exercised in taking these little ones to meeting to prevent depriving both the mother, and scores of others, of the benefit sought. How often the mother incautiously seats herself on the end of the seat remote from the aisle, so when the child cries, eight or ten persons have to get up and let the mother out, thus producing double the confusion produced by the child, besides diverting attention from the discourse. How often the mother seats herself as far from the door as she can get, so that in case she is obliged to go out with the child, she must walk the whole length of the house to reach the door, thus breaking the attraction that exists between speaker and hearer; whereas, if she had taken a seat convenient to the door, she could quietly have left without disturbing any body in case of necessity, and have heard just as distinctly. How often several nursing mothers with their babes, in a crowded house will cluster around the minister, with the fact staring them in the face that there is no way of escape in case the children become restless, and no alternative left but a destruction of the meeting by their uninstructive music.

Not long since, we witnessed an exhibition of this kind. The house in which we were preaching was crowded to its utmost capacity, and about two hundred more were seated in a compact form on the outside, on extra seats, around the door. While singing the last hymn, my attention was attracted by the children around me in their mothers' arms. I counted them, and found there were six of them within ten feet from me. A cold chill ran over me, thinking what if all six should begin to cry before I got through preaching? It would have hurt the mothers' feelings to have invited them to change their seats, and would have involved a great commotion in so dense a crowd to do it. So we ventured to begin our sermon, and might have spoken fifteen minutes, when one little sleeper awoke and tried to prove that he could talk the loudest; that awoke another, and these two awoke the third, then the three awoke the fourth, and so on until the six were in full blast, the mothers, meanwhile, hissing like a flock of geese, and tossing their babes to and fro, while the music increased, and the interest in the meeting diminished by having so many talk at once in unknown tongues. The meeting was spoiled. Select proper seats, mothers.

RELIABLE MEN.

Strong men are needed—men of faith; men who are not always back-sliding. Some such men are usually found in most communities. We look upon their stability as almost a certain thing. If others doubt, waver, and even fail, we are not surprised, but these men are not expected to falter. They are known to be fixed and firm, and men have no thought of their being moved away from the hope of the gospel. Ah! such men are not always prized as they should be. They are men of whom "the world is not worthy." What protection they afford to the young and weak! How to the faint and feeble are they like "the shadow of a great rock in a weary land!" Under their instruction and defense, many hold on to Christ, who otherwise would let him go; and others who would be fearful and fruitless grow brave and strong and become pillars of virtue and righteousness!

But let us not forget that these men, now so strong, have had trials and temptations; that by struggles and victories have they attained their present strength. Let us remember, too, that such experience and power are within the capacity of all. Not that all may become mentally great or get large stores of knowledge; but even the humblest in human attainment may become rich and mighty in faith. Every real christian may, as a moral force, be influential for God.

The need of the church is men and women of faith—of fearless, undaunted faith—prevailing, conquering faith. A faith which, seeing the invisible and eternal, shall trample ou all skepticism and conquer all sin!—Wayside.

IOWA CHRISTIAN CONFERENCE.

The nineteenth annual session of the Iowa Christian Conference met in connection with the yearly campmeeting, near New Hartford, Iowa, June 17th, 1875. In the absence of the President, Job Gildersleve, the Conference was called together by the Secretary, E. A. Marsh, and after prayer the report of the Board of Directors was called for, but as none was received was not read. The report of the previous meeting was then called for, read and approved.

June 18th met again, according to adjournment, and proceeded to the election of officers; whereupon C. C. Ramsay was elected President, and E. A. Marsh Secretary. To complete the Board, Jasper Ingalls, C. L. Shaw, and C. P. Burroughs. No new members of churches were received, nor reports from Quarterly meetings.

Verbal reports of ministerial labor were given by P. S. W. Deyo, C. C. Ramsay, and J. W. Burroughs. Written reports were received from E. A. Marsh, A. Raymond, Job Gildersleve, A. Durand, and N. S. Ketchum.

P. S. W. Deyo reports as laboring as much as usual in the missionary field. Has preached almost every Sunday. Has traveled abont fifteen hundred miles. Still loves the cause of Christ. Related some interesting experiences connected with his labors during the past year. Quite a number hold on to the faith. Has baptized and received pledges for baptism of upwards of thirty persons. Organized a church of nine members at Traer, which has since received an accession of twenty-four members. Althongh sometimes discouraged, is still holding on.

C. C. Ramsay reports as preaching regularly three Sundays in each month. Assisted Sister Bursell in Minnesota and baptized twelve. Preached two weeks in Belle Plaine with good results. Has also taken a tour east, preaching on the way. Is employed as pastor at the church at Floyd.

J. W. Burroughs reported as doing what he could. Is preaching regularly for the church at Raymond and elsewhere. The church is prospering, and has also a flourishing Sunday school.

Written reports were read from A. Raymond, A. Durand, Job Gildersleve, and N. S. Ketchum; they all report as standing firm, with a desire to save the lost and do what they can, though circumstances forbid their preaching much.

E. A. Marsh read his report of labor; has preached in Benton, Butler, Porveshiek, Decatur, Appanorse, and Wayne counties, in four churches, thirteen school-houses, and on one camp-ground; giving seventy discourses during the Conference year. Has traveled about eight hundred miles. Desires to be at his post at all times, and will still, amid many trials of faith, endeavor to perform his duty.

No other reports were received from ministers directly, but through different brethren the following were commended as worthy laborers—M. A. Newcomb, N. F. Eggleston, F. A. Denton, S. D. Deyo, A. A. Wilbur, and P. S. Converse.

The Floyd church reports no accessions, and three names dropped. Is under the pastoral charge of Eld. C. C. Ramsay, and their motto is, Onward. The New Hartford church brings a poor report,—is in a low state, and needs the prayers of God's people. Have recently organized a Sunday school, and trying to obtain help by having regular preaching. Have been without a pastor for some time.

The Raymond church was reported by their pastor, J. W. Burroughs, as being in a thriving condition. Has a good Sunday school, and regular preaching and prayer services. Has received twenty-five additions, nine of which were by baptism. One name dropped, aud another dismissed. Has a membership of sixty-seven. Two of the members are recommended by the church as preachers of the Word. No reports were received from other churches.

Pursuant to motion, the Secretary was instructed to correspond with ministers and churches which have not reported, and to withhold certificates from those who have not reported, and until they do. The name of J. N. Marble was taken into consideration, and it was voted to consider him no longer a member of this Conference; as the church at Raymond, with whom he was connected, have withdrawn the hand of fellowship from him.

Under "Miscellaneous" business, it was moved to elect delegates to attend the Union State Conference, to be held at Belle Plaine, and Brn. Silas Peck and Jasper Ingalls of the New Hartford church, Dr. Banton and C. L. Shaw of the Raymond church, C. P. Burroughs and J. S. Griffith of the Floyd church, and J. T. Converse of the Ettie church, were elected. The Quarterly meetings are to be held by request, first, with the Floyd church; second, with the New Hartford church; and the third with the Traer church.

The question of ministerial support came up, and suggestions were made by Brn. Ramsay, Deyo, and Burroughs. It was then moved by P. S. W. Deyo that Eld. C. C. Ramsay prepare an address on the Lord's mode for the support of the ministers and evangelists. A request was made by Eld. J. W. Burroughs to withdraw from the Conference, and on motion was granted. Adjourned till our next annual meeting.

This annual meeting has not been as interesting as last year, nor can we present as good a record; but many circumstances have conspired to prevent delegates and ministers from attending such a long distance—bad roads, inclement weather, and the backwardness of the season. Notwithstanding this, we are encouraged and hope for more prosperity by the blessing of God. Many neglected to send reports and to prepare for the meeting, and hence the body suffers on account of the neglect of duty. We hope all will use every exertion to attend the Quarterlies and the Annual meeting, and do all they can financially and by individual effort to strengthen the cause of truth and assist in spreading light and truth everywhere. This is highly important in these last days of peril and danger to the waiting church.

E. A. Marsh, Secretary.

CHRIST THE GREAT NEED.

What dying men need, is a divine Savior. The doctrine of the atonement is only of value as it exhibits the divine Atoner. It is not the doctrine which saves, but the omnipotent and loving Being who laid down his life for us. Thousands believe on the Redeemer. The most splendid preaching is a splendid failure if it fail to point and to press every guilty, hungry, suffering soul right up to the Lamb of God as a personal Savior. That pulpit, that Sabbath school teacher, and that volume, which God will honor with richest success, is the pulpit, the teacher, or the book which presents "no man save Jesus only."

Here is a clue to the best method of dealing with awakened hearts. We are prone to direct an inquirer to attend a prayer meeting, or to read some pungent book or tract, or to go and listen to some arousing preacher. All this is but offering a thirsty man a silver cup when he is perishing for the water itself.—Dr. Cuyler.

ON THE OTHER SIDE.

We go our ways in life too much alone;
We hold ourselves too far from all our kind;
Too often are we deaf to sigh and moan;
Too often to the weak and helpless blind;
Too often where distress and want abide,
We turn and pass upon the other side.

The other side is trodden smooth and worn,
By footsteps passing idly all the day;
Where lie the bruised ones who faint and mourn,
Is seldom more than an untrodden way;
Our selfish hearts are for our feet the guide,
That lead us by upon the other side.

HOME AND HEALTH.

TRUTH.

The following beautiful illustration of the simplicity and power of truth is from the pen of S. H. Hammond, formerly editor of the Albany State Register. He was an eyewitness of the scene in one of the higher courts. Although some of your readers may have seen it before, others probably have not, and I think all will be interested in its perusal. It is very seldom we find an article so suited to adults and children. I can read it profitably once a year. B.

A little girl, nine years of age, was offered as a witness against a prisoner who was on trial for a felony committed in her father's house.

"Now, Emily," said the counsel for the prisoner, upon her being offered as a witness, "I desire to know if you understand the nature of an oath?"

"I don't know what you mean," was the simple answer.

"There, your honor," said the counsel, addressing the court, "is anything further necessary to demonstrate the validity of my objection? This witness should be rejected. She does not comprehend the nature of an oath."

"Let us see," said the judge, "Come here, my daughter."

Assured by the kind tone and manner of the judge, the child stepped toward him, and looked confidingly up in his face, with a calm, clear eye, and in a manner so artless and frank, that went straight to the heart.

"Did you ever take an oath?" inquired the judge. The little girl stepped back with a look of horror, and the red blood mantled in a blush all over her face and neck as she answered,—

"No, sir."

She thought he intended to inquire if she had ever blasphemed.

"I do not mean that," said the judge, who saw her mistake. "I mean were you ever a witness before?"

"No, sir; I never was in court before," was the answer.

He handed her the Bible open.

"Do you know that book, my daughter?"

She looked at it and answered, "Yes, sir; it is the Bible."

"Do you ever read it?" he asked.

"Yes, sir, every evening."

"Can you tell me what the Bible is?" inquired the judge.

"It is the word of the great God," she answered.

"Well, place your hand upon this Bible, and listen to what I say;" and he repeated slowly and solemnly the oath usually administered to witnesses.

"Now," said the judge," you have sworn as a witness, will you tell me what will befall you if you do not tell the truth?"

"I shall be shut up in the State Prison," answered the child.

"Any thing else?" asked the judge.

"I shall never go to heaven," she replied.

"How do you know this?" asked the judge.

The child took the Bible, and turning rapidly to the chapter containing the commandments, pointed to the injunction, "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor." "I learned that before I could read."

"Has any one talked with you about being a witness in court here against this man?" inquired the judge.

"Yes, sir," she replied. "My mother heard they wanted me to be a witness; and last night she called me to her room, and asked me to tell her the ten commandments; and then we kneeled down together, and she prayed that I might understand how wicked it was to bear false witness against my neighbor, and that God would help me, a little child, to tell the truth as it was, before him. And, when I came up here with father, she kissed me, aud told me to remember the ninth commandment, and that God would hear every word that I said."

"Do you believe this?" asked the judge, while a tear glistened in his eye, and his lip quivered with emotion.

"Yes, sir," said the child, with a voice and manner that showed her conviction of its truth was perfect.

"God bless you, my child!" said the judge; "you have a good mother. This witness is competent," he continued. "Were I on trial for my life, and innocent of the charge against me, I would pray God for such witnesses as this. Let her be examined."

She told her story with the simplicity of a child as she was, but there was a directness about it which carried conviction of its truth to every heart. She was rigidly cross-examined. The counsel plied her with infinite and ingenious questioning, but she varied from her first statement in nothing. The truth, as spoken by that little child, was sublime. Falsehood and perjury had preceded her testimony. The prisoner had intrenched himself in lies, till he deemed himself impregnable. Witnesses had falsified facts in his favor, and villiany had manufactured for him a sham defence. But, before her testimony, falsehood was scattered like chaff. The little child, for whom a mother had prayed for strength to be given her to speak the truth as it was before God, broke the cunning devices of matured villiany to pieces like a potter's vessel. The strength that her mother prayed for was given her, and the sublime and terrible simplicity—terrible I mean to the prisoner and his associates—with which she spoke, was like a revelation from God himself.

Harsh Judgments.—If you must form harsh judgments, form them of yourself, not of others, and, in general, begin by attending to your own deficiencies first. If every one would sweep up his own walk, we should have very clean streets.

DIRECTIONS

FOR RESTORING PERSONS APPARENTLY DEAD FROM DROWNING.

1. Lose no time. Carry out these directions on the spot.

2. Remove the froth and mucus from the mouth and nostrils.

3. Hold the body for a few seconds only, with the head hanging down, so that the water may run out of the lungs and windpipe.

4. Loosen all tight articles of clothing about the neck and chest.

5. See that the tongue is pulled forward if it falls back into the throat. By taking hold of it with a handkerchief it will not slip.

5. If the breathing has ceased, or nearly so, it must be stimulated by pressure of the chest with the hands, in imitation of the natural breathing; forcibly expelling the air from the lungs, and allowing it to re-enter and expand them by the elasticity of the ribs. Remember that this is the most important step of all.

To do it readily, lay the person on his back, with a cushion, pillow, or some firm substance under his shoulders; then press with the flat of the hands over the lower part of the breast bone and the upper part of the abdomen, keeping up a regular repetition and relaxation of pressure twenty or thirty times a minute. A pressure of thirty pounds may be applied with safety to a grown person.

7. Rub the limbs with the hands or with dry clothes constantly, to aid the circulation and keep the body warm.

8. As soon as the person can swallow, give a table-spoonful of spirits in hot water, or some warm coffee or tea.

9. Work deliberately. Do not give up too quickly. Success has rewarded the efforts of hours.

COLD WATER IN FEVER.

Dr. L'Ambert presents the following conclusions concerning the use of cold ablutions in fever, as practiced in France. In typhoid, eruptive, and malignant fever, they are especially useful. They are anti-febrile, act upon the chief and most constant phenomena of these diseases, and reduce the temperature materially. They contribute to the re-establishment of a full, profound, and regular perspiration; they render the secretions more active; make the skin supple, moist, and fresh; favor the outcoming of the eruption, allay cerebral and other nervous excitement, suppress headache, coma, delirium, restlessness, and induce sleep; they cause the pulse to fall eight to thirty beats. From two to eight hours is the duration of their action, the ablutions to be repeated two to four times in twenty-four hours. They have no influence on the length of the sickness, but render it milder, and are readily applied at cold baths, or by wrapping the patient in a cold wet sheet.

Cat and Dog Story.—A Mississippian has an intelligent cat, of which he tells the following story: I was sick a short time ago, and the cat would come from the table to the bed frequently. She finally caught a mouse and brought it to the bed, laying it down beside me. I threw it off, but as often as I did so the cat would bring it back, until I thought she wanted me to eat it; so I made believe I ate it, and the cat went away apparently satisfied. And before night the same day she brought me a striped squirrel; and each day for the three days I was in bed she brought me game, with the same result; she would never leave until I had pretended to eat it.

A gentlemen of this city has an intelligent Spitz dog which is never allowed in his sleeping room. A few weeks since his wife was taken sick, and the second day of her illness the dog made his way into the chamber, jumped on to the bed, gave her an affectionate kiss on her cheek, and then retired to the part of the house allotted to him. Do dogs and cats reason?

Let us have Light.—The American Builder says: Do not arrange your house so as to violate God's first commandment. Give it many windows, and then, O housewife, keep your blinds open during the day and your curtains drawn aside. If you let the sun in freely it may "fade the carpets;" but if you do not, it will be sure to cause ill health to the mothers and the children. The sun is a good physician. He has never had due credit for his curative qualities—for the the bright eyes and rosy cheeks that come from his healing bath. Do you know how puny is the growth of the potato vine along the darkened cellar wall? Such is the health of human beings living where the sun is intercepted by the window's drapery. So dark wall paper is not only gloomy, but it is physically unwholesome. Let in the sun, for with it comes forth cheerfulness and strength! A dark room is an enemy of good health, good temper and good morals."—Health Reformer.

Flavor of Eggs.—There is a vast difference in the flavor of eggs. Hens fed on clear sound grain, and kept on a clean grass run, give much finer flavored eggs than hens that have access to stable and manure heaps, and eat all kinds of filthy food. Hens feeding on fish and onions flavor their eggs accordingly, the same as cows eating onions or cabbage, or drinking offensive water, imparts a bad taste to the milk and butter. The richer the food the higher the color of the eggs. Wheat and corn give eggs the best color, while feeding on buckwheat makes them colorless, rendering them unfit for some confectionery purposes.—Moore's Rural Reporter.

TRUST IN GOD.

The child leans on its parent's breast,
Leaves there its cares and is at rest;
The bird sits singing by his nest,
And tells aloud
His trust in God, and so is blest,
'Neath every cloud.

He has no store—he sows no seed;
Yet sings aloud and does not heed;
By flowing stream or grassy mead,
He sings to shame
Men who forget, in fear of need,
A Father's name.

The heart that trusts forever sings,
And feels as light as it had wings;
A well of peace within it springs;
Come good or ill,
Whate'er to-day, to-morrow, brings,
It is God's will.

MORMONISM:
OR,
WAS JOSEPH SMITH A DIVINELY INSPIRED PROPHET?

WM. SHELDON.

CHAPTER IV.
(Concluded.)

IV. Joseph Smith cannot be a true prophet from the fact that many of his visions, revelations, and translations are contradictory, and some of his prophecies have already proved incorrect.

1. After Nephi speaks of having obtained Laban's brass plates for his father Lehi, he adds: "Now when my father saw all these things, he was filled with the spirit, and began to prophesy concerning his seed; that these plates of brass should go forth unto all nations, kindreds, tongues and people who were of his seed. Wherefore, he said that these plates of brass should never perish; neither should they be dimmed any more by time." Nephi, 1st chap. Whether this language be applied to the material of the brass plates, or to the record contained upon them, the statement has proven untrue. These plates of brass are represented as having been carefully preserved by the Nephites, and to have been handed down by them till the days of Mormon, being carefully kept from the Lamanites, who were of Lehi's seed. "Many kindreds and tongues" of Lamanites (Indians) are now scattered over the land, and have been for many centuries, and yet they have never seen the brass plates, nor the record contained upon them; for according to the Book of Mormon they were buried without ever having been translated, and have not yet been dug up, for when Joseph dug up the plates of Nephi, he did not find Laban's brass plates.

So these Lamanites (Indians) who are the seed of Lehi, have never seen the brass plates, nor the record contained on them, and consequently the prophecy is a failure. Many of these tribes or tongues are now obsolete, even if the plates are found hereafter.

2. The plates of the Book of Mormon were to be seen by three witnesses, and "none else;" yet they were shown to eight others. In speaking of these plates, God is represented as saying to Joseph, "This generation shall have my word through you; and in addition to your testimony, the testimony of three of my servants, whom I shall call and ordain, unto whom I shall show these things, and they shall go forth with my words that are given through you; yea, they shall know of a surety that these things are true; for from heaven will I declare it unto them; I will give them power that they may behold and view these things as they are; and to none else will I grant this power, to receive this testimony, among this generation." Book of Covenants, p. 69. Within a year, eight others claim to have seen them, and Joseph endorses the claim by publishing their statement, drawn up by himself, in the Book of Mormon. Did God change his mind after promising that three, and "none else" should see the plates? Or was it Joseph's mind that changed?

3. These three witnesses were not only to see the plates, but also other things mentioned in a revelation to Joseph for the three: "Behold, I say unto you, that you must rely upon my word, which, if you do, with full purpose of heart, you shall have a view of the plates, and also of the breastplate, the sword of Laban, the Urim and Thummim which was given to the brother of Jared upon the mount, when he talked with the Lord face to face, and the miraculous directors which were given to Lehi while in the wilderness, on the borders of the Red sea; and it is by your faith that you shall obtain a view of them, even by that faith which was had by the prophets of old. And after that you have obtained faith, and have seen them with your eyes, you shall testify of them." Mark well this point: these three witnesses were to see not only the plates, but four other things—sword, Urim, compass, and a breastplate—and moreover they were to "testify of them." But they never testified of them; hence, the revelation is unreliable. If they had seen them, they would eagerly have told about them. Perhaps they saw some plates which might have been tin, colored in some dye that would give them a golden complexion to those not familiar with that metal; they might have heard a ventriloquist affirm they were translated by divine power, or they might merely have heard the voice of God through Joseph; they testify that an angel came down from heaven and brought the plates, perhaps on the strength of Joseph's statement, for they do not affirm that they saw the angel; but whether they saw plates thus prepared, or some other kind, they failed to see the rest of the furniture promised, whether because it was not then prepared, or for some other reason. Though we are told what disposal was made of the plates, we are left in the dark as to what became of these things. Did the angel carry them off? If so, why? To stifle faith? As the sword, and breastplate, and compass contained no record for future translation, why must they have been kept out of sight?

4. The following promise was made to Oliver Cowdery after he had tried to translate, and made a failure:

"Behold, I say unto you, my son, that because you did not translate according to that which you desired of me, and did commence to write again for my servant Joseph Smith, Jr., even so I would that you should continue until you have finished this record, which I have entrusted unto him; and then, behold, other records have I, that I will give unto you power that ye may assist to translate."

But both Oliver and Joseph are now dead, and the prophecy has failed; for Oliver never assisted to translate the other records. If Oliver had only lived, he might have become a translator, as well as Joseph, as he is told how to do it in this immediate connection:

"Behold, you have not understood; you have supposed that I would give it unto you, when you took no thought, save it was to ask me; but behold, I say unto you, that you must study it out in your mind; then you must ask me if it be right, and if it is right, I will cause that your bosom shall burn within you; therefore you shall feel that it is right; but if it is not right, you shall have no such feelings, but you shall have a stupor of thought, that shall cause you to forget the thing that is wrong; therefore you cannot write that which is sacred, save it be given you from me. Now if you had known this, you could have translated." Book of Covenants, p. 77.

Oliver lived several years after this, and with this instruction might have easily translated the "other records," but because they were never found, or for some other reason, they were never translated, and so the revelation to Joseph was a failure. Was the revelation genuine?

5. On the seventy-fifth page of the Book of Covenants, we have what purports to be a translation from parchment written and "hid up" by the apostle John, to the effect that John was to remain on earth until Christ's second coming. If this were true, would it not be more reasonable to suppose that John would have told Joseph in person, rather than to write it out in another language, and hide it, seeing he was one of the three to ordain Joseph? Why not have then handed him the letter?

If he did not write the letter till afterwards, why not have written it in English, and have saved Joseph the trouble of translating it? And why not have written it on paper, instead of on parchment? And what became of the parchment after Joseph had translated it? Did he give it to some angel to keep, as he did the plates? Why not have kept it to show a sample of John's penmanship? Would it not have been as easy for the apostle John to have written English, as for John the Baptist to have talked English at the ordination of Joseph? We are not told whether Peter, James, and John talked at all when they ordained Joseph; if they did, it must have been in English, else Joseph would not have understood it, for it is not even claimed that Joseph's stone-interpreters can interpret unwritten language; and if John could talk English, he could write it. Joseph does not tell us where he found this manuscript, whether an angel informed him where it was "hid up," or when he gained possession of it; and he fails to have it certified either by three or eight witnesses, as in case of the plates. Why so careless about this matter, after being so cautious about the Book of Mormon?

6. Over forty-two years ago, Joseph Smith prophesied that the New Jerusalem should be built in Western Missouri, and that the temple should be reared in this generation: "Yea, the word of the Lord concerning his church, established in the last days for the restoration of his people, as he has spoken by the mouth of his prophets, and for the gathering of his saints to stand upon Mount Zion, which shall be the city New Jerusalem; which city shall be built, beginning at the Temple Lot, which is appointed by the finger of the Lord, in the western boundaries of the State of Missouri, and dedicated by the hand of Joseph Smith, Jr., and others with whom the Lord is well pleased. Verily, this is the word of the Lord, that the city New Jerusalem shall be built by the gathering of the saints, beginning at this place, even the place of the temple, which temple shall be reared in this generation; for verily this generation shall not all pass away, until an house shall be built unto the Lord, and a cloud shall rest upon it, which cloud shall be even the glory of the Lord, which shall fill the house." Book of Covenants, p., 223.

This revelation was given in September, 1832, over forty-two years ago, and yet there is no sign of a temple in Western Missouri; and not a trace can be found of the New Jerusalem there; so the prophecy limiting the building of the temple to "this generation," is a failure. The length of a generation in Mormon literature is easily learned, for Moroni is represented as saying in his tenth chapter, "The time speedily cometh that ye shall know that I lie not, for ye shall see me at the bar of God, and the Lord God will say unto you, Did I not declare my words unto you, which were written by this man, like as one crying from the dead? Yea, even as one speaking out of the dust?" Again: "His word shall hiss forth from generation to generation." Here we learn that after the word of God, written by Moroni, should come out of the dust, it should hiss forth for a plurality of generations, not less than two; and that word was not published till 1830, so the two generations must begin there; but where will they end? If we can learn this fact, we can determine the length of a generation, for one generation will be only half as long as two generations.

The desired information is given in Joseph Smith's autobiography: "I was once praying very earnestly to know the time of the coming of the Son of man, when I heard a voice repeat the following: "Joseph, my son, if thou livest till thou art eighty-five years old, thou shalt see the face of the Son of Man; therefore let this suffice, and trouble me no more in this matter." As Joseph was born in 1805, his eighty-fifth year would end in 1890, when Christ's coming is due according to this revelation; so if the generations during which the words of God written by Moroni were to "hiss forth," began with the publication of the Book of Mormon in 1830, and end at the coming of the Son of man in 1890, there are only sixty years given for two generations, and only thirty years for one generation; and taking this measurement for a generation, that temple should have been built over twelve years ago; but instead of that, there is no indication of its being built for a generation to come. The truth is, the prophecy is a failure; nor can this fact be evaded by the claim sometimes made, that the prophecy is conditional, for there is not a condition hinted at in the prophecy, but an unconditional "revelation of Jesus Christ," without an if, or a proviso.

7. The Book of Mormon, after predicting the inability of the learned to translate the words of the book of plates that should be discovered, adds: "The Lord God hath said, that the words of the faithful should speak as it were from the dead. Wherefore, the Lord God will proceed to bring forth the words of the book; and in the mouth of as many witnesses as seemeth him good, will he establish his word." 2 Nephi, 11th chap. But a part of the words (118 pages), called the book of Lehi, were never published, the manuscript having been stolen, as we learn from the ninth section of the Book of Covenants; so these words have never been brought forth, or established. Was the book of Lehi superfluous? Why then have translated it at all? If it was essential, why not have translated it again? If the plea that the words were altered by the thieves, or thief, is a valid reason for omitting to translate it again, it follows that had the manuscript of the whole book been stolen before going to press, that would have been a good reason for leaving the whole book unpublished. The claim that the book of Nephi contained the substance of the stolen book, was no truer after the theft than before it; and if that was a good reason for not re-producing the book, it was equally as good a reason against producing or translating it in the first place. It is tantamount to saying that the stolen book was a superfluous book, and Lehi might as well never have written it, and Joseph might as well never have translated it. And is it not strange that inspiration could not have foreseen all this? The words of the book, therefore, have never been brought forth, except in part. It was said "that the words of the faithful should speak as it were from the dead;" and yet faithful Lehi's words have never spoken at all, but they were stolen. Alas, Lehi! you wrote in vain; that labor was vain in writing to no purpose, and the gold on which the writing was done was wasted.

8. The inspired version betrays itself in firstly rejecting certain names given in our version, as being incorrect, and subsequently adopting the same names as being correct. We present a few samples.

(1). Our version of Matt. 24: 37, reads: "But as the days of Noe were," etc.; but Joseph's inspired version repudiates "Noe," and substitutes "Noah." This might seem all right if he would stick to his own rule; but in Luke 17: 26, 27, he changes back to "Noe," in preference to "Noah." Certainly inspiration ought not to be so vacillating.

(2). Our version of Matt. 2: 17, reads: "Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by Jeremy the prophet;" but Joseph's inspired version repudiates "Jeremy," and substitutes "Jeremiah." This might seem all right, if he would only stick to his own rule; but in Matt. 27: 9, 10, he abandons "Jeremiah," and again returns to "Jeremy." Would inspiration whiffle around in this manner?

(3). Our version of Matt. 21: 5, reads: "Tell ye the daughter of "Sion," etc.; but Joseph's inspired version repudiates "Sion," and substitutes "Zion." This might seem preferable, but he soon repudiates "Zion," and returns to "Sion," as in Rom. 9: 33; 11: 36. Heb. 12: 22, and Rev. 14: 1. Would inspiration act like that?

(4). Our version of Luke 2: 36, speaks of "the tribe of Aser;" but Joseph's inspired translation rejects "Aser," and substitutes "Asher," which might look like wisdom, if the same change had been carried through the book; but in Rev. 7: 6, he returns to the once rejected "Aser." Why this constant repudiation of certain names, and the subsequent adoption of what has been once repudiated by inspiration? And when is inspiration reliable? when it repudiates, or when it adopts repudiation?

(5). In Matt. 2: 2, Joseph's inspired version uses the word "Messiah," which is never found in our version of the New Testament, but only in the Old; and this introduction of it into the New Testament by inspiration, might seem wise, were it kept up through the book: but in all other texts it is rendered "Messias." These are samples of the vacillating nature of Joseph's inspiration. We could easily excuse such variableness in the translations of uninspired men; but when inspiration speaks, we expect it will talk straight, without contradicting itself. As straws show which way the wind blows, these otherwise unimportant facts become tributary evidence of much value.

9. The inspired translation is made to address Joseph thousands of years before he was born, in the following two verses: "These are the words which I spake unto my servant Moses. And they are true even as I will. And I have spoken them unto you. See thou show them unto no man, until I command you, except they that believe." Gen. 3: 32, 33. Let it be remembered that after this translation was finished, the manuscript remained unpublished in the hands of Joseph for nearly eleven years before his death; and about twenty-two years longer in the hands of his widow after his death, before being published, making about thirty-three years after the translation was finished before being published; and even then the restriction, "See thou show them to no man, until I command you," was not removed by any command given to Joseph for their publication, except as deduced from a requirement to "not teach them until ye have received them in full"—which limitation ended about eleven years before his death, if ever; and if Joseph had regarded that as equivalent to a command to publish when the translation was finished, he must have lived in disobedience about eleven years, during which time he is professedly endorsed by Deity as a true man, by numerous visions and revelations. What business had these two verses in the Bible unless they were there at first?

If God had any thing to say to Joseph at the time he was translating the Bible, that did not belong to the Bible, but somewhere else. This putting two verses into the book of Genesis addressed to Joseph, was certainly a wonderful blunder on his part.

10. In the Book of Mormon, baptism is constantly enjoined in connection with the law of Moses, and numerous instances are recorded where it is said to have been administered; but the inspired version never enjoins baptism under the law till John's day, nor does it record an instance of its practice, except before the law, and before the flood—then omits it till John's mission. If baptism were a requirement under the law of Moses in America, why not on the other continent?

Repeated captivities of Israel, and various partial apostasies, made it necessary to refresh Israel's memory with the ordinances of the law; why not so with baptism, if it was ever connected with the law? If it be claimed that a perverted translation omits it, why should an inspired translation do the same? If baptism was necessary under the law in America, why not on the other continent?

11. The Book of Mormon clashes with Joseph's revelation concerning the baptism of children. In the eighth chapter of Moroni we find the following remarks: "For I have learned the truth, that there have been disputations among you concerning the baptism of your little children. And now, my son, I desire that you should labor diligently, that this gross error should be removed from among you." Again: "I know that it is solemn mockery before God that ye should baptize little children." And again: "He that saith little children need baptism, denieth the mercies of Christ, and setteth at naught the atonement." Yet on p. 225 of the Book of Covenants, Joseph thus speaks of John the Baptist: "For he was baptized while he was yet in his childhood, and was ordained by the angel of God at the time he was eight days old."

The apostle Pratt affirms: "Ordination always follows baptism, instead of preceding it." Then it follows that John the Baptist was not only baptized in his "childhood," but when he was as young as "eight days old." So what is at one time, in Mormon inspiration, denounced as a "gross error," and a "solemn mockery before God," is at another time endorsed and practiced. Will true inspiration thus make war on itself?

12. In May, 1833, about two months before the inspired translation was finished, the following revelation was given to Joseph concerning the building of a publishing house at Kirtland, Ohio: "Verily I say unto you, the second lot on the south shall be dedicated unto me, for the building of an house unto me, for the work of printing of the translation of my scriptures, and all things whatsoever I shall command you; and it shall be fifty-five by sixty-five feet." These scriptures were not published till about thirty-three years after this revelation; and then, instead of being published in Kirtland, Ohio, they were published in Plano, Ill. How much is this kind of revelation worth? Is it of God, or of man?

13. In March, 1833, a revelation was given to Joseph that, after he should have "finished the translation of the prophets," etc., he should "study and learn, and become acquainted with all good books, and with languages, tongues and people." (Book of Covenants, p. 247.) Really, what need of studying languages if he had the gift of translation? But facts show that he did not get acquainted with languages; for nine years after this we have a sample of his learning of languages, in his effort to show that the word "Mormon" means "more good," claiming as a basis of explanation that the Egyptian word for good is "mon," adding, "Hence, with the addition of more, or the contraction of mor, we have the word Mormon, which means literally more good." Thus he explains the origin of the word Mormon long before the English language was used, making use of an English word in its contracted form as a prefix to an Egyptian term. If that is a mark of education in the languages, we fail to discover it.

14. In March, 1833, a revelation was given to Joseph, assigning reasons why he need not translate the Apocrypha, which reasons render his translation of the Bible equally needless. "Verily, thus saith the Lord unto you, concerning the Apocrypha, there are many things contained therein that are true, and it is mostly translated correctly; there are many things contained therein that are not true, which are interpolations by the hands of men. Verily I say unto you, that it is not needful that the Apocrypha should be translated. Therefore, whoso readeth it let him understand, for the Spirit manifesteth truth; and whoso is enlightened by the Spirit shall obtain benefit therefrom; and whoso receiveth not the Spirit cannot be benefited; therefore it is not needful that it should be translated." (Book of Covenants, p. 248.) If the possession of the Spirit will lead to a discrimination between truth and error in the Apocrypha, so that a translation was needless, the same would be true with the Bible, and consequently render Joseph's work in translating it needless.

15. Joseph had no faith in his own translation, unless he was a dishonest man, for our version of Heb. 11: 40, which reads, "That they without us should not be made perfect," is rendered by Joseph's version thus: "Without suffering they should not be made perfect." Yet nine years after finishing this translation, Joseph falls back on to the common version to prove baptism for the dead, in these words: "For their salvation is necessary and essential to our salvation, as Paul says concerning the fathers, 'that they without us cannot be made perfect'; neither can we without our dead be made perfect" (Book of Covenants, p. 326).

If Joseph was an honest man, he never would have quoted spurious scripture to prove any doctrine; and this he did do if his translation is correct; so, not to call him a dishonest man, we conclude that he had no faith in his own translation, and he was probably a suitable judge of its merits; but if it be insisted that he had confidence in his own translation, and still used spurious scripture (a very dishonest trick), then the question arises, Could such a dishonest man be divinely inspired? Both horns to this dilemma are sharp, and if you dodge the one, you are to be hooked by the other.

16. Joseph tells us that the stone-interpreters, which he claims to have found, "were given to the brother of Jared" (Book of Covenants, p. 89); and Moroni, who claims to have found the same interpreters, says in the first chapter of Ether, "I have sealed up the interpreters,"—that is, with the plates. So far they agree; but upon examining the Book of Mormon we find that Mosiah's stone-interpreters are the ones handed down with the records, and not those given to Jared's brother; and here let it be remembered that the records with which the interpreters of Jared's brother were hid, were "found by the people of Limhi," but no interpreters found with them, as we have before shown (Mosiah, chap. 5); but Mosiah possessed interpreters before these records were found, by which he translated them; and we now proceed to show that Mosiah's interpreters, instead of Jared's brother's, were the ones handed down. Then how did Moroni chance to find interpreters with the plates that had never been handed down with them, and fail to find the other interpreters that were handed down with the plates? Mosiah conferred his interpreters upon Alma, together with the plates: "Now after Mosiah had finished translating these records . . he took the plates of brass, and all the things that he had kept, and conferred them upon Alma, who was the son of Alma; yea, all the records, and also the interpreters, and conferred them upon him, and commanded him that he should keep and preserve them, and also keep a record of the people, handing them down from one generation to another, even as they had been handed down from the time Lehi left Jerusalem" (Mosiah, chap. 13). Here are both plates and interpreters together, both having been handed down from generation to generation, long before finding the plates hid by the brother of Jared, by the people of Limhi; and a command is given that both should be handed down to posterity, plates and interpreters.

So wherever we find the plates changing hands, we may conclude the interpreters go with them. With this thought in mind, we proceed. Alma delivered the plates to Helaman (Alma, chap. 30), Helaman delivered them to Shiblon (Alma, chap. 30), Shiblon delivered them to the son of Helaman (Alma, chap. 30), son of Helaman to Nephi (Nephi, chap. 1), Nephi to Amos (Nephi, chap. 1), Amos to the son of Amos (Nephi, chap. 1), son of Amos to Ammaron (Nephi, chap. 1), Ammaron to Mormon (Book of Mormon, chap. 1), and Mormon to Moroni (4th chapter).

Now as no interpreters but Mosiah's were ever put with these plates, or commanded to be handed down with them, and as Mosiah's were, how came Moroni by the interpreters of Jared's brother? Where did he get them? And what became of Mosiah's interpreters that he commanded his successors to hand down to successive generations? Yet Moroni here hides the interpreters that were given to the brother of Jared, instead of Mosiah's that had been handed down.

It will take still another pair of interpreters to solve this mystery, and tell how the interpreters were changed, and what has become of the missing pair. Mosiah's had "rims of a bow"—so had Joseph's—but not so with Jared's brother's; then how came the "bow" on Joseph's?

17. Feet washing is pronounced an "ordinance," and is restricted to the priesthood, on p. 244 of the Book of Covenants: "And again, the ordinance of feet washing is to be administered by the president or presiding elder of the church." We will not here argue the question as to whether feet washing was ever an "ordinance" in the church, or not; but it certainly was not restricted to the ministry in its administration, if Paul's testimony has any weight: "If she have washed the saints' feet." Joseph, however, found it necessary to change "feet" into "clothes" in this text; this was necessary to prevent the text from conflicting with a vision given about six months before, restricting it to the priesthood.

18. The breaking of the priesthood covenant is pronounced an unpardonable sin: "But whoso breaketh this covenant, after he hath received it, and altogether turneth therefrom, shall not have forgiveness of sins in this world nor in the world to come." (Book of Covenants, p. 226.) Covenant-breaking is poor business, if the covenant is a good one; but Christ restricts the unpardonable sin to one thing—blasphemy against the Holy Ghost. After Peter had lied, and cursed, and swore, and had thus broken his ministerial covenant, he found pardon, and subsequently spent long years in the ministry.

19. On p. 75 of the Book of Covenants, the following promise, purporting to have been made by the apostle John, is recorded: "Thou shalt tarry until I come in my glory, and shall prophesy before nations, kindreds, tongues, and people." History affirms that John died at Ephesus. But if history is false, as John never disguised himself while alive, why does he not come out like a man and show himself, and settle some of these theological disputes in the land, and also let us know whether he helped ordain Joseph? Why skulk around in this way? Why not preach, as Jesus commanded him to? If he is not dead, his ministry is not ended. Then why not give us a sermon now and then? Besides, why does he not prophesy? We have heard nothing from him since he left the Isle of Patmos, in this line.

20. On p. 294 of the Book of Covenants, Joseph makes the following statement:—"Three years previous to the death of Adam he called Seth, Enos, Cainan, Mahalaleel, Jared, Enoch, and Methuselah, who were all high priests, with the residue of his posterity, who were righteous, into the valley of Adam-ondi-ahman, and there bestowed upon them his last blessing. And the Lord appeared unto them, and they rose up and blessed Adam, and called him Michael, the Prince, the Archangel." And this same name is given to Adam on p. 328: "From Michael, or Adam, down to the present time."

The Bible never represents saints as turning into angels at any past or future time. It does affirm that they are ultimately to be made "equal to the angels," but even this is connected with the resurrection, instead of preceding it. (Luke 20: 36.) As God made man a "little lower than the angels," angels preceded man in existence, instead of being manufactured out of men. Who ever heard of an angel's dying? Yet three years after Adam is said to have turned into an archangel, he died; so if the archangel died, may not all other angels die too? And if the archangel is dead, he must have "contended with the devil about the body of Moses" before Moses had an existence. What did the devil know about Moses so long beforehand?

21. On pp. 210–217 of the Book of Covenants, we have a revelation given concerning three future worlds—celestial, terrestrial, and telestial. Celestial means heavenly; terrestrial means earthly; but what does telestial mean? Another revelation is needed to tell its meaning, The inspired translation makes Paul talk about "bodies telestial." This revelation tells us that the occupants of this telestial world "are they who are liars, and sorcerers, and adulterers, and whoremongers, and whosoever loves and makes a lie; . . . . these are they who are cast down to hell and suffer the wrath of Almighty God until the fulness of times." Again: "These are they who shall not be redeemed from the devil, until the last resurrection." So the telestial world is the restorationist's hell, under a new name; but restorationists will not thank Joseph for keeping them there till the last resurrection.

22. On p. 234 of the Book of Covenants we find the following inspired decision:—"And the spirit and the body is the soul of man. And the resurrection from the dead is the redemption of the soul." Then why did Abinadi pray when dying—"O God, receive my soul!" (Mosiah, 9th chapter.) Did he mean, receive my spirit and body? If the spirit and body constitute the soul, the soul must be divided at death, according to the Book of Mormon, for it says: "The paradise of God must deliver up the spirits of the righteous, and the grave deliver up the body of the righteous." (2 Nephi, chap. 6.) Does one part of the soul go to paradise, and the other part to the grave, at death? Is one part of the soul mortal, and the other part immortal? For king Benjamin talks about "my immortal spirit" (Mosiah, chap. 1). If the spirit and body are the soul, the prophet's prayer, "Let this child's soul come into him again" (1 Kings 17: 21), must have signified, Let this child's spirit and body come into him. Yet the Book of Mormon speaks of "thousands of souls sent to the eternal world, that they might reap according to their works, whether they were good, or whether they were bad, to reap eternal happiness or eternal misery." (Alma, chap. 1.) Were bodies sent into the eternal world to reap eternal happiness, or eternal misery? This follows if "the spirit and the body is the soul of man."

Again the Book of Mormon affirms: "There is a space between death and the resurrection of the body, a state of the soul in happiness or in misery, until the time appointed of God that the dead should come forth, and be re-united, both soul and body." (Alma, chap. 18.) This use of the term soul conflicts with Joseph's statement, that "the spirit and the body is the soul of man," for the body is not in a state of happiness after death, as all know; nor will the body ever re-unite with itself.

23. The inspired translation, in harmony with the common version, renders Matt. 18: 18, thus: "Whatsoever ye shall bind on earth shall be bound in heaven; and whatsoever ye shall loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven"; but nine years after the inspired translation was finished, as an argument in favor of recording baptisms for the dead, Joseph again refers to this same text, thus: "Or, in other words, taking a different view of the translation, whatsoever you record on earth, shall be recorded in heaven; and whatsoever you do not record on earth, shall not be recorded in heaven." (Book of Covenants, p. 324.) If the inspired version was really "by the spirit of revelation," as the title page affirms, what business had Joseph to take "another view of the translation"? Here he repudiates his own translation to establish a doctrine he did not think of at the time of translating. If he could not respect his own translation, and substitute another to suit a new theory, he certainly knew his translation was not what it purported to be; and if it was not, he was not what he claimed to be, and his system, based upon his pretended revelations, falls to the ground, an inglorious fraud.

24. In translating the Book of Mormon, words are often used not contained in the English language. The following is a sample: "A fifth part of their ziff . . . . of iron, brass, and ziff" (Mosiah, chap. 7). What idea can we gather from ziff? If there was a metal then called ziff, why transfer the term, instead of translating? Uninspired translators might be excused for doing this on the ground of ignorance; but inspiration cannot excuse itself on such a plea.

25. It is claimed that the translation was done by the use of interpreters, which Joseph calls Urim and Thummim; and yet he once lost his gift to translate: "Now, behold, I say unto you, that because you delivered up those writings which you had power given unto you to translate, by means of the Urim and Thummim, into the hands of a wicked man, you have lost them; and you also lost your gift at the same time. . . . Nevertheless it is now restored unto you again" (Covenants, p. 78). We inquire—

(1) Was the gift in the stone-interpreters, or in Joseph?

(2) If Joseph himself had the gift, what need of the stones?

(3) If the gift was in the stones, how could Joseph lose it, without losing the stones?

The attempt to ease the matter off by calling the stones Urim and Thummim avails nothing, for the Jewish high priest never read languages by this means, but wore them upon his breastplate,—they were not used to read through, but were outward emblems of divine illumination upon the heart of the wearer; these twelve stones in the breastplate being called Urim and Thummim, signifying "lights and perfections, their outward brilliancy symbolizing inward enlightenment.

26. On p. 69 of the Book of Covenants, Joseph represents the Lord as saying to him, "And you have a gift to translate the plates, and this is the first gift bestowed upon you, and I have commanded that ye should pretend to no other gift until it is finished." This revelation was given in March, 1829. Yet in about two months after this, before the work of translation was finished, Joseph claims to have been endowed with the gift of prophecy, and did actually exercise that gift, in direct violation of the foregoing revelation. Joseph thus narrates the circumstance: "We still continued the work of translation, when in the ensuing month (May, 1829,) we, on a certain day, went into the woods to pray and inquire of the Lord respecting baptism for the remission of sins, as we found mentioned in the translation of the plates. . . . . Accordingly we went and were baptized . . . No sooner had I baptized Oliver Cowdry than the Holy Ghost fell upon him, and he stood up and prophesied many things which should shortly come to pass. And, again, so soon as I had been baptized by him, I also had the spirit of prophecy; when standing up, I prophesied concerning the rise of the church, and many other things."

This is said to have taken place while they "still continued the work of translation"; and yet Joseph here has the gift of prophecy, and also exercised that gift, though the Lord had told him previously that he should have "no other gift," than the gift of translation, till that work was "finished." Here is a direct collision between the two statements,

First, he should have no gift but the gift of translation, till he had "finished" the translation. Secondly, he did have the gift of prophecy before he had finished his work of translating.

27. The Book of Mormon betrays its weakness in imitating the style of Bible phraseology—a style in common use at the time our Bible was first translated into the English language, but which has long since ceased to be used, except as it is retained in our version of the Bible. Had the Bible never been translated into the English language till the present day, our ordinary language would have been used, instead of phraseology out of date; and as its present phraseology is not the style required by the original, Joseph's imitation of this out-dated phraseology in his pretended translation of a new work, or an old work newly found, is a strong proof against its divine origin; for Inspiration would not speak in an obsolete language, for the sake of making it sound like the Bible.

28. On p. 112 of Book of Covenants, Joseph says: "Which Zacharias he (Elias) visited and gave promise that he should have a son, and his name should be John." Luke tells us that it was Gabriel who thus visited Zacharias, and communicated this information to him, even according to the inspired version. Why, then, does Joseph clash with his own rendering, in saying that it was Elias? It will not do to insist that Elias turned into an angel, and then changed his name to Gabriel; for according to Christ, as before shown, the saints are not to be made "equal to the angels" till the resurrection; and none of them could turn into angels without this equality; besides a good angel would not change his name—that is a trick of rogues, to prevent detection.

29. How did the three witnesses see the plates? In a revelation made to them "previous to their viewing the plates," it was said to them: "It is by your faith that yon shall obtain a view of them, even by that faith which was had by the prophets of old" (Cov., p. 89). How much faith would it require to see a piece of gold where it really existed? Not much; but where it did not exist, it might need considerable faith to view it. Doubtless this might have been so with these sacred plates: they believed that what they saw was gold; that an angel brought them; and that the voice of God had endorsed the translation, being told all this by Joseph. Their testimony is drawn up in a way to intimate more than it affirms:

"Be it known unto all nations, kindreds, tongues, and people, unto whom this work shall come, that we, through the grace of God the Father, and our Lord Jesus Christ, have seen the plates which contain this record, which is a record of the people of Nephi, and also of the Lamanites their brethren, and also of the people of Jared, who came from the tower of which hath been spoken; and we also know that they have been translated by the gift and power of God, for his voice hath declared it unto us; wherefore we know of a surety that the work is true. And we also testify that we have seen the engravings upon the plates, and they have been shown unto us by the power of God, and not of man. And we declare with words of soberness, that an angel of God came down from heaven, and he brought and laid before our eyes, that we beheld and saw the plates, and the engravings thereon; and we know that it is by the grace of the Father, and our Lord Jesus Christ, that we beheld and bare record that these things are true; and it is marvelous in our eyes; nevertheless the voice of the Lord commanded us that we should bear record of it; wherefore, to be obedient unto the commandment of God, we bear testimony of these things."

Notice several points. Admitting Joseph might have had plates of some kind, either found, or prepared to imitate gold, these witnesses do not say that they saw the angel come down; they were doubtless told so by Joseph, just as the witch of Endor saw, and reported to Saul. Nor do they affirm that they heard the voice of God; it doubtless came through Joseph's revelation, commanding them to testify. Thus they saw no angel, and heard no voice; they simply affirmed on the strength of Joseph's word. If they had really seen an angel, they would have said so. If they had heard a voice from heaven, they would have said so. Nor is it sure that they saw the plates except by faith through Joseph. Being duped with the idea that he was a prophet, it would be easy for them to accept his revelation as the voice of God. Joseph might have had plates that would not pass inspection under a critic's eye, that might be accepted by dupes.

30. The testimony of the eight witnesses disagrees with the three. They do not claim that an angel brought the plates from heaven for them to view, and they deny that they were in the possession of the angel. "Be it known unto all nations, kindreds, tongues, and people, unto whom this work shall come, that Joseph Smith, Jr., the translator of this work, has shown unto us the plates of which hath been spoken, which have the appearance of gold; and as many of the leaves as the said Smith has translated we did handle with our hands; and we also saw the engravings thereon, all of which has the appearance of ancient work, and of curious workmanship. And this we bear record with words of soberness, that the said Smith has shown unto us, for we have seen and hefted, and know of a surety that the said Smith has got the plates of which we have spoken."

This testimony was given after that given by the three witnesses. Notice the collision in the testimony:

(1) The three witnesses affirm that the plates were in the hands of the angel, which "angel came down from heaven, and brought" the plates.

(2) After this, the eight witnesses affirm that they "know of a surety that the said Smith has got the plates."

When Joseph finishes translating, the angel takes the plates; he shows them to the three; after this, the eight witnesses know that the angel has not got them, but that Joseph has them in his possession. Who had the plates? Joseph, or the angel? The angel brought them from heaven to show them to the three. Where did Joseph subsequently get them to show to the eight? Did Joseph and the angel take turns in keeping the plates? The three only saw them; the eight even "hefted" them. Tin plates, dipped in a dye that would give them a golden color to superficial observers, would suffice in the hands of Joseph to get such a certificate. But real, truthful plates, transplated by inspiration, would never thus clash both with themselves and with the Bible, and also with their translator.

THE PAST YEAR.

The reminiscences of the past year bring emotions of joy, sadness, and hope. It brings joy to the heart that a year's toils and sadness, temptations and pains are past, and not to be repeated; that the twelve months voyage on these tempestuous seas brings us nearer our haven, nearer our glorious home. It gives sadness to reflect upon the soul-destroying work of Satan, in causing many of Christ's servants to compromise the truth for worldly fame and honorable caste, thus ceasing to bear the mortifying cross. Crimes of the darkest dye have rapidly increased, and been defiantly committed. Infidelities and the most insulting blasphemies have risen to the surface, bidding defiance to God and all that is sacred in heaven and upon the earth. It has saddened good hearts to witness divine truth, given for a warning to the world and to prepare a people for translation, falling in the streets, scornfully rejected by unbelievers, and neglected, or ceased to be defended by its professed friends.

The year has strengthened the hope of the weary pilgrims of speedy deliverance. It has witnessed the plucking of some as brands from the burning, and the perfecting of holiness and deepening the work of grace in the hearts of those who feel the necessity of a thorough preparation to meet the approaching Judge.

It has multiplied and made more clear and distinct the signs that the last judgment is impending. The record of the past is written, and cannot be changed only by the Ruler of the world. Wicked words and acts must remain an impassable barrier to our entrance into the holy city, unless swept away by the crimson flood from Calvary. Our alms giving and prayers in the past give us no security to-day for the future, unless the love of God now fills our hearts. Our condition through the endless cycles will depend upon our standing (in the gospel) and connection with Christ the last hour of our probationary time.

Let no one therefore glory or rest satisfied with what he has experienced or done in the past, but labor to enjoy constantly this assurance that at the present moment we are at peace with God and all his creatures. Never rest satisfied with your spiritual condition unless you feel assured that there is not at the present time any rebellion in your heart against yielding obedience to every commandment, ordinance, and precept of God's word, as you understand them, and also to every impression of duty, given by the blessed Holy Spirit, under all circumstances.

Never anticipate being more obedient to God to-morrow than you intend to be today. If you are conscious that you do not enjoy full salvation at the present hour, do not wait until to-morrow, or to go to some meeting, or for some one to pray for you; but covenant with God now, no matter where it is, that you will, by his grace, from the present moment, obey him in all he has taught you in his word, or may impress upon you by his Spirit. No one can pray you into that covenant with God, neither can you vote yourself into it by holding up your hand, or throw yourself into it by words you may use; but it is accomplished by a volition of the will, a yielding in the heart, the establishing of a fixed purpose to be entirely the Lord's; to devote yourself to him, all your time, talents, reputation, property, all you have or may have, just as he shall teach you to do. When this position is taken and maintained every hour, eternal life is secured by the promise and faithfulness of God.

We earnestly exhort every professed follower of Christ to examine themselves carefully upon the question of being completely saved at the present time from rebellion against God in word, thought, or deed. Do not be so careful about your joy and happiness as you are about your reconciliation to God. You may be confident that you love him when you love to obey him. Have no confidence in your religion when you do not love the worship of God better than you love any worldly business or pleasure. J. C.

FAST.

As our National Campmeeting at Springfield will be one of special importance this year, as will also the one at Alton Bay, it is eminently proper that those who are interested in their welfare should make them subjects of special prayer, that the Lord will be pleased to manifest himself in a remarkable manner, by the power of the Holy Spirit, in leading those who may attend these meetings to make full preparation to meet our coming King, and to devote themselves to his service with renewed zeal during the remainder of their christian warfare. To this end, we would suggest that Friday, Aug. 6th, be observed as a day of fasting and prayer for the success, not only of the meetings named, but all other similar ones. It is important that we feel our dependence upon the Lord for good results from these meetings. Let us meet solely to glorify him in building each other up in Christ and his truth. M. G.

TRUTH ADVANCING.

In our travels and association with devoted members of the various denominations, we find the fact most fully established that there is a rapidly growing interest to hear about the coming of Christ. At the holiness convention in Ocean Grove, when conversing on the subject with a prominent leader in the meetings, the person remarked, "I cannot see how any one who truly loves Christ can help loving his appearing." This person remarked that it is quite evident that this world-wide movement on holiness is a preparation for the coming of Christ. We and this belief is prevailing more and more, and with it an increased desire to hear on the subject. Their hearts are open to receive this crowning truth in the christian's hope.

There is also a willingness and an anxiety to hear other great truths, which have been supplanted by dogmatic errors. Among these truths are the sleep of the dead and the destruction of the wicked. The eyes of holy men and women are being opened to see the light on these subjects. We find that real christian people have been perplexed by the doctrine of eternal torment. They are not able to harmonize it with the declared attributes of our Creator; but when they see that the Scriptures plainly and harmoniously teach the final and literal destruction of all the wicked, including the devil and his angels, then their difficulties vanish, and there is seen a beautiful harmony in all the declared and manifested attributes of God in his dealings with angels and men.

It is right that sin and misery should come to an end, when the probationary dispensation shall expire. When the teachings of the Sacred Scriptures are understood in their simplicity, we believe all will agree that they uniformly teach that "the wages of sin is death." When we saw this truth, some thirty years since, it was a great relief to our mind, and served to increase our love for God and his word. We almost involuntarily exclaimed, That is right. Before that, the doctrine of eternal torment seemed like a dark spot in the sun of righteousness. It seemed as though Satan and all his hosts might bring the charge of cruelty against the Author of our being; but the doctrine of destruction, as taught in the Bible, removes every objection. If men persist in doing wickedly, and will not repent, it is perfectly right to let them "be as though they had not been." Justice, love and mercy all meet in harmony in putting an end to the sinner who refuses to stop sinning. Thank the Lord, the time is coming when all the living will be forever happy. M. G.

HOLINESS CONVENTION.—Another Union National Convention for the promotion of Bible holiness is to be held at Sea Cliff, Long Island, N. Y., commencing at three o'clock P. M., Wednesday, July 28th, and closing Monday evening, Aug. 2nd. This will be a very important meeting, and those interested in this subiect will do well to attend. There are good accommodations for board and lodging on the ground. The boat leaves New York at the foot of Grand St., at 9 A. M. and 5 P. M. Fare 30 cents. The pleasant trip is made in about an hour and a half.

"The Lord is doing great things in Great Britain, France, Germany, Switzerland, and other countries of Europe, and in all the world, there is such a work in progress, as never before since the days of the apostles. Many thousands of Christians are coming into such fulness of vital union with Christ, as they have never known before. Some of the precious things in this new experience are:

1. The knowledge of Christ as a present Savior from the power and dominion of sin.
2. A present freedom and spontaneity in worship, and walk, and warfare, very delightful.
3. Fulness of the love of God, and of peace and joy in his service.
4. Permanence in these things through an abiding union with Christ, and a knowledge of his power, and faithfulness to keep those who put their trust in him.
5. Power to witness for Jesus, and at the same time to know and feel their own nothingness, as never before.
6. Position for vigorous and rapid growth in grace without reactions or backslidings, because the love of God is more fully apprehended, and the will of God is more implicitly obeyed.
7. Fruitage in the christian life far more abundant than before.
8. Delight in the word of God, and prayer often expressed in such words as "I find the Bible a new book to me, and prayer is no longer task-work but a joy to my soul."
9. A power for watchfulness without effort greatly increased.
10. A freedom from cares and burdens, and a constancy of rejoicing in the Lord, quite corresponding to the promise of the word of God.

In this great work abroad, christians of all denominations are participating, and while they are fillled with love for all, their efficiency is greatly enhanced in their own churches . . .

With humble confidence we may conclude that the work, here and abroad, is only in its beginnings, and that very great things await us at hand, if our faith fail not. The two elements, permanence and progress, are central to the experience and lead us to look for no reaction from any advance, and no end to growth. Let us, therefore, confidently ask and receive the greater things, even things, according to the riches of the Father's glory by his Son Jesus Christ, in the power of the Holy Ghost promised for these last days. Let us pray God to incline many to come up to the convention for blessing, and to bless every one who comes. Pray especially for those who have special responsibilities in the convention. M. G.

CAMPMEETING.—Those who wish to receive great benefit from the campmeeting should come at the beginning. The first Sabbath is usually the most delightful. Come Saturday, Aug. 7th, and stay as long as you can. Come to do good, if you would receive special benefit. No campmeeting spectator can expect to receive much benefit. He who labors most for the good of others, forgetting himself as much as possible, is the one who may look for the richest blessings upon his own soul. Persuade as many unconverted persons as possible to come to the meeting, making them subjects of special prayer. Let no effort be spared that can be made to lead every one to Christ. Come to work for Jesus with new zeal. Let all who truly love him unite in this blessed work. This should be the all-absorbing business of the meeting. Make everything bend to this one object. Avoid all controversies with unbelievers, but kindly invite them to come to Jesus. Tell them what the dear Savior has done for you, and it will have much better effect than a dispute. Let us all unite in earnest effort to persuade as many as possible to get ready for the coming of the Son of man. M. G.

SIN AND PROBATION.

Some are quite puzzled to know why a holy, omnipotent, omniscient being should allow sin to exist in his creation. It was impossible to make free moral beings, without the possibility of their sinning. They could have been made as machines, or like beasts, having no responsibility, or moral nature; neither virtue or vice, or ability to possess either, but then they would not have been in the likeness of their Creator, or been capable of appreciating his character and attributes, or of mingling in holy society. He made man a being with whom he could associate in friendly fellowship, as a member of his divine family; hence, he must be allowed the freedom of his will, or he could have no character, or responsibility. As no one can have moral character who has not the power of choice, or freedom of the will, it follows that it was impossible for God to prevent sin, if man chose to do wrong, provided he was allowed to live. His Creator could have destroyed the first man, and allowed no more to exist; then, of course, there would be no men to sin; but if he allows a moral agent to live, he cannot prevent his sinning, if that is his choice.

We believe the Creator has done all within his power and wisdom to prevent sin that could be done consistent with the essential freedom of man's will. He could do no more without degrading man to a beast or a machine, when he would cease to be a man. The Creator has entreated man not to sin; offered the gift of eternal life if he would stop sinning, ask pardon, and accept the provided Savior. He has also assured him that if he will not repent, eternal destruction must be his doom. As a guard against sin, remorse, sorrow and misery have been made its associates; as pain is a guard against physical evil.

But God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him might not perish, but have everlasting life." As there is an offer of salvation after the act of sinning, probation becomes a necessity in order to save a sinner; then it follows that sin may be expected to continue as long as the system of probation exists. We can conceive of no reason why it should be allowed when the period of probation is expired. Eternal sinning would imply eternal probation. But the Scriptures clearly teach that after the sinning and probationary time has come to an end, that judgment, condemnation and execution must follow. As the probationary time is temporary, so must be sinning time. When the time of probation is finished, it will be the proper time to reward the righteous and punish the wicked. The holy will receive the gift of life eternal, and the wicked will be "destroyed for ever." Then the wicked will "be no more." Then the Scripture becomes true, which says: "Sin when it is finished bringeth forth death;" "for the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." M. G.

WE ARE HAPPY to inform those interested that the churches in Concord, N. H., that have met at the Bethel and Green St., have concluded to unite the two meetings in one, and for the present hold them at the Green St. house. May the Lord bless them richly. M. G.

FANATICISM.—A graphic picture of fanaticism may be found in another column. The likeness is well taken, and there is but little need of mistaking the real fanatic, after a careful reading of the article. M. G.

STAR GEMS is the title of a neat volume of excellent reading, just issued by Bro. J. W. Thomas. It contains 363 pp. Price $1.00. For sale at the Crisis office. M. G.

☞ A WEEK'S VACATION.

In order to give our compositors a little vacation, and also to accommodate the editors and clerks, who have extra work at this season, in consequence of the campmeetings, etc., we have decided to

Omit the Crisis for Aug. 18th,

but shall give our subscribers the full number for the volume, as usual. AG'T.

CAMPMEETING OUTFIT.

Those coming to campmeeting should bring their own bedding. Large tents will be provided in which to lodge. Straw or hay will be furnished for bedding. Those who wish a room by themselves can make one in the large tents with three or four sheets. Bring shawls, overcoat, umbrella, overshoes, comb and brush, soap and towels. Wear plain clothes, and leave the jewelry all at home, as it is liable to be lost, and one looks better without it, on the camp-ground (and everywhere else.) One can get along quite comfortably with a large shawl, or quilt, and a plenty of straw; but if it is desired to make up a bed, then bring a straw tick, a pillow case, and such bedding as is needed. Let all who can, bring lanterns, or other means of lighting their tents. Oil can be obtained on the ground. Each tent's company will need a hammer, axe or hatchet, saw, matches, wash basin, looking-glass, etc. It is well to make out a list of what is needed some time before starting. M. G.

DELEGATES.—As the business to be transacted this year by the Advent Christian Association at the Springfield Campmeeting will be of special interest and importance, every church co-operating with the Association should send its delegates. Each church can send one delegate, and an additional one for every fifty members above twenty-five. All co-operating ministers, in good standing, become members of the Association after their names are enrolled, without any other appointment; hence they should not be chosen as delegates.

Form of certificate for delegates:—

This is to certify that ——— was duly chosen by the church in ——— as a delegate to the annual meeting of the A. C. A., to be held on the camp-ground, at Springfield, Aug. 7th, 1875. (To be signed by the leader of the meeting.) The delegates should be chosen immediately, that they may arrange to be present. M. G.

THE FACT OF GOD'S EXISTENCE ESTABLISHED.
BY A. W. SIBLEY.

A valuable little Tract of eight pages—just the thing to circulate in these times of unbelief and skepticism. Price by mail, 15 cents per dozen. AGENT.

A WORD to those who write for publication. Use black ink; write coarsely and plainly, especially NAMES. Do not use any paper wider than foolscap, as it covers up too much of the case containing the type, and hinders the compositor. M. G.

PERSONAL.—We have just received a note from Bro. H. F. Carpenter, Vallejo, Cal., in which he says: "The Lord is with us. We feel that we are in the right place, at the right time. Several have requested prayers." This is good news. M. G.

THE SCIENCE OF HEALTH for July commences volume seven of this instructive monthly. Its contents are more than usually diversified; opening with an interesting sketch and fine portrait of the late publisher, Mr. S. R. Wells, the interest is well-sustained throughout. There is a practical and crisp article on general debility; another, very seasonable, on mineral waters. The interesting treatises entitled Popular Physiology are continued; this time the chapter being devoted to the brain and nervous system. Dr. Trall asks for a theory, and endeavors to answer the questions. Chapter six of What I know of doctoring, is quite agreeable. Among the other articles worthy of mention are the Irrepressible Conflict; Bathing when tired; The Pulse Family, in which beans, their different varieties, and modes of preparation for food, are well discussed by Julia Colman. The recipes of the department of household and agriculture are unusually full. Price 20 cents. By the year, $2.00. An excellent premium is offered to those who subscribe for the year. Address S. R. Wells & Co., 737 Broadway, New York City.

THE HEALTH REFORMER for July contains a rich store of valuable information on subjects pertaining to health and kindred topics. The table of contents includes the following among other interesting articles: physical effects of alcohol; dress reform; criminal responsibility; diagnosis of a cold; discussion of the salt question; bathing; parlor lectures, No 1; the new treatment of fever. The people's department, dietetics, and seasonable hints, are also of more than ordinary interest. Every family can be benefited by reading this magazine. Published at Battle Creek, Michigan. Specimen copies are sent free.

THE PHRENOLOGICAL JOURNAL and Life Illustrated for July appears upon our table, laden with mental wealth. The articles on Prof. Henry, of the Smithsonian Institute, Cardinal McCloskey, Types of Development, Longevity of Brain Workers, Science and Religion, Vaccination, are well written and full of information. The Editorial Department is unusually rich, and the illustrations profuse. For a year's subscription, $3.00. S. R. Wells and Co., publishers, 737 Broadway, New York.

BRO. H. G. WHITAKER writes:—"Dearly beloved, please remember my daughter in your prayers to the Lord, that he would restore her to health, if consistent with his will."

THE TRACT FUND.

THE ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY, at a meeting on Springfield camp-ground, August 13th, 1874, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. TAKE COURAGE.

TO THE A. A. M. SOCIETY.

Dear Brethren:—While I am sending the name of a new subscriber for our beloved Crisis, for whose weekly visits I often become impatient, I will tell you a little of the result of our late visit to Caldwell Co., N. C. I here give an extract from a letter from a Bro. who lives near Colletsville, where Bro. R. H. Moody undertook to upset the truth. The Bro. Powell of whom he speaks is the pastor of the Baptist church, called Rocky Spring; while the said Moody is a member of said church. As a preacher, he is considered a champion. Under date of 7th inst., he says:—

"Dear Bro. Cargile:—A note will inform you of the state of feeling here now. We held our church meeting, Moody and Powell both there. Powell delivered a good sermon. Moody seemed out of humor. Church seated ready for business. I called for the "Articles of Faith" to be read, which was done, and we all sanctioned them cheerfully. This did not satisfy them. They wanted a committee to be sent,—for Moody to select his own committee. We offered all that any christian could conscientiously ask for, and nothing would do; so about twenty of us withdrew from the church. . . . We are keeping still. We calculate on putting up a house soon. We can say of a truth that such tyrannical dealing you never saw surely. James Crisp (Methodist) has been up, and such a thrashing as he gave you, and said he would challenge you if you were here. I hear very favorable reports from the mountain where you preached, and Lenoir would like very much to have you make your arrangements to be here by the time spoken of. Will write again soon.
With respect, D. D. COFFEY."

I praise the Lord that the seed sown has taken such permanent root as to spring up so soon, and I pray that it may redound to God's glory. In Lenoir I did not have the privilege of a church, and I pledged to the friends that in case I could borrow a tent, I would return there from campmeeting, and hold a tent-meeting in their village. Who has a tent to loan till next year's campmeeting? I also want to take it to Arkansas sometime the coming winter, or next spring. Any one who can lend me a tent for the southern field, please inform me at Springfield, or Alton Bay campmeetings.

Dear brethren and sisters, pray for us in this hard field of labor. Yours in Christ,
JOHN A. CARGILE.
Stevenson, Ala., July 15th, 1875.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

We pitched the tent at Washington Mills, Me., June 17th. This was a new field of labor, the people being wholly unacquainted with the Advent doctrine. Bro. J. R. Hall had been there, and preached one Sunday a few weeks before. After speaking to them a few times on the fulfillment of prophecy, and the signs of the times, relating to the soon coming of Christ and the setting up of his kingdom on earth, the people became interested.

A goodly number came out to hear and commenced to investigate for themselves, to see whether these things were so, and as a result quite a number embraced the truth, and were reclaimed from a backslidden state, and decided to be the Lord's at the loss of all things. The last Sunday we were there, June 27th, one young sister put on Christ by baptism. She had been very fond of dress, but gave up all for Jesus. Brother Hall was with us Saturday and Sunday to help preach the word.

We closed our meetings after being there two weeks, feeling satisfied that the Lord had blessed them to the good of the people. In our last meeting, nearly two thirds of the congregation gave expression that the things we had presented were true. One influential man who had been a Methodist preacher, who constantly attended our meetings, testified that we had presented very many important truths, in relation to Christ's soon coming, and the establishment of his kingdom on earth, but could not fully agree with us on the unconscious state of the dead. The Lord help him to get the whole truth.

We next visited Palermo, and commenced meetings July 1st, and held them over the fourth. Bro. George Weeks was with us to help. It being an old field, we did not feel it duty to make a long stop.

Next at Rockland, where we are at the present time. I have received but little in preaching thus far. O that the Lord might put it into the hearts of those that have got a love for the truth to come and help proclaim this message of our blessed Lord's soon coming! O how many are asleep on the subject!

The signs portend that it is near at hand. The Lord help us, his ministering servants, to be giving the meat that is due in season, that when he comes, it may be said, "Well done." F. E. BLAISDELL.
Rockland, Maine, July 16th.

DISHONESTY in business or religion will kill the most valiant christian soldier.

OUR NATIONAL CAMPMEETING.

The time draws near for the annual gathering of the most important meeting of Advent believers on this continent, in many respects. First, the National Association of our people meets to transact important business, such as choosing the officers for the different departments of business. In these days of shuffling and complaining, there will of course be some dissatisfaction with those that have been true to the cause for years. I wish all who read this would stop a few minutes and think what will be best for the cause at this critical time. We, as a people, stand better in the eyes of opposers than we have for twenty years. God is sending us a new recruit of prophetic signs, that honest christians begin to see; and many strong men from other denominations begin to acknowledge the fact; and if we keep at the work, we shall soon have help we little expected a few years ago. As the engineers have done so well in going over the broken rails, I think, after reviewing the situation candidly, we had better not try the experiment of changing engineers, firemen, or conductors, this year. We had better carry some dead-heads and useless freight, than to run the risk of a smash-up. We are doing well now, and can we change for the better? is the question.

Think it over, brethren, and come to the meeting decided in your own mind what will be the best for the general good of all concerned in this great cause. I am only one among you, but I have a good opportunity of knowing some things which many of you who read the Crisis cannot. Sometimes the advice of old soldiers has saved a defeat, if not a needless battle. Let us be careful just now, and act prudently.
H. MUNGER.

ELD. S. P. BABCOCK.

Yesterday (Sunday, July 25th), I spent with the church in Woodstock Valley, Ct., and had the privilege of a short visit with this aged, suffering brother. He has a very bad cancer on the left side of his face, and suffers intense pain nearly all the time, and must soon be gathered to the grave unless the Lord helps him. Brethren, pray for him, and write him some words of comfort and cheer his heart. His address is Woodstock Valley, Ct. C. G.

RESIGNATION.

At a business meeting of the Advent Christian Church, Sandy Hill, N. Y., held July 20th, 1875, the following resignation was presented by Eld. A. W. Sibley, Pastor of said church:—

To the Advent Christian Church, Sandy Hill, N. Y.

DEAR BRETHREN:—Having been called by your Ministerial Committee to become your pastor, and take the oversight and watchcare of you as the church of Christ, in the year 1871; and, after much prayer, was persuaded it was my duty so to do, I accordingly came among you; and now, after a pastorate of four years, I deem it expedient and duty to discontinue my pastoral relation with you, and therefore do hereby present to you this my resignation, to take effect on and after this date. And in dissolving my pastoral connections with you, I commend you to God and the word of his grace, which is able to build you up, and give you a seat among them that are sanctified. And I pray God you may live in peace both among yourselves and those who are without; and the very God of peace sanctify you wholly, and preserve you blameless unto his heavenly kingdom. A. W. SIBLEY.
Sandy Hill, July 20th, 1875.

After the presentation of the resignation by Bro. Sibley, the following resolution was presented and passed by a full and hearty vote:—

RESOLUTION.

Whereas, Eld. A. W. Sibley has preached for the Advent Christian Church for the last four years, and now closes his labors among us for the present, therefore

Resolved, That in parting with him we cheerfully give him this testimonial of our appreciation of his able services, and commend him to all Christian churches in the land as an able minister of the gospel, and one every way worthy of the fullest confidence of all.

It was voted, that the above resignation and resolution be published in the World's Crisis.

TENT MEETINGS IN IOWA.

When I wrote the last report of our labors, we had just pitched our tent in Scranton, Iowa. We continued the meeting two weeks, with good results. The people of God were strengthened, wanderers reclaimed, and many became very much interested in the truth.

The Sunday following the close of the tent meeting in Jefferson, Mr. Heagle, the Baptist minister, who is looked upon as a "big gun," preached a discourse upon man's state in death; and as I had an open-air meeting there in the afternoon, I concluded to stop and hear him, leaving Bro. Hough to carry on the tent meeting at Scranton. His argument seemed to me, and to many others, also, to be very weak, and at the close of the lecture, I arose and asked the brother if he would hold a public debate with me upon the subject of the evening's lecture. He would not give a direct answer, but said I would do well to consult him in private about it.

The next morning I wrote a letter renewing the invitation, but he refused, and sent out an appointment to Scranton (which was given out at the close of our last meeting), that he would lecture there on the following Tuesday evening upon the same subject.

Many of the citizens came to me the next morning after I had got to the depot, and urged me to remain and review the lecture, among whom was lawyer Langley, who is not a professor, but is getting very much interested in the truth, and Bro. Amsden, a Baptist preacher, who has got his eyes open to the truth. We therefore concluded to stay, but the next morning learned that Mr. Heagle had postponed his lecture until the Sunday following, having doubtless heard that we were intending to remain, and so we took the train for Cherokee, our next appointment.

The truth is taking a deep hold upon the people. J. RIDLEY.

HOLINESS.

H. S. MITCHELL.

Holiness of heart was the great subject of our Savior's preaching. It is the central principle of Christianity. It is a vital part in the plan of salvation, and demands the attention of all who wish to be saved. Holiness secures success. Deprived of every other enjoyment, he is really the rich man who has formed a character based on the rock of eternal holiness. No man can become what his Creator designed him to be without dedicating himself to God and becoming holy.

Holiness implies an absence of sin, and the possession of the Spirit of Christ. It is the watchword of the christian, the sentiment of his soul, the beginning of permanent peace, the cause of happiness, and the passport to eternal bliss. Holiness, in a word, is essential to meet the wants of life in our present existence, and indispensable for those who are to inherit the world to come. Without holiness of heart, man becomes selfish and sinful, vile and vicious, wretched and miserable in the extreme. True it is, persons may become moral in the strictest sense, perfect in theology, generally correct in theory, learned in science, respectable in deportment, generous in disposition, abounding in good works, conversant with the Scriptures, friends to humanity; and yet, in one grand particular fail to reach the greatest good, or to attain the highest excellence of a noble christian manhood. We readily admit that more of this kind of morality is needed, would be beneficial to the individual, advantageous to society; and not in the least would we undervalue a life rich in deeds of pure morality. We hold every degree of morality praiseworthy, and are bound to respect persons just in proportion as these elements abound in their character. We must be holy in order to be ready when Christ comes the second time, without sin, unto salvation. May christian holiness grow up in our hearts, so that we may abound in all the graces of the gospel.

Obituaries.

YOUNG. In Lincolnville, Me., July 9th, 1875, Moses Young, Esq., aged seventy-two years, ten months.

Bro. Young has been one of the energetic, enterprising men of this generation; endowed with the faculty to do much business to good advantage. He became interested in Christ and his cause early in life, and devoted much of his means to the support of the gospel. His house has always been a pilgrim home. For many years he has been deeply interested in the proclamation of Christ's soon coming, and aided in sustaining its messengers. Several years ago he became disabled by a paralytic shock, since which he has not been able to do much service. Suddenly, on the morning of the 9th inst., he was atttacked with illness, and calling to his wife and daughter, told them he was going to die. He was helped into his chair, and immediately expired without a struggle.

A wife and large family of children, with many friends, mourn their loss, while many of those have hope in Christ, and in his soon coming to bring back their dead to dwell in the new earth with them. The funeral services were conducted by Elds. Marrion, Rhodes, and Simeon Hall.

I. C. WELLCOME.

For many years a firm believer in the Advent faith, and found sweet peace in the last moments. Before her death she sent for me to visit her. I did so, and while reading to her the resurrection Scriptures, she was enabled to be calm. The glorious hope of triumph over the last enemy was to her joy unspeakable. Truly here we see one who has "kept the faith," and died assured she had not "followed a cunningly devised fable," but knew her "Redeemer liveth." Services in the Methodist church, by Arthur A. Waite. Lesson, Rev. 20: 11-15. Text, Acts 7: 1.

Flora was always held in high esteem by all her relatives and acquaintances. She has fallen, but with a good hope in Christ of a glorious immortality at the grand consummation, when death is swallowed up in victory. Sermon by the writer, from 1 Thess. 4: 18. May God sanctify this bereavement to the good of all. J. WHITMAN.

He leaves a wife, five sons, and two daughters to mourn his loss. Bro. Crowningshield embraced the "blessed hope" in 1854, and has been a strong believer ever since. His last words were, "Lord Jesus, come quickly." He selected his own text, in Rev. 14: 13.

"Earthly home, adieu, adieu;
Earthly friends, farewell to you;
Softly breathe your last good bye,
Jesus calls me, let me die.
Hallelujah, Christ will come;
Hallelujah, I'm most home.
Friends and loved ones, weep no more,
Meet me on the other shore."

POWERS. In Orford, P. Q., June 12th, 1875, of consumption, Charles E. Powers, aged sixty-six years.

Another has paid the debt, and yielded to the cruel sway of death. His sufferiugs were painful to bear, yet he bore them patiently. He now is resting with the silent dead, awaiting the resurrection morning. He leaves a wife, six children, a father, and three sisters, to mourn his loss. God grant they may meet in the kingdom. The writer endeavored to speak words of comfort from Gen. 3: 19. JOHN CHAPMAN.

Sister Smith found Jesus precious a few years since. She was a firm believer in the truths we hold so dear, and was highly esteemed by all who knew her. She leaves a husband, and many other friends to mourn her loss. The services were held in the Congregationalist church at Craig's Mills, Oxford, Me. Sermon by the writer, from 2 Sam. 14: 14. J. WHITMAN.

PEVY. In Portsmouth, N. H., July 12th, 1875, Sister Annie A. Pevy, aged thirty-four years.

"Sleeps in Jesus, blessed sleep,
From which none ever wake to weep."

FOREIGN NEWS.

LONDON, July 26. The Daily News' special from Lisbon reports a drouth in several districts of the Province of Minho, which has destroyed the crops and pastures. A famine is threatened, and riots against grain exporters are imminent. The cattle are dying of hunger. The local authorities report that it will be impossible to collect taxes in many places, and an attempt to do so would cause an insurrection. Accounts from Algarne show a similar state of affairs in that Province. Government is sending relief to the affected sections.

LONDON, July 26.—The operatives in thirty of the cotton-spinning mills at Oldham, Lancashire, refused to accept their month's wages to-day, and the mills were closed. An extensive strike is anticipated. There are some one hundred and fifty cotton mills in the place, which is seven miles from Manchester.

From Zion's Herald:—"Rev. George Trask is in a fair way to have an efficient successor in Rev. I. C. Wellcome, of Yarmouth, Me. We have received a spirited tract from his pen, entitled, 'The Tobacco Plug and Cigar.' Its seventy-two pages are crowded with facts and figures, forming a terrible indictment against the foolish and vulgar habit and expensive indulgence of the use of tobacco. We wish it the widest circulation and the utmost success in its important mission."

From the Portland Transcript:—"Rev. I. C. Wellcome, of Yarmouth, Me., publishes a neat pamphlet of seventy-two pages, against the use of the 'The Tobacco Plug and Cigar,' being a friendly talk with those who use tobacco, with the hope of benefitting them in health, mind and money. It is a complete treasury of anti-tobacco argument and appeal. Sold for $10 per hundred, $1.50 per dozen, 15 cents single copy. Send order to the author." Sold at the Crisis Office.

WHICH DAY SHALL WE KEEP?

AN EXAMINATION OF MRS. ELLEN G. WHITE'S VISIONS.

BY MILES GRANT.

ISSUED

BY THE ADV. CHRIS. PUB. SOCIETY,

A NEW WORK

On the Sabbath of the Old Covenant. An investigation of Mrs. E. G. White's Visions, showing that they are not from God.

All who have accepted Mrs. White's visions as coming from heaven, or who have been led to rest on Saturday instead of the Lord's day, should read this work. Let those who live among our Seventh-day brethren send and get a number of the books to give away. If the reader has friends at a distance who have received Mrs. W.'s Visions as true, have a copy of this work sent to them.

PRICE REDUCED.

The great Map of History, twenty-two feet long, and about thirty inches wide. This valuable work, of which mention has been made in the Crisis, we now have a supply of, and will send to those who may order at the publisher's reduced price of $12.00 per copy, by express. We have them on rollers, and in book form, and can supply either way.

The best method of using the chart or map of history is to hang the frame on the wall of the room (the map being in the frame, of course), by the two hooks in the upper bar of the frame, high enough to stand, or sit, in front of it, and there examine or study it.

Students and beginners in history should occasionally look over the map in its entire length—drawn out on the wall, or tables, or on the carpet—until they are well acquainted with the entire outlines, plan and compass of the map, which embraces all history. AG'T.

GOD'S WAYS BEST.

God's ways are always best,
Though ofttimes they may lead
Through gloomy wilderness,
Where feet may tire and bleed,
'Neath scorching sands and burning sky,
No cooling streams or palm-trees nigh;
By hunger oft, and thirst sore pressed;
And yet, God's ways are always best.

God's ways are always best;
If he but with us go,
No fear shall dare molest,
No care, or envious foe;
Clear streams shall from the hard rocks gush,
Sweet oases 'midst the hot sands blush;
Soft winds at eve shall soothe our rest;
And so God's ways are always best.

God's ways are always best;
E'en though through death's dark sea,
Whose waters never rest,
Our path may sometimes be;
His hand the rough waves shall divide,
Till we have reached the "other side,"
And safe within his sheltering breast;
And so God's ways are always best.

OUR TRIP.

We had so much to be grateful for during our trip across the continent, and so many are waiting to hear of our welfare, that I write a word through the Crisis for all.

OUR COMPANY.

We started from Boston at 6 P. M., June 16th, with two and from Lowell with six cars full of passengers bound for the Pacific coast. We were not long in getting acquainted, and from the outset felt a strong bond of sympathy with each other. Our company was first class, and among them some choice spirits, to whom we became much attached, and our parting was like the parting of old friends. Bro. C. C. Morse of Santa Clara, and Bro. and Sr. Taylor of Sugar Hill, N. H., were among the number, and being of like precious faith added much to our joy. Eld. Darling and family, formerly city missionary in Fitchburg, Mass., was also on board, and our acquaintance with him was profitable and pleasant.

OUR ACCOMMODATIONS.

As a family we had four whole seats, and being supplied with good curled hair mattresses, we could make up two beds at night and stretch ourselves at full length for sleep. After the first night we slept soundly, unconscious of the whirling train, the rattling wheel, the screaming whistle, or long stoppage. Having plenty of provisions with us, and an arrangement for heating water for tea, the car became our home, and we kept house, indeed, though not with all modern conveniences. Embracing the home idea, and dismissing in a great measure the idea of journeying, the days passed quickly and peacefully, and the anticipated weariness of travel did not reach us.

THE ROUTE.

We passed over the Central Vt. R. R. to Montreal; by Grand Trunk R. R. to Detroit; by Mich. Central to Chicago, and by Chicago, Quincy and Burlington R. R. to Omaha. At Waterbury, Vt., some of our well known and much loved friends came on board to speak a parting word, which both gladdened and saddened us. In Canada it seemed strange, after enjoying the full-fledged foliage of Massachusetts and seeing the farmers busy at hoeing, to find the leaves about half grown, the grass just making green the fields, and the farmers ploughing to plant. The diminutive, shanty-like houses, together with the dreary-looking plains, made us quite willing to pass on at express speed.

The Victoria Bridge, at Montreal, was indeed a wonder; built of iron, three miles long, costing seven millions of dollars; but Montreal itself was a disappointment. Its depot dining-rooms were not equal to those of small New England towns. Beer could be had much easier than tea or food.

Leaving Montreal and approaching the great lakes, we passed through fine rich fields of grass and grain. At Port Huron our entire train passed on to the ferry-boat and crossed into Michigan. This gave a pleasurable variety to our travel.

Away we speed across the rich plains till the second morning finds us in Chicago. Here Bro. Clark came on board and replenished our lunch baskets, and while our train was changing baggage piloted us through the river. How grand to stand under the river bed and realize by its deafening roar that its torrents were rushing above your head. Surely human ingenuity has accomplished much.

On again we speed across Illinois with its beautiful palace-like farm homes, adorned with shade trees and overlooking richest fields, till we find ourselves creeping slowly over the muddy Mississippi upon the slender looking iron bridge. A slight halt at Burlington and away we dash through Iowa with a soil blacker than any seen yet, though too new to equal Illinois in ornament. We soon found ourselves looking suspiciously into the waters of the wide-spread Missouri, but feel better inclined toward it as we land at Omaha safe across its tide.

From Omaha the Union Pacific R. R. bears us through Nebraska. Nebraska for a while endeavored to keep up the reputation of its sister States just passed, but soon failed, presenting in its central and western portions a dry, withered surface, well visited by grasshoppers, millions of which could be seen. Here we bid as it were farewell to fertility till we reach the western slope of the Sierra Nevada. To be sure, along the Platte a ridge of green trees of slender growth relieves the eye a little, and the Humboldt valley and the valley of the Truckee offer some verdure, but for the most part it is one continuous barren plain, parched by heat and covered by wild sage brush. From Omaha

THE SCENERY

Is most monotonous, relieved only by the cunning movements of prairie dogs, jack rabbits, antelope, and occasional tiota, until we reach the heights of the Rocky Mountains, when the scenery becomes beautiful like that of Vermont. At Sherman, the highest point crossed by the cars, we were eight thousand two hundred and forty-two feet above the level of the sea, or more than a mile and a half higher than the city of Boston. Having ample time, we got out and tried to run to the top of a high point, but the atmosphere was so rare that we had no "wind." Looking either way the track quickly disappears from view, and the train seems to stand upon an iron arch supported by the solid ridge.

Near Creston we stand on the central point of the Rocky Mountains, from which water, if there was any, would divide and seek both the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. As we descend through Echo and Weber Canyons, the scenery is thrilling. Castle Rock, Pulpit Rock, Steamboat Rock, Hanging Rock, Devil's Slide, and the Devil's Gate, surpass anything we ever saw for grandeur.

The scenery of the Sierra Nevada we passed mostly in the night and lost a rich treat, but not wholly, for we could not resist the temptation to forfeit sleep while we passed around Cape Horn. On this trip we witnessed for the first time winter and summer in an affectionate embrace. We were sweltering in heat of 98° in shade, and a little way off apparently, and at one time actually, within one half mile lay piles of snow kissed by the summer sunbeams, yet without any apparent discomfiture or grief. I presume the rocky chasms and the towering mountain heights gave it courage to stay and be kissed rather than vanish.

THE WEATHER

During all the trip was delightful. Rain had gone before us, so that we found the dust well laid nearly all the way. We thought how good the Lord was to send his sprinkling chariots of cloud before us, and yet give us beautiful sunshine every day. Only two brief showers struck our train. We passed places where they seldom if ever have rain. At one place it sprinkled a tenth part enough to lay the dust. It was their second shower! You will not wonder that neither grass nor trees grow in such sections unless by irrigation. At one place (Hilliard) they floated their wood thirty miles in a trough three feet wide and two feet deep. The trough was raised upon trestle work twenty feet high in some places. This wood converted into charcoal gave profitable returns for this expensive connection between mountain side and railway.

OUR HEALTH.

We all set out worn and weary by preparatory work and thought. As we journeyed we rested, appetite improved, and to speak for myself I gained in weight on the trip. All of us grew stronger rather than otherwise. I could not have believed it possible to travel by cars twelve successive days and yet feel better than at the set-out.

OUR ARRIVAL.

At Sacramento we were met by Brn. Nichols, Ficks, Parker, and others, which caused us to feel like Paul when he "thanked God and took courage." From Sacramento we had a beautiful sail down the river on the steamer Amadon to San Francisco. Bro. Young from Vallejo and Brn. Howell and Irwin were soon on deck and made known to us. We quickly exchanged boat for Bro. Snow's home, when a light in the window signaled our welcome, although at eleven o'clock at night.

Tuesday, June 29th, found us at Vallejo, where, if we may judge from practical demonstrations, there are large hearts as well as heads, strong hands as well as nerves. We felt at home from the first, and our first Sunday with this people gave promise of good.

THE CROWN.

J. W. THOMAS.

"There is laid up for me a crown." 2 TIM. 4: 8.

Is there a crown laid up for me? What a thought is this! If I am a follower of Jesus, then there is laid up for me a crown. What unspeakable comfort must this afford a dying saint, as the world recedes from his view, and earthly objects float in broken images before his vision, to see by faith, awaiting him in heaven, a crown of immortal brilliancy!

Paul was a blessed old soldier. He had seen hard fare, and had fought many a hard battle. From the time of his conversion, to the time when he penned these words, his life had been one continued scene of toil, sacrifice, and suffering for the Master's sake. Of himself he has written: "In labors more abundant, in stripes above measure, in prisons more frequent, in deaths oft. Of the Jews five times received I forty stripes save one. Thrice was I beaten with rods; once was I stoned, thrice I suffered shipwreck, a night and a day have I been in the deep; in journeyings often, in perils of waters, in perils of robbers, in perils by mine own countrymen, in perils by the heathen, in perils in the city, in perils in the wilderness, in perils in the sea, in perils among false brethren; in weariness and painfulness; in watchings often, in hunger and thirst, in fastings often, in cold and nakedness. Beside those things that are without, that which cometh upon me daily, the care of all the churches."

Did any apostle ever suffer more? Concerning it all he says, "Our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory; while we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen; for the things which are seen are temporal, but the things which are not seen are eternal."

It is his dying hour. He is a prisoner at Rome. Nero the emperor is soon to have him brought forth and beheaded. He writes to his son Timothy, and expresses his comfort, and hope, as he surveys the past and the future. "I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day; and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing."

Blessed man of God! Who is more worthy to receive a crown than Paul the aged? Yes, dear, faithful, beloved apostle, you will receive a crown; not a crown of flowers, or laurel, that withers and fades; but a crown of life, of righteousness, whose brightness will outdazzle the sun in its noon-day splendors. When the righteous Judge appears, and the dead are awakened, you will get your crown. I hope to be there to receive one too.

When He who wore the crown of thorns, and was crucified for sinners, shall come down the shining pathway of heaven, crowned with many crowns, and wielding the rod of almighty power, I hope to be there, at his right hand, and hear him say to me, "Receive thy crown."

A crown! What does it mean? It means victory, triumph. The saints shall have victory over all their enemies. They shall triumph over sin, death, and the grave. Jesus, death's great overcomer, shall ransom his people from the grave, and give them the crown of everlasting victory. A crown! It means splendor, glory honor, and unparalleled magnificence. What pomp and splendor attend earthly kings and potentates; but the future glory of the saints shall be as much superior to the transient glory of earth, as the sun in its brightness outdazzles the faint glimmering of the glow-worm. These vile bodies shall be fashioned like Christ's "glorious body." This mortal shall "put on immortality." "When the chief Shepherd shall appear, then shall ye receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away."

A crown! It means dominion. "The kingdom, and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High." What a prospect is this! Earth shall be filled with the glory of God. The weakest saint here shall there be crowned with honor, glory, immortality, and eternal life. Press on. "Hold that fast which thou hast, that no man take thy crown."

HOPE.

B. S. CRAIG.

Hope has justly been designated the "anchor of the soul." The christian's hope is the firm expectation of all promised good. This hope is distinguished from worldly hopes (1), by the excellency of its object, and (2), by the stability of its foundations.

As the worldling starts upon any business project, he has an object in view; he does not run at hazards, he counts the cost of his enterprize, and endeavors to sum up from the beginning how much pecuniary gain he can derive from his scheme; if any prospect of failure is in view, the wise man does not venture; the object of the world with all their pursuits is to gain happiness and comfort for the present; the object of the christian hope while it reaches out after happiness, has also a higher and holier object in view, even glory to the King of kings, now risen, and exalted in hope, glorified and enthroned.

In this life there is nothing stable; our best tried friends ofttimes deceive us; the very earth upon which we tread is rocked to and fro, and convulsed by mighty earthquakes; but nought can shake the christian hope, which is built upon Christ—the Rock of ages; who is from everlasting to everlasting, the same yesterday, to-day, and forever more.

Timothy says, "I know whom I have believed, and I am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed to him, against that day." This hope gilded the dying hours of Timothy, and led his faith unwaveringly on down through the ages to come, when he shall have received that priceless boon on the resurrection morn. David says, "My flesh shall rest in hope;" and this saint of old peacefully laid his body down, in confident assurance of its resurrection to a blessed and immortal life.

Do any doubt that David still rests in hope? hear the apostle who says—"David hath not yet ascended into the heavens, his sepulchre remains with us unto this day." Says the patriarch Job—"I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth; and though worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God." The firmness of Job's hope knows no parallel.

It is easy to look forward with hope and expectation in prosperity, but only the firmest faith actuates hope so full of strength, as Job realized in his hour of darkest trial, when it would seem as though the ear of God was closed to his bitter wailings of sorrow.

Hope is the day-star upon which we fix our eye, when despair would drive us away from God.

Hope is the torch borne by the hand of faith through the darkening shadows, thrown around the christian's path, by the deceitfulness of sin.

In these last days of trial and suffering, hope is a priceless jewel; it bears us above the darts of despair, and brings us within sound of that voice which says, Look up, for your redemption draweth nigh."

FANATICISM.

Fanaticism is a religious frenzy; a delusion, the entertainment of wild and extravagant notions on the subject of personal sanctification and gifts. It is the excess of enthusiasm, and differs from it as the effervescence or froth of soda water differs from the liquid itself. It generally takes the form of a conceit that some supernatural wonder-working power has been bestowed; such as healing diseases, uttering prophecies, raising the dead, walking on water, discerning spirits, casting out devils, and imparting the Holy Ghost by laying on hands. Sometimes it develops into a belief of the preternatural in visions, dreams, impressions, sights, sounds and voices. And to these vagaries full blown visionaries will attach an authority akin to infallibility. Their notions will be accepted as guides so reliable as to supercede all other teachers, and even the letter of the Bible itself. All media of communication are displaced in their imagination, and God is supposed to talk and make revelations to their minds directly, or through such apparitions, or other miraculous interpositions, as he may see fit to extemporize for their exclusive benefit. Such persons will have a peculiar style of characterizing the intercourse of God with their souls. They will speak with great assurance and familiarity of what God said to them, of what he told them to do, or not to do. And if a medium is used at all, it will not be a Scriptural text, a providence, the voice of the living ministry or the special illumination of the Holy Spirit; but a reverie, a spectre, a dream, or some sort of ecstatic emotion.

Now such fancies have existed in every age; they have vexed and crippled the church in every period of her history; they have hovered around and stifled every great revival of religion; they are omnipresent, and find their way to every extraordinary meeting; they are officious and irrepressible in every voluntary or open service. They spring up like mushrooms, but endure like Canada thistles. As that pestiferous vegetable cannot be exterminated by being cut down and lacerated; so these capricious people cannot be suppressed, but are rather increased by acts of violence and perecution. Indeed any effort to restrain and moderate their extravagances generally has the effect to inflame their whims and rap them into bewildering infatuation. They turn to martyrs as naturally and easily as Roman Catholic devotees brighten into saints.

In practice they are clannish, insubordinate, schismatical. All religion is resolved into the meritorious act of coming out of some Babylon—an act of separation from the unwashed; a self complacent act of Pharisaic assumption of superiority and pre-eminent goodness. . . .

Now these fanatics come periodically-like the accidental plagues of bugs and grass-hoppers; and they prey upon the life of they church as destructively as the devouring insect consumes the sustenance of man and beast on the plains of Nevada and Kansas. The apostolic letters give abundant evidence of the existence of such characters in the primitive church. In the days of John Wesley they were rife and rampant. His societies were infested with them; and the great revival did almost miscarry on account of them. Led by Thomas Maxfield and George Bell, the London membership came to the very crest of ruin. It seemed for a time that a tempest of wildfire, in spite of Mr. Wesley's resistance, would drive the reformation upon the rocks of "strong delusion." Two hundred separated from the society, and set up for themselves; their devotions were seasons of unnatural ravings; their spirit uncharitable; their professions presumptuous, and tinged with blasphemy; they were holy as angels, perfect as God, had not sinned, and could not sin. Wesley, nor other unsanctified men, could teach them anything. They read the Bible and had need of no other book, and were guided by impressions, dreams and visionary revelations. Of course these hallucinations wrought great mischief, and brought great discredit, subjecting its founder to severe and undeserved criticism. . . .

George Bell careered off into the most disastrous extremes. He backslid, renounced religion, and finally died a miserable apostate and infidel. We have no detailed account of their deluded followers, but presume they dwindled and wasted until they reached the mathematical result, that from nothing, nothing remains. Let all the friends and advocates of holiness take warning from these sad examples, and hold fast the form of sound words, practice moderation, put on charity, and exalt themselves by sitting at the feet of Jesus, clothed in their right mind.—Christian Standard.

LINES.

"And he shall bring down their pride."—ISA. 25: 11.

Carefully survey the nations round,
These mournful truths assuredly are found.
This world is chosen for "sweet home";
Neglected by the mass the world to come.
Indeed, man claims the kingdom, power and glory!
Men honoring one another—saddening story;
Ignoring heaven; manhood as supreme;
The Lord—how little thought or care for him.
Dreadful development,—opposing heaven's right,
Man is enthroned, God kept out of sight.

CONFESSION.

Many years since our tenting place was in the far west, just on the borders of civilization amid the rocky hills, in the heart of the lead mining district. Here in a valley there was quite a settlement of people, left without a preacher of any denomination, until the Lord sent us one who, although rich in faith, was destitute of the common necessities of life. We all hailed with delight his coming to us, and some of us were not slow in administering to his necessities.

Not being a Methodist, and living very near the residence of the principal class-leader, who was a man of wealth, my mind became much wrought upon in consequence of the neglect of this man to provide for the comfort of his own pastor. Something, I knew, ought to be done toward arousing Mr. M., and finally, under a sense of duty rather than love, I decided to attack him.

The language used was emphatic, and the tones of voice decided, more so than was at all needful, (since it is only God who can reach the heart.) Saying what I did was calculated to arouse the sensibilities of the one addressed, but there was not the faintest anticipation of a stinging conscience following this sharp rebuke in my own case. On going home, however, and sitting down to think over the matter, there came over me such a sense of condemnation, as closed out the light and drove from me all peace. For nearly six weeks not a cloud had darkened my spiritual horizon, and therefore this darkness was intolerable. There was no resting in this state of mind, and I sought my favorite place of resort, where I could have it all out with the Lord.

A conflict ensued. I certainly had done right in going to the brother, and I had as surely done wrong. I saw how it was—I had gone under a sense of obligation, rather than love. I had taken too much upon myself seeing it was the Lord's work, not mine. In this I was not under grace, but under law, and the Lord condescended to teach me the difference. He showed me that I should receive his message, and wait upon him for the right spirit to deliver it.

But now what was to be done? the words had been spoken, the utterances could not be recalled. I asked the Lord to show me, and the answer came; yes, it came, and brought with it a duty to be done from which my whole being recoiled. This was my message from God, this the errand upon which God sent me:—"Go tell him you are sorry. Yes, go say to that brother that you beg to be forgiven for speaking in so harsh a way. Tell him all."

This may not seem hard to many, but for one who had never in childhood been accustomed to this humiliation, it appeared almost impossible. It was all the harder because I had openly confessed Jesus as my keeper from sin, and now to admit that I had sinned, did seem to be inconsistent.

I give this bit of experience to the world because I know that many, having come into the liberty wherewith Christ maketh his people free, fail to abide, because of this very kind of disappointment in themselves, in finding that after having been kept by the power of Christ, they are doing something under the law, and in their zeal for Christ's cause, Peter like, step forward and cut off the ear, thus making work for Jesus to patch it on.

But to return. The voice in my soul proclaimed: "Go tell him you are sorry." "Lord, make me willing," was the petition now uttered from a full heart, and I arose from my knees more than willing. Yes, there was the most ready acquiescence, and never was any service for the Lord done with greater alacrity. It was one of the most pleasant errands the Lord ever sent me on, and the steps were quickly taken that brought me face to face with my neighbor. I soon told him all there was on my heart.

Mr. M. looked at me, and then, wiping the tears from his eyes, said:—"I believe in your religion now. I know what a proud woman you have been, and nothing but the grace of God could have brought you to me in this way to make confession. If you hadn't come, all the preaching you might have done wouldn't have touched me; but God bless you sister, now go tell how happy you are, and I will believe every word you say. And the parson shall never want for anything I can do for him."—M. M. B., in Times of Refreshing.

HOUSEKEEPING.

L. A. WHEELER.

"When the unclean spirit is gone out of a man he walketh through dry places, seeking rest and findeth none. Then he saith, I will return into my house whence I came out; and when he is come, he findeth it empty, swept, and garnished. Then he goeth and taketh with himself seven other spirits more wicked than himself, and they enter in and dwell there, and the last state of that man is worse than the first."—MATT. 12: 42-55.

Christ told his disciples just before he was crucified that if they loved him they would rejoice, because he said he was going to the Father, for his Father was greater than he. Again he said—"It is expedient for you that I go away, for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you; but if I depart, I will send him." And again, "If any man love me he will keep my words, and my Father will love him and we will come unto him and make our abode with him."

By these expressions, and many others, it seems that fallen human beings may be the dwelling place of outside controlling powers, and by the text it seems that there are times and perhaps individuals that are not thus under the immediate controlling power of any such influence, or, as expressed in the text, in an empty condition. Such are those in whose hearts the "strong man armed" has been once routed by him that is "greater" or "stronger" than he, and his spoils divided, as expressed in Luke 11: 21, 22, when speaking upon this same subject.

It seems by this word "divided" that there has not been a full surrender to the uttermost, consequently the "stronger" did not take possession (for he never makes compromise); so of course there is no house-keeper or power within to withstand powers that are without, and human nature alone is not sufficient for a warfare with principalities, and so they easily fall a prey to the enemy, and the last state of that man is worse than the first.

No doubt many that have a name to live but are dead in this "empty," deplorable condition, "swept and garnished," though perhaps in their own estimation, while others that are further advanced are departing from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of devils, and other errors equally as fatal.

This being so we can easily understand why those that love Christ should rejoice because he went to the Father, for if he had not gone to the Father, the Comforter, or greater power, would not have come, and there would not have been a power that could have expelled this "strong man armed," or to have kept the temple by his own presence after he had been dethroned.

Reader, who have you for a house-keeper? Is it the "strong man armed," or is it He that is "greater"? or are you trying to keep it yourself? If you know that you love God, and are keeping his words, you have the Master's word for him who is your house-keeper. If you have the "strong man armed," remember that he and his palace are doomed to be destroyed, or are you trying to keep it yourself by doing, as some term it, "about right?" If so, may God pity you, and show you before it is too late that the divine standard has been raised far too high to be attained by empty houses or human efforts alone. What if it was swept and garnished twenty or thirty years ago, who or how many are there to-day?

Plainfield, Mass.

NOTE FROM ELDER JOHN PORTER.

Dear Editors:—I write to say that I have just returned from Montreal, where I have very pleasantly spent the last six months with the little flock of waiting ones there, a people well united and working in harmony with the "present truth." The "Diotrepheses" are not all dead yet, and still make trouble among the saints; but happily there are none among the flock in Montreal, who worship in Union Hall, 712 Craig St., and there is in consequence no jarring note or discord among them; no leaning to side issues, or anything calculated to disturb their peace, and they make the consummation of our hope the prominent feature of their doctrine.

I simply say for myself that I left there on account of the infirmities of age; and, but for these, should have esteemed it a privilege to have remained there longer. For the last forty years I have been in the field of public labor, and for thirty-three years the unclouded light of truth has been shining upon my pathway. My sight and hearing are failing, but the day of unveiled glory is at hand, when I expect the unimpaired powers, and the vigor of immortal manhood, where I shall reign in life by Jesus Christ.

I have come home to Danville feeling that my active labor is done, to rest and wait for the Lord from heaven. Brethren, pray for me. God bless you all. Amen.

"THE ADVENTISTS AND THE REST OF US."

The above is the heading of an article in the Examiner and Chronicle, of May 6th, 1875. It gives the following well-deserved rebuke to those who neglect, or oppose, the doctrine of the personal coming of Christ:

"But some who avoid the error of the Adventists fall into a still greater one, if tried by a Scriptural standard. Too many have no faith in the Advent, and no expectation of it. It is to them at best a figure rhetoric—to some a rejected superstition. This skepticism is not confined to Unitarians and Free Religionists. Men of reputed orthodoxy sublimate the second coming of Christ, the resurrection and the last judgment, into poetical imagery, by which the experiences of the soul in passing from this to another life are illustrated. Not a few of those who retain the Scriptural faith in their forms of doctrine, at least in general terms, give no study to the subject, and have for it no definite place in their scheme of belief. They seldom think of it. They have no particular feeling about it. It can hardly be that they have a real expectation of it. When we think of the almost total silence which prevails on this truth in the churches, it is not surprising that the preachers of premillennialism conceive themselves to be called to the prophets' work of awakening the people of God from slumber. And since there is so much testimony in Scripture that our Lord is coming again, many who do not hear the truth from sober students of God's word receive it, with all its admixdures of error, from the fanatics of Second Adventism.

This condition of things is not to be remedied by pastors making haste to preach on the subject, and then discharging their minds of it for an indefinite time. The great expectation of the primitive believers, which illuminates the New Testament, especially the apostolic epistles, needs to be intelligently entertained and vitally cherished. The truth, known and loved, and recognized in the worship of the churches, will be the sufficient preservative against error, and will have power in producing a more unworldly piety—the character of those who 'look for' and 'love' His appearing."

A BATH IN THE DEAD SEA.—Mr. C. A. Kingsbury writes as follows in Forest and Stream of a bath in the Dead Sea:

"Reaching at last this most remarkable of all the seas and lakes on our globe, we prepared to take a bath—and such a bath I can hardly expect ever to take again. I had previously bathed in numerous seas, lakes and rivers, but never did I enjoy such a bath as this. The specific gravity of the water is such from its holding in solution so large a proportion of salt (26½ per cent.) that one floats upon its surface like a cork. At the time there was only a gentle ripple upon the sea, and being a good swimmer I at once struck out into deep water. I soon found that I could not only swim and float with wonderful ease, but that I could actually walk in the water, sinking only to the arm-pits. Discovering this fact, I made for the shore, and taking Dr. C., one of our party who conld not swim, by the hand, led him into the sea where the water was many fathoms deep. At first he was quite reluctant to follow me, but he soon gained confidence on finding there was no danger of sinking, and he enjoyed the novel bath as much as if he had been an expert swimmer. Should the bather allow the water to get into his eyes or mouth he would suffer considerable abatement in his eyes or mouth he would suffer considerable abatement in his enjoyment on account of its extremly salt, bitter and irritating nature. No fish can live in this sea; but various kinds of ducks abound here at certain seasons of the year. The water was as clear as ordinary sea water, its temperature was agreeable, and it has an oily feeling, and altogether its action on the surface of the body was such as to develop those pleasurable sensations pertaining to the sense of touch, accompanied by the most delightful exhilaration. Of all the baths in the world, give me a bath in the Dead Sea."

PRAYERS need not be fine. I believe God abhors fine prayers. If a person asks charity of you in elegant sentences, he is not likely to get it. Finery in dress or language is out of place in beggars. I heard a man in the street one day begging aloud by means of a very magnificent oration. He used grand language in very pompous style, and I dare say he thought he was sure of getting piles of coppers by his borrowed speech; but I, for one, gave him nothing, but felt inclined to laugh at his bombast. Is it not likely that many great prayers are as useless? Many prayer-meeting prayers are a great deal too fine. Keep your figures and metaphors and parabolic expressions for your fellow-creatures, use them to those who want to be instructed, but do not parade them before God. When we pray, the simpler our prayers the better; the plainest, humblest language which expresses our meaning is the best.—Spurgeon.

RATHER PROPHETICAL.—Dr. W. Stevenson, of Santa Clara, Cal., a devoted christian scholar, wrote as follows in 1858:

"The Roman papacy is widening her borders. She holds to a persuasive policy, while she is as arbitrary and inexorable as fate. She is the companion of kings. She claims homage from her liege lords. The first conflict in the great forthcoming struggle will be between apostolic religion and a time-serving evangelicism. This contest will come. It must come. It is even now being fought. The Papacy will be but a spectator, though far from disinterested. After this, her turn will be to take a part in another and more terrible conflict; a contest in which kings and demagogues, her allies, will take a part; also in this last struggle all men, of all grade, will take a part. It will be a contest between human rights, religious and political, and absolutism—the world's last conflict."

HOME AND HEALTH.

"I GRABBED QUICK!"

One night Jonnny climbed up into his mother's lap, and laying his head on her shoulder, said in a low, sorry tone:—

"I took that glass marble, mamma."

"Took it from whom?" asked his mother.

"Took it from the ground," said Johnny.

"Did it belong to the ground?" asked his mother; "did the ground go to the shop and buy it?"

Johnny tried to laugh at such a funny thought, but he could not.

"I saw it on the ground," said he.

"What little boy had it before?"

"Asa May's it is, I guess," whispered Johnny.

"When you put out your hand to take it, did you forget, 'Thou God seest me?'" asked his mother. "Did you not hear a voice, saying, 'Don't, Johnny! don't Johnny?'"

"I didn't hear it," said the little boy, sobbing, "I grabbed quick!"

Johnny is not the only one who has "grabbed quick" at some forbidden thing;—too quick to hear the still small voice within. It is better not to grab too quick, to take time for thought and prayer; to watch and pray, and resist temptation, and to avoid the stings of a guilty conscience, and the sorrows and stains that sin brings upon the soul.—Selected.

"I DON'T CARE!"

"I am sorry to see my son give way to anger," said a patient mother.

"I don't care," replied the passionate child.

"Those boys are not the right sort of companions for you," said his pastor.

"I don't care," he answered, turning on his heel.

"It is dangerous to taste wine," said his friend, warningly.

"I don't care," was still his obstinate reply.

A few years after, he was a worthless drunkard, plunging into every sort of excess, and finally ending a miserable life of crime without hope.

"I don't care," was his ruin, as it is the ruin of thousands. Look out for it, boys and girls. Keep away from it. Don't let it find a place in your hearts, or pass your lips. Always care. Care to do right, and care when you have done wrong.

Pray earnestly that you may never lose your soul from a reckless spirit of "I don't care."—Selected.

THE LITTLE DRAWER.

"Where did you get your orderly habits?" I asked of a lady who never had to waste a moment in hunting for things out of their place.

"When I was four years old," she answered, "mother gave me a little drawer to put my clothes in. 'Make it your business, my dear child,' she said, 'to keep that drawer neat and tidy. Let me never find it in disorder.'

"Once she sent for me to come home from a party of little girls, in order to put away a pair of stockings carelessly left on the floor; and I used sometimes to think mother was hard on me; but now I see I owe my good habits to the care I was made to take of that little drawer when I was four years old."

You see how early habits are formed. It is never too soon to begin a good one.—Child's Paper.

OVERFED MINISTERS.

The following remarks from DeWitt Talmage's paper are worthy of special note. The present is an age of gluttony, and it is a shame that ministers are foremost in the sin. They who ought to be "ensamples to the flock" in self-denial and genuine temperance, are leaders in this work of self-indulgence and self-destruction. Many ministers who are "broken down," and have to take a vacation with a trip to Europe or to the mountains, would speedily recover if they would live on graham bread, and saw wood for exercise. We know that there is a fault with the overseers of the kitchen, who love to get up "something good for the minister," as they call their unhygienic and dyspepsia-creating dishes, but the ministers are most to blame, for it belongs to them to discourage the practice and to break up the habit.

"What is more delicious for a minister than to accept an invitation to a parishioner's house, and sit an hour or two in the evening at the table with a collection of pleasant people? But that is what kills ministers. Hot waffles, fresh biscuit, oysters, and cold tongue at seven o'clock in the evening have given many a "man of God" dyspepsia, a dull brain, poor sermons, short pastorate, and an early decease. Rich and late suppers are doing a bad work for some of our best clergymen. We know of ministerial clubs where the members assemble Saturday afternoons to discuss religious topics, tarrying until evening, when a sumptuous table is provided for them. As a consequence they do not sleep well on Saturday night, and the congregation on Sabbath see what they suppose is heavenly pallor on their pastor's cheek, when his wife knows it was hot biscuit at tea the evening before that did the business. If you invite your minister out to eat, better have him at noon or thereabouts; or, if calling him to tea, then, let it be in the early part of the week, giving him time to get over his gustatory indulgences. The most of ministers have a powerful appetite for good food, and capacity to resist temptation in that direction is not one of their strong points."—Selected.

COSTLINESS OF FOOD.

Thousands of persons, I might say hundreds of thousands, in our great republic, begin life poor, live poor during life, and die poor because of the exceeding costliness of the foods they eat. Think of our eating butter at thirty cents a pound, when one can buy Indian corn at a dollar a bushel. One bushel of hickory nuts has more oil in it than five pounds of butter. One bushel of Indian corn has more nutriment in it than three dollars' worth of the best beefsteak you can find. One bushel of graham flour has more nutriment in it than a barrel of superfine flour and fifty pounds of the best beefsteak. One bushel of dried peas or white beans, which weighs as much nearly as corn, has almost ninety per cent. of nutriment in it, while fat pork has only twenty-eight. A bushel of peas weighing sixty pounds would therefore have fifty-four pounds of nutriment, whereas a hundred pounds of pork would only have in it twenty-eight pounds of nutriment. So it goes all the way through, costing us ever so much to live when it need cost us but little.—Laws of Life.

WORK WITH PLAY.—Reflecting people are beginning to discover that there are too many playthings invented for children. The thing is overdone, entirely. Instead of being adapted to the few and simple wants of the expanding child nature, they are piled up about the juveniles just to incite their wonder; and they are made in this way precocious, forward and old. Childishness is expelled. The bloom is rubbed off. Young folks only want to be amused, and the surest way of doing that is, to help them a trifle in amusing themselves. Instead therefore, of so many senseless toys, which are a matter of merchandise more than anything else, give a little girl her doll, her little utensils to learn the work in the kitchen with, and some other things to lead her along in the love of domestic work. Housekeeping is to be her realm. As for the boys, a rake, hoe, spade, wheelbarrow, hammer, and a few more articles of such character is what they require. A patch in the garden or field, where they can combine amusement with learning, is better than a dozen rocking horses on a floor covered with toys.—Ex.

WHO IS SANE?—There is more truth than is generally supposed in the saying that every one is more or less insane; for just so far as we give way to evil impulses, or even wish to indulge in anything which is not best for us, do we lack perfect soundness of mind, and are in constant danger of showing our weakness to our friends and neighbors. Every sin undermines our mental and spiritual health, and breaks down its power to resist evil, just as every physical transgression weakens the body, and prepares it to yield to disease.

THE SCRIPTURES.

E. F. SERGISSON.

The internal evidence of their divine origin is the proper ground of faith in the Scriptures. The Scriptures themselves clearly teach that the faith which they demand is founded upon the authority of God, manifesting itself in them by the excellence and power of the truth which they contain. They everywhere represent faith as the effect of evidence. Our Savior said to the Jews—"If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God." John 7:17. Again—"He that is of God, heareth God's words; ye therefore hear them not, because ye are not of God." "Ye believe not, because ye are not of my sheep; my sheep hear my voice."

And the apostle speaks to the same effect. "Hereby know ye the Spirit of God. Every spirit that confesseth that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh, is of God." "We are of God. He that knoweth God heareth us; he that is not of God heareth not us." "Hereby we know the spirit of truth and the spirit of error." "The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God; for they are foolishness unto him, neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned" And again—"If our gospel be hid, it is hid to them that are lost, in whom the god of this world hath blinded the eyes of them that believe not, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ, who is the image of God, should shine unto them." "But God, who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ."

The doctrine taught in these and similar passages is, that there is in the word of God, and especially in the person and character of Jesus Christ, a clear and wonderful manifestation of the divine glory. To this manifestation the natural man is blind, and therefore does not believe; but those who have the Spirit of God discern this glory, and therefore believe. It is in accordance with this view that unbelief is represented as so grave a moral offence, and faith so important a duty. Atheism is every where regarded as a crime, because the evidences of the existence of God are every where present,—above us, around us, and in us. They cannot be resisted without the same violence to moral obligations, or the authority of moral considerations, that is involved in calling virtue vice, and vice virture; they are addressed to the moral constitution, as well as to the speculative understanding.

Hence the Scriptures always speak of unbelief as a sin against God, and the special ground of the condemnation of the world. "He that believeth on him is not condemned, but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God." "Who is a liar but he that denieth that Jesus is the Christ?" "Whosoever denieth the Son, the same hath not the Father." Disbelief of the Son as revealed in the Scriptures is an offence of the same nature as the denial of God. For in both cases supreme excellence is revealed, and disregarded; and much to the same effect the Savior says—"He that hateth me, hateth my Father also." On the other hand, faith is represented as the highest act of obedience; as a moral act of the greatest worth in the sight of God. "As many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to as many as believed on his name." All is plain, if we are required to believe in the Son because his glory, "as the only begotten of the Father," is presented to us; and to receive the Scriptures because they bear the impress of the divine perfection. If this be the ground of faith, then unbelief is indeed a crime. It is a refusal to recognize wisdom and holiness, and to acknowledge the manifest excellence of God.

This view of the ground of faith is confirmed by the effects described. For it "works by love and purifies the heart," it overcomes the world," it produces peace and joy."

It is indeed conceivable that the convictions of truths affecting our interests, however produced, should call forth fear, sorrow or joy, according to their nature. But it is not conceivable that belief of moral or religious truths, founded upon the testimony of others, should control our affections. A man may believe an authority, or on merely rational grounds, that we are under a moral government, and that the law by which we are bound is holy, just, and good; but such a faith will not subdue his opposition. He may be, by argument or miracle, convinced of the existence of God, but such a faith will not produce love.

Faith, therefore, cannot have the effects ascribed to it, unless it is founded on a spiritual (or experimental) apprehension of the truths believed. The evidence is presented to all to believe, but men are morally blind, and therefore the "eyes of their understanding must be opened that they may understand the things which are freely given to them of God." The apostle therefore says to his believing brethren—"Ye have an unction from the Holy One, and ye know all things." "I have not written unto you because ye know not the truth, but because ye know it, and that no lie is of the truth." "The anointing which ye have received of him abideth in you, and ye need not that any man teach you; but as the same anointing teacheth you of all things, and is no lie, and even as it hath taught you, abide in him." 1 John 2: 20, 21, 27. It is here taught, as in other passages already quoted, that believers are the recipients of an influence, an unction, from the Holy One, which convinces them of the truth, and makes them see and know that it is truth.

Hence Paul says, his "preaching was not with enticing words of man's wisdom, but in the demonstration of the Spirit and of power"; that the faith of his hearers "might not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God"; that is, that their faith might not be the effect of skillful reasoning, but from the plain perception and experience of the truth.

All this is confirmed by the constant practice of the inspired teachers. Though they appealed to all kinds of evidence in support of the doctrines which they taught—to signs and wonders, and divers miracles, and gifts of the Holy Ghost—yet they by no means rested the obligation to believers either exclusively or mainly upon these external signs. In many cases faith was demanded by those inspired men who never wrought miracles of any kind, as was the fact in the case of some of the prophets; and still more frequently it was required of those among whom no such wonders had been performed.

When the Jews demanded a sign, and the Greeks wisdom, the apostles preached Christ as the wisdom of God and the power of God unto salvation. It is the experience of every true christian in all ages and nations, that their faith is founded on the spiritual (or experimental) apprehension and experience of the power of the truth.

There are multitudes of such christians, who, if asked why they believed the Scriptures to be the word of God, might find it difficult to give an answer; whose faith is nevertheless both strong and rational. They are conscious of its grounds, though they may not be able to state them. They have the witness in themselves, and know that they believe, not because others believe, or because learned men have proved certain facts which establish the truth of Christianity. They believe in Christ for the same reason that they believe in God; and they believe in God because they see his glory and feel his authority and power.

If, then, the truth of God contains in its own nature a revelation of divine excellence, the sin of unbelief is a very great sin. Not to have faith in God, when clearly revealed, is the highest offence which a creature can commit against its Creator. To refuse credence to the testimony of God, when conveyed in the manner best adapted to our nature, is to renounce our allegiance to our Creator. To disregard the evidence of truth and excellence in Jesus Christ, is the highest indignity that we can show to truth and excellence. This sin is common, and therefore is commonly disregarded.

Men do not easily see the turpitude of evils with which they are themselves chargeable. The faults of those who go beyond them in iniquity they are quick to discern. And, therefore, the man who feels no compunction at want of faith in the Son of God, will abhor him who pronounces the Redeemer a wicked impostor. He will wait for no explanation, and will listen to no excuse. O for more of the inward workings of the Spirit's power, and its outward demonstrations to save and keep, unto salvation.

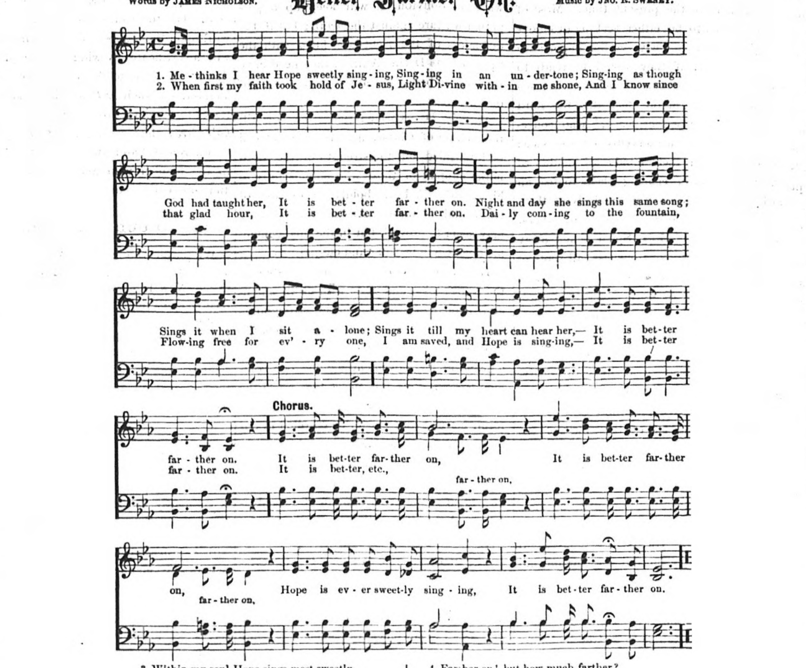
Better Farther On.

Words by JAMES NICHOLSON. Music by JNO. R. SWENEY.



3. Within my soul Hope sings most sweetly,
When I absent friends bemoan;
Oh, sweet words, they cheer my spirit,—
It is better farther on.
Sitting on the grave and sings it,—
Sings it when my heart doth groan;
Sings it when the clouds are darkest,—
It is better farther on.—Cho.

4. Farther on! but how much farther?
Count the mile-stones one by one;
No, no counting, only trusting,
It is better farther on.
Hope my soul, hope on forever,
All thy doubts and fears be gone,
Jesus will forsake thee never,—
It is better farther on.—Cho.

THE REVOLVING LIGHT.

J. W. THOMAS.

"A light that shineth in a dark place." 2 PET. 1: 19.

Standing once by the sea-coast on a dark, cloudy night, and looking far away in the distance, I noticed a very brilliant light, which seemed to be in motion. Having never seen anything of the kind before, I inquired of a sailor what it meant? Said he, "That is a revolving light, and is placed there to guide the mariners who are constantly going out and coming into the harbor." There are many rocks and dangerous places along the coast, and vessels sometimes run upon them and are wrecked. This light, like many others along the sea-coast, is erected in an elevated position, and can be seen at a distance. Those who are accustomed to following the sea are well acquainted with it, and know just where they are whenever they see it.

Many a sailor, no doubt, owes his life to the radiance reflected on the dark waters from this light. It has also been a token of joy to many a sea-faring man, when returning home after a long and perilous voyage. What a thrill of delight must the sailor boy feel as he sees the well known signal which tells him he is almost home; a few more hours, and he will set his feet on shore, and grasp the hand of loved ones, who have wept and prayed for his return.

I always like to hear sailors relate their experience, and express their gratitude to God for his protecting power upon the mighty deep. What class of men have a better opportunity for seeing the wonders of the Almighty, than those who traverse the ocean? "They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters; these see the works of the Lord, and his wonders in the deep. For he commandeth, and raiseth the stormy wind, which lifteth up the waves thereof. They mount up to the heaven, they go down again to the depths; their soul is melted because of trouble. They reel to and fro, and stagger like a drunken man, and are at their wits' end. Then they cry unto the Lord in their trouble, and he bringeth them out of their distresses. He maketh the storm a calm, so that the waves thereof are still. Then are they glad because they be quiet; so he bringeth them unto their desired haven. Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men!" Ps. 107: 23–31.

But this revolving light brings to my mind another light to which I must briefly allude. It is the light of prophecy. This world is a dark and stormy place, like the great ocean. Christians are sometimes compared to mariners, and their journey to the New Jerusalem like a voyage over the great and perilous water. They are continually surrounded with dangers, but more especially as they near the heavenly harbor. Thus it reads on the chart: "In the last days perilous times shall come." But God has hung out a revolving light, which, to the believer, is a token of safety and of joy. Let Peter describe it: "We have also a more sure word of prophecy, whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as uuto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn." 2 Pet. 1: 19. What day does he refer to? Evidently the day of final deliverance. The day when the christian mariner shall furl his sails, and cast anchor in the heavenly port. As the government of the United States has caused the channels along the sea-coast to be marked with buoys, light ships, and light houses, that seamen may know where they are, and how to sail from one port to another in safety; so the Ruler of the Universe has caused the great events in this world's history to be marked in prophecy, that his church may know her whereabouts on the great ocean of time, and her proximity to the holy city. Prophecy is history written in advance. In the book of Daniel and Revelation are a number of prophecies, which point out very clearly the great revolutions that were to take place in earthly governments, from the days of Babylon, down to the time when God should set up an everlasting kingdom under the whole heavens. By carefully studying these prophetic Scriptures, and comparing them with history, which shows their fulfillment, the christian may be able to identify his position.

Where are we? Do we see the light shining which indicates our nearness to the eternal harbor? Are we discerning the signs of the times? Can the faithful watchmen give us meat in due season? Take a glance around the world. Look over into Europe. See the political upheavals. The nations seem to be seething and tossing like ocean in a storm. Strife and divisions abound. Crime is on the increase. Statesmen are appalled. Warlike preparations are being made. Nations are angry. Earth seems to be visited with the judgments of heaven. Earthquakes, tidal waves, floods, flames, famine, pestilences, sweep over the land. The professed church is in a fearfully backslidden condition. Pride, formality, unbelief, oppression, licentiousness, covetousness, and pleasure-seeking are the order of the day.

Where are we? What does this state of things mean? Can any one give us light? Let us turn to the language of the Savior. In the twenty-first of Luke, we find a prophecy which shines as a light in a dark place. He says, "There shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars, and upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring; men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth; for the powers of heaven shall be shaken. And they shall see the Son of man coming in a cloud with power and great glory." How are these things to affect the christian? What is he to understand by them? "And when these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh."

Is it not joyful news to know that we are nearing home? Does not the sailor rejoice when he passes the last light house on his homeward voyage? catches the land breezes, and sees the hills of his native country? Going into harbor! How joyful! How then ought the christian to rejoice when he sees redemption nearing—final, complete, eternal redemption. What now should he do? How conduct himself? "Take heed to yourselves, lest at any time your hearts be overcharged with surfeiting and drunkenness, and cares of this life, and so that day come upon you unawares. For as a snare shall it come on all them that dwell on the face of the whole earth. Watch ye, therefore, and pray always, that ye may be accounted worthy to escape all these things that shall come to pass, and to stand before the Son of man."

THE NECESSITY OF HOLINESS.

The necessity of holiness, or heart purity, as a qualification for heaven, is universally admitted. Without holiness, without a pure heart, we cannot enjoy God.

All christians believe that holiness is conditioned on faith; that God forces purity upon no man against his will, in opposition to his faith.

If holiness is conditioned on faith, then it must be received during the period of faith's exercise; and that must be some time during probation; for if one sin can be forgiven after death (regarded by all as the end of probatiion)—if one stain can be removed, then every sin may be forgiven, and every stain removed.

The work of entire sanctification must be accomplished in us either before or after death.

If entire sanctification is accomplished after death, then the conditions of the gospel which are confined to this world, may be performed in the next; faith can be exercised for salvation after probation, and the work which is assigned to this, can be performed in the other life. Christians, I am sure, are not prepared to accept such a dogma. If this work is to be accomplished at death, then there is some good reason for confining it to that particular period.

The fault must be found in us or in Christ. Either Christ cannot or will not save us before. To say that he cannot, limits his power; to say that he will not, reflects upon his goodness, and represents him as taking pleasure in "carnality," or "filthiness of flesh and spirit." But the Bible is clear on both these points. As to his ability: "He is able to save them to the uttermost who come unto God by him." As to his willingness: it is his "will even our sanctification." As to the possibility of maintaining this experience: he can "preserve us blameless unto his coming," and "make us stand."

If the fault is in us, which all must admit, who believe that there is fault anywhere, that fact should convince us that the work can be done, for it is not to be accomplished by works of righteousness which we do; our weakness and sinfulness imposing no insupportable barrier to its accomplishment. If, then, the work can be accomplished now, and without it we are not prepared for heaven, then there is an absolute necessity for it.

But are none prepared for heaven save those who enjoy holiness? It must be admitted, because it is the universal faith of the Church, that nothing unholy can enter the heavenly world. The Bible settles this question beyond cavil.

How is it, then, asks the objector, that persons never professing this blessing, frequently die in faith? If such were not sanctified, did they die in peace; did they go to heaven? Does not the fact that they die in peace, without such an experience, conclusively prove that such an experience is not absolutely essential to gain heaven?

The question is not, Do persons frequently die in peace who never make a profession of holiness, but do persons go to heaven who do not possess purity of heart, or entire sanctification? No one will attempt to sustain the affirmative of this question. Whatever may be their profession, all admit that the thing itself must be possessed.

1. We have no doubt but very many enjoy this blessing without knowing it. We do not mean that they do not believe themselves greatly blest. But such are their exalted notions of holiness, resulting from, it may be, a false education. To be holy, with them, is to be an angel, or, as most of the opposers of this doctrine represent, absolutely perfect. . . .

There are to be found in the christian church, many who place the standard of holiness very much higher than that found in the New Testament; and because they do not reach that standard, they deny the possibility of its possession. They may not have attained to the true scriptural standard. Such we believe to have been the csse with Dr. Payson and Pres. Edwards.

There are many in the church who do not think it possible for them to be fully saved until near, or at death. The blessing is received, if at all, according to their faith. If at that hour God gives them an opportunity, by long struggling and simple faith, the blessing is received, and they depart in peace, fitted for heaven.

There are many who believe in entire sanctification, attainable in this life. They are constantly praying for it, and pressing on to its possession. To be sure they stumble and fall, and rise to repeat the effort. They hear little about it from the pulpit, know little of the way of faith, are very much inclined to walk by sense, until at times they are almost ready to give up. Then they hear the voice of God, "Without holiness no man shall see the Lord," and they are moved again to renew their struggles. They seem to be very near the prize at times. Sickness comes, and they feel that the day of their departure is at hand. They cast themselves on Christ by faith once more, and are accepted. They die in triumph. What was that last blessing which they received, by which earth lost its attractions, and heaven became all-inviting? That blessing was full salvation—entire sanctification.

There are many who believe in entire sanctification, but make no effort to secure it. They live without much thought upon the subject. They see a great many objectionable things in some who profess it, and and at times doubt if anybody enjoys it. They get revived once a year perhaps, and feel better, but do not seek for entire sanctification. By-and-by the sick and dying day comes. The minister is sent for. He inquires for the health of the soul. He is told by the sick one that he does not enjoy much religion. He does not feel that he is prepared to die. The good man prays, and the sick man weeps, and wishes his life had been devoted to God more fully. Difficulties meet him on every hand. He cannot give up friends and the world, and thus feel willing to die. He begins now to consecrate himself to God. He places all upon the altar. There is no hope but in Jesus, and no help but from him. He yields all, and by faith, grace triumphs. He is saved. He is now ready to die. He would like to live to do something for Jesus. He feels now, for the first time in his life, that the "yoke is easy, and the burden is light." He dies in great peace.

One fact must have been noticed by all, viz.: that nearly all, even of those who have been very faithful to God in their lives, and yet have not received the perfect love of God, have been very greatly blessed as they have approached death; and this blessing has come by simple faith in Christ. Never before have they received such light and power. They have been filled; and, like Toplady, have exclaimed: "Oh, what delights! who can fathom the joys of the third heavens? My sky is clear; there is no cloud." Death loses its sting; the grave its victory, and "heaven opens on their eyes," and they "long to be there." Such persons, we have no doubt, are wholly sanctified, and prepared for a holy heaven; and without such a preparation, they never could have entered heaven; proving the absolute necessity of such a change in order to enter heaven. Without this we have no assurance that heaven could have been gained.

But why delay this attainment until the dying hour? To do this is unsafe. Should such persons be called away suddenly, without such opportunities for consecration and faith, where would be their hope of salvation? They have not a pure heart, and if not, they have no well-grounded hope of heaven.

Mr. Wesley gives it as his opinion, that most christians are not wholly sanctified until just before death. The evidence of this is not only the fact that they do not enjoy the blessedness of the state of perfect love for any considerable portion of their lives, but also the fact that as they approach the final struggle, they usually pass through a series of painful and agonizing regrets with regard to the past, and the most distressing misgivings with regard to their future and final state; and are brought at length to a full surrender of themselves to God, and then they resign the world with all its dearest interests, and sink into eternity full of hope.

The question will doubtless be asked: "Do you believe that all regenerated persons who have not been sanetified will be lost?"

We believe that all regenerated persons who are not cleansed from "all filthiness of the flesh and spirit," will not enter heaven until they are thus cleansed, unless sin can enter heaven. No one, who believes the Bible, can safely object to such a doctrine. We further affirm, that no regenerate person retains his regeneration who is not pressing on unto holiness. Going on unto perfection, by which we retain our regeneration, is the conscious assurance to us that the work will be completed. God may, and doubtless does, cut it short in righteousness, as Mr. Wesley says; but only for such as are "going on;" who, from the want of a correct presentation of the subject, by those who are set for the defence of the gospel, or unfavorable surroundings, have not fully surrendered their all to God. God's law requires purity, and holds us to the performance of all its requirements. If the law says: "No holiness, no heaven;" we shall find its utterances truthful and abiding.—Guide to Holiness.

THE REST OF FAITH.

S. S. BAXTER.

Truly Jesus is the resting place of his people. By faith we can look into his eyes, and meet his smile of approval. With what boldness, with what confidence, we can approach him, when we walk in all his commandments blameless, and are entirely consecrated to his service, body, soul, and spirit. By the grace of God, we can thus consecrate ourselves, and can yield a faithful, loving, and constant obedience to his laws.

When God dwells in our hearts by his Spirit, it yields the peaceable fruits of righteousness to them that are exercised thereby. It is honorable in us to surrender to Jesus our undivided attentions, and to follow peace with prayerful diligence; then we know the love of God, which he so freely bestows upon us. How precious is the enjoyment of that love. We desire no more than God's blessing, his favor and fellowship. Nothing can prevent us from receiving the blessing of perfect rest, peace, and love, if we bow in humble submission to the will of God; "for this is the will of God, even our sanctification." Being thus fortified, we can kiss the rod that smites us. Fellowship with God makes the home, the closet, the sanctuary, the very gate of heaven to our souls. Blessed is that soul that can truly say, You may have all the world, give me Jesus."

God has promised us the riches of his grace here, and the riches of glory hereafter. Oh that all would flee to Jesus to hide them, that all would present themselves a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable unto God. This is only our reasonable service. May our hearts be filled with love to Jesus, whom we can never love to excess. If we have felt the saving power of the gospel in our hearts, it leads us to readily endure privations and suffering, and to surrender all we possess for his sake. How often it cheers the hearts of God's dear children to read that Jesus was made "perfect through suffering."

Glory be to God, he purchased for us full and free salvation. O Lord, hold thou me up; preserve us by thy powerful grace, and may thy children have a deep-rooted aversion to fleshly lusts, which war against the soul. God grant that those who have professed to put on Christ may entirely surrender to him, and purge themselves from all the old leaven, and be indeed a new lump, that they may be vessels unto honor, sanctified and meet for the Master's use. We have the promise that if we do all these things, we shall never be in danger of falling.

It is high time that God's professing children should awake out of sleep. We need, and we can have it, the baptism of the Holy Ghost. We must have it in order to be perfect christians, and Jesus says, Be ye perfect as I am perfect. Come, drop your idols, and the sin which so easily besets you, and rely entirely upon God's sustaining grace to keep you, that you may be perfect in every good word and work.

I would like to say a word to those that are, as it was in the days of Noah, outside the ark, and thinking it foolish to fly for refuge when they see no danger impending. Because they do not see that the flood is coming, they deem it a sufficient reason to remain as they are. Oh, my dear friends, now is the time to step in and be healed. Soon the flood is coming; that flood that seals our destiny forever; and if you are not under the shadow of God's almighty wing, you will be lost, lost! lost! Oh! how can you spurn the offers of salvation, which Jesus so freely gives! See him as he stands with arms outspread; behold his look of infinite love and pity. I want you to see how easy it is to fall into those arms and be saved, like a tired child in the arms of its mother, willing to be held and comforted, without making any resistance. Will you do so? If so, do it now. How long he has stood at the door of your heart, and knocked for admittance. How often you have bid him depart, and he went away sad and sorrowful, only to return and plead his love to you. He tells you he will come in, and sup with you and you with him, if you will only bid him welcome. Remember that God's Spirit will not always strive with man. There will be a last time. You may neglect the offers of mercy too long. In Christ's stead I beseech you to be reconciled to God, that your sins may be blotted out when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord.

God grant that we may be numbered with those who have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. May God bless and keep his children without spot and blameless, that we may have an abundant entrance through the gates into the city.

MEEKNESS.

C. MENDENHALL.

An attribute which characterized our Lord and Master should enter largely into the formation of our dispositions, and in the actions of our lives. Forbearance and gentleness are two traits which are synonymous with meekness, and cannot be ignored in the christian's catalogue of virtues. A blessing is for the meek, a reward promised to those who possess this trait in their hearts, and of our great Exemplar it is written, "I am meek and lowly in heart." Especially in the presentation of unpopular truths, where prejudice and opposition run high, do we need to exercise much holy meekness, lest we unawares imbibe a censoriousness, which would injure the cause we have espoused.

The spirit of controversy, a delight in wordy warfare, or an indulgence in unnecessary disputations, and indiscreet verbiage, militates against meekness. Yet we may be uncompromising, bold, and fearless, remembering "there is a time for every thing under the sun."

Brethren, pray for those who are sounding the glorious cry, "Behold, the Bridegroom cometh." May we all soon realize our precious hopes, and the promises which have so long been ours by faith shall soon be lost in a complete consummation: "Now unto him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us, unto him be glory in the church by Christ Jesus, throughout all ages, world without end." Amen.

Harlan P. O., Indiana.

THE CROSS.

To bear the cross always is to do right always. It is no less than to fulfill the high command of the Savior under all circumstances. It is to deny, control and conquer self. It is to watch, pray, and by divine meditation to have constant hold upon Christ. It is to glorify God before men by a holy walk and godly conversation, forgiving enemies, loving all men, aiming to do them good bodily and spiritually; in a word, it is to follow Christ as far as the disciple can follow his Lord, in piety towards God, in benevolence towards man.

Christian, what are you doing for Jesus? Are you doing anything for him who died that you might live? or are you standing all the day idle in the Master's vineyard? To serve the Lord we must serve our fellow men; and we can render no greater service to any man than to pluck him out of the grasp of Satan, and lead him to seek salvation and eternal life through Christ.

Backslider, return to your Father's house; return before it is too late. Soon the harvest will be past, and the summer ended. Do not spend money for that which is not bread, but strive to lay up treasure which will profit you in the great day of God's wrath.

Sinner, stop and reflect a moment. What would your position be were Christ to come to-day? Do not put off repentance until it is too late, or wait for a more convenient season.—Selected by Mrs. E. Marston.

MILES GRANT.

THE SERPENT'S WISDOM.

The great Teacher, in giving his servants instruction how to be successful in teaching the people in his name, says—"Behold, I send you forth as sheep in the midst of wolves; be ye therefore wise as serpents, and harmless as doves." Matt. 10:16.

The great truth that Christ's people and unbelievers would be distinct and antagonistic classes, like sheep and wolves, is distinctly stated. Sheep have no natural power to overcome wolves and control them; but the wolves have a natural power and propensity to control and destroy sheep. Christ's purpose in the gospel is to reverse this action, and cause his people to subdue and control the wicked; not destroy them, but save them. To accomplish this great work he gives the instruction in the text, "Be ye therefore wise as serpents and harmless as doves."

The antagonism in this case is between a serpent and a dove; the christian being represented in one part of the action by the serpent, and in the other by the fate of the dove. The first part is the subduing and capturing the dove by the serpent, and the other part is the destruction of the dove.

As the serpent draws and captures the bird, so the christian should labor to draw and capture the sinner. When the sinner is brought under the controlling power of the christian's teaching and spirit, it is not to injure him, as the serpent destroys the bird, but the servant of Christ should then take the place of the dove, and be harmless—use no influence or power to injure the converted sinner.

The wisdom of the serpent referred to by the Savior is that which teaches him to so conduct himself in the presence of the bird to be captured, as to destroy in it all fear of harm or danger, from the most intimate relations between them; to exhibit no antagonism but perfect friendship and good will; to manifest great advantages from a change of position, more intimate relations and associations. It makes sweet sounds and winning gestures, desirable to be seen and heard, so as to produce that which will draw the affections, and cause it to seek to indulge in the happiness presented. No sound of war or contention between the parties, which would arouse the fears or excite the combativeness of the bird, is heard. Every thing to captivate the heart of the party to be caught is done. The intellect and passions are reached; beautiful scenes and sweet sounds are presented, with the manifestation of love and blessed associations, to produce winning emotions and strong attractions.

In these things are manifested the wisdom of the serpent which are recommended by the Savior to be copied into the christian's rules, controlling his associations with sinners.

All men feel that there is a distinction between believers and unbelievers, which causes each party to feel that the opposite class holds them at a distance, preventing free and cordial associations. This naturally produces a sense of opposition or war, which, if not overcome, will prevent the christian from drawing the sinner to himself, and so keep him from Christ.

We should ever remember that true christians are the representatives of Christ. Christ in us and we in him; so that to draw a man to a christian is to draw him to Christ.

When we follow Jesus, the man who follows us must also follow him. Therefore we are under obligation to make ourselves attractive, in a gospel sense, by being like Christ. We should endeavor to present the same attractions he did—purity of life, chastity of conversation, superiority of experience in peace and happiness, and prospect of an infinitely glorious and blessed future.

Christ is the center of all heavenly attraction, drawing men away from earthly objects of glory, riches and pleasures, to heavenly things,—holiness, consecration, sacred devotion, and an eternal inheritance. Let us be very careful to distinguish between the wisdom we use in drawing men from their irreligious position, whether it be to Christ and heavenly things, or to a vain religion, and worldly things.

When we attempt to draw men to Christ we should be careful not to excite their combativeness, which will cause them to resist our arguments and influence; but like the serpent we should win their affection and gain their confidence. We can lead those who truly love and respect us by a hair, while those who hate us cannot be led by a cart-rope.

It is not the wisdom of a serpent which causes a preacher to appear before a congregation as an antagonist, either by words, gestures, or tone of voice. He should be careful at first to destroy all prejudice against himself, if possible, by manifesting humility, sincerity and true friendship for his hearers. He should be careful not to present at first that which he understands his congregation do not believe, and are prejudiced against, but that which they will receive, so as to make an impression that you love Christ and his truth, thus disarming them of prejudice, and gaining their confidence, that you have some understanding of divine things. When you attempt to advance a new idea to them, present that which will be attractive, if possible, so as to produce an interest in the unfolding of divine truth, and a desire to hear more upon the same subject. Leave a congregation hungry, and not surfeited. Do not attempt to tell them more at a time than they can comprehend and receive.

Truth should never be hidden, so that its beauty and application cannot be seen, by introducing in connection with it subjects foreign to it, and especially those tending to alienate the heart of the hearer. Good sermons are often entirely destroyed in their effect by a single harsh expression carelessly made, or some personal thrust, or a little foolish sarcasm. It is impossible to lead men to Christ, or benefit them when their minds are soured, and they feel a determined resistance against what you may say or do.

A successful school teacher must first gain the confidence and good will of his pupils, so that they may not resist him as he attempts to lead them into knowledge. Military officers can never be successful in leading armies to victory, only as they gain the sympathy and cooperation of their soldiers. These principles are true in their application to all men, but they should be accepted in the religious department with particular qualifications.

All men will not yield to the claims of the gospel and influences of divine love, when they are presented with all the wisdom of the serpent and harmlessness of the dove. When the gospel has been faithfully preached in the spirit of wisdom and love, and men persistently reject it and harden themselves in their rebellion, the servant of Christ is not allowed, upon his peril, to compromise the truth, or yield his position, or cease to warn them generally, for the sake of their love or friendship. If people cannot be saved by the kindness and love which prudently and carefully presents truth, they cannot by that love and prudence which hides the truth, for the sake of popularity and worldly friendship.

Reformers, and all who take an advanced step in theology, are most dependent upon this wisdom for success. It is most needed where there is the most opposition. Wesley said, "Reformers are always in danger of sour godliness;" that is, they are liable, being so constantly opposed, to form the habit of talking and toning their voices as if they were battling, or striving with those to whom they are speaking. This we think has been a great fault with our people, and prevented them from doing much good that might, with gospel wisdom have been accomplished.

On the other hand, when men see that they have fallen into this snare, and attempt to correct the fault, they are liable to go to the opposite extreme, and attempt to keep or gain the good will of all by being silent on or rejecting those truths which worldly people will not accept, so as to gain their love and sympathy.

The way of safety, therefore, as expressed by the Savior, is to present the whole truth to the people, whether they will hear or forbear; but present it in a wise, prudent way, as they "can bear it." Wisely commend yourself to the people, in an attractive way, not with "great swelling words," or foppish vanity, but with true christian dignity, a godly, faithful life, unblemished in all your relations and duties, connected with manly, graceful deportment exhibited in real meekness and heart-felt humility.

Such personal attractions we believe are required by the gospel, as far as can be obtained, by every servant of Christ. Every thing unnecessarily repulsive in personal appearance should be avoided, while the manner of communication should exhibit love, kindness, and a desire to benefit, and not to silence or crush in argument.

Christian labor, characterized by such wisdom, is required by God of all his servants, and is the most successful labor in winning men to Christ.

May the God of all grace give us the spirit of this heavenly wisdom, that we may be successful in drawing as many of the perishing out of the pit of sin and death as possible, that it may be said unto us by the Judge at last, "Well done good and faithful servant."

AG'T.

TREMONT CAMPMEETING.

We had the privilege of spending a few days at the Tremont campmeeting, commencing July 19th. The grove is a pleasant one, nicely shaded by well-grown pines. Every year this meeting increases in interest. We think we have never seen the Brn. and Srs. more firmly rooted and grounded in Christ than at the present time. Most of them seemed to be either seeking or enjoying perfect love. They see the importance of being holy, if they would be ready to meet Jesus. There were many rich testimonies to confirm the fact that the Lord keeps those in "perfect peace," who consecrate themselves unreservedly to his service; removing from their minds all doubts of their acceptance, causing them to feel an ardent love for his coming, and giving them a spirit of labor for the salvation of others. The gift of the Holy Spirit takes away pride, impatience, covetousness, all roots of bitterness, selfishness, self-will, self-love, discontent, and all worry about the future. It cures backbiting, evil speaking, and leads its possessor to bless those who curse him, return good for evil, and to love his enemies. It produces great love for purity, prayer, devotional exercises, the holy Scriptures, Jesus and his appearing.

The more one has of the spirit of the world, the more he has of emptiness; the more he has of the Spirit of Christ, the greater his contentment, rest, and peace; and when filled with the Spirit, he finds Christ to be a sweetly satisfying portion; truly, "all in all." He gives the long-sought rest, and gives a blissful satisfaction, unknown to all who refuse to sanctify themselves wholly to their divine Master. At the Tremont meeting were a goodly number who know these things to be true by happy daily experience.

Several were converted during the meeting, others received the gift of the Spirit, and eight were baptized. A crowd of people were present Sabbath, July 25th, but good order prevailed. A hallowed influence has gone forth from this meeting, from which we may expect blessed results till Jesus comes. Those living nearest to the Lord seem best satisfied that the end of this dispensation is in the near future. We find they look upon the holiness movement as the final preparation to meet Christ.

It is to be feared that many who even believe that our Savior is coming soon, are not yet awake to the importance of being "pure in heart," in order to be ready for the great event. Satan is trying to persuade as many as possible that because they believe the truth, they are all right, keeping them, if possible, from noticing the fact that they must also have the Spirit of Christ, or else they are not in the heavenly Vine. On this point the Scripture is very plain: "Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his." This qualification is absolutely essential for salvation. "Follow peace with all men, and holiness, without which, no man shall see the Lord." Let this truth have its due sanctifying effect.

M. G.

ENCOURAGING.

At no period probably, for twenty-five years, has there been so much willingness to listen to the great truths that we, as a people, have loved and believed, as at the present time. Many of those who a few years since, called us fanatics, heretics, infidels, and other hard names, are now anxious to hear, read, and talk on the very subjects to which in other days they turned a deaf and scornful ear. We might give a long list of such persons connected with the holiness movement in Europe and America; men and women noted for intelligence, as well as purity, who now see so much light on these subjects, that they are sure to go forward out of the theological wilderness, where they have been wandering in darkness, and go forth into the joyful paradise and sunshine of truth.

Through misrepresentation and prejudice they have been kept from examining the reasons of the "blessed hope" that has cheered us for many years, but they now see it is in harmony with the word of the Lord, and they are receiving it with delight.

While many are seeing clear light on the coming of Christ, the nature of man, the destiny of the wicked, and the saints' inheritance, as we have preached it for twenty-five years, others, only see men as trees walking. Their eyes are just beginning to be opened. Now the query comes, what is the best course to pursue to lead this class forward? We think every judicious man would say, Treat them with much kindness, gentleness, love and long-suffering. Do not crowd them, or find fault if they do not see the whole truth at once. Do not oppose every wrong expression they may make, but watch for favorable opportunities to assist them to see the light. Do all in tenderness.

Satan would have us be severe, and denounce those who do not see as we do. Such is the spirit of sectarianism, but not of christianity. Many destroy or neutralize about all the good they might do, by the sour manner in which it is done. Some have a great lack of patience when they talk with those who may oppose some of their views. They forget that the Scriptures say: "In meekness instructing those that oppose themselves." Never stir up a person's combativeness, if you wish to convince him you are right, and win him to your side. Lead him gently, by the cords of love. Harsh, or unkind expressions always do more harm than good. The truth has suffered very much through the heated spirit of its defenders. If the truth is presented roughly, that is, with a bitter spirit towards those who may honestly differ with us, it only serves to keep people longer away from the light, and to build up a wall about that which it is desirable to spread every where, because it is what every one needs. It has been well said, no one is fit for a reformer till he is willing to be anvil half the time. Whoever strikes at error must expect return blows, but let him be good-natured when struck, as when he strikes, if he would be the victor. Till error finally falls into the waves of oblivion, it will keep up a perpetual warfare against the truth; but if the defenders of the right are filled with the Spirit of its Divine Author, they need have no fears of being defeated by the powers of darkness.

It may be expected that from now till the coming of Christ, that the conflict will be intensified, but the strength of the Lord is the support of those who submit fully to him, and stand up boldly in defense of truth and holiness. At times the enemy may seem to prevail, but in the final conflict his defeat will be total and eternal.

Holy men of God are about to step to the front ranks, and unite with us in a general, persistent attack upon the strongholds of Satan. Let us stretch forth to them the brotherly hand in Christ, and be ready for a grand union movement against our common foe. Let us not insist that all in the great army of the Lord shall wear our uniform, march to our music, be enrolled in our regiment, fight in the same field, use the same weapons, and attack the same points in the enemy's forts, but if they are true and loyal to the great Captain of our salvation, and are filled with his spirit, then let the bond of union be strong and everlasting.

The time has come to lay aside all sectarian prejudices, break down the walls that have separated the true children of God, strike hands with every true friend of Jesus, and do all in our power to persuade as many as possible to get ready to meet Christ, at his coming. Let there be no compromise of truth or principle for the sake of union. There will not be, when the union is in Christ. If it were a creed union, then, of course, none could unite only those who could adopt the proffered creed. Such have been most of the unions for a long time in the past, but there have been enough of those, yea, as many more than enough as their number has exceeded a cipher. Of the creed unions, we may well say, "Let the dead bury the dead." What is now needed is a union in a living, coming Christ, who is the alpha and omega of the union.

HOLINESS CONVENTION.

We spent two days at the Sea Cliff Union Convention for the promotion of holiness. It began July 28th, and continued to Aug. 2nd. Sea Cliff is a very pleasant place on Long Island. There are excellent accommodations for large meetings. There is a tabernacle well seated, that will hold some six thousand people, and a plenty of good boarding and lodging houses. Besides these, there is a large hotel, and many very pretty cottages, where persons live during the summer months.

The meetings were conducted by Dr. Boardman, an amiable man, well known as an able writer on the subject of heart purity. He has been associated with the great meetings in Europe for the promotion of holiness. We found several prominent ministers at Sea Cliff who believe Jesus will come soon. They love to talk on the subject. We find no opposition from any of those who take an active part in these meetings. Those who do not yet see the clear evidence of Christ's speedy coming say they would be glad to have him come. We find the interest on this important subject is continually increasing among those engaged in the holiness movement. This is what might be reasonably expected; for when people love Jesus with all their hearts, they cannot help loving his appearing. We felt free in preaching the word at this meeting.

When in conversation with an able minister on the ground, he remarked, "The wicked will all be burnt up." He firmly believes in the literal, eternal destruction of the wicked. Others are examining the subject, hoping to find the doctrine true, according to the Scriptures. They have had much difficulty in harmonizing the doctrine of eternal torment with the revealed character of God, and already rejoice in the hope that they may find in the Scriptures the utter end of sin and sinners. Satan has caused many to turn infidels as a consequence of preaching the doctrine of eternal misery. It is but the result of his pet lie, "Ye shall not surely die." If man is naturally immortal, it follows that the unsaved must live eternally in torment. Thank the Lord that the light of Sacred truth has exposed that terrible error, so dishonoring to the God of heaven. According to the Scriptures, only the saints—the holy ones—will live eternally. Amen.

THE INFALLIBLE POPE.—"The infallible Pope"—Pius IX.—is very finely described by Bunyan in his "Pilgrim's Progress." When speaking of the last condition of the Papal system, Bunyan says of its leader: "He is . . . grown so crazy and stiff in his joints, that he now can do little more than sit in his cave's mouth, grinning at pilgrims as they go by, and biting his nails because he cannot come at them."

It is very evident his days of supremacy are numbered. No doubt the final death-struggle will be terrible. All heaven and earth will be interested when the hour arrives. The resurrection of the dead is to take place, in season for them to witness the woman upon her funeral pyre. Those she burnt have the promise of being raised to witness the smoke of her burning. We believe the sublime event is not far in the future.

THE SPRINGFIELD NATIONAL ADVENT CAMPMEETING.

Central Vermont Railroad.

Arrangements have been made with this Road, so that all who come over this Road to attend the Springfield Campmeeting will purchase regular tickets to South Vernon; then buy Campmeeting Tickets for Springfield. On the camp-ground, the Secretary will, upon the request of such, furnish them with a certificate, by which, on the presentation of the same to the Ticket Office at So. Vernon, on their return, they can buy a ticket to the place from which they came for half fare; thus saving twenty-five per cent on the round trip; and this without regard to the number who may go,—but be sure and follow directions.

G. T. A.

☞ TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

We purpose to have an Agent in attendance at the various Campmeetings to be held in the New England States this season, to receive sums due on the Crisis and Pilgrim.

We hope our subscribers will make it a point to pay at the meetings, as it will be more convenient for them to do so than to send by mail, and less expensive for us than to send an Agent to the homes of our patrons.

AGENT.

FAST.

As our National Campmeeting at Springfield will be one of special importance this year, as will also the one at Alton Bay, it is eminently proper that those who are interested in their welfare should make them subjects of special prayer, that the Lord will be pleased to manifest himself in a remarkable manner, by the power of the Holy Spirit, in leading those who may attend these meetings to make full preparation to meet our coming King, and to devote themselves to his service with renewed zeal during the remainder of their christian warfare. To this end, we would suggest that Friday, Aug. 6th, be observed as a day of fasting and prayer for the success, not only of the meetings named, but all other similar ones. It is important that we feel our dependence upon the Lord for good results from these meetings. Let us meet solely to glorify him in building each other up in Christ and his truth.

M. G.

CAMPMEETING.—Remember, our National Campmeeting at Springfield begins Saturday, Aug. 7th, to continue to the 16th inst. Come, expecting special blessings from the Lord. Come praying, with a firm purpose to do all in your power to make the meeting one of special profit to everybody. Come to work for Jesus. Leave cares and perplexities at home, and bring the peace and love of God, patience, long-suffering, gentleness, forbearance and brotherly kindness. Let all aim to make it the best meeting ever held on the ground.

M. G.

PERSONAL.—Bro. W. Sheldon is East at present, and intends to be at the Springfield campmeeting. His health is improved, and he is pressing nobly forward in the service of the Lord, faithfully proclaiming his word. Those who wish his services can address him at the Crisis office.

AUGUST 9TH is the date for the meeting of the Advent Christian Association, instead of the 7th, as in the last Crisis.

JOURNEYINGS.

I left home July 2nd, in company with Bro. J. F. Nickerson, and came to Portland on the steamer City of Richmond. Stopped in Portland, then took steamer John Brooks for Boston, arriving at four o'clock on Saturday morning, where I took cars for Providence, and found my appointment for Sunday, July 4th, published in the daily papers. Put up with Bro. C. Thompson. Had quite a good congregation. Preached to them on the importance of holding fast the truth that God in mercy had let shine on this generation, so that no man take their crown. The little flock in Providence have had severe trials, in consequence of some who have been very zealous of certain gifts, and that trine immersion was the true mode of baptism; but not many of the old hands have been carried away by it. Those that have we trust will come right, on the sober second thought, when they will see there is not one case of trine immersion mentioned in the Bible, and that it can only be sustained by the traditions of men. See Col. 2:8, and onward.

From P. we came to Fitchburg, where we found a company pretty well united on the present truth, "looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Savior Jesus Christ." Some have recently been pricked in the heart by seeing the fulfillment of prophecy in the pouring out of the plagues on that harlot, who has her seat in the city on seven hills, and who was seen "drunken with the blood of the saints, and with the blood of the martyrs of Jesus." At the close of the afternoon meeting, Sunday, July 11th, we went to Baker's Pond, about one and a half miles from the Chapel, where we had the privilege of baptizing three souls in the likeness of Christ's death, and we trust they will walk in newness of life, and be found in the likeness of his resurrection, "when he shall come to be glorified in his saints, and to be admired in all them that believe" "in that day."

I would say to the brethren, one and all, do not be discouraged. Jesus will come at the time appointed. If he should not come as soon as some of us confidently expect, the foundation of God standeth sure, having this seal, The Lord knoweth them that are his." O how blessed it is to love the appearing of Jesus. All such have the promise of a crown of righteousness, which the Lord the righteous Judge shall give in that day. Amen.

THE TRACT FUND.

THE ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY, at a meeting on Springfield camp-ground, August 13th, 1874, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

CAMPMEETINGS.

E. A. STOCKMAN.

These great popular gatherings ought to be Pentecostal occasions to the church of Christ. The aggregate faith of a great people, massed at a single point; the daily ascension of ten thousand prayers from the same spot, and for the same thing; the blended testimony of ten thousand living witnesses to the grand, awful, glorious fact of the immediate termination of all human affairs, and the eternal settling of a world's destiny; the gathered ministry of the whole land, charged with the solemn startling message of Messiah's advent, God's judgment-day, and the deliverance of the just, "nigh even at the doors";—these all ought to give assurance of marked, wonderful manifestations of divine power.

But who, that has attended these meetings of later years, has not felt the painful lack of spiritual baptism and unction, ending in sad and discouraging disappointment of the results hoped for? Why is this? Does God forsake his people without provocation? The truth is, the world is fast absorbing the great campmeetings. Pleasure-seeking boldly invades these sacred enclosures, and vice and crime make annual advances on the very citadel of these consecrated retreats. Swarms of low, lewd persons rush to these gatherings for the sole purpose of sinful merriment, or lustful debauchery. And these classes freely mingle with our own young people, and our backslidden members, making a strange blending of professed piety and open ungodliness. Can God smile on such scenes, and display his gracious power amid such amalgamations?

But are we responsible? Inasmuch as we invite and entice these godless multitudes, and then minister to their appetites and propensities, we are. If we run our Sunday trains to accommodate them, and enrich the railroads, and then feast and inflame their bad natures with hot oysters, ice cream, confectionery, etc., and thus arouse their depraved passions for daily profanity and blasphemy, and nightly orgies of vice and crime, then we are, in part, responsible.

If we would see the old-time glory and power, and witness the former effectiveness of the word preached, let us humble ourselves before God for these and other offences, purge our worship of all "uncleanness of the flesh and spirit," and conform our conduct to the grandeur of our faith. Let us abate forever our oyster houses, ice cream stands, confectionery tables, and cease all traffic on our Lord's holy day, even though it be in Bibles. Let the scream, rattle, ribaldly, profanity and obscenity of the Sunday train give place to the quiet cadence of prayer, holy song, and earnest pleading, as becomes the worship of the Almighty Lord, before whose face we are so soon to stand; or, if there may be louder voices, let them be the resounding thunders of God's living, mighty word, arousing those who come, not to feast and revel, but to hear and live.

Let our victualing department cover the actual wants of the people,—nothing more. The Master once fed a great gathering with "barley loaves and fishes." Are the servants above their Lord? Let our dress, conversation and whole deportment, be such as becomes saints waiting for translation; and then let us humbly, devoutly expect, as then we may, the gracious, glorious presence and power of our great coming King.

SEABROOK CAMPMEETING.

As I have been here for nearly three weeks, I have had the advantage of seeing the conveniences for a campmeeting in this locality. The grove for the meeting is only a short walk from the depot, and is very pleasantly situated, and well shaded; with a nice stream of water running through the ground, fed by springs. The soil is a sandy loam, so that in case of rains, the water will quickly soak away. The ocean beach is about one and a half miles from the ground, but between it and the ground there is a beautiful bay, affording a good place for boating and fishing at high tide, and at all times for bathing. There is, and will be fitted up convenient places for bathing within from one-fourth to three-fourths of a mile, in the inlets that make up from the bay.

All things considered, I think the places are few where the facilities for a campmeeting, connected with sea air and bathing, are better than this. The Brn. of the committee all have the cause of our coming King at heart, and are doing all they well can to make this meeting one of deep interest to all who love Jesus; and are also trying to make everything convenient and agreeable by the way of boarding, furnishing provisions of all kinds, lodging, pitching tents, building cottages, or giving information to all inquiries. Rooms unfurnished can be rented at from one to two dollars per week, from now till after campmeeting, and furnished from two to three dollars per week. Through the week of the meeting, rooms can be obtained furnished from 75 cts. to $1 per day, and unfurnished from 25 cts. to 50 cts. to those who wish for rooms. Yours in Christ,

W. G. RUGGLES.

CARTER'S EXCURSION.

A word about Carter's excursion may be interesting to those contemplating a journey to this coast. There is no way of crossing the continent so pleasurable and easy as with an excursion as proposed by Carter, or as may be arranged by any company of thirty or more. Mr. Carter proposed to give every passenger a full seat, which would provide a bed for every two persons. He proposed first class cars and express time to Omaha, and good cars with fast freight time from there through. He has now run six excursions over the road, and four times out of the six has been carried from Omaha in six days, although he has never promised his passengers to go in less than eight. This long time gives one a better chance to rest, and also to examine the country. It also gives ample time for meals, and if one will only give up hurrying to see the end, and enjoy the present, it becomes delightful.

Mr. Carter's excursion has grown from one car on the first to ten cars on the last trip, carrying about two hundred and fifty persons, and so popular had they become, that our company was composed of those who patronize first class hotels, and move in high circles.

Mr. Kimball, the Sup't. of the U. P. R. R., was the first to suggest these excursions to Mr. Carter. Mr. Carter arranged verbally for four trips this season, but neglected to have any written contract. When the R. R. officials knew that two car-loads of people were stopping at first class hotels in Omaha, waiting for Carter's excursion, rather than pay Pullman fare, they saw that this excursion was taking their first class travel, and they resolved that they would destroy its popularity.

When we reached Omaha, Carter was not known. We were recognized only as emigrants, and were told that we were to be huddled in with French, Irish, and Dutch, like so many pigs, amid onions, garlic, carrots and tobacco, with no chance for our beds or baggage. This was all talk, in order to mortify the upper tens, and the rest of us into changing our Carter tickets for express train tickets. Of course, it made some mad, and there was a good deal of loud talk, but the company resolved to stay together and go through. When the time came to start, we were given good cars, though not the most stylish, all by ourselves, with plenty of room. We soon found ourselves as comfortable as from Boston to Omaha, and those of us who kept cool, truly thanked God for the help of his countenance. Mr. Carter is one of the kindest of men, and is untiring in his efforts to make his company happy and comfortable. We doubt not his honesty. What we have said reveals a want of business acuteness, and definiteness, and a little more dignity would give him more commanding power over his passengers, and aid much in maintaining the favor of the people with these excursions.

This trip has taught him a lesson, and he will not take the two trips now advertised, unless he can arrange some more positive and pleasant terms with the U. P. and C. P. R. R's. If he can do this, and execute some more settled and orderly method for changing trains—the only tedious part of the trip—then send me this way instead of by first class ticket. Changing trains is tedious, go which way you will; but when you have beds, lunch baskets, valises to move, and to move in a hurry, it becomes more so. It only lasts however, a little while, and then you are settled again.

I will say in closing, that we were largely, very largely, indebted for our comfort and happiness on the way to the special favor of God. He sent us timely help at Boston by Bro. Adams and Bro. Grant, by Sr. Mary Ingalls, and Sr. Hastings. He made for us friends all the way, so that in all our exchanging trains we found our much baggage moved for us by noble souls, who enjoyed doing it. He gave us strength and health, peace and quietness of mind. The many who prayed for us on our journey did not pray in vain. More than ever on the way our hearts swelled with praise to God for His manifest care. Could I have the same company, the same blessing, and had an occasion, I would come again by Carter's excursion.

Correspondence.

From Bro. N. H. Reed.

To the dear ones of like precious faith:—As it has been some time since you have heard from me through our beloved paper, I thought I would say to you that I am still homeward bound; and as yet the way does not seem tedious, for I find journey bread all the way thus far, and hope to the end. I would say that I am yet doing what I can in this province to spread the good news of Jesus' coming and kingdom. My interest has not in the least abated in trying to get men ready for the judgment, though I do not work so extensively as I used to when colportering. The main cause is, my vocal organs have become so weak, that I am scarcely able to attend to the duties of the Sabbath. When traveling, I overtaxed my strength, and so am now obliged to limit my field of labor. I used to take delight (though I endured hardships) when traveling over the hills and through the valleys of this province, carrying those pages that contain the great message to this last generation. Then I had quite a number of subscribers for the Crisis, Times, Banner, and Christian. But since I have ceased to go abroad as much, there has been a great falling off. I correspond with some by letter, but cannot do the work so effectually.

Last month (June), when at our Annual Conference at Bear River, I could not help thinking of the goodness of God to us as a people, away in this corner of his vineyard. Since 1868, when our first Conference assembled, we have grown and multiplied. Churches are now built up where then our name was a by-word. As yet, no divisions have been made among us, for which we thank God.

We are not now so dependent on other places for help as we used to be, for God is raising up those in our midst who feel the labor resting on them in proclaiming his truth. May God bless all such, and his entire church, that love and unity may prevail, so that our faith may tell to all the world; that when the Master comes, he can say, "Well done." Yours in hope.

Barrington, N. S.

CORRECTION.—I notice in the report of the N. S. Annual Conference, published in the Crisis of July 21st, that a mistake appears in stating that I was elected president. That was not correct. Eld. J. J. Woodworth was elected to that office, and I was elected Vice President. J. M. TOZIER.

I WISH to state that my recent articles on Mormonism are simply sample chapters of a work written on this theme, and not a full examination. The book is not printed.

PRICE. In Elizabeth, N. J., July 24th, Sr. Celestia Price, of rose cancer, after being confined to her bed about nine months, in intense suffering.

We have every reason to believe she sleeps in Jesus, to await the glorious morn of the resurrection. She often prayed the Lord to let her depart and be at rest. She has held to the Advent faith for the last thirty years. Not having any Advent preaching in this place, she attended Christ's Church (Episcopal). The minister, Mr. Parker, has been very kind, as well as many of his congregation, to visit her often. I shall be left alone to pursue my journey through this vale of sorrows and trials, as my children all have families of their own. We have traveled together forty-five years, and have been waiting and expecting for the last thirty years that the Lord would come and change our vile bodies, and make them like unto his glorious body, at his appearing and kingdom.

FOREIGN NEWS.

GLASGOW, July 28. It seems that the Oldham Mill troubles are not to be confined to that section of the country or to that branch of the manufacturing business. In various smaller towns the laborers are agitating the question of strikes, and if the present excitement continues, over thirty-thousand people will soon be out of employment. Thirty-one mills are closed at Dundee and twelve thousand persons are out of employment. Both the employers and operatives have held meetings and resolved not to yield.

One of the most serious fires which has visited this city for some years occurred here to-day, in the large cotton mills of Grant & Co., by which the entire building with all its outlying sheds, barns, etc., was destroyed. There was an awful panic among the operatives, but, as the means of escape were tolerably numerous and available, the damage was comparatively slight. Three girls were severely injured, and several others slightly. A number of firemen were also sufferers by the falling timbers. There were about three hundred and fifty employes in the establishment at the time. The total loss to property will be about £100,000 sterling. There will be much suffering among the poorer people unless the mills are at once rebuilt.

NAPLES, July 29. The Pope has written a letter to the Archbishop of Naples in which he anathematizes the Italian National Catholics.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

Cincinnati, July 30. A dispatch from Indianapolis says a cyclone passed through Haneysburg, Fountain county, Ind., last Sunday night, tearing houses to pieces, uprooting trees and sweeping things generally before it. Five women were killed.

OHIO.

Cincinnati, July 30. Reports from all portions of southern Ohio to-night give gloomy accounts of continued rains and damage to crops.

The Big Miami river to-night at Cleves is rising at the rate of six inches per hour, and the bottoms are all under water. Three thousand acres of corn between Cleves and Lawrenceburg are flooded.

At Morrow, Ohio, a terrible rain storm occurred this afternoon, and the Little Miami river is reported as flooding the town.

In the vicinity of Marietta the damage by the storm of Wednesday night was immense. The wheat and oat crops are reported as entirely washed away, and the Muskingum river is full of floating grain at all points.

Rain is reported as still falling, and great danger is apprehended from a further overflow of the rivers and smaller streams. The crops are considered entirely lost.

INDIANA AND ILLINOIS.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 30. Special telegrams to the Journal from eighty of the ninety-two counties in Indiana and twenty-five of the eastern counties of Illinois furnish a discouraging account of the condition of the crops.

The details of the damage are remarkably uniform, the best showing for wheat being in the extreme northern tier of the Indiana counties, where but a small portion can be saved, it having sprouted in the shock, and at least two-thirds is already ruined. Corn is in a fair condition, except in the low lands, which are under water.

Oats and hay in some sections are rotting on the ground, and fair weather for two weeks would not enable the farmers to save half the crop. The flax crops are nearly ruined. It is raining heavily and steadily throughout the State to-night, and the streams, already full, will pass beyond restraint to-morrow.

ARKANSAS.

Little Rock, July 30. A heavy rain storm along the line of the Iron Mountain has prevented any trains from arriving in this city to-day,

KENTUCKY.

Louisville, July 30. The crop situation in this State as well as in a large portion of the adjoining States is becoming very alarming.

There is a heavy rain fall every day, and the short intermission, with hot sunshine, aggravates the evil. This kind of weather has continued for about six weeks, and is believed to be without parallel. In the last day or two the rain fall has increased, and gloomy apprehensions are felt in all sections of the country.

MISSOURI.

St. Louis, July 30. Advices from southwest Missouri say that very heavy rain storms occurred in that section the past two or three days. At Verona a large part of the town was inundated and considerable damage done.

The Atlantic and Pacific railroad bridge over Spring river was swept away and several hundred yards of the tracks were washed out. A pretty serious washout occurred in various other places, and trains will not be able to pass for several days.

The crops are very seriously injured or wholly destroyed in the bottoms along the Spring river and other property has been swept away.

NEBRASKA.

Omaha, Neb., July 30. Advices from Lincoln, Neb., state that the heavy rains in that section of the country and the southeast damaged property along the line of the Atchison and Nebraska railroad to the extent of over $100,000. It is stated that the road bed is damaged badly for a distance of twenty-one miles. The Burlington and Missouri railroad in Nebraska is reported as having suffered some damage, and the track is under water for about a mile and a half.

Fall River, July 31. At the spinners' meeting, held last night, it was voted to strike in three of the mills. This resolution was carried by a vote of five over two-thirds.

ST. LOUIS, MO., Aug. 2d.—The condition of affairs here is decidedly alarming; the rivers are rising, and the reports from the surrounding country give details of further danger. The four principal railroads running east from here are either flooded in places, or damaged so that trains cannot run, and most of the roads in this State are similarly situated. The river has risen here three feet since last night, and is now rising at the rate of two inches per hour. Accounts from the Upper Mississippi, Missouri, and Illinois, say that they are all rising rapidly, and all tributaries within two hundred miles have greatly swollen, many of them pouring out floods of water.

Despatches from various parts of this State say that immense damage has been done to the crops and other farm property. In Spring River Bottom alone the damage to farmers is estimated at a million and a half dollars.

NOTICE.—I am happy to say that the wood worms, that annoyed us at Springfield the two years past, were all killed by the hard winter and ice, and there are no signs of one. I state this fact for the benefit of those who stayed away last year on that account. The Springfield ground never looked so nice and clean as now. There are some twenty families keeping house on the ground, and it bids fair to have a large and good meeting. H. MUNGER.

Connecticut Campmeeting.

The Lord willing, this campmeeting will commence in the grove near Plainville, Saturday, September 4th, and continue till Sept. 13th.

Experience has proved the depressing effect of the free board system in all campmeetings, where it is allowed; for while the motive may be good, it fails in practice. Many have come to consider this management an unequal division of the burden of the meeting, inasmuch, as it requires brethren who meet their own expenses and board themselves, to help pay a free board bill for others, whose special claim to the privilege they do not understand, thereby diminishing their interest in campmeetings, and hindering their liberty to labor while at the meetings. Nor is this all; the free table has prompt attendants and earnest laborers, who sometimes fail to engage earnestly in the work of salvation, and are at ease in Zion before they are aware of it.

We believe the simple rule of equality to all is the surest way out of this difficulty; and it has been decided to have no free board and no boarding table at this meeting this year. The committee, with the rest, will board themselves. None need stay away because the boarding table is discontinued, as provisions will be sold at the stand, and meat, oysters, and potatoes cooked, if desired, at reasonable rates. This step has been taken with view to glorify the Lord, and we think will equalize the burden. While christians are not called upon to provide for those who are able to take care of themselves, they will not allow the needy to go away hungry.

With the blessing of the Lord, we trust the meeting will prove as nearly self-sustaining as possible. Those coming by R. R. will find conveyance from Plainville to the camp-ground. Let all who can, bring tents and bedding, and every one a blanket, lest your neighbor rob himself to lend you. Above all, come filled with the Spirit of Jesus. As the lease of this grove expires this year, a meeting will be held on the ground, Thursday, Sept. 9th, at 9 o'clock A. M., to consider the future of the campmeeting. A full attendance is desired. Pray that the divine power may rest down upon the encampment, and the good news of the soon coming kingdom inspire every believer with renewed energy to save the perishing, and to be in complete readiness to wait for the Son of man from heaven.

From Zion's Herald:—"Rev. George Trask is in a fair way to have an efficient successor in Rev. I. C. Wellcome, of Yarmouth, Me. We have received a spirited tract from his pen, entitled, 'The Tobacco Plug and Cigar.' Its seventy-two pages are crowded with facts and figures, forming a terrible indictment against the foolish and vulgar habit and expensive indulgence of the use of tobacco. We wish it the widest circulation and the utmost success in its important mission."

From the Portland Transcript:—"Rev. I. C. Wellcome, of Yarmouth, Me., publishes a neat pamphlet of seventy-two pages, against the use of the 'The Tobacco Plug and Cigar,' being a friendly talk with those who use tobacco, with the hope of benefitting them in health, mind and money. It is a complete treasury of anti-tobacco argument and appeal. Sold for $10 per hundred, $1.50 per dozen, 15 cents single copy. Send order to the author." Sold at the Crisis Office.

Students and beginners in history should occasionally look over the map in its entire length—drawn out on the wall, or tables, or on the carpet—until they are well acquainted with the entire outlines, plan and compass of the map, which embraces all history.

A NEW BOOK.
THE BIBLE DOCTRINE OF THE SOUL.
An Answer to the Question: "Is the Popular Conception of the Soul that of Holy Scripture?"
BY CHAS. L. IVES, M. D.
Professor of the Theory and Practice of Medicine in Yale College.

This is a pamphlet of 119 pages, in which the Author discusses the above question in an interesting and able manner,—showing the material nature of, the mortality and destiny of the Soul,—A future immortality to be the special portion of the Righteous,—What the Bible teaches as to the future of the Wicked,—The intermediate state,—The Resurrection,—That of the Righteous and of the Wicked, etc.

The Author claims that the doctrine set forth,—"Honors God, exalts the Bible, insures preaching of future punishment, subverts Universalism and Infidelity, errors of Romanism, of Spiritualism and Swedenborgianism, helps in work of Missions, rightly values the body, brings Christian unity, and promotes personal holiness."

We are much pleased with this work. It ought to have a wide circulation. We have a good supply, and hope the friends will order freely. We will sell at the following prices:—25 cts. per copy; $2.00 per dozen, sent by mail; $15.00 per hundred by express. AG'T.

THE PILGRIM'S WANTS.

I want that adorning divine,
Thou only, my God, canst bestow;
I want in those beautiful garments to shine
Which distinguish thy household below.

I want every moment to feel
That thy Spirit resides in my heart,
That thy power is ready to cleanse and to heal,
And newness of life to impart.

I want, oh! I want to attain
More likeness, my Savior, to thee;
That longed for resemblance to gain,
Thy comliness put upon me.

I want to be marked for thine own;
Thy seal on my forehead to wear;
To receive that "new name" on the mystic white stone,
Which none but thyself can declare.

I want thine own hand to unbind
Each tie to terrestrial things,
Too tenderly cherished, too closely entwined,
When my heart too tenaciously clings.

I want by my aspect serene.
My actions and words to declare
That my treasure is placed in a country unseen,
That my heart's best affections are there.

I want as a traveler to haste
Straight onward, nor pause in my way,
Nor forethought, nor anxious contrivance to waste
On the tent only pitched for a day.

I want—and this sums up my prayer—
To glorify thee till I die,
Then calmly to yield up my soul to thy care,
And breathe out in faith my last sigh.

THE PREACHER'S CALL.—NO. 1.

ALVIRUS N. HITCHCOCK.

I am induced to write upon this topic, hoping to benefit two classes; first, those who feel somehow that they ought to preach, but don't want to, and doubt whether there be any call to preach; second, those who have quit "arguing the case," but hold mistaken views regarding the minister's work and qualifications. The writer would fain yield the discussion of so important a matter to older pens; yet he feels that an investigation which has gone far toward satisfying his own mind may not be wholly unappreciable. We shall consider the subject under three heads:

I. IS THERE SUCH A THING IN OUR DAY AS A DIVINE CALL TO THE MINISTRY?

II. THE EVIDENCE OF SUCH A CALL.

III. THE MINISTER'S WORK AND QUALIFICATIONS.

I. Is there such a thing in our day as a Divine call io the ministry?

This question is likely to arise in the mind of every young believer who conceives that it may be his duty to preach. He has no doubt that the apostles had a divine commission, but that this commission reached to the present, does not seem so evident. The mere circumstance that others profess a call, or that the majority of the church recognize such a thing, is not conclusive. We perceive three general reasons for believing that God still commissions chosen individuals to proclaim the gospel.

1. It is reasonable. The original object for which preaching was instituted is not yet fully attained. The circumstances which at first made it necessary to preach the gospel recur every generation. The command was, "Go, disciple all nations." It was the pleasure of God, when the gospel was introduced, to save men "through the foolishness of preaching." To-day there are millions unacquainted with Christ—untaught and unsaved. Has the Almighty changed his tactics since the day of the apostles? Perhaps the objector will point to the absence of miracles as proof that God has altered his methods, and will assert that, as miracles are not now performed, the commission itself has ceased. But we insist that miracles and the commission are essentially distinct. The object of miracles was to "confirm the word" preached. The object of the word preached was to save men. Miracles have already served their purpose. The gospel needs no further confirmation. But the necessity for the preaching of the gospel still remains. Souls are perishing for the bread of life. The ignorant need to be instructed, and the careless awakened. Hence we argue the duty of preaching, and the probability that God still signifies his choice of individuals for that work, for "how shall they preach except they be sent"?

2. The alleged impressions of men eminent in piety support this belief. Unenlightened impressions are not trustworthy. If such feelings occurred only in the minds of a few ignorant enthusiasts, they might reasonably be questioned. Even if they should act upon the minds of intelligent men generally, but confined to certain periods of excitement, we would still deem it unsafe to trust them. But the actual case is far different. To be sure, many profess a call who are either deceived, or prompted by wrong motives. It is not strange. Where is there a good thing that is not counterfeited? The counterfeit rather proves that the genuine exists somewhere. The impressions felt by truly pious men seem to have little or no connection with prevailing opinions and feelings; and instead of being the outgrowth of corrupt motives, they come unsolicited. The thought seizes them that they must preach. They cannot account for it on any natural principles. Nor can they get rid of the impression. It follows them night and day. They feel that they must preach or perish. While they refuse, they find themselves backsliding. Some, indeed, have been brought to the very point of death, and have only recovered when they consented to do what seemed to be their duty. Such is the concurrent testimony. We can compare it to nothing else. Now, while these impressions, as such, go for nothing in the mind of the common skeptic, nevertheless, the united testimony of so many honest men should certainly have some weight.

3. The proof from Scripture is clear. During the struggles of my own mind on this subject—I am sorry to say it—I often endeavored to "explain away" the statements of the New Testament relating to the ministerial call; but as often signally failed. I examined the views of those who deny a present call to preach, but gained no relief. I am now satisfied that the New Testament argument is unanswerable. We first notice Matt. 28: 19, 20: "Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you; and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."

Four things are contained in this passage; first, the command to disciple all nations, or, as Mark has it, "preach the gospel to the whole creation;" second, the command to baptize; third, the command to teach all men to observe the sayings of Christ; fourth, the promise, "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world." These four points have a synchronal application. Nobody denies the binding force of baptism; but those who are commanded to baptize are also commissioned to preach; hence the commission to preach is as much a thing of to-day as the command to baptize. Furthermore, those who are commanded both to preach and baptize have the promise of Christ's presence, "even unto the end of the world." This cannot mean his presence in person; hence it must refer to the gift and ministration of the Holy Spirit. Dr. George Campbell translates this phrase, "to the conclusion of this state." Alexander Campbell endorses this rendering, and says it means the "apostolic state," thus confining the separate ministration of the Spirit to the days of the apostles. The Doctor's translation is good enough, but Mr. Campbell's application of it is without the least shadow of plausibility. It is certainly one of the weakest sophisms he ever contrived. The original of the phrase is santeleias tou aionos. It recurs in the singular form but five times, and all of these are in Matthew. It seems to be a stereotyped form of speech with him, and to have a fixed and definite meaning. We give the cases where used: "The harvest is the end of the world;" "so shall it be in the end of this world;" "so shall it be at the end of the world;" "what shall be the sign of thy coming and of the end of the world?" In each of these cases it is agreed that the phrase refers to the end of the Gentile age. One instance remains—that of the text under examination: "So I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world." The conclusion is inevitable that the meaning here is the same. Matthew uses the phrase in no other sense. It is used twice in a slightly modified form by Paul (Heb. 9: 26, and 1 Cor. 10: 11), but in neither case does it refer to the age of the apostles. Thus, Mr. Campbell's application is entirely without precedent, and is unscholarly, to say the least. But that the promise referred to relates to the gift of the Spirit in connection with the ministry of the word, and was to continue throughout the gospel age, is clearly shown by this fact: The command had been given, "Go preach," etc.; and Christ in Matt. 24: says, "The gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations, and then shall the end come." The last day immediately follows the general proclamation of the gospel. Preaching, therefore, with the accompanying Spirit, extends to that time.

Our space will not allow us to go into a much further discussion of this part of the subject. We call attention, in conclusion, to Matt. 24: 45: "Who then is a faithful and wise servant, whom his Lord hath made ruler over his household, to give them meat in due season? Blessed is that servant whom his Lord when he cometh shall find so doing." This passage contains three important facts; first, the Lord will find good servants at his coming; second, they are placed over the Lord's household; third, the Lord has himself put them there. The first fact needs no comment. Concerning the second fact we would remark that "ruler" is not in the original, the verb kathistemi signifying simply to set or place over. We have also carefully examined this text to see if the expression "his household" might not refer to the servant's household, and thus have nothing to do with the church; but we find that the word for "his" is the reflexive pronoun, which, according to a well known Greek idiom, must refer to the subject of the leading clause. The subject of the leading verb is "lord;" hence, "his" refers to the Lord's household, or the household of faith. The third fact is clear. It is distinctly said, "Whom his lord hath made ruler." It is a Divine appointment over the household of faith to feed them with meat in due season.

We have left many texts untouched; but we trust that we have made it clear that there is in our day such a thing as a Divine call to the ministry. Oh, ye who feel the woe, how long halt ye between two opinions?

REPORT OF UNION TENT MISSION.

Being somewhat surprised that so many mission tents are idle in this time of peril, when the lukewarmness of the church calls for special effort, I thought a report of the expense, manner of running, etc., of ours might be interesting, encouraging, and perhaps beneficial to others. The readers of the Crisis already know that the Uent's company give their "talents, time, and voice." Our numbers have varied from five to eight; seven most of the time. Our means of transportation on the main land are three horses, which we turn out to pasture most of the time. There are three tents running in this way in this State (Maine), by Brn. Low, Blaisdell, and Sevey; and we shall not be able to visit half the places where they want us to come. Here are the figures of our receipts, expenses, etc., from June 2nd to July 20th. This does not include what the Brn. in the various places have done individually in keeping us, etc.; nor what we have paid out in fixing up the tent, as to ropes, lamps, seats, etc., nor what we have given away in tracts and other ways.

First meeting at Belgrade, five days; receipts, $15.75. Second meeting at East Wilton, three days; receipts, $5.70; expense, $8 84; travel, 25. Third meeting at Richmond eighteen days; receipts, $21.53; expense, $2.20; travel, 60. Fourth meeting at Wiscasset, six days; receipts, $11.03; expense, $7.07; travel, 10. Fifth meeting at Vinalhaven, $6; receipts, $12.60; expense, $10.74; travel, 65.

The places where we have held meetings have been two old places for Advent faith, and three new. In this place (Vinal Haven) they have never had any Advent preaching, as far as I can hear. These truths are new to them. The people are taking hold of them. Truly the Lord is coming soon, and what we do must be done quickly. May God help us to be faithful.

E. O. DINSMORE, for Union Tent.

I KNEW an excellent woman, who was extremely generous to the poor in the days of her affluence. At length, the wicked conduct of her own child reduced her to poverty. She then said to me, "It was once my duty to do good, it is now my duty to suffer ill; but all will be peace and joy hereafter; these 'light afflictions' I find are working out for me a 'far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory.'"—Rowland Hill.

RAMBLES IN ALABAMA.

J. J. SMITH.

Dear Brethren:—I have just returned from a preaching tour of about eighty miles down the Tennessee Valley. On the 23d of June, with my baggage across my shoulder, I set out on foot to Carpenter Station, six miles. Found at the P. O. a letter with money to pay fare on the train to my first stopping point. This was a great relief, as the weather was getting very warm. Stopped over at Stevenson, with Bro. Cargile's family. I was pained to see his crop ruining for want of cultivation, while he was toiling in the gospel field, away over the mountains in N. C., wearing out himself with two men's labors. In his absence, a hireling, that he depended upon to do his farm work, had abandoned it, at a season too when no time should be lost; and his place could not be supplied. I think it probable his crop is diminished nearly one half for want of labor, it being too late to work it out after his return. Such are the sacrifices we have to make who work in this missionary field. But few are aware of the losses that the minister sustains, in his home affairs, for want of his personal attention.

June 24th. Took the train for Scottsboro, where I left the R. R. and walked thirteen miles. A storm at night prevented our meeting at Pleasant Hill church.

June 25th. Walked eight miles to Bro. J. A. Bryan's, where I met with Bro. J. M. Stewart, pastor of the church at Goose Pond, who proposes to accompany me on this trip. We are now in the neighborhood of Centre Star (Presbyterian) church, where Bro. Bryan was recently tried for heresy, and condemned by his Presbytery. This Bro., a little more than one year ago, refused to allow me to preach "Advent heresy" in his pulpit. He was remonstrated with by a kind Bro., and prevailed upon to read The Trumpet for the Watchman. This led him to think better of us, and to further investigation. Now he has cast in his lot with us to suffer reproach.

Bro. Bryan having defended the Bible truth, in open session of the Presbytery at Centre Star, and being alone on the unpopular side, there was quite a stir in the community when it was announced that two Advent preachers were to visit and preach in the neighborhood. The question was, Where will they get a house to preach in? The school-house was supposed to be the only place; but that was burned down before our arrival (the Lord knows why). It was supposed that the church was the only place left us. It was variously reported that there were no objections to our preaching in the church, as it was usually open to all denominations; and again, that its doors would be barred to keep us out. Again it was said that we would not be invited, but if we used the house no one would raise an objection. Went to it in the evening; met a few, the night being damp and the weather showery. We found the seats piled up against the door, whether to keep us out or not, I could not learn. We did not go in, but had service outside, on the wet ground.

June 26th. Met a small assembly in the grove, and without any seats but the wet ground, we addressed a very patient people. Made no appointment for evening, as the Methodist circuit preacher had an appointment there that evening. We attended his meeting. He was very courteous toward us, and invited us to assist in the meeting. Before we adjourned, I stated the various rumors about our occupying the house, and told them I did not wish to give cause for contention among themselves, and would not occupy the house on to-morrow (Sunday) against the wish of the people who controlled the use of the house. I requested any objector present to rise to his feet. Two men rose, but did not speak. I thanked them for their frankness, and announced two services for Sunday in the grove near by.

June 27th. Met a much larger assembly. Men and women, in their Sunday attire, seated themselves on the pine straw, and without a seat, table or pulpit, we had commenced the service, when we were invited (by the Elder who voted against it last night) to go into the house. As there was a fair prospect of a rain in a short time, I accepted the invitation, and went in. I endeavored to explain the great image of Dan. 2nd chapter, with the aid of my prophetic chart. Some stared (at the pictures), some slept well. I suppose they had eaten bountiful dinners, or, being hard workers all the week, could not sit still without a snooze.

One old brother told me that the people there did not know what I was talking about. It was a subject too high for them. I concluded that I would not use the chart again on this trip. I left it with Bro. Bryan, and there it remains.

June 28th and 29th. We rested at Bro. Bryan's, spending our time in trying to edify and comfort each other, in close attention to the Scriptures. It was, to me, a blessed season.

June 30th. Bro. Stewart and myself set out on foot over a mountain into Honey-Comb Valley, among strangers, in a strange country. We called at a house to see a man, to whom we had been referred for information about the way. He inquired of me, "Who is Eld. J. J. Smith?" On replying that I was the person, he said there was a large bundle in the P. O. on our road for me. On reaching the P. O., I found about four lbs. of tracts there, addressed to me at Henryville, and for which I had inquired at the latter place. Who would have thought that the losing of a mail-bag key on the route would have put these tracts into our hands, after we had left the neighborhood of the office to which they were addressed? The mail carrier could not get the tracts into the mail-bag, nor carry them in his coat pocket, as he did the other mail matter; so he left them for another trip. And who would have thought that this was God's method of defeating the devil in his purpose to give us a Paul and Silas jacket; which was accomplished by his superior foreknowledge, as I will relate when I come to it in my next report.

We had not gone far, after receiving our tracts, when we came to a farm-house, at which a number of men were taking their noon rest. We approached them, and gave to each some tracts, and talked with them. They insisted that we should stop and preach in the neighborhood, and as that was our business, we consented to preach at night in a church on our way, about a mile and a half further on. I will report further in another article.

Long Island, Ala.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

H. B. SEVEY.

We pitched our tent July 6th in Wiscasset, for our fourth meeting, on the same spot where our tent was last year. We found the Brn. rather low. Since our last meeting some had united with other societies, yet we found some that were strong in the faith, striving for the kingdom. Some that came out last year were expecting to go forward in baptism, but sickness prevented. Bro. J. H. Meader is holding meetings in the vicinity. We had some good meetings. We found a number had embraced our faith that had not come out publicly. May the Lord lead them into the fulness of his love. We stopped only one week, as we thought our duty was in other places.

We started July 12th for Vinal Haven, by Rockland, where we found Bro. Blaisdell with the Evangel tent, laboring to good acceptance with the brethren and sisters in that place. I stopped with him a few days, found good interest to hear, and a waking up among the scattered brethren and sisters; also among the unconverted. Bro. Blaisdell is a young man of moral worth, and as a teacher apt and sound in the faith. As we understand our relation to this last generation, none need be afraid of him as a hobby rider, or a divider among brethren.

Our visit and meeting with a sick sister may be of interest to the readers of the Crisis. By request, we visited Miss Margaret W. Warren, of Rockland. Her age is thirty-seven. She has been sick twenty-six years, caused by taking calomel. Doctors say she has lain in one position twenty-three years. Every joint in her limbs is drawn out of place, and ossified. Her feet are turned nearly over, knees and hips stiff, spine curved around to the right side, and the lungs are pressed up by the curve of the spine. She lies in a sitting position, and is taken up once in twenty-four hours. Her bed is prepared to fit her shape by tucking in cloths. All she can move is her head, by turning it a little, and as she breathes her shoulders move a little. She has been blind seven years, so that she can only tell light from darkness. She is very low at this time, suffering pain constantly. In this condition she is perfectly happy, praising the Lord continually for his goodness. She is very intelligent.

Our company learned a lesson of patience in visiting Sr. Warren. She joined in prayer, and spoke of her hope, which had become as a mountain of solid granite. We were much blest in our visit, and came away thanking our heavenly Father that we were able to labor in his vineyard, hoping for the kingdom of God to be set up, when there will be no more pain, or death. May it come, is my prayer.

Vinal Haven, Me., July 20th.

KEEP IT FLYING.

WM. SHELDON.

What? Our distinctive flag,—the banner of "the gospel of the kingdom." Let it float in the breeze. Never trail it. It is God's flag of unpopular truth, and should never be subordinated to the popular flags of error. Cheer it with sacred song, and salute it with holy hosannas. Wave it before its friends, and in the presence of its enemies. It tells of a coming King, and a future kingdom. It speaks of the downfall of evil, and the triumph of righteousness on earth. It proclaims the end of death, and the dawn of life eternal to the sainted dead and living watchers. But be sure to wave the flag in the right spirit. In other words, never preach the gospel of the kingdom in the spirit of contention, or to gratify a sensual ambition for the mastery in argument. Preach it in the spirit of the message, and the result will always be salutary. Preach it with love in the heart, and it will commend itself to other hearts, and prove a power for good. Preach it "nigh at hand." Other themes, of course, must claim attention, but must never be allowed to supplant or belittle this special truth now due the church and world. Let the cry wax louder, and grow more earnest, "The kingdom of heaven is at hand;" and let us pray more fervently, "Thy kingdom come."

HOW TO PREACH THE WORD.

J. E. CLARK.

"So they read in the book of the law of God distinctly, and gave the sense, and caused them [the Jews] to understand the reading." NEH. 8: 8.

This is just what all men who stand up as teachers of religion should aim to accomplish—to give the sense, to cause the people to understand the word of the Lord. It is to be feared there is great deficiency in the method of handling the oracles of God. One great trouble is, men's theories must be sustained, instead of presenting more of the cardinal doctrines of which the holy prophets and apostles wrote and spoke. The question is not, what do the sects teach or believe, but what do the Scriptures teach? It is not for the minister of Christ to ask how he can please the itching ear, but rather, how can I preach to glorify God? He should read the word of God distinctly, give its true meaning, and thus cause the people to understand.

The word of God discovers the sins of the human heart, and reveals to us the corruption of our fallen nature, and that without help we are lost. One great object of a teacher should be to expose the evils of these perilous times in which we live, and point out the way of escape through Christ. A man should preach the gospel from pure and benevolent motives.

A man who is called of God to stand up between the living and the dead will make the occasion most solemn and impressive, instead of causing his congregation to laugh, by making fun for them. Such a man needs another dip and another call. How many there are who deceive themselves and their congregations, by dealing in a little folly. There is something else to be done besides making sport for the people, thus tampering with their soul's salvation. A man filled with faith and the Holy Ghost will so preach the word of God as to cause the people to cry out, "What shall we do to be saved?" The great object of Christ and his apostles was to save men. Paul told Timothy to "preach the word," to rebuke, or reprove and exhort. How many there are who seek to save a dying and dead theory, rather than to present the living and powerful word of God. What the people most need is for some one to correctly expound the Scriptures, to rightly divide the word. How many there are who stand up before the people to preach, who utterly fail to give the sense, to cause them to understand the Scriptures of truth; and thus many honest disciples of Jesus are led off into error.

The apostles' reward for their preaching the word of God was stripes, imprisonments, and death, but in these days of free toleration, there is the greater danger. The sea is calm, smooth sailing; no persecution, no stake, no stripes or imprisonments, no death; but the opposite; fat salaries, fine clothes, pleasures, folly, fun, and great riches, together with ease. It will not do for this class of preachers to give the sense of the word of God, or cause the people to understand the reading, for the people do not like it; and if a minister wishes to retain his position and salary, he must preach to please the itching ear.

But if a man dare to come out, and give the sense of the word, he must be prepared to meet the consequences. It is better to obey God than man. And every true minister of Christ will obey God rather than man. The question is, what does God think about the course I am taking? How many souls will go down to eternal death because of the folly of an unsanctified minister, professing to preach Christ's gospel? These are days of extreme peril. Let every man search the Scriptures for himself, and not lean upon the arm of any man, for we must stand or fall for ourselves in the day of judgment.

I OUGHT TO BE HOLY.

The following, under the above heading, was selected by me for a Christian Journal many years ago, and has since had several publications. I do not know its paternity; but it is a choice production. I know of but few better ones. It is worthy of a tract form. B.

On examining my heart I think I find scriptural evidence that I am a child of God. I believe I have repented of my sins, and have been freely justified by grace, through faith in the atoning sacrifice of Christ. I have enjoyed great peace, and the love of God has been shed abroad in my heart by the Holy Spirit; and by the same Spirit I have been enabled to use the endearing appellation, "My Father." Prayer has been my delight, and the word of God has been sweeter than honey or the honeycomb. Sin has appeared very odious, and the Savior truly lovely. But while I find these marks of a spiritual change, I must confess that I am not conformed to the image of God. Unbelief, pride, self-will, inordinate love of creature good, with many other unholy tempers, have often been occasions of grief and humiliation. And this state of things is the more reprehensible and afflicting because I have been many years a professor of religion.

During some portions of my religious life, I have felt but little of the spirit of prayer; my affections were earthly, my faith was weak, and my love cold. The closet, the family altar, the prayer meeting and even the house of God, offered but few attractions. The cross was borne, when borne at at all, with reluctance. When religious conversation was introduced I felt a shyness, particularly if it took a personal turn and required any disclosure of my own state and feelings, or to dwell on the deep things of God. It became a task to make personal efforts for the conversion of souls, and favorable opportunities for doing good in various ways were suffered to pass unimproved. Now all these evils I can trace, directly or indirectly, to the want of holiness of heart.

Still I profess religion—a holy religion. The God I worship is a holy being. He hates iniquity. The Savior in whom I trust was holy, harmless, and separate from sinners; he died to purify unto himself a peculiar people, and he is able to save to the uttermost all who come unto God by him. All my strength comes from the Spirit of holiness, i. e., the Holy Spirit. The gospel in which I believe is a system of holy truth, a revelation of God's holy character and purposes—God's method of making holy men of sinners; and it offers me a full, free, and present salvation from all sin. The church of Christ, of which I am a member, is an association of godly men; its head, the Lord Jesus, the apostles, and martyrs, and confessors, with the first-born in heaven, were holy; and some of its living members are holy men of God. Holy obligations are upon me, and my brethren and the world, too, justly expect me to be holy, and to exemplify the power of godliness in my life. I ought to be holy in heart and life.

More than this: God calls me to holiness. "Be ye holy for I am holy." He promises to sanctify me wholly, soul, body, and spirit, and when this is done, to preserve me blameless until that day. The fountain for sin and uncleanliness is opened, and I am invited to wash and be clean. He has engaged to circumcise my heart that I may love him with all my heart, soul, mind, and strength. He offers me grace in the fulfillment of his exceeding great and precious promises, so that I shall perfect holiness in his fear, and by being made partaker of the divine nature, escape the corruptions that are in the world; and thus serve him without fear in righteousness and true holiness all the days of my life.

I must be holy, because my religious enjoyment will necessarily be limited until I have a large accession of divine grace. My faith will be weak, and, of course, my peace will be subject to many fluctuations; my love will not be perfected, and can not cast out the fear which hath torment; nor can I pray without ceasing, rejoice evermore, and in everything give thanks. My communion with God will be comparatively superficial, and liable to frequent interruptions.

My usefulness, too, is seriously affected by my want of holiness. But for sin I should feel more concern for my fellow-men, should do more to save them, and be willing to suffer more on their account. I should feel stronger desires for success in my endeavors to benefit them, and should pray more for it, and I fully believe I should accomplish much more than I now do or can. I sometimes ask myself, What is the effect of my example on my companions, on my children, on the inmates of my family, on my christian brethren, and the world around me? I ask again, If I had been holy, devoted, consistent, faithful to God and souls, might I not have done much good? Might not my instrumentality have been sanctified to the conversion of souls? Would not my example have been the means of lighting up the flame of holiness in some hearts? Instead of my doing good to others, I may have been, probably have been, a stumbling-block to sinners, and an offence to the people of God.

But a more serious question remains to be answered. Can I be saved without holiness? I hear God say: "Follow holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord." I read of that heaven for which I hope and sigh. "And there shall nowise enter into it anything that defileth, neither whatsoever worketh abomination, or maketh a lie." Those are there who have "come up out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb." The holy, the holy, and they only, are there. Shall I be there? Without holiness no man shall see the Lord. But I am unholy; I know it. I feel it. I deplore it before God. I cry, "Lord, have mercy upon me!" "Create in me a clean heart, and renew a right spirit within me." Blessed be his holy name, he opens a door of hope to my soul. "I will redeem Israel from all his iniquities." "I will circumcise thy heart." Even so, Lord! Let it be done! Save me to the uttermost! Let me awake in thy likeness! I must be holy. Holiness is indispensably necessary to my salvation.

WHAT THE WORLD PAYS.

Sometimes men of the world complain that the church is wasting money in various benevolent causes, without much profit. The old question, asked eighteen hundred years ago, "Why is this waste?" is often asked in our times. Men want to know why so much is expended on foreign missions; why so much is given to plant the gospel in pagan lands, and they tell us we are squandering the money we thus use.

But such persons forget how much is being expended in lust and sin, in folly and extravagance.

What do intoxicating drinks cost the people of this country? The figures are absolutely startling. And these immense amounts are given not for any good, but to impoverish society, to debauch the community, and ruin souls. The men who think it unwise to pay money to send the gospel to the heathen; who are blind to all the glorious changes which have been wrought in the pagan world, do not seem to notice what vast sums are paid to make drunkards, to fill our prisons, to ruin our young men, and swell the mighty army of widows and orphans.

How much is paid in this country for tobacco? The vile and filthy weed is smoked, chewed, snuffed, and used in a dozen disgusting ways to the damage of brain, lungs, heart and stomach. And how much men pay for this useless, loathsome narcotic. Men who condemn missions don't think of the cost of tobacco. They pay for that, not thinking that it costs more for the vile weed than for missions.

Then how much is paid for light literature? Men who cannot—or who say they cannot—afford a religious paper for their family use, will spend on the story papers, and the meanest of the daily papers, ten times as much as a religious paper would cost them. They do not say they cannot afford these worthless papers, but buy them every day. But they are so poor they cannot afford to take a religious paper for their children.

It requires more than two thousand five hundred men and women to run the theatres of London. This outnumbers all the foreign missionaries on the earth. That one city alone has more ministers of vanity and sin, acting every night, than we have missionsionaries among the heathen to execute the great commission. And yet who complains of that waste? How bigoted we are called when we protest againt theatres as useless expenditures.

When will christians learn to be as liberal in the cause of Christ, as free with their money as rum-drinkers, tobacco-chewers, and theatre-goers are with their money. When will we learn to do as much for Christ as men of the world do for their poor, polluted pleasures.—Christian Era.

HOME AND HEALTH.

BEDS.

The majority of people have much to learn about beds and their management. Disease and feebleness very often come from bad beds. Without refreshing sleep, which can only be found in good beds, we cannot enjoy or exert the full powers of our physical or mental natures. The first question which many of our wisest doctors are now asking of their patients is, "How and where do you sleep?" The location of a bedroom is everything. Science and common sense tell us that our bedrooms should always be on the sunny side of the house, and that light and air should pass freely through them the most of the day. Whoever sleeps in a bedroom on the north side of the house, into which the sun never penetrates, is dying daily. He passes through life in an enervated condition, and leaves a posterity unfitted for the struggles and heroisms of life. Man alone is forgetful of this instructive and helpful law. We do not consider, and therefore suffer and die before our alloted time. The seeds of disease are in our mattresses. Thousands of families sleep on feather and curled-hair beds which have been in daily use—and they boast of it—for twenty-five years. How often have such beds, even in well-regulated families, been turned out under the sun and exposed to the air, as they should have been, especially in the summer months, for hours together? It is frightful to think of the quantity of perspiration from our bodies which adheres to the unrefreshed mattresses.

Ignorance of these matters inflicts upon posterity untold burdens, and robs the world of an immense amount of power. How can a man who has slept on an unhealthy bed rise in a singing mood in the morning ready for a full day's work? Almost any bed well-managed contributes to vigorous health and long life. The material of the mattress is of the smallest account. Freshness and cleanliness are the essentials. In these sweltering nights no bed is fit to be occupied that has not been under the sun several hours in the twenty-four. We have a great deal to learn about beds. The maids in our houses make up the cribs and beds almost as soon as they are vacated, without the slightest regard to their purification. The hard struggle for healthy life is of our own creation. As we make our beds so we must lie on them. There is light enough on this subject, as on all others, but we love the darkness rather than the light. We think with pity of the family which attends the poisonous theatres and returns to neglected beds at midnight. This is called enjoyment and recreation by persons who know not what they are doing.

The highest medical authorities in this country and Europe assure us that the healthiest bed possible is clean straw, replenished at least once a fortnight, and turned under the sun and air daily. This is a hint to our farmer friends who have straw in abundance all the year round. Many people waste so much upon appearances and gaudy show that they have neither the means nor inclination to make themselves comfortable and healthy in the important item of beds and underclothing. The first thing that good and successful boarding-house keepers do is to expose with pride their mattresses and bedding. The last thing that poor housekeepers do is to show theirs. Nothing more repulsive to well-bred people than an ill-looking bed, and none more disastrous to health.

We have said bed-rooms should be on the sunny side of the house; but if the sunbeams are to be carefully excluded, and the rooms made dark with blinds and curtains, it is little matter on which side of the house they are. Sunlight is especially needed for the sick, and it is especially excluded from them. Everything is darkened to keep out the flies and heat, but both are purifying. The flies, it is now said, cleanse the air of animalculæ and spores, some of which are, perhaps, the germs of our diseases. The sunlight will purify walls, furniture, beds and wearing apparel in the room, as well as invigorate its human occupants.

Nearly twice as many patients recover on the sunny side of hospitals as on the north side. Why turn all our rooms practically to the north side by shutters, blinds and curtains. If we do so, at least let us bear the consequent wanness, weakness or sickness without murmuring. What is true of bedrooms is also true of living rooms and offices. The oldest and most respectable mercantile houses in London had a pride in keeping their offices in the dark courts, and with the small windows of the olden time, and the lives of their book keepers and clerks, who worked long hours in these musty old offices by gas light, even at noonday if the weather was at all dull, were not worth five years' purchase. The song of the cash-book or ledger might in such offices have been an accompaniment to the "Song of the Shirt," and how many similar offices might be found in New York.

Mothers, please see to it that your houses are thrown open from garret to cellar in warm weather for several hours in the heat of the day, so as to get as much light and heat and thorough draught of air as you can; and during that time all beds and blankets should be aired as much as possible in the sunshine.

One hint more: Feather beds and pillows partially smother the body and the head, and absorb such a quantity of the perspiration which they cause, as to make an old feather bed a bag of uncleanliness, especially if it has served for sick folks. For this reason one should never purchase an old bed or pillow, either of feathers or hair. —New York Witness.

CHILDREN'S DRESS.

Much has been written of late on the subject of dress. "What shall we wear?" "How much may we spend in unnecessary dress?" These are questions that are agitating the minds of christian women. Some few, at least, are taking a decided stand against the artificial trappings of pride and extravagance. But would it not be well for christian mothers to begin at the root of this great evil? How can we expect our grown-up daughters to easily lay aside the fashion and follies of the day when they have been trained to it from the cradle? While our little ones are decorated in all the paraphernalia of fashion, and their little minds poisoned by a love of admiration and vain show, how can we expect to make much progress in this reformation, so much needed in the church?

How soon this overdressing of the body strikes to the heart, and manifests itself in the actions of the child. How quickly the child copies the example set before it. If the mother daily discusses "the latest fashion," "the most becoming style," in the presence of her children, will they not naturally conclude that the highest point to be aimed at in life is to dress, and to be fashionable? O, what a sad sight to see christian mothers consulting the dressmaker, studying the fashion plates, and spending so much precious time fashioning garments for the little children God has given them to train up for heaven. Christian mothers, how much time do you spend studying the Scriptures and seeking after knowledge and wisdom, that you may be enabled to lead your little ones to Him who has said, "Suffer little children to come unto me?"—The Christian Woman.

AWAKE! YE MEN OF MIGHT.

S. S. BREWER.

Awake! ye men of might,
Ye men of war, draw near,
Beat plowshares into swords,
And pruning hooks to spears.
Ply well with nerve and sinew
Your forge and furnace blast,
Produce your bombs and chain shot,
And hurl them thick and fast.
Roll on your thundering cannon,
And belch the iron hail
Amid the shout of warriors
And dying foeman's wail.

Come up, ye men of might,
Ye men of vengeful mood,
To tread the battle plain
With garments rolled in blood.
See! multitudes, vast multitudes,
The gathering of clans,
The bundling up of tares
For destiny of man,
Up to Jehoshaphat.
Now Gog and Magog come
In Armageddon place—
Called in the Hebrew tongue.

The harvest now is ripe,
The wickedness is great,
The fats are overflowing
With murder, lust, and hate.
The year of the redeemed,
The day of vengeance near,
We're in Decision's valley,
The Judge will soon appear.
Probation's sun is setting,
Dark clouds are gathering round,
Stand with your robes prepared,
For soon the trump will sound.

ROMANS 4: 16.

J. P. MARQUAND.

"That the promise might be sure to all the seed."

We must now try and comfort God's people during these last days of peril and trouble. God has made certain promises to man in connection with the work of redemption, and we desire to know what they are, and when to expect their fulfillment. These promises cover the whole ground, showing that man by nature is mortal, and alienated from his Creator, and how he is to return to the Shepherd and Bishop of his soul. The fall of man took place on this earth; his salvation and redemption is also on this earth.

The first promise was that "the seed of the woman [Jesus Christ] shall bruise the serpent's head"; meaning that the evil power which seduced our first parents should be crushed and destroyed. The next promise is that given to Abraham, wherein he and his seed should have undisputed possession of this earth, in a renewed state, free from weeds, briers, thorns, malaria, sin, and death. Abraham died without the sight, and slept with his fathers; but he must be resurrected in order to obtain his inheritance and make God's word true.

For the sake of argument we will say that all the promises are grouped into one, and called "the promise." What are its constituent parts? We reply, it includes the favor of God, his approbation and smiles; salvation from sin, extinction of the carnal mind, regeneration, baptism of the Holy Ghost, likeness to Christ and his fellowship, purity of heart, sweet communion of saints, love unfeigned, absence of all error and untruth, freedom from legality, an incorruptible body, immortality, God reigning with his elect in the new earth, having for its centre, as the capital, the new Jerusalem; and over all is inscribed, Forever and ever.

Some few scriptures will now be given, which go to make up this promise. Job 19: 25-27—"I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth; and . . . in my flesh shall I see God; whom . . . . mine eyes shall behold," etc. Job has been dead thousands of years, and he must rise from the dead to see Jesus Christ, and enter the kingdom. David said he expected to die, and be gathered to the grave, but should awake again in the likeness of God. Ps. 17: 15. Also in Isaiah 1: 18—"Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool." Isa. 9: 6, 7, contains a promise of a Savior, and his government to be perpetual. Isa. 25: 6: 9 proclaims victory over sin and death, and the coming of the Lord; 35: 10, the everlasting happiness of the redeemed. See Isa. 54th and 65th chapters. Jeremiah says in chap. 31—I will put my laws in their hearts and in their minds; they shall be mine and know me, and their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more. Now hear what Ezekiel says in chap. 36—"I will sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean; from all your filthiness, and from all your idols, will I cleanse you. A new heart will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you."

The prophet Daniel, in the 7th and 12th chapters, speaks of a kingdom to be established in the earth, and given to the saints; also in Hosea 13 14—"I will ransom them from the power of the grave." The prophet Joel (2: 28) predicts the outpouring of the Spirit; also the prophet Micah, in the fourth chapter, of the latter day glory. See also Zech. 4: 6, and the 14th chapter. Please turn to Acts 2nd chapter. There you will find a fulfillment of Joel's prophecy; also in Acts 3: 19-26. In Rom. 8: 2, we have the process by which sin is eradicated by the Spirit of God through Jesus Christ. Take notice, that Christ and the apostles always verify the words of the prophets, and say that all scripture must be fulfilled, and that the Holy Spirit should take the place of Christ during his absence, and every true child knows that this is the seal of God, and is careful not to grieve, or quench its monitions. Paul says our bodies are the temples of God; and warns us not to defile these temples on pain of destruction. He says we are married to Christ, therefore must be holy, pure, and be true to our marriage vows, fleeing from idolatry, sin and witchcraft, being children of the day, and not of the night; born of the Spirit, and heirs of eternal glory. He points us to the resurrection, and says in 2 Cor. 7: 1—"Having therefore these promises, dearly beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God." Then in Gal. 5th chapter, the fruits and works of the Spirit are clearly set forth; also in Eph. 2: 20—"We are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets." In Colossians, Christ's character and work are made known as follows: "In him dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily," and he is the head of the church. In Thessalonians we have Christ's second coming to reward his people, and punish the guilty. In Hebrews he endorses what Jeremiah said about the new covenant, which gives pardon, forgiveness of sin, and calls Jesus "the mediator of the new covenant." Now turn to 2 Pet. 1st chapter, which says through the "exceeding great and precious promises" we are made "partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world." Also in the epistles of John he says—"If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." The apostle John insists upon our having clean papers, and a good title to the heavenly inheritance; and says in 1 John 2: 25, that the promise given to the saints was eternal life; and lastly in Rev. 2nd and 3d chapters, we have the seven promises given to those who overcome,—they shall sit down with Christ on his throne; also in 21st chapter, a description of the New Jerusalem, the capital city of the new earth, into which nothing enters that is defiling. It is enough to say that God will be there, and wipe away all our tears, and we shall forever love and adore him. This will not only be Eden restored, but much more than that; for that was only innocence untried; but this will be holiness and purity perfected, and made strong for ever. The adversary of God and man, who seduced our first parents, will be destroyed, and then, dear brethren and sisters, we will have a shout, Jehovah hath triumphed, his people are free.

Nothing Unclean.

Nothing unclean must stand between
The Holy Ghost and me;
Saviour from sin, the work begin;
Wash me, till thou canst see
Nothing unclean, &c.

3.
Nothing unclean can mortals screen
From the All-seeing eye;
Spirit of God, apply the blood,
Until I hear Thee cry,
Nothing unclean, &c.

Nothing unclean; oh, glorious scene!
My heart, wash'd in the blood,
With rapture thrills, as now it feels
The mighty power of God!
Nothing unclean, &c.

5.
Nothing unclean doth intervene
To dim the Spirit's light;
It shines each day along my way,
Nor fails to shine at night.
Nothing unclean, &c.

A SANCTIFED IMAGINATION.

That entire sanctification has to do with every attribute of the human understanding will be theoretically conceded; and yet by the common use, or abuse of the mind, it is constantly denied. Limitations and restraints are applied to unholy words and deeds, while the imagination is granted almost a plenary indulgence. It is admitted that the major faculties of the understanding, the affections of the soul, and the animal appetites and instincts of the body, should be chastened; but a loose rein is flung down upon the neck of visionary thought. It is allowed to wander at will, to be wild, erratic and full of vain intoxications. Indeed, a dissipated imagination does not seem to be generally recognized as a sin. Hence its freaks and follies are practiced with an assumed impunity, while other acts of the will are held, by most men, to a strict responsibility.

But for such discrimination there is no foundation, either in ethics or Scripture; and the glaring inconsistency of giving to the imagination unrestrained liberty, while other properties of the mind are placed under bonds, must be patent to every divinely taught and reflecting person.

The imagination is the prolific parent of many evil words, works and tempers, which the common sense of men clearly condemns. If this be so, how can we exculpate the guilty cause, at the same time that we hold the natural and necessary effect to a rigid accountability? How can we blame base actions and dissipated lives, when they evidently spring from sordid thoughts and feelings? If a man is guilty before God when he utters profane or unchaste language, is he less so when he gives himself up to profane or unchaste meditations?

The sin of evil thinking, we suppose, is often excused for two reasons. First, the indulgence is secret and personal to him who engages in it. It is a hidden pastime, and therefore is precluded from exerting directly a deleterious influence upon friends or society. It is limited in its effects to a single individual, like the poison taken by the suicide. In close connection with this idea of unknown and unknowable thoughts, is the strange delusion that God does not bother himself by taking cognizance of our vain and flitting visions.

Second, there seems to be an impression that imagination is largely involuntary, and by consequence, irresponsible. It is let loose, we would infer from the careless practice of many, like the fickle winds, to sweep and whirl, to rise and fall, to whiffle and eddy and change their direction subject to no law.

But are these positions tenable? We think they are not; and further, they involve a serious mistake. First, it is not true that God connives at our secret musings. The Lord taught Solomon through the advice of his dying father that "God searcheth all hearts, and all the imaginations of the thoughts." In another place we are admonished that "every work and secret thing" shall be the subject of review and adjudication in the day of judgment. Nor is it true that imagination is involuntary. A single thought may be projected into the mind by Satanic influence, or by external forces, over which we may have no control. But such suggestions are not our thoughts, much less our imaginations. They are ideas thrust into our conceptions, or entering unbidden and unwelcome, like flies that dart through our windows which we spontaneously desire not to entertain but to expel. Indeed, the obtrusions into the heart over which the will has no control, are few and harmless. The mind is largely and seriously its own master. It chiefly obeys its own dictum, and prepares its own food. The mind can just as independently originate a thought as the will can produce an action. And this fact may be predicated of the mysterious attribute of causation in the mimd as regards both good and evil thoughts.

Such is the strange power of the imagination, and the more marvelous and inexplicable chemistry of continued meditation upon a given subject, that the substance of moral character may be as really changed by it as one material substance may be resolved into another by the processes of the laboratory. As the chemist may convert our most nourishing and deadly poisons, so may imagination corrupt the holiest feelings, and convert a heart which was a seat of purity into a synagogue of Satan.

Verily the imagination is the great factory of character. As a man thinketh so is he." And it should be remembered that the highest degrees of holiness do not eliminate from the mind its power to originate evil thoughts within ourselves. The simple capability of the understanding to generate evil in itself is the basis of human responsibility. As long, therefore, as our responsibility lasts, we may deprave ourselves.

And that illicit imaginations are making fearful havoc in the empire of mind there can be no doubt. They set the animal nature on fire, inflame the passions, beget carnal desires and propensities, pervert and debase the affections, vitiate the taste, pollute the feeling, and give to the whole nature a sickly and sordid condition. It is this that fills the theatre, that makes a market for noxious literature, that fills our cities with debauched men and fallen women. It is this as a primary cause, that has riven asunder many wedded hearts, that has embittered a thousand homes, and finally broken as many sacred marriage covenants.

Illicit imaginations are doing their deadly work in christian families, and within the sacred fane of the church. To this, no doubt, may be traced the fall of many christians, and the wreck and ruin of many noble characters. Here is the pestilence that walketh in darkness, and the destruction that wasteth at noonday. Here is the remote cause that strikes down the brightest flowers in the sisterhood of youth, and turns the bloom and fruit of innocence and hope into the ashes of despair. Like the unseen worm that girdles the precious vegetable, these secret imaginations are eating away the life of the soul, and corroding the heart of society. A sanctified imagination will cure this disease. Oh! when shall "the meditations of our hearts be acceptable in thy sight O Lord, our strength and our Redeemer?"—Christian Standard.

COUNTERFEITS.

Some persons maintain that since there are so many different kinds of religion, all claiming to be best, it is impossible to determine which is the right one, and therefore it is just as well to do without any. But these persons never refuse to negotiate business because there are so many counterfeit bills afloat, but rather on this account put forth more sagacity to discern the sound ones. If wicked men employ their powers to produce false coin as much like the genuine in appearance as possible, we ought not to wonder that evil spirits should do the same in the matter of religion. No one ever doubted the existence of a pure diamond because there were many imitations. When Moses wrought miracles, the magicians did the same in appearance, but the test of time finally settled which was genuine, as some powerful acid reveals the pure coin. It was foretold that false Christs should arise, but the same test, viz., time, has put beyond doubt which is the true one. We must try them and know them by their fruits. Love is the spirit's test. Whichever religion produces and requires most love, peace, goodwill and final happiness we can safely follow.—Watchman and Reflector.

CHRISTIAN CAREFULNESS.

C. E. PRESTON.

How exceedingly careful should christians be to adorn their profession by a pure, holy life. The honor of God, the reputation of religion, and their own eternal welfare require this of them. If we profess to have received Jesus Christ in our hearts, we are to walk in him; that is, to imitate his example, and continually perform those duties which his law and his gospel require. He says, "If ye love me, keep my commandments." This is a duty required throughout the whole gospel, that they who believe in Christ "be careful to maintain good works." An immoral christian, that professes faith in Christ, and yet allows himself in sin, and especially in open violations of his commands, is a reproach, not only to himself, but to the cause of Christ. Such professors hurt religion more than its open enemies, and give opportunity for profane infidels and scoffers to say that Christianity is nothing but a mere cheat, or delusion; whereas, if our conversation was holy, and agreeable to the gospel, it would have a much better tendency—not only silence their objections, but to persuade them to become christians themselves.

Again, if we believe in Christ, how careful ought we to be not to offend one of his "little ones," or to say any thing that would hurt or injure them in any way. We are all human, and are apt to say and do things that we ought not to; but if we believe with all our hearts that the Master is soon coming to release us from the curse, and to set up his everlasting kingdom, it seems as if we ought to live very pure, holy lives, and not give any cause of offence to any of his little ones. May we be faithful a little longer, "For yet a little while and he that shall come will come, and will not tarry." Amen. Even so, come, Lord Jesus.

IN THE CHURCH.

J. W. THOMAS.

"Behave thyself in the house of God."—1 TIM. 3: 15.

By the church here, I mean local church; a body of christians, uniting together to worship God. I believe in christian fellowship, in church organization. It seems suitable that there should be such institutions. Man is a social being. He was not made to live alone. He seeks companionship. Having broken off from worldly attractions and associations, by embracing the hope of a coming kingdom, he now seeks for companionship in another direction. He desires to find a society whose faith, sentiments, and spirit, accord with his own. He cannot wander about from place to place. He must have a home somewhere with the people of God, where he can hear the gospel preached, and exercise his own talent for the salvation of others. Like attracts like. When a man becomes a christian, he seeks christian society. He says with David, "I am a companion of them that fear thee." These fall in with his new views, and hopes, and joys, and sorrows. These are now his fellow-learners, fellow-travelers, fellow-laborers, fellow-soldiers; yea, whosoever now doeth the will of his Father in heaven, the same is his brother, and sister, and mother.

In association with those of like precious faith there is consolation. Among all of the organizations, where men are brought under obligations to care for, and to sympathize with each other, none can compare with this. Christians love each other; not because they have taken secret oaths, nor because money is the motive that prompts them; but because the love is in them, and it flows out naturally and freely. Here there is sympathy, tenderness, long-suffering, brotherly kindness, charity. I am not speaking now of real professors, but of real christians; and I know that there is no such love and consolation in any other institution, as among the true followers of the Lord and and Savior.

Here is safety. Out in the world, away from religious influences, a person is exposed to temptations; is liable to suspicions, and may be drawn into some hidden snare of the enemy. We need the restraints of good society, the instruction and watch-care of those who love us. In christian union and fellowship we have it. How many times have young converts gone to meeting, sorely tempted, and almost discouraged; but when some aged brother or sister arose and related their experience, telling how they had been tried, and how the Lord gave them the victory, the temptation was broken, and they have resolved that they would press on, and overcome every difficulty. All who have had any experience know that it is much safer to be united in christian fellowship, to have some religious home, than it is to be floating about from one church to another, really anchored and settled nowhere. No doubt many to-day are living in a backslidden state, because they were not united with christians where they could have the watch-care and instruction which was needed.

Usefulness is a consideration which should not be overlooked. In union there is strength. If there were no organized bodies, no concert in christian action, very little could be accomplished toward establishing truth in any community. When christians have selfish interests, and side issues, the world laughs; but when they pull together, the world trembles.

Are you connected with any local church? Strive to promote unity among its members. Labor for its prosperity. Whatever your position in the church fulfill the duties of that position as a christian. Seek not the highest seat. Be clothed with humility. Be earnest, active, spiritually minded. Keep wide awake. Pray for your pastor. Pity the poor; seek the erring; be punctual at the prayer-meetings. Profit by the preaching. "Be not wise in your own conceits." Behave yourself as one who must give an account.

WE ARE ALL MISSIONARIES.

Every christian man is, by his oath of allegiance, a missionary. There is not one law for minister and another for hearer. The gospel does not bind the preacher and absolve the people. There is not one solitary line in God's revelation which says that the one must work and sacrifice, and give, and the other may hoard and keep. You may be tied down to the dull routine of daily toil, and yet your life hid with Christ may make you one of the best preachers of righteousness in the world. You may be a great stammerer, and your life of love go to every heart. We can all give our example. A chance word of reproof, a wayside word of warning, a loving invitation, an act of christian courtesy done in a christian way, may lead others unto Christ.

It is not so much where we are, and it is not alone what we do, but the way we do it. A man who loves the Savior must in some way be the refuge of the weary. If he speaks, it must be as one tempted man speaks to another who is battling with temptations. It is not done by fierce warnings. It is not by assailing sinners as you would besiege a city. It is the old and blessed story of God's love leading weary souls to Jesus, helping them to grope out of the dark and tangled wilderness, and cheering them at every step on the way to deliverance and safety. There is no one so poor that he cannot do something for Christ. Whether it be the widow's mite or the rich man's gift, God will bless it.—Ex.

IN THE WORLD, BUT NOT OF IT.

The preciousness of the lesson taught in our Savior's prayer, that we might be in the world yet not of it, is never learned in all its fulness and sweetness, until the life is hid with Christ in God. Without the Spirit's aid, it is impossible to fathom the depth of meaning of the word, "They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world."

In the world, but not of it; we may carry the blessed realization of this with us, even into the crowded thoroughfares pulsating with abundant life; where the very air is impregnated with the breath of ambition, and strife, and vain glory, and pomp, and eager greed for gain. Down in contact with vice; down where the heavens are darkened with impurity; down where the air is tainted and polluted with the breath of sin, we may go and come forth again with garments unspotted, because we have learned from Christ the secret of being in the world yet not of it.

To men of business its grand possibility may be known; evidencing in all their transactions that they are not in league with sin. Woman, so susceptible to surrounding influences, may be so dead to sin as to prove in her contact with the world in her daily pursuits and engagements, that she is not of it.

Such a life means much more than merely wearing the outward garb of religion; it is more than Sunday sanctity; more than all the outward ceremonials of religion; it goes with us wherever we go; into our homes, by our firesides, at our tables, in our parlors, in the kitchen, in our work-shops, behind our counters in the law-office, with the physician as he ministers to the sick and dying, with the school teacher; yes, into all these relations in life are we to manifest the spirit that is not of the world.

It is not after the fashion of this world to be abused, mocked, scorned, and yet to "answer not a word." It is not after the fashion of this world to be not seeking for honors and position, willing to be of "no reputation;" willing to do only the little things for Jesus. It is not after the spirit to make the soul's interest the first great concern of life, and the laying up of no earthly treasure of only secondary consideration; and quite unlike it, it is, to transact business according to the law of right. It is not after the fashion of this world to abound with a spirit of self-denial, and that we may have time and means to supply a part of the world's great need; unlike it, it is, to consecrate one's energies, not to the serving of selfish plans and ambitions, but a living sacrifice upon God's altar, devoted to humanity.

Christ came not in the maturity of his manhood as an atonement alone; but as an example for thirty-three years; and as a man he has taught us from Bethlehem to Calvary, that we may be in the world, yet not of it. In beautiful and sublime contrast with the prevailing spirit around him, do all the words and acts of his life stand out. What do we see in all the varied scenes that crowded all the bitter years of his earthly life, but unlikeness to the world?

That prayer of Christ has never been answered in experience, until the world itself recognizes our want of conformity to its image; and pointing the finger at our life all the way through, says, "Not of us."—Banner of Holiness.

THE BANE OF CHRISTIANITY.

Now, will the christians here to-night in this hall each one just take this question home. I do not mean to stand here and say that I am on a higher platform than the rest of you, or that I do not mean to apply this question to myself; but it is good for christians to stop sometimes and ask,—"Where am I in the sight of God? What am I doing? Is my life here as it should be in the community I live in? Am I a light in this dark world?" Now, Christ says, "Ye are my witnesses." Christ was the light of the world, and the world would not have the true light; the world rose up and put out the light, and now Christ says: "I leave you down here to testify of me; I leave you down here as my witnesses." That is what the apostle meant when he said that christians are to be "living epistles, known and read by all men." I will venture to say that if I just ask those who profess to be christians, those that really are christians—to rise in this hall, and by that act say, "I am on the Lord's side," would there not be many of you would say, "I do not think it is right to have it put in that way?" But Paul tells us to be ready to give a reason for the hope that is within us.

I do not have much hope of there being a reformation until we get a division between the church and the world. If a man is for God, let him come out and be on God's side; and if he is for the world, let him be in the world. This serving God and the world at the same time—this being on both sides at the same time—is just the curse of humanity at the present time. It retards the progress of Christianity more than any other thing. "If any man will be my disciple, let him take up his cross and come after me." And in another place he says, "let him take up his cross daily and follow me."

Professing child of God, where art thou? Now take it home with you; take it to heart to-night; ask, "Where am I?" There are a great many in this church who make one profession, and that is about all you hear of them; and when they come to die, you have to go and hunt up some musty old church records to know whether they were christians or not. God won't do that. I have an idea that when Daniel died, all men in Babylon knew whom he served. There was no need for them to hunt up old books. His life told his story. What we want is men with a little courage to stand up for Christ. When Christianity wakes up, and every child that belongs to the Lord is willing to speak for him, and, if need be, willing to die for him, then Christianity will advance, and we shall see the work of the Lord prosper.

There is one thing which I fear more than anything else, and that is the dead, cold formalism of the church of God. Talk about the "isms!" Put them all together and I do not fear them so much as this dead, cold formalism which has come right into the heart of the church. There are so many of us just sleeping and slumbering while souls all around are perishing.—Moody in London.

HINTS FOR THE PRAYER-MEETING.

1. Be punctual. You come to meet your Savior, to confess your sins, and to render thanks for his mercies. Come not, therefore, tardily nor reluctantly.

2. Pray as you come, that the Holy Spirit may be present, revealing Christ and quickening your own heart.

3. Bring others with you, and strive to do your part to make the meeting interesting and profitable.

4. Let the prayers be short and fervent. Let the remarks be brief and to the point. Let there be some word of experience, some thought of christian life or doctrine, something calculated to cheer, comfort, and encourage.

5. Do not wait for others. After the meeting is opened, take the first opportunity to offer a short prayer, or to speak a word for Jesus. Do it heartily as to the Lord.

—Methodist Recorder.

IN life's battle not a few faint by the wayside, weary and wounded. Spoken sympathy, and the magic of a look that cannot be described, again and again has brought healing balm to such spirits.

THE PREACHER'S CALL.—NO. 2.

ALVIRUS N. HITCHCOCK.

In our last, we sought to give a rational and scriptural answer to the question, Is there such a thing in our day as a Divine call to the ministry? We now notice

II. THE EVIDENCES OF SUCH CALL.

Chief among these we may give

1. An inward impression made upon the mind by the Holy Spirit. This impression will lead one to think much about preaching, texts, sermons, etc. He may often be found preaching by himself; and he will frequently feel the spirit of exhortation when arising from secret prayer. This impression will be strongest when he is living nearest to the Lord. Some seem to think that a call to preach is always associated with a hatred of the very thought. I am convinced it is quite otherwise. There is often a desire to preach. This is what leads to the frequent attempts at preaching when alone. To be sure, there may be, and almost invariably is, a shrinking from public effort; but this often arises either from diffidence, or a feeling of insufficiency. It is by no means an unfavorable sign. It is much better than an overweening confidence.

Those who are called of God to preach the gospel do not always feel the burden of the "woe." Without doubt they are fully convinced during their experience that they must preach or perish; but it does not oppress them. The "woe" is the last resort of God. He desires his children to be sensitive to the movings of his Spirit, and therefore commences with lighter impressions. Some begin here, and please the Lord thereby. Others, who do not really intend to resist the Lord, neglect their first impressions, which are therefore increased. Some stoutly refuse to the last, deny that it is their duty to preach, and persistently decline making any effort. They may fear financial embarrassment, mortification, or the reproach of truth. Such must have the "woe." If they are still obstinate, their impressions leave them after a time, and they relapse into a worldly, backslidden state. If they are ever awakened, the old duty presents itself, and they will get no peace until they consent to do it. The "woe" leaves one without excuse; and no one should wait for any further providences; for if they come, they are almost invariably judgments. These, however, are comparatively rare. Against those who resist the "woe," judgment is mostly deferred until the great day. But they will meet the account there.

2. The call of the church. It is almost impossible, if you are called to the work of the ministry, not to have your duty recognized by the church. You will be invited to begin, and will meet with general encouragement after you have begun. Some, indeed, even leading ministers or laymen, will express it as their opinion that you are deceived. But you are not to be swayed by the opinions of a few. Nor are you to be discouraged by failures and mortifications. All ministers have them. They are needed to keep vanity out of the heart. A wise and good man urged a young minister to preach fifty times before he concluded to give it up. The advice was good. If fifty attempts are made, there will most likely be some encouragements if there is a genuine call. It will not be necessary to make inquiries to find out whether your preaching "takes." If you make a fair trial, you will have enough for the purpose. As you value your good name and dread being despised, refrain from seeking compliments.

3. The openings of Providence. If the Lord really wants you to preach, you will not be under the necessity of hunting up a job. You would be most likely to go where you are neither wanted nor needed. There is no occasion for hurry. If your way seems hedged up, it may be best to tarry a while in Jericho or Jerusalem. If the way is clearer for increasing your fund of knowledge, and thus gathering seed, don't hasten to the field to spread chaff. You cannot draw from your cistern until you have had a shower or two; and even then you cannot be always drawing unless you have a constant shower. When the time comes for you to work, there will be no lack for horses, or buggies, or people, or places. If the Lord sends you to any place with a message, he will send people to hear you, and will find accommodations for you. If you see no opening, you need not make one. Hammers and chisels are out of the question. If, however, a door is opened, and you feel impressed to go, don't look for a better chance. A finer opportunity will come when you have improved that.

4. Success. If you meet with no real success, you are not called. Nothing will satisfy him who is divinely commissioned but souls. Puffs and petting may do for him who has forged his credentials, but not for God's minister. If the Lord has sent you into the harvest, he will give you sheaves. They may be few, but they are of more value than mines of gold. If the good Shepherd has bid you seek the lost sheep, be assured you are not sent in vain. You will find a wanderer. It may be on the lonely mountain, in hedge, or thicket, or plain or desert. Go. Some lost one will heed your call. Sow the good seed beside all waters. After many days it will return. You may not live to see the harvest, but it will come. Your words of love and tenderness may seem to pass unheeded by, and you may go away to seek relief in tears. Despair not. They have lodged in some heart that will one day bless you. You will see sufficient fruit to seal your ministry. It is enough. If you have not even this, there is good evidence that you have mistaken your calling.

THE CALLING OF GOD.

"For the gifts and calling of God are without repentance." Rom. 11: 29.

A calling of God is a special invitation, or requirement, given by God, to some person or classes of persons, to do some specified work, or to occupy some particular position. When he calls to such work, he always bestows upon those thus called certain "gifts," or necessary means, by which such appointed work can be done. When such an invitation is given, and such means are appropriated, he never changes the requirement, or withdraws the gifts, until the mission is accomplished, without a change of purpose on the part of God.

There is a general call of God to all men, to a general work, a position common to all time and classes, and there are special calls, confined to specific periods, peoples and work. He calls all men to lead a life of holiness and loyalty to him; but he gave Noah a special call to do a work and take a position to which he has called no other person or class through all the ages. So he called Lot, Abraham, Joseph, Moses, Joshua, David, Solomon, and the apostles and their associates, to do work peculiar to their times, and which was essential to their faithfulness and acceptance.

The church at Jerusalem was required, upon her peril, to flee from the city at a specified time, and could not have been justified or saved from impending wrath without faithfully obeying that injunction. So it was with the persecuted church; she was taught to flee from the face of the serpent, leave the towns and cities inhabited by angry priests, and find safety in the wilderness or uninhabited parts of the country. By obeying the voice of God during the dark hours of that stormy night, some "flesh" of the holy ones was saved to bear the head-light of gospel truth through to the dawning of the latter day.

Luther evidently heard the Jehovah speaking to him, calling him with a loud voice to take a new departure, to wave the gospel banner over a new fort of unfolding truth, and thunder forth the awakening notes of warning and glorious invitation to the millions who were stupefied with the satanic opiate drunk from the golden cup of the great Harlot. God bestowed great gifts upon him and his companions—an indomitable will, the courage of a thousand heroes, great love for the word of God, unyielding perseverance, and unlooked for political assistance. He also gave his Holy Spirit abundantly, as a divine helper, thus affixing the heavenly seal to the call and work.

All these movements were in harmony with prophetic announcements; and while the called ones obeyed the first echoes of the Spirit, and followed the first leadings of inspired teaching, God manifested himself without "repentance" or change; every means and blessing were continued. But when human wisdom and policy took the place of the divine, when the position taken by the fathers was ignored by their sons, and conformity to the world followed separation from it, some leading this way and others that way, thus producing ambitions, rival parties, dividing the church of Christ, and making the present truth inoperative, then a necessity was produced for a new call, a new people taking an advanced step.

The church is called dispensationally; each period having its moral and ritualistic enactments, which remain in force until a new code is given, when the first is disannulled; the last always being the divine rule for the government of God's people.

The transition period from one dispensation to another, or from one present truth to another, is always a time of special danger, because new developments of truth are always unpopular with the masses, and are rejected by many who love caste more than Christ. It is also dangerous, because humanity is so constituted that when we see the importance of accepting some new truth, we are liable to think that it is duty to receive every new and fanciful idea, as of God, thus producing heretical theology and fanatical practices.

With these facts and principles before us, we anxiously inquire, Has the church of this generation been called of God to accept of any newly developed truth, or to do any specific work, relating to any present or anticipated events? If so, to what truth and what events does the divine index now point? We answer, emphatically, as honest christians, We believe that the great God has called his people of the present period, to accept, as truth, the proclamation now being made to all the nations, "Behold thy salvation cometh," for "the kingdom of God is nigh at hand."

If this be true, then the present calling of God is the highest and most important ever made to men. That truth is presented as one of the most eminently important and essential to believe found in the catalogue of divine revelations. It is placed as the grand focal point, to which all the rays of heavenly illumination converge. It is the last and brightest page of the sacred book. Its vibrating notes roll from the silver trumpet, as the angel declares "the mystery of God is finished." It introduces the experiences of the transition scene, from the imperfect to the perfect, from mortal woes to immortal joys. It warns the world of approaching doom, and notifies the Bride to prepare perfectly and immediately for the marriage of the Lamb. It sounds the death knell of the Gentile nations, and forewarns of the earth's conflagration. It speaks silently to the slumbering dead of approaching resurrection. Lofty theme! Grand and sublime message, rolling from the lips of Jehovah, sealed upon the hearts of the faithful by the divine Spirit, and preached by the messengers of Christ to uncounted millions upon the earth.

Brethren in Christ, we profess to have received such a calling from God. Such a call can never be succeeded by another; for it requires the doing of the last gospel work, the publishing of the last message of saving truth. It develops the sunset scenes of the gospel day; the flight of birds before approaching winter; the girding with sackcloth as alarming judgments wave their fearful signals.

It throws out vast responsibilities upon the guardians of human welfare, who are called to be mouth for God to the people of this generation. None are prepared to echo the voice of God without changing the tone or sentiment, who are not fitted by divine grace for the holy work.

Brethren, who are looking for speedy redemption, we ask again, Has God called us, with all his servants, to do this sublime and holy work? Then let us not be decoyed away by any of Satan's artful devices. He will first labor to make us discredit the message, and if he cannot do that, he will try to make it disreputable, so as to produce a desire to hide it, by refusing to associate with its advocates, or by displacing it from the front to the rear, making it of secondary importance.

If God has called out a people to take a special, prophetic position, the first inspiration and leading, as far as the general characteristic of the movement is concerned, must be correct, by which they should be governed through all the movement. This is the case in the gospel dispensation. The first inspiration, teaching, discipline and experience of the apostolic church, was written that it might be the rule of christian life to the end.

While we profess to have been called of God to preach the signs of the times, and the speedy advent of Christ, let us manifest the sincerity of our profession to the end, by making that truth the great head-light of the train, the polar star of the constellation of divine truths, the special message for the age, as God called us to do when he led us out. Satan's great effort has been to displace this truth, and substitute some other head-light as the great absorbing theme of christian experience. He has succeeded in raising many leading banners and rallying cries, since the great proclamation was first published, which God did not present at the commencement of the great prophetic movement.

We believe that the church has progressed in the development and understanding of truth during the last forty years, but that no Bible truth has been unfolded, which the Scriptures present as dispensational, with its prophetic chronology, locating it at the present period, making it introductory of a special movement, and characteristic of a particular people.

The divine approbation of gospel power and christian pathos has not set its confirming seal to any other leading topic, which has been introduced among this prophetic people, as that which accompanied the pure Advent message. The side issues which have torn in pieces that once united and powerful people, have borne sour grapes, and tended to bring into disrepute and drown the sweet notes of the heaven-born message in the confusion and jargon of Babel.

We believe those who introduce these abstractions and press them upon the struggling church of Christ, when they know that they are producing sourness and division, are taking upon themselves fearful responsibilities. We have known people to raise their voices vehemently against war, and by those very utterances produce the most deadly strife. So we have known men to lift their voices against sectarianism, and christian union, whose policy, if carried out, would break up all the churches in the land, and produce new sects, which possibly might be as boastful as those of the Pharisees.

We say these things, not to harshly accuse any of making antagonistic parties, but to kindly warn all against the snares now laid for our feet.

Brethren, the special calling, which God has given his people of this period, we conceive to be the most grand and soul-inspiring, responsible and sublimely glorious, ever given to fallen humanity. It presents a higher plane of faith, hope, and christian experience, a broader field of expectant glory, a nearer prospect of victory over all foes, and more glorious triumphs through our Immanuel, than were ever enjoyed. It comes through the deepest-toned inspirations of the Spirit, and the most clearly defined truths, graded as of the highest magnitude in the Book of God. It leads to an eminence, from which the eye of faith sweeps over the ages of the past, viewing the dark and light shades of human events,—of war and peace, of plenty and famine, of sin and righteousness, of living and dying. It counts the links in the prophetic chain, and finds each corresponding kingdom upon the historic page, excepting the "everlasting dominion."

From this eminence the long-anticipated war-cloud is seen spreading its deepening gloom over the Roman nations, while the burnished steel of human slaughter is gleaming in a thousand military camps. Here are viewed the last-day signs, high in the heavens and deep in the earth, sounding from every palace and prison, sea-storm and mountain torrent. They are seen in the banker's perplexity and the laborer's cry for just wages. They are heard in the Harlot's Vatican and the king's council chambers, and sound in sweet echoes from Zion, Behold, the Deliverer cometh!

Here the eye falls upon a wonderful future, and the ear catches sounds which mortal sense has never known. The fiat of Jehovah embraces a fallen world, sounding its awakening voice through its vast charnel, rolling the mundane habitation into an ocean of fire, forming and beautifying a new earth with his infinite skill, locating the city of God on the curseless soil, and planting the tree of life in the midst of restored Paradise.

Sublime position! Inspiring views! Highest elevation enjoyed by mortals! O God, make us worthy of this thy high calling and holy work! Amen. J. C.

THE ALTON BAY CAMPMEETING.

This great Advent body is about to enjoy another convocation, for the worship of the God of our fathers, who worshipped him in tents on the sides of mountains and by the silver waters of eastern lakes, in the sacred bower beautifully mirrored in the peerless Winnipisseogee.

Here has echoed the voice of Abraham's God, through the inspired utterances of his commissioned servants, for eleven years. Here, in this consecrated auditorium, curtained with green shades annually drawn by the hand of Deity, under its illuminated dome, have gathered thousands to hear the sweet tidings of mercy, and the awful warning of coming wrath.

Here holy song has rolled its enrapturing notes among these silent oaks, and thrilled the hearts of those now scattered far away; many whose feet will no more track its soil, or ears hear its echoing sounds. Here hundreds of family altars have smoked with holy incense, around which have gathered happy circles, now sadly broken, and no more to be gathered until the judgment trumpet shall call them to the bar of the great King. Here the Word of God has fallen upon the people like rain from heaven, fearfully hardening the hearts of those who resisted it, and gloriously saving those who accepted it.

The heavenly record of this meeting will present a long and varied list of moral acts, many resulting in the anguish of perdition, and others in the joys of paradise. The plaintive cry of convicted sinners and their solemn vows to God have sounded among the spreading branches of this sacred place. Hundreds have here been buried in the emblematic grave, under the crystal waters of this beautiful lake.

At this christian altar many servants of Christ have knelt in sacred prayer, and in the solemnity of holy service, according to the apostolic example, received the church's recognition as ambassadors of Christ. Here has the eye of faith, under the blazing light of divine truth, been upturned with holy expectancy, waiting with bridal longings for the coming Bridegroom. Here have the joys of meeting and the sadness of parting caused thousands of hearts to overflow with pleasure and sink in sadness.

As we pen these lines, looking out upon these green-leaved trees, which stand as silent witnesses of the scenes we sketch, the reminiscences of the past bring vividly before us smiling faces, noble forms and sweet voices, now pale and ghastly, clad in death-shrouds and hushed in mournful silence.

O Time, Time, what hast thou done for our sad world? How continuous and mournful the changes thou hast wrought! Tears and groans have followed through all thy cycles. When shall thy ock cease to count these changing seasons, and notify us of approaching greetings, to end in tears and adieus? O when will it toll the end of the curse and human woes? When will the mighty angel swear "that time shall be no longer"? When will all the redeemed myriads meet, not at Springfield or Alton Bay, or any other place of holy convocation, where the leaves wither and friends die, but in the Edenic bowers, in the holy City of God, where the curse can make no changes, the foliage is ever green, the flowers fadeless, meetings unending, songs unceasing and friends undying; where the worship will be unalloyed with human productions and satanic intrusions; where hearts untrue to Christ will find no place or part; where unholy strife and bewildering confusion will be forever excluded?

May our great meetings remind us of that one appointed by the Master of assemblies, and that these are designed as rehearsals of divine adoration and worshipful songs of the pure praises of the great God.

Brethren and sisters, while it is right to be careful to properly arrange for the external parts of these great meetings, let us be particularly careful to prepare for the internal parts—chaste and exemplary deportment, governed by the Word and Spirit of God in devotion; making heavenly adoration and unqualified submission to Christ the ruling principle of action.

The campmeetings of this season may be the last we shall have in this state of trial; and may they be our best, in bringing us nearer to God, giving us more spirituality and fitness for the kingdom of heaven.

THE SPRINGFIELD NATIONAL ADVENT CAMPMEETING.

Central Vermont Railroad.

Arrangements have been made with this Road, so that all who come over this Road to attend the Springfield Campmeeting will purchase regular tickets to South Vernon; then buy Campmeeting Tickets for Springfield. On the camp-ground, the Secretary will, upon the request of such, furnish them with a certificate, by which, on the presentation of the same to the Ticket Office at So. Vernon, on their return, they can buy a ticket to the place from which they came for half fare; thus saving twenty-five per cent on the round trip; and this without regard to the number who may go, — but be sure and follow directions." SIGNS OF THE TIMES.

Candid men, who have kept careful watch of the progress of events during the last twenty-five years, and especially the last five, are deeply convinced that some great event is rapidly approaching. Statesmen talk it, editors write it; it is the poet's song, and is impressed upon the minds of thoughtful laborers in shops and fields. This impression is abiding; increasing in strength as we draw nearer the looked-for event.

When we turn to the true followers of Christ, we find their impressions are more vivid on the subject, and their convictions stronger that we are near a new order of things. When we ask the prophetic student what these things mean? we receive the ready response, we are near the close of the present dispensation, as clearly shown by the fulfillment of prophecy. The evidence is so plain and abundant, that no room seems left for doubt. Of course, the day and hour are unknown, but the closing scene cannot be far away.

The history of the world has been clearly foretold by the prophets from the time of Nebuchadnezzar, some five hundred years before Christ, to the end of all earthly kingdoms. They have pointed out distinctly the rise and fall of the four great successive empires, the Babylonian, Medo-Persian, Grecian and Roman, declaring that when we approach the end of the latter, we are near the time when "the God of heaven" shall "set up a kingdom," that "shall stand for ever." Inasmuch as we have passed through the prophetic history of these four noted empires, and have come to the winding up events of the last one, therefore we must be very near the time when Christ will return to set up his heavenly kingdom.

Just before he went away from the earth, his disciples asked him what signs he would give before his return. After passing through a long chain of events, that would take place in the history of the world, he then spoke of those that would transpire in the last generation, that would be living at the time of his return. Those signs have nearly all been seen in the present generation, therefore this must be the last before his coming. We can see no chance to avoid this conclusion. We believe it to be certain. With this view all prophecies and events appear to harmonize. This cannot be a chance arrangement, but is in agreement with what was foreseen and foretold. There is a concentration of evidence in favor of this conclusion that is overwhelming. We do not see how one who has looked over all the proof in favor of Christ's near advent, can help being satisfied that we shall see him coming in a short time. The long dark night of weeping will soon close, and the morning of eternal glory dawn upon the great family of the redeemed. Shall we meet in that holy, happy company? M. G.

THE SCIENCE OF HEALTH for August is a seasonable and timely number of this model and excellent health publication. It contains information which seems to us worth more than a year's subscription to every thoughtful reader. Opening with what shall we eat, it discusses also the hygienic system; the irrepressible conflict; the way to keep sick; popular p siology; water as a health agent; care ot children; which shall it be; summer complaints; use of rice, and supplies many recipes for cooking it, and for canning fruit, which are certainly seasonable just now; besides, there are items on how to keep water cool; influence; graham flour, etc. Price $2.00 a year. Address S. R. Wells & Co., 737 Broadway, New York.

WATCH.—A careful observer says:—"The Roman Catholics are increasing at an alarming rate in the United States, and yet mothers and fathers, members of good standing in Orthodox Protestant churches, will continue to send their daughters—just at the age when they are most easily influenced—into a convent to receive their education. The Catholics are quick to perceive their advantages." M. G.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.—Thanks for valuable selections received. Please continue to send choice items, such as will be a benefit to the readers of the Crisis. M. G.

A WEEK'S VACATION.

In order to give our compositors a little vacation, and also to accommodate the editors and clerks, who have extra work at this season, in consequence of the campmeetings, etc., we have decided to

Omit the Crisis for Aug. 18th,

but shall give our subscribers the full number for the volume, as usual. AG'T.

A GLOOMY PROSPECT.

If Jesus was not soon coming, the future of this world would be very gloomy in prospect. Mr. Gladstone, of London, has just caused to be translated and published an important essay by M. Emile de Laveleye. The title of the work is "Protestantism and Catholicism in their bearing upon the liberty and prosperity of the nations." The author is said to be a "calm thinker, and a well-known author upon social questions." We copy the following remarks on this work from the London Times:

"There is not a page of M. Laveleye's pamphlet on which I do not wish to make some remarks, but I must hasten to conclude. He takes, as I have said, a gloomy view of the future. If the State lets the priest into the schools, he perverts them; if it shuts him out, he denounces them, and keeps the children away. If the young are taught that the priests are the enemies of society, they become atheistic revolutionists; if allowed to believe in them, they become unfit for liberty. These are the quandaries in which he thinks the matter stands. He seems to have little hope that the sort of Puritan reaction he desires will occur. In Catholic countries the men grow indifferent and sceptical, the women keep superstitious, and those who avowedly leave the church, abandon all religious belief. In France there is no power of free speech on religious matters. Any one attempting to play the part of a John Knox, of a Wesley, or of a Theodore Parker, would forthwith be imprisoned. If the bulk of republicans saw the need of a new reformation, they would soon obtain the means of starting it. Unhappily, they are satisfied with their own negations, and nothing could be better for the Ultramontanes. A nation without a religion is an impossibility. If the Liberals do not provide one, the Ultramontanes will have it all their own way." M. G.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

We purpose to have an Agent in attendance at the various Campmeetings to be held in the New England States this season, to receive sums due on the Crisis and Pilgrim.

We hope our subscribers will make it a point to pay at the meetings, as it will be more convenient for them to do so than to send by mail, and less expensive for us than to send an Agent to the homes of our patrons. AGENT.

BAPTISM WITH FIRE.

In Matt. 3: 11, does the baptism with "fire" mean the destruction of the wicked?

The whole verse reads: "I do indeed baptize you with water unto repentance; but he that cometh after me is mightier than I, whose shoes I am not worthy to bear; he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire." It will be observed that the same persons whom John baptized "with water" were to be baptized "with the Holy Ghost and with fire." But such are not the wicked, who are to be burnt up. This promise evidently referred to the day of Pentecost, when the Holy Ghost would come upon the disciples in the upper room. If we turn to the account of that event, we read in Acts 2: 3, as follows: "And there appeared unto them cloven tongues, like as of fire, and it sat upon each of them, and they were all filled with the Holy Ghost." M. G.

WORK FOR JESUS.—While at the Campmeeting, let every friend of Jesus try to persuade as many as possible to become followers of our divine Lord. It may be crossing to speak to that unconverted person on the subject of salvation, but do not hesitate. Do it at once, and the blessings of heaven will follow. It may be the means of leading him to secure eternal life. The cross consists in dreading the duty, but as soon as we speak the first word, it becomes a delight. The Lord has so arranged the christian work, that the path of duty is the path of pleasure. Let us walk in it joyfully. M. G.

SOUND DOCTRINE.

The following, taken from the Banner of Holiness, is a sample of what many are writing and preaching at the present time who have but recently seen the light. Let us praise the Lord. M. G.

THE PURIFYING HOPE.

"Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that when he shall appear we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is. And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he [Christ] is pure."—JOHN 3: 2, 3.

1. The hope referred to is the coming of Jesus. It is in harmony with the hope presented all through the Scriptures. There is "one hope"—the plan of God. Hope is made up of desire and expectation. All that have this hope in him, are not only desiring, but are expecting the Lord Jesus to come according to his promise to his disciples, which is, "If I go away I will come again, and receive you unto myself, that where I am, there ye may be also."

Paul, in looking for the appearing of the great God and our Savior Jesus Christ, calls it a "blessed hope;" and he says, "Our conversation is in heaven, from whence also we look for the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like his glorious body, according to the working whereby he is able to subdue all things unto himself." David says, "I shall be satisfied when I awake in thy likeness."

When this hope is consummated, we shall be like Christ, having glorified bodies, and mortality shall be swallowed up of life. "For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality; then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, death is swallowed up in victory." No wonder, with such blessed results attending when this hope is consummated, that Paul calls it a "blessed hope."

2. This hope—the coming of Jesus—is the purifying hope; for "every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself." We must have it in the heart before that heart can be purified. How natural for a person with such a hope—"looking for and hastening unto the coming of the day of God"—to "cleanse himself from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God." Those who are whole—holy—will not be afraid to meet a holy God; will not dislike to hear of the coming of the Lord of life and glory.

The apostle of the Corinthians thanked God in their behalf for the grace that was given them, so that they come "behind in no good gift, waiting for the coming of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, who shall also confirm you unto the end, that ye may be blameless [pure—holy] in that day." "And the Lord make you to increase and abound in love one toward another, and toward all men, to the end that he may establish your hearts in holiness before God, even our Father, at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, with all his saints." "And the very God of peace sanctify you wholly, and I pray God your whole spirit, and soul, and body be preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ."

Thus we see how inseparable these two doctrines are. It is a coming of the Lord and a preparation to meet him. "Without holiness no man shall see the Lord." Holiness, or wholeness, is pre-requisite to salvation. We must first become holy, pure, saved from sin before we can have sslvation in the kingdom of God. "If we would be pure, let us feed on this manna—this hope of a coming Christ to put death under our feet—as we bow around the sacramental board and show the Lord's death till he come, thus manifesting our faith in his death and hope of his coming. Oh, let this 'blessed hope' burn and glow in our hearts." I know of no doctrine more sanctifying and quickening than the second advent of Christ. I know of none more calculated to draw us from the world, and make us whole-hearted and joyful christians.

Oh, the thought of seeing Jesus and being made like him, with pain and sorrow all gone, should inspire us to more full and complete consecration of all, yes, all we have and are to him and his service. Oh, to have loins girded, lamps trimmed and burning, our hearts crying out, "Come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly." In this blessed state we are prepared for labor or for rest. All is well. We are resting sweetly—resting by faith, being in harmony with the holy will of God. Let us watch for the coming of our Lord. Happy event, to the holy, pure in heart, the faithful, trusting one. We long to share it with all the saints. "Every man that hath this hope in him, purifieth himself even as he [Christ] is pure."—Token of Truth.

INCREASE OF CRIME.

The continued increase of crime is truly alarming. Wicked men and women are becoming exceedingly bold and reckless in their crimes. Adulteries, robberies, and murders, are multiplying on every side. Daily papers are crowded with reports of the most horrid deeds. The question comes up more and more frequently, and with renewed emphasis, "What do these things mean? To what are we coming?" Says the New York Tribune:

"The steady increase of crime in the State of New York is at this time fully demonstrated by the unprecedentedly crowded condition of our State prisons. Sing Sing prison now contains 1,455 male convicts, being nearly one hundred and fifty in excess of the greatest number ever before confined there at one time. As the institution mentioned contains only 1,200 cells, it is obvious that two hundred and fifty-five of these gloomy niches, which are in dimensions three and one-half feet wide, six and one half feet long, and seven feet high, must each of them accommodate two or more lodgers—a condition of things which, it has ever been conceded, is not only deleterious to the health of the occupants, but is also utterly subversive of morals and ruinous to discipline. At present it is difficult to perceive how the surplus convicts can be disposed of, as the State prison at Auburn is more than full, and at Clinton prison the number of convicts over and above the accommodations is so great that many of them are compelled to sleep in the hallways." M. G.

"LATTER TIMES."—When exposing Spiritualism, Mr. De Witt Talmage said:

"I believe these are the days of which the apostle spake when he said, 'In the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits.'"

We believe Mr. Talmage expressed the truth in the foregoing statement. Let it fly in all directions.

"Mount up the height of Wisdom,
And crush each error low;
Keep back no words of knowledge
That human hearts should know."

GREENWICH CAMPMEETING.

This meeting commenced July 1st, in Bailey's grove, fitted up by the A. S. and N. E. R. R, and offered to us free. It is one of the prettiest groves in Mass. The R. R. Co. built a dining hall 60 x 30, which was very convenient for us, in case of rain, for our prayer-meeting. I think all that attended the meeting will bear me witness, when I say that the meeting was characterized from the beginning by the presence of God's Spirit. Every one was well attended. Good order and good interest prevailed all through the meeting. There was a large attendance Sunday, being estimated from fifteen hundred to two thousand. Much conviction rested upon the people, and prejudice to our faith gave way. If we can do this in all new fields, we shall do well. It can be done. God help us to work for this. One member of the Congregationalist church was renewed in his mind, and confessed his belief in our faith. He said to me, he never saw glory in the gospel until he heard our faith. One rose for prayer, and seemed in earnest. These, with others that have not as yet come to light, make our hearts glad.

There was preaching at the meeting by the following Brn.:—J. Hemenway, M. A. Potter, Geo. L. Teeple, I. I. Leslie, H. H. Tucker, R. K. Stark, Sr. R. F. Clark, and the writer. The preaching was all harmonious. This is one of the best features of all such meetings. If union and harmony prevail, something will be done. This was the spirit of this meeting. What brethren and sisters were there expressed their satisfaction in this direction. The Mass. Mission Tent, and two family tents, were all that were there. God give increase to the seed is my prayer. Amen. Thy Bro. and servant, GEO. A. STREETER.

P. S.—I held a meeting in the grove yesterday, Aug. 1st. There was good attention, good numbers, and good interest was manifested all day. My poor heart was blest, and I felt paid for riding fourteen miles, and talking three times. I am intending to hold a series of meetings this fall, the Lord willing. G. A. S.

A. S. FIELD.

Dear Brethren:—Thinking many of the readers of the Crisis would like to hear how the work of the Lord is prospering in this part of the West, I take the liberty to write. Since I wrote in March, we have had many heavenly sittings together in Christ Jesus. Two more churches have been established near here, through the labors of Bro. and Sr. Clark; and there are frequent additions to these churches of such as shall be saved. All are rejoicing in the blessed hope, steadfast in the faith, abounding in the work of the Lord, and hailing with joy the day when we shall see the King in his beauty, coming to claim his own. Then we shall be made immortal and crowned with eternal life.

The testimonies of all are, "How strange I did not see this before." We often hear them thank God for sending Bro. and Sr. Clark here to preach this gospel of the kingdom. At the organization of our Conference at Peach Creek, Bro. Godfrey and others, who rejoice in the soon coming of the Master, were there from Blue Springs, Neb. Bro. Godfrey's well-stored mind places the truth before his audience in a clear and impressive manner; and I know of some who have accepted it from his clear way of showing. By invitation, we visited the brethren at Blue Springs, with Bro. and Sr. Clark, where they held a series of meetings of eleven days, resulting in a general awakening. Backsliders were reclaimed, sinners brought to a knowledge of the truth, and old professors wondering why they had not seen and embraced these God-given truths before. But, alas! there have been so many false teachers in the past fifty years, the word of God is perverted, and the truth is rejected. We had many glorious meetings together with families, as well as in the house of God; where we learned to love them, and hope, if time continues, we shall have the pleasure of seeing them all at our campmeeting this fall.

Bro. Godfrey attended our quarterly meeting, and preached four times to a crowded house. We had a good time. The Spirit of the Lord was manifest, and a general interest taken, of which you will hear more in our second quarterly report. While crops were growing in May, we thought to suspend our weekly prayer-meeting through harvest; but "hoppers" and drought have cut the harvest, so we have ample time for prayer-meetings, and, I think, among the best I ever attended. Truly, we have been scourged for our good. We have preaching once in two weeks by Brn. Cutler and Hayworth, who are zealous workers in the cause of Christ, laying aside all erroneous theories, and following Christ fully; warning both saint and sinner to prepare to meet the Master, who stands even at the door.

And now, dear readers, who have Christ formed within you the hope of glory; all who have this blessed hope, let us be faithful, and do all his commandments, that we may have right to the tree of life, and enter in through the gates into the city. Let us strive to be overcomers, that we may have part in the first resurrection, for "on such the second death hath no power." We know that Christ will soon come. It is no fabulous story. It is his own teaching; and that great millennial morn will soon dawn upon us in all its effulgence, when the millions of sleeping saints will come forth from their graves, be made immortal, and reign with Christ in the new earth. Then all who love his appearing will be caught up to meet him in the air, until the indignation be overpast, and so for ever be with the Lord. There we shall meet all our loved ones who have gone before. There we expect to meet those whose communications we have read with so much delight in the Crisis. Finally, let us all praise God, for the way grows brighter as the day draws nearer.

Correspondence.

From Bro. H. K. Flagg.

Dear Editors:—I suppose it would not be uninteresting to the readers of the Crisis to have a report of our labors in the Hoosac Valley tent. We have held three series of meetings, and the fourth series is coming to a close. We commenced the 8th of June to hold meetings in North Clarendon, Vt., among the Baptist people. The meetings were well attended, and, we trust, a goodly number converted to God. We could not tell the number converted, but upwards of twenty would come forward for prayers at a time. The meetings were as still as though held in a church. The last Sabbath a number were baptized by Bro. Wm. J. Blanchard, who was with us during the meetings at No. Clarendon. After about two weeks' successful labor here, we closed Sunday evening, June 20th. We took down the tent Monday, June 21st, and a team took it to No. Shrewsbury, Vt. The next day we put up the tent, and commenced the same evening. Our meetings there were held afternoons and evenings for two weeks, until Sunday evening, July 4th. A vast amount of prejudice was removed by God's Spirit, in the presentation of the truth. A goodly number confessed the truth and rejoiced in it, and five converts were baptized the last Sabbath, July 4th.

The tent was filled, and perfect order characterized all the meetings, more than all I have ever seen before in my life. Bro. Blanchard was with us there also the first week; since then my son-in-law, Arthur A. Waite, and myself only, travel with the tent, as the expenses of three preachers would likely exceed the receipts. We took down the tent Monday, July 5th, and took it to Rutland. The next day we were obliged to send it to No. Adams by express, at an expense of $9.50, so as to be all ready for the first meeting of the third quarterly Hoosac Valley Conference, which continued over Sabbath; after which we continued the meetings afternoons and evenings of the next following week, closing Wednesday evening, July 28th. During our stay at No. Adams, I think it is just to say, not less than thirty of the unconverted and backslidden started to serve God.

Next Sabbath, I am to go to No. Adams to preach, and Bro. Waite is to preach in the tent here. In the afternoon he is to preach at No. Adams, and baptize a number. In the afternoon I am to preach here. While we were at No. Adams, the church, who were holding meetings in a private house, engaged a hall that will seat five hundred, and pay $100 only a year, for Sabbaths and two evenings of each week. They met in their hall last Sabbath for the first time. Sr. Flora Blanchard spoke to them the word. All the evangelical churches were well represented, and took a free part in all our meetings. I have not seen for years so good feeling, good union, and an earnest desire to hear the great gospel truths of these last days. We certainly fell in love with No. Adams, for the generous hospitality and christian courtesy manifested towards us by the different churches, and in fact by all.

One thing is certain; the ill feeling formerly existing in the minds of people towards the Advent truths is fast dying out—in some localities, at least. Here in South Adams, we hold meetings afternoons and evenings. Thirteen rose for prayers last evening. Both here and at North Adams the tent is crowded full with hundreds, also outside in the evenings when it is pleasant.

A source of great joy to me, is the pleasing fact of my going to St. Louis, Mo., under the auspices of the A. A. Mission Society, as a missionary to the colored people, at which time Arthur A. Waite was the first convert I ever baptized before I came home from St. Louis the first time. He was then a lad of sixteen. He now comes to join me in mission work among my own kindred and people, under this tent.

So. Adams, Mass., July 30th, 1875.

From Bro. B. Spaulding.

Dear Editors:—I am on this island of the sea. I came here to attend the tent-meeting, which has been going on thirteen days, and will still continue a week or more. There is a great interest to hear, and we have very large congregations, and a candid, attentive hearing. We see but little prejudice here, and no opposition. Many are inclined to believe the doctrine. Several have confessed their faith in it, and about all are favorable to it. I never saw a place where so many favored the doctrine. But probably they will take sides before we get through. Bro. Sevey owns the tent, and gives the use of it and his time to the cause. The tent's company all give their time to the cause, and I give my time; so these tent-meetings cost but little money. Five tent-meetings in Maine, taking thirty-eight days, cost $28.85, and the collections received were $66.61; leaving $37.78 above the expense. Thus it may be seen that tent-meetings do not need to cost so much as they do in some places.

My health is good, but my feet are paralyzed in part. They are numb, stiff, clumsy, so that I stagger like a drunken man. I fear I shall soon be disabled from traveling at all. I am liable to be stricken down any day with the numb-palsy, or paralysis. I am not alarmed. I do not dread or fear death; yet I desire to live to praise God, and stand as a witness for his truth. There is something in this worth living for. I remain firm in the doctrines I have so long tried to hold forth. I think Jesus' coming is just at hand; that any day we may see him coming, and that the thousand years of Rev. 20 will begin when he comes, and end with the resurrection and destruction of the wicked. Let me say to the brethren, hold on to the promises; keep your lamps trimmed and burning, your hearts in order; love as brethren; live in harmony; shun controversy and discussion, for it stirs up an unkind, hard spirit; bear one another's burdens; keep the unity of the Spirit, and God will bless you. Time is short; what we do must be done quickly. Pray for me, that I may be humble. Yours in Christ.

Vinalhaven, Me., July 28th, 1875.

From Bro. F. Douglas.

Beloved in Christ:—Many times, while reading the earnest letters and experiences in the Crisis, I have felt that I too had a testimony; and every number of the Crisis that I peruse enlarges my debt to others. My heart was especially stirred when I read Bro. Carpenter's "Outset Musings," and my old love for him was quickened, and my faith in the "I" in whom he trusts received added confirmation. This "I" has been the strength of my heart these many years. Life's pathway has been smooth and rugged, light and dark; but the sun of hope yet shines, and the horizon of promise radiates the "Sweet bye and bye."

I am still one of the "pilgrim band," whose inspiring melodies of expectancy are heard in the atmosphere of worship, whether it be in the camp, tented grove, house or temple. With the poet I can say—

"My hope is in Jesus, my comfort is there"; and having received much, it is written "much will be required." It has been my privilege now and then to hold forth the "word of life." Though called upon to perform secular labor through the week, yet each day brings opportune action, and my faith is thereby tested.

I came to the beautiful city of Rochester, N. Y., by engagement with a physician (Dr. Bryant), last November, and with a few of "like precious faith" am trying to gain the mastery. I would like to hear from the many brethren with whom I have held sweet converse, and indeed any who love the Savior. May the Spirit of the Master pervade all our hearts, be the motor of all our acts, and present us before him, without spot or wrinkle.

Rochester, N. Y.

ITEMS.

— A German deputation of six hundred lately visited the Pope. In their address to him they said, "O, most blessed father! never can any human machinations separate or tear us from the legitimate Roman Pontiff, for the reason that we well remember that truthful saying, 'Submission to the Roman Pontiff is absolutely necessary to the salvation of every creature.'" The Pope in his reply said, "Yes, he [Jesus] will say to them all that he who is not in union with the Pope does not gather, but throws the seed to the winds, and will never produce fruits, or, if he does, they will only be fruits of iniquity." So there is no salvation for any one out of the Roman church.

— The Papal delegate with his party lately visited the President, and was received with high honor. On the journey to Washington the delegate and party had the exclusive use of the car of the President of the Pennsylvania railroad, through the kindness of the President, Mr. Thomas Scott. Thus the Catholics are coming to be highly honored in the United States.

— The break-up in the convents of Germany has already begun. The Arsaline nuns of Posen have sold their property, and will migrate to Cracow. The Capuchins have left Munster; the Benedictine nuns at Fulda have also sold their property. The Franciscans of Westphalia are preparing to leave their homes. About one hundred of them purpose migrating to America.

— A discovery of great interest to Egyptologists and antiquarians generally is reported from Port Said. A learned archæologist in that place has just found a monumental stone to Thotmes III. under whose reign the exodus of the Israelites is supposed to have taken place. The inscriptions which have already been deciphered contain more than four hundred geographical names, all recognizable, and for the most part belonging to Arabia, Armenia, Nubia, and the coast of the Mediterranean.

Let all that can bring tents and bedding, and come prepared to board yourselves; but those that cannot do so, come to the meeting anyway. We extend a general invitation to all the preaching brethren to come to the meeting. Leave your "hobbies" and "pet theories" at home, and come to work with the people for the salvation of the perishing. Help from abroad will be secured as the Lord may open the way. We hope to see a large gathering of the waiting ones to this meeting.

The Annual Conference will be held during the early part of the meeting. Let the churches therefore see that delegates are appointed and credentials furnished. Let all that cannot send delegates report by letter. We hope to see all of the preachers there, but if any cannot come, write us a letter, so that we may know of your whereabouts. Edgewood is on the Davenport and St. Paul Railroad. Those on the line of the Illinois Central change cars at Deleware Centre.

Good August 19th to 31st inclusive. This will be the best route for all going from Portsmouth and vicinity, as a car will be provided for the return of baggage from Alton Bay direct to Portsmouth. It is expected the fare from Portsmouth to Alton Bay and return over this road will be $1.00. Note—Baggage will not be received for this car belonging to persons going on other roads.

Notice.—I am happy to say that the wood worms, that annoyed us at Springfield the two years past, were all killed by the hard winter and ice, and there are no signs of one. I state this fact for the benefit of those who stayed away last year on that account. The Springfield ground never looked so nice and clean as now. There are some twenty families keeping house on the ground, and it bids fair to have a large and good meeting.

Connecticut Campmeeting.

The Lord willing, this campmeeting will commence in the grove near Plainville, Saturday, September 4th, and continue till Sept. 13th.

Experience has proved the depressing effect of the free board system in all campmeetings, where it is allowed; for while the motive may be good, it fails in practice. Many have come to consider this management an unequal division of the burden of the meeting, inasmuch, as it requires brethren who meet their own expenses and board themselves, to help pay a free board bill for others, whose special claim to the privilege they do not understand, thereby diminishing their interest in campmeetings, and hindering their liberty to labor while at the meetings. Nor is this all; the free table has prompt attendants and earnest laborers, who sometimes fail to engage earnestly in the work of salvation, and are at ease in Zion before they are aware of it.

We believe the simple rule of equality to all is the surest way out of this difficulty; and it has been decided to have no free board and no boarding table at this meeting this year. The committee, with the rest, will board themselves. None need stay away because the boarding table is discontinued, as provisions will be sold at the stand, and meat, oysters, and potatoes cooked, if desired, at reasonable rates. This step has been taken with view to glorify the Lord, and we think will equalize the burden. While christians are not called upon to provide for those who are able to take care of themselves, they will not allow the needy to go away hungry.

With the blessing of the Lord, we trust the meeting will prove as nearly self-sustaining as possible. Those coming by R. R. will find conveyance from Plainville to the camp-ground. Let all who can, bring tents and bedding, and every one a blanket, lest your neighbor rob himself to lend you. Above all, come filled with the Spirit of Jesus. As the lease of this grove expires this year, a meeting will be held on the ground, Thursday, Sept. 9th, at 9 o'clock A. M., to consider the future of the campmeeting. A full attendance is desired. Pray that the divine power may rest down upon the encampment, and the good news of the soon coming kingdom inspire every believer with renewed energy to save the perishing, and to be in complete readiness to wait for the Son of man from heaven.

Campmeeting.—The Lord willing, there will be a campmeeting of the Second Adventists holding faith and order of the church at Adalades Grove, Providence, R. I., commencing August 28th, and holding over two Sundays. Let prayer go up to God from all his children in behalf of this meeting that his blessing may attend it, and that his children may come filled with all the fullness of God, that sinners may be converted and the cause of God built up. Let all come filled with the Holy Spirit. This campmeeting is free to all the children of God. There will be a free table for all the saints. Let each one bring what they can for the table, and the bills to be met by free will offerings. We hope all who can will bring tents and bedding. Teams will be at the depot for baggage. The Elmwood horse cars run near the ground. Fare six cents. Fare from Boston or Worcester and return, $2 70. Let those east of Boston see about reduction of fares.

Wm. H. Doughty.

Conference.—A Conference will commence at Middle Simonds, Carleton County, August 19th, and continue over the Lord's day. An invitation is extended to the preaching brethren to come and aid in this meeting. Come all who can to labor for the salvation of men. Rufus Snow.

Campmeeting.

A campmeeting will be held at Brodhead, Wis, beginning on Saturday, Sept. 12th. Let tents come from every direction. Committee of arrangements: H. T. Moore, H. W. Button, Israel Moore, Wm. Foster, D. H. Warren. A goodly number of our ministers will be present, and among them we expect S. W. Thurber and Sr. S. J. Buswell. We look for an excellent meeting. Pitch tents on the day before the meeting, if convenient.

Wm. Sheldon.

Campmeeting.—The Pittsfield, Me., Campmeeting will commence, if the Lord will, Sunday, Sept. 5th, and hold over Sunday, Sept. 12th.

The fare over the M. C. R. R. will be reduced one half. We hope there will be a good delegation come over the R. R., so if we need the same favor another year we can get it. Particulars in due time. Jer. Carr, for the Committee.

Dedication.—The Advent Christian Church at Martville will be dedicated Saturday, Aug. 14th. Service will commence at ten o'clock A. M. The meeting will hold over Sunday. We expect two or three ministers will be present to help in the meeting. We invite our brethren and sisters to meet with us from other churches.

M. R. Miles, Pastor.

Tent Meeting.—The Wayne County Tent will be pitched at Ira Hill, Ira, to commence meeting August 11th. A cordial invitation is given to all to come to this meeting. Come, brethren and sisters, and lend a helping hand in sounding the alarm of the soon coming judgment, and the glory which is to follow. Eld. E. F. Sergisson.

From Zion's Herald:—"Rev. George Trask is in a fair way to have an efficient successor in Rev. I. C. Wellcome, of Yarmouth, Me. We have received a spirited tract from his pen, entitled, 'The Tobacco Plug and Cigar.' Its seventy-two pages are crowded with facts and figures, forming a terrible indictment against the foolish and vulgar habit and expensive indulgence of the use of tobacco. We wish it the widest circulation and the utmost success in its important mission."

From the Portland Transcript:—"Rev. I. C. Wellcome, of Yarmouth, Me., publishes a neat pamphlet of seventy-two pages, against the use of the 'The Tobacco Plug and Cigar,' being a friendly talk with those who use tobacco, with the hope of benefiting them in health, mind and money. It is a complete treasury of anti-tobacco argument and appeal. Sold for $10 per hundred, $1.50 per dozen, 15 cents single copy. Send order to the author." Sold at the Crisis Office.

CONSECRATION.

The great surrender has been made,—
We are the Lord's:
And heaven that owns the ransom paid,
The vow records.

His own! bought at a mighty cost,
And sealed with blood;
No longer wandering, blind, and lost,
But sons of God.

His own! his own! oh, wondrous grace
That led to him;
We see the Sun of Righteousness—
Earth's light grows dim.

We own his power whose love unknown
Has conquered hate;
Our hearts, our lives to him alone
We consecrate.

Henceforth, rejoicing, Christ we own
As Lord and guide;
The loving, pure, and changeless One,
The Crucified.

Trusting the promise of his word,
We shall prevail;
The grace of our ascended Lord
Shall never fail. —Selected.

LETTER FROM BRO. COLGROVE.

Having an hour's leisure, I take it (with thanks to God) for a friendly conversation with the readers of the Crisis. An affec tionate letter from one of the ministers of our Lord Jesus, in which there was a very encouraging reference to my previous rather unpremeditated communication, somewhat inspires me to write again. It consists mainly of matters of personal experience, and mutual sympathy with the peculiar peo ple who wait for the kingdom of the Son of man, that I may recount something. Doctrinal beliefs are established,—they have been studiously canvassed,—how is our heart-life, and especially, how is our special personal and christian relation to the Chief, absent at the right hand of power, but the desire of the tossed and contending host on earth? What a spectacle is presented to the view of that Savior, so long absent, as he looks over the earth he has bought, the rolling ball where he served, and shed his blood.

What a spectacle! I say. There, over all its vast extent, in every region where the sun shines, lie the sleeping dead, who have died with his name on their lips, and died fixing their eye of faith still steadfast in the weakness of expiring nature, on the invisible Jesus,—every where they lie, unnoted and unknown, myriads without a monument or even a pebble to mark their resting place. Is not this a sight to appeal to the yet tarrying Christ? What a treasure hid in a field, are these slumbering millions! Helpless and dead to all eternity must they be, unless he come forth. Without him, can be no revival to live. This is a standing appeal to him. And still the number multiplies. Still the reaper with his scythe is busy, and into the thick of the conflict, still the saints of each later generation are coming—a conflict of groans, and sweat, and dread, of paleness, weakness, sinking and pain, and finally, as to the conflict with the enemy death; of defeat. For there is no beating of that antagonist. He who grapples with him, grapples but to be worsted.

Is this a sombre picture? Ah! and this is the pathetic and affecting spectacle which the potentate beholds—Christ, the resurrection, in heaven. This is what appeals to him. I detract nothing from the confidence of hope, and the moral conquest of faith in the dying hour, the mitigating and supporting consciousness of the Divine favor; but, granting all this, nevertheless, look at the picture of human weakness; look at the often difficult respiration, the manifold anguish, the mental dread of dissolution (more or less as the case may be), and then the sorrowing, the agitation, and agony of bystanding friends, who themselves suffer with their beloved, dying as it were, in sympathy with him, themselves going to death's door, and entering its dark portals, and yet tarrying behind to weep, for their hour is not yet come.

Now, is not this a cry from all christendom,—this sense of death—a cry to Christ to make haste and come down, Christ, the clear-eyed and strong-armed; the victor over death, the champion, the potentate? Knowing all, and realizing all the deep, profound, and sheer helplessness of death, we call, we cry to the elect Redeemer, Hasten thou thy coming. Thy province, thy very special province and prerogative, thine absolutely and only—is to do this work. Thine only is the possible achievement, and thine only shall be the glory. Avaunt with this fiction of the deathless Adamite life, the petty, puny thing, that is set up on high as a very god, and that takes to itself a a glory of incorporeal power, when it is fit to be written in blazing capitals across the sky, Christ is the power of God.

O well! Groan on, O earth, weary earth, sin-cursed earth, groan on, for well thou hast the right, when entombed in thee are the dead, poor, and puny, and senseless, and helpless, and the King still lingers. And gather all thy sorrows into one perpetual breath of prayer, and cry,—cry to the heavens, and him who is eminent in heaven, above all, Jesus the elect Redeemer, for there is no peace till he comes. Do you believe that, fellow-saint? Do you adopt that? There are mitigations, but there is no deliverance. There are merciful providences and even special providences; there are blessings, and morsels and fragments of comfort, of much preciousness, but earth is one bundle of burdens from the beginning. Look at the sick and stricken; the poor, the overworked; the disappointed and heartsore, and sing one great pæan if you can. Tell us of any panacea for the misery and disorder if you can, short of the coming of that King, who himself received his death wound from a mob.

To be practical, and sympathizing, and self-confessing, we say, our case and state is one of want, want, perpetual want. We want a helper, and Christ is mighty to him who believes that Jesus is the true and only remedy, still detained away, while earth's history is one grand tragedy. They who are content, may pray after their fashion, but they who are unhappy (in some aspect) because the grand vacuum of their whole being is the absent Jesus, or rather the absence of Jesus; it is for them to call with all the pathos of tears, with all the eloquence of yearning, with all the vehemence of entreaty, with all the pertinacity of faith, with all the agony of hope deferred, with all the tenderness of whispered solicitation, with every art of reasoning, with every faculty of persuasion, with every instinct of desire and with every pressure of necessity. All this, not to move an infinite God from an established and immutable purpose, but within the province of privilege to use all the implements and agencies which God himself has authorized and encouraged (by way of fervent and even passionate petitions to him to pity the miserable state of earth), and make up a very suitableness of occasion for his interference, because there is such a wonder and propriety of all that is mighty, and urgent, and moving, and impassioned in prayer, for the delay to end, and the King to come forth.

O, the ingenuity, and urgency, and endless diversity of praying for Christ to take hold of this matter and help his people! Without him we are undone; all is lost and gone, wretched, and fallen, and desperate. To what a pitch of wickedness and madness have men arrived. Without him we can do nothing, know nothing, have nothing. Without him we are ever treading on the verge of a precipice, and walking around the sulphur smokes of Vesuvius craters. Without him, we are weak as babes, and silly as simpletons. Without him, we are mere vagabonds on earth, helpless specks of animated existence, and as hopeless as helpless. Without him, we shall never have any thing really worth the having, and in every smell or taste of sweetness there is some lurking poison. Therefore, the Son of God is all. To me, he is the perfect representative of the Father, verily, God himself, the appointed judge of human kind. In worshiping him, I worship the Father, for the Father has declared him to be the Son of God with power, and the Father is in him.

Well, now beloved, scattered through all quarters, what more shall I say at this writing? What shall I say to cheer you, to comfort you in this wilderness? I say, keep near to Jesus with all your might and mind. Near, nearer to God! Take no rest where Christ is not. Make him bright and high in your walk, in your view. You who are troubled—oh, you troubled ones, find your heart's balm in the blood and peace of Him who knows how to love, who pities, though unseen, and who forgives with such tenderness. Our sins are countless. They are more than the grains of sand. Who can help us in such a case but the sinner's Friend? And every where, there are thorns and pests. Insects of such increasing sort and number lay waste the fields, and raise up war against the husbandman and his hopes. Evil weeds shoot up their pernicious spires, and spread their arms of unlovely umbrage. Men may fill the papers with expedients. Art and argument have no great charm for those who cannot rely on inferior means, when the capital remedy is all ignored, and the popular philosophy leaves out of account the imperative necessity, the remedial perfection, and the Divine prophecy of the Restorer, a man, a God—the sum of all hope and safety, who was slain, who lives, who shed his blood, who is waiting in heaven to come and revolutionize human and terrestrial affairs, take to himself his great power and reign.

Ye sick and sad, ye bowed and bent, ye mournful and weary, you are they whom Christ can welcome, and who can welcome Christ. Ye are they who may, who should, who can, who would, who will come and find your hearts' ease at the feet of the blessed. There you may take your place. Wait on, but never stop calling to him to come to you. Along down from heaven by his Spirit he can speak, he can look, he can help. He can reach to you with his love through ten million leagues. His tenderness can fly across ten thousand skies. Who can not say—"I am tired." The tired know full well, if they are wise, where they can get rest; but the rest is only a little shadow of the great rest. That is reserved until the Master shines down, and rides down in his "conquering and to conquer," at his coming. Pierce heaven with the peal of your voice, be it no more than a whisper in accent, but louder than any thunder in the intensity. And may better days come soon, soon, very soon. Yours very truly.

P. S. My wife is sick with something very much like consumption. Perhaps (in case she should live until autumn, and be able to make the journey), some of your readers at the south may recommend a place in that gentler climate, where she might spend the winter, away from the bitter cold of the north. SPECULATIVE PREACHING.

WM. SHELDON.

As a people we have been cursed in a superlative degree with speculative preaching. Ever and anon, along comes some one loaded down with a message, a special message, to deliver at some of our general meetings, groaning to be delivered of the pressing load. Preach they must, for they have new light, and they have brass enough to press their claim with vehemence, and are usually successful in being backed up by a class of sympathizing seekers after every thing that comes along claiming to be new light; and though they know not what it is, they are willing and anxious to risk the experiment of having it launched upon the community, that we have called together to hear us preach.

Too often our brethren have allowed this kind of message-bearers, or new-light proclaimers, to exhibit their talent in telling something new—some undigested theory having its foundation in speculation—and, alas! somebody is always ready to swallow the whole thing, while an intelligent community are thereby disgusted, and our way to reach them is consequently hedged up, in spite of our protestation, which comes too late, that we do not endorse the message, which we have been instrumental in getting before them, and for which they hold us responsible, or fancy that the rest of our preaching is just as undeserving of their attention. One such experiment often forestalls nearly all the good we might have done in the community, besides having confused the brains of some of our own brethren; and thus a double curse results from this submission to one special message-bearer.

God's preachers never go round to other meetings pressing their claim to a chance to preach. If they are there, they will be invited if needed. Long since I made up my mind not to countenance one of these pressing seekers after a chance to preach, and have watched the result for many years; and though at times some have doubted my policy, all are now satisfied that I never made a mistake in rejecting this class of preachers, while it has since become evident that I should have made a fearful mistake in countenancing them.

When a stranger comes along full of preach, full of gas, full of brass, full of new light, and full of fight, demanding an opportunity to ventilate before the people called together by your influence, hesitate long before you allow him to train under your flag. We have had enough of this innovation upon our rights by irresponsible speculators, and having been too much cursed by the fruits of such experiments in the past, it is time to shut down. A class of this kind, who have been dormant all the year till campmeeting, there appear like frogs in the spring, and are ready to do all the croaking, and are sure they are the biggest toads in the puddle; and if not allowed to monopolize the time, and conspicuously exhibit themselves, they are ready for a row. Mark them.

SHADOWS OF EARTH.

ELLA M. LUNT.

O God, I come to thee!
With empty arms and heart, of life bereft,
With not one hope or earthly comfort left,
Dear Father, pity me.

I come to thee for light!
As earthly comforts die, so must I look above,
And in the refuge of thy sheltering love
I may forget my night.

Once human love was sweet;
The heart is human, and hath human needs,
And often in its helplessness it pleads
For that which is not meat.

O God! how could I know,
How could I see, with my frail mortal eyes,
That what I prayed for was a fair disguise,
To hide this bitter woe?

Jesus, how could I foresee
All the dread anguish and this dark despair
That came to me with my soul's answered prayer?
Dear Father, comfort me!

Clasp me within thine arms,
And let thy blessed love encircle me;
I have no other refuge save in thee,
Since earth hath lost its charms.

Illume my darkened way;
Out from the shadows of this earthly night
O, lead my darkened soul into the glorious light
Of thy most perfect day!

Biddeford, Me., July 24th, 1875.

FROM SR. E. T. HOBBS.

Seeing the call in the Crisis for the written experience of those who have been "soldiers of Christ," I thought perhaps I might write a few words of interest to some lone, struggling soul. I find life one constant warfare—foes within, foes without; but God has always been my helper. I have had Red Sea deliverances more than once; also for me the water has gushed out of the rock, so that I know, as is sometimes sung—

"Yes, for me, for me he careth,
With a brother's tender care."

And to-day, though sick, I feel renewed courage, and feel like pressing my way onward, face to the enemy, and as God shall give me strength and courage, mean to work for the "coming kingdom."

We have together in the tented grove heard the voices of Blind Sammy, Bro. Ladd, and Bro. Lee, singing the familiar tunes they so much loved.

None of us can ever forget Blind Sammy's songs, among which was—

"It is religion makes a man,
You deny it, if you can."
"It takes a valiant soldier to travel the narrow road," and then his upward spring, and his stirring shout—"Glory!" Then Bro. Ladd, with his favorite hymn—

"If I in thy likeness, oh, Lord, may awake,
And shine a pure image of thee"—
"Oh, I shall be satisfied then."

Then Bro. Lee, whose sad death so recently took place, will long have a place in our memory, with his touching song—

"My all to Christ I've given,
My talents, time and voice,
Myself, my reputation,
The lone way is my choice."

One more comes vividly to my recollection,—Bro. Whitehead, of Conn., singing as he used to—

"And oh! he said he'd come again."

They are all now fallen asleep.

Dear old Wilbraham! how many precious memories are thine; consecrated by prayer, hallowed by many a living sacrifice there made for Christ. Who of us can ever forget thee? But you were precious only as you pointed the way to the celestial city.

Sleep on, blind brother; thine the crown. We have not forgotten how you sung—

"We shall sleep, but not forever."

Bro. Whitehead, we shall hail you in the morning, when hope is changed to glad fruition, faith to sight, and prayer to praise. Bro. George, Christ will not forget you in your lonely grave. "The trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible." Hallelujah!

Now, ye living ones, who have been associated in spreading the glad tidings of a coming kingdom, are you weary with watching? God knows the inward heartache. He is watching all night long. Let us come together once more, hand to hand, and together meditate on the past, and prepare for the glorious future.

Listen to Bro. Grant's appeal, and respond with your experiences and reminiscences. Let us have one issue of the paper well filled with the record of God's dealings with some of the old soldiers. How goes the battle, Bro.? Are you holding the blood-stained banner aloft? Are you ready to march unflinchingly to the front? Do you say, All for Christ? Let us hear from you.

"Come, saith Jesus' sacred voice,
Come, and make my paths your choice;
I will guide you to your home,
Weary pilgrim, hither come."

Cambridgeport, Mass.

A MAN WITHOUT AN ENEMY.—We believe in the man or woman who has enemies. This does not sound sound, but it is sound. Your milk-and-water people, who content themselves with simply doing no harm, at the same time never do any good. They are mere negatives in the world. Your man of force, who does not wait for a stone to get out of the way, but manfully rolls it over, may unintentionally hurt somebody's toes in the act; but thousands who have to travel that way will thank him for clearing it. The man who has no enemies is generally a cowardly creature, caring for no one but himself—smirking and creeping his unchallenged way to the obscurity he merits. He adds nothing to the common stock; does no good in the world, and is lowered into his six feet of earth without one sincere regret from any one.—Banner of Holiness.

SHOW.—The world is crazy for show. There is not one perhaps in a thousand, who dares fall back on his real, simple self for power to get through the world, and exact enjoyment as he goes along. There is no end to the aping, the mimicry, the false and superficial airs. It requires rare courage, we admit, to live up to one's enlightened convictions in these days. Unless you consent to join in the general cheat, there is no room for you among the great mob of pretenders. If a man desires to live within his means, and is resolute in his purpose not to appear more than he really is, let him be applauded. There is something fresh and invigorating in such an example, and we should honor and uphold such a man with all the energy in our power.—Sel.

LETTER FROM BRO. J. A. BRYAN.

Editors of World's Crisis:—I write a few lines to let you know what we are doing at Goosepond. Our congregation numbers between fifteen and twenty. Bro. J. M. Stewart is our pastor. He is an earnest and energetic laborer in his Master's vineyard, and we all love him very much. Last April Bro. Cargile visited us, and preached five times. He did much to break down the prejudices of the people against us and the doctrine. I wish that he would come again. Bro. Smith came down in this section a short time ago, and went on into Marshall county and held a meeting of two days. He was assisted by Bro. Stewart. He had much opposition to contend with, yet he labored earnestly, and I hope some good was done. The Methodist people received them kindly in the name of the Lord, but the Cumberland Presbyterians did not defile themselves by receiving the heretics, but closed their doors against them, with the exception of one or two families. May the Lord open their eyes, and show them a better way.

After the Brn. had finished their labors at this place, they started for Madison county, through Honeycomb Valley, to preach the word in "other cities also." At Mt. Hebron, Marshall Co., they preached twice to attentive congregations. At night, I think, they had some trouble to find lodging. From thence they went to Vienna, in Madison Co., where they distributed quite a number of tracts (which they also did at Mt. Hebron), after which, the Methodist church being opened to them, they preached at night, and by vote of the congregation left another appointment for next day. Just after the close of meeting the next day, before they could get to shelter, they were thoroughly drenched with rain. I was not with the brethren at this place, but they assured me that they were kindly cared for, and received hearty invitations to call again. Thence they went to Bro. John T. Dilworth's, five miles distant, where they were kindly received and cared for during their stay.

The next morning (Saturday) they met a small congregation in Bro. Jack Cooper's yard, where, at 11 o'clock A. M., Bro. Stewart preached the word to them. Bro. Smith followed in the evening with a good long sermon. The Brn. preached with power, and I felt that a good impression had been made. Bro. James Hill, a member of the Methodist church, came and offered us their house to preach in, but thanking him for his kindness, we felt obliged to decline his offer. Evidently, he did not like to see ministers cast out of church houses, to preach in the open air.

Sunday morning we visited Walnut Grove, to hear Bro. Drake, the local C. P. minister, preach. His text was Ps. 37: 3. He gave us a very cold shoulder, and preached immortal-soulism with a vim. As he did not give us a chance to publish an appointment for 3 o'clock P. M. at Bro. Cooper's, as soon as preaching was over, and the people dismissed, I went to the door and published our appointment myself. In the evening we went back to Bro. Cooper's, and Bro. Smith preached us a discourse from the words—"Thy kingdom come." The congregation was large and attentive, and I hope good was done. On Monday morning we left this community, having received many warm invitations to call and preach again. At night, Bro. Stewart preached at my house, near Centre Star.

The next morning the Brn. left me, and I have not seen them since, but hear that they had good meetings at several places. A great many people through this section of country are much awakened in regard to our preaching, and in some communities there is considerable excitement. We have much opposition, and often from those from whom we have the least cause to expect it. I am often made ashamed when I see or hear of the very low and mean steps some take to undermine us, where we have already gained a start, and stir up a prejudice against us in places where we have not been. Brn. with whom I have labored in the past, for whom I entertained the most tender regard, and who, I thought, were incapable of doing anything to injure a brother, are guilty of double dealing; and while they profess friendship and love in Christ, they are doing things that clearly show their professions false. It reminds us of Paul's trials "among false brethren." And I have often said that if such people could gain admittance into the kingdom, they would create discord there. Brethren, pray for us.

THE THOUGHTS, AND THE LIFE.

D. K. BARRETT, JR.

"For as he thinketh in his heart so is he."—PROV. 23: 7.

A man's profession may not always agree with the life. One may profess friendship when it is not in the heart; "as he thinketh in his heart, so is he." And the thoughts have such an influence upon the manner and life, that we can usually tell who is our friend, whatever their profession. Solomon speaks of one making such a false profession as having "an evil eye," and warns us to beware of him, "for as he thinketh in his heart, so is he. Eat and drink, saith he; but his heart is not with thee." Hence has arisen the true saying—"As a man thinketh so is he." That is, his real character is as the character of his thoughts. Not as some apply it, As a man thinks he is, so is he; for "there is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death." A man's thoughts are sure to correspond with his character very closely. Does this need to be proved, or is it self-evident? Could you imagine such a thing as a pure and noble person being impure and base in thought? or a vile, vulgar, stingy, unprincipled one being pure, noble, generous, and holy in thought? No, a good tree only will bring forth good fruit, and only a corrupt tree will yield bad fruit. The fountain that is bitter will not yield a stream of pure, sweet water.

Our thoughts are the fountain or birthplace of all our actions. There is where they get their character, whether good or otherwise. It is just as impossible for a man to have his mind filled with corrupt and impure thoughts, and live a pure and holy life, as it would be to gather grapes from thorns, or figs from thistles; or a stream of sweet water to flow from a bitter fountain. God must first make the fountain sweet, as he did of old at one time, before it could be done. If, therefore, we would not have our life filled with mean, low, and unworthy actions, we must stop thinking mean, low, and unworthy thoughts. Do not forget this, dear reader.

To illustrate: I once knew a boy, about six or seven years old, who attended school, where, one morning, another little boy about his own age came wearing a nice new frock of very bright color. There sprang up at once a feeling of envy. These envious thoughts were cherished, and increased every day, till they got such a control over him, that one day, forgetting all consequences, he made up his mind that frock should take a different look some way. So at noon he approached his little schoolmate with all the malice his heart could contain, and caught hold of the frock, and made a hideous rent.

That is where the devil gets his leverage—in the thoughts. Thus we see the fruit of the thoughts in the life, and how envy, conceived in the thoughts, brought forth an act (or sin), verily like that of the devil in paradise. So we may be sure it will always be; evil thoughts will work out in the life. "Resist the devil" here. "Lust, when it hath conceived [that is, in the thoughts], bringeth forth sin; and sin when it is finished bringeth forth death." If bad thoughts are suggested, by God's help get rid of them before they conceive. Out of the evil "heart proceed evil thoughts." The remedy and safety is in getting a pure heart, a holy heart; being filled with the Holy Spirit. God will keep us. He will come, and by his Spirit abide with you.

CHRIST'S SERVANTS.—A CALL.

Servants of God! the better land
Is but a little way ahead;
And shall we at the crossings stand,
Or journey with a listless tread?

Shall sin and nature o'er our powers
Cast their delusive, fatal spell,
With siren song and scented flowers,
And flatter us that all is well?

Oh! Zion's soldiers, all awake!
And gird ye with the strength of grace;
Stretch forth your hands, your weapons take,
And onward with a quickened pace.

Let telling blows fall thick and fast
From every ringing trusty blade,
Till every battle-field is passed,
And every foe has fled dismayed.

Then with the tried and true we'll stand,
And lay our trusty weapons down,
A palm for every valiant hand,
For every head a victor's crown.

MY EXPERIENCE.

S. SHRINER.

The request for short experiences, in the Crisis of June 23rd, has roused me to action. I feel that I have no right to hide the light which has been given me, for the Lord has led me by a way that I knew not. For thirty-two years, I professed to be a follower of the Lord, and tried to lead a consistent christian life. There were times when I could, and did rejoice in hope that I was accepted, and should receive the reward of the righteous; but the greater part of the time, doubts and fears were so mingled with hope, that I scarcely knew what foundation I was standing on. Even after my eyes were opened enough, so that I believed that the coming of the Lord was nigh, I could not say that I loved his appearing, because I feared that I was not wholly prepared to meet him. I could not call that "perfect love," for although I did love the services of the house of God, and loved the society of the people of God, yet I also grasped after some of the allurements of this world; but more especially the favor and good opinion of others. "The fear of man bringeth a snare," and the fear of displeasing friends, who differed from me in their views of religious duties, and also a fear lest I might leave a wrong impression on the minds of others, and thus perhaps do an injury to the cause of Christ, kept me from acknowledging what I saw to be an error; and though the Spirit often strove with me on the subject, and I sometimes felt it was a burden I could no longer bear, yet this reserve, this man-fearing spirit, kept me back. But the time came when I felt that all must be given up for Jesus; for he says, "He that forsaketh not all that he hath, cannot be my disciple." I resolved that every link of the chain, that kept me from following the Lord fully, should be broken; no matter what sacrifice might be required; wherever he might lead I would follow.

I besought the Lord by night and by day, that my eyes might be opened to see clearly the path of duty. No one ever truly sought his face in vain. I obeyed what I felt to be the promptings of the Spirit, and the teachings of God's word, and now I want to praise him continually for the fulness of joy I find. No doubts, no fears now that I am not accepted, but peace, love and joy that I cannot express. Temptations and trials do, and must come in the present state of existence, but I flee to the cleft Rock for refuge, and find a safe hiding-place.

O the blessedness of being able to say I know. Yes, "I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day." "Blessed assurance, his name be adored, sweetly I'm resting in Jesus."

Not boastingly have I written this. God forbid that I should glory in any thing, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom the world is crucified unto me, and I unto the world."

TWO GENTLEMEN.—An old Scotchman was taking his grist to mill in sacks thrown across the back of his horse, when the horse stumbled and the grain fell to the ground. Being an aged man, he had not strength to raise it, but he saw a horseman riding along, and thought he would appeal to him for help. But the horseman proved to be the nobleman who lived in the castle near by, and the farmer could not muster courage to ask a favor of him. But the nobleman was a gentleman also, and, not waiting to be asked, he quickly dismounted, and between them they lifted the grain to the horse's back. John—for he was a gentleman too—lifted his Kilmarnock bonnet and said, "My Lord, how shall I ever thank you for your kindness?" "Very easily, John," replied the nobleman. "Whenever you see another man in the same plight as you were in just now, help him, and that will be thanking me."

IDLENESS is a crime; there is much to do and little time to do it in; for "the night cometh when no man can work." Work while the day lasts; work well; these should be the resolves of all the friends of a true Christianity, some of whom can do a great deal; all can do something.

PRAYING people are a believing people.

JUST AS THOU WILT.

Just as thou wilt, O Father.
I know not what is best for me;
At Marah's fount to drink may be,
Or bow in lone Gethsemane;
But, blessed Lord, I go with thee—
Just as thou wilt.

Just as thou wilt, my Father.
I would not murmur nor repine
Though crucifixion e'en be mine;
Anew my life I now resign,
My only will, dear Lord, be thine—
Just as thou wilt.

Just as thou wilt, blest Father.
As clay within the potter's hand,
No will to shape, resist, command,
At last e'en I complete may stand,
A chosen vessel in thy hand—
Just as thou wilt.

A FEARFUL CYCLONE.

T. Adolphus Trollope, writing from Geneva, describes graphically the storm which passed over that city on July 7th. He says:

"Few of the citizens of Geneva will forget the ten minutes which followed that midnight. It did not last much longer than ten minutes—from that to a quarter of an hour—but what a ten minutes it was! At the end of it the city of Geneva was wrecked as no army of besiegers could have wrecked it in the same space of time. It came with the suddenness of a thunderclap. Only for a few minutes previously there had been a warning voice, which those who heard it describe to have been a very terrible one—which was not the sound of the wind even when it blows its hardest; which was not the sound of thunder, but a kind of strange, hollow, angry growl, with an ever crescendo force. Then, just on the stroke of twelve, came the bodily presence of the storm itself. It came in the shape hardly of a hail storm, in the ordinary acceptation of the word, but in that of an almost compact mass or sheet of ice, driven horizontally before the tempest blast.

In the first instant, every gas-lamp in the streets of Geneva, save here and there one capriciously spared by reason of some protecting roof, was smashed to atoms and extinguished. But the city was not in darkness, for the masses of coagulated hail, which already were lying on the pavement of the streets, reflected the blue light of the lightning in a ghastly and ominous manner. Geneva is a city which displays an especially large extent of window glass. The delicate processes of its manufactories of watchwork and jewelry need abundant light, and most of the large factories display almost as much glass as wall. They are mostly at the tops of the houses, and thus more completely exposed to the fury of the storm. At the first blast of the tempest, the whole of these throughout the city were smashed into myriads of fragments. Geneva is especially, also, a city of skylights, and these, it is hardly necessary to say, were as though they had never been. The windows of dwelling houses were forced from their fastenings, besides having all the glass shivered; and bedrooms, staircases and saloons were thus thrown open to the storm, and, in a minute or two, half-filled with masses of ice, far beyond the immediate power of the inhabitants to remove. For the storm was marked by this peculiarity, that the hailstones, or ice fragments rather, compacted themselves into one solid mass as soon as they fell. Accurate inquiry enables me to state, without fear or exaggeration, that the greater part of the hail-stones, before they fell, were about the size of chesnuts or walnuts; a smaller quantity were no larger than hazle nuts; and large numbers were as big as the largest sized fowl's egg. One was picked up at mid-day on the following day, and found to weigh two pounds.

Bad, however, as matters have been in this city, that is the least part of the misfortune. The worst is in the immediate environs of the city. Geneva is surrounded by pleasure gardens and vineyards and market gardens, and these have been destroyed as if a charge of cavalry had passed over them. Here the damage done involves the ruin and despair of the poor and industrious peasants, who have invested the persevering labor of years in the soil, and whose all is now taken from them as effectually as if it had been sunk under the bottom of the sea."

HOLY TRUST.

I leave it all with Jesus,
For he knows
How to steal the bitter
From life's woes;
How to gild the tear-drop
With his smile,
Make the desert garden
Bloom awhile;
When my weakness leaneth
On his might,
All seems light.

HOME AND HEALTH.

THE LITTLE HERO.

Can a boy be a hero? Of course he can, if he has courage, and a good opportunity to show it. The boy who will stand up for the right, stick to the truth, resist temptation, and suffer rather than do wrong, is a moral hero.

Here is an example of true heroism. A little drummer boy, who had become a great favorite with the officers, was asked by the captain to drink a glass of rum. But he declined, saying, "I am a cadet of temperance, and do not taste strong drink."

"But you must take some now," said the captain. "You have been on duty all day, beating the drum and marching, and now you must not refuse. I insist upon it." But still the boy stood firm, and held fast to his integrity. The captain then turned to the major and said, "Our little drummer boy is afraid to drink. He will never make a soldier."

"How is this?" said the major in a playful manner. "Do you refuse to obey the orders of your captain?"

"Sir," said the boy, "I have never refused to obey the captain's orders, and have tried to do my duty as a soldier faithfully; but I must refuse to drink rum, because I know it will do me an injury."

"Then," said the major, in a stern tone of voice, in order to test his sincerity, "I command you to take a drink, and you know it is death to disobey orders."

The little hero, fixing his clear blue eye on the face of the officer, said, "Sir, my father died a drunkard; and when I entered the army, I promised my dear mother that I would not take a drop of rum, and I mean to keep my promise. I am sorry to disobey orders, sir, but I would rather suffer anything than disgrace my mother, and break my temperance pledge." Was not that boy a hero?

The officers approved the conduct of that noble boy, and told him, that so long as he kept that pledge, and performed his duty faithfully as a soldier, he might expect regard and protection.—Christian Standard.

WHERE CONVICTS COME FROM.

A short time since, a young man, condemned to die for the awful crime of murder, laid in a prison-cell, awaiting the day of execution. A kind lady, who had heard of his condition, visited him several times, and sought to lead him to penitence and faith in Jesus, as his only hope. On one occasion the lady was accompanied by her little son, who spoke kindly to the poor prisoner, and offered him some fruit. The man seemed much affected by the grace and gentleness of the child, and, drawing him towards him, said, as the tears ran freely down his cheeks:

"My dear child, let me tell you what brought me here. It was disobeying my parents, then breaking God's holy day, and lastly, drinking and gambling; that grew out of the other two. Never forget this, if you would not be where I now am; and tell all your playfellows to take warning by my sad fate. Always obey your parents; never drink a drop of anything that can intoxicate; keep holy the Sabbath day, and turn, as from the evil one himself, from any who would persuade you to enter a gambling house, or engage in a game of chance. These are the things that fill the prisons of earth.—Young Reaper.

THE WIDOW AND HER BIBLE.—A poor old widow was once asked by a city missionary if she had a Bible. "Thank God I have," said she, "What should I do without my Bible? It was the guide of my youth, and it is the staff of my old age. It wounded me, and it healed me; it showed me I was a sinner, and it led me to the Savior! It has given me comfort through life, and I trust it will give me hope in death."

Children, do you love your Bible as this poor widow did hers? Do you read it often, and lay up its precious teachings in your hearts? Let it be your greatest treasure. Read it every day, and pray to God to help you understand it.

FRESH AIR.—One of the incessant wants of man is air. We want air mainly to nourish us and keep us cool. The quantity of air inhaled by an adult in twenty-four hours amounts on an average to about three hundred cubic feet, or two thousand gallons. What we take in and give out in twenty-four hours in the shape of solid and liquid food, occupies on an average the space of five and a half pints, which is equal to one three-hundredths of the volume of air passing through our lungs. It will astonish you to hear perhaps for the first time this amounts to seven hundred and thirty thousand gallons in one year, and to be reminded of that continuous work which goes on day and night—a never ceasing bellows blowing, by which the organ of our life is kept in play.

OATMEAL AS FOOD.—Cassell's Magazine says of oatmeal: We have called it the food for bone as well as brain, muscle as well as mind. To the laboring or artisan class it commends itself as an article of diet on account of its cheapness, and readiness and economy with which it can be cooked; and while it is easily digested, it contains, as we have seen, a larger proportion than wheaten bread of the elements that go to form bone and muscle. The best Scotch oatmeal costs two pence a pound, and this contains far more true nourishment, in the opinion of some medical men, than the same weight of Liebig's Extract. It commends itself to literary men, and all workers who earn their bread by the sweat of their brains.

BATHING.—In the warm summer months, a daily bath is none too much for cleanliness. It need not be prolonged more than two or three minutes in most cases, and a very large amount of water is not required to cleanse the skin effectively, if its application is accompanied by vigorous rubbing. In some cases, a water bath every other day, and a dry-hand-rub on the alternate day, will suffice for cleanliness. We do not advocate cold-water bathing, even in summer, though many may practice it without apparent injury. Water of a temperature only a few degrees below blood heat is generally preferable. Our advice to all who wish to be true reformers is, "Wash and be clean." —Health Reformer.

SALT WATER FOR THE EYES.—Many persons are suffering pain from weakness of the eyes. This sometimes proceeds from local inflammation, sometimes from other causes. Several persons who have thus been afflicted inform us that they have derived almost immediate, and in some cases permanent, relief from the application of salt water as a bath; and when the pain has been aggravated, from a compress saturated with salt water laid on the eyes and renewed at frequent intervals. Opening the eyes and submerging them in clean salt water has been found beneficial to those whose eyesight begins to fail.—Rural New Yorker.

APOPLEXY.—The chief causes which produce this structural change are the habitual use of ardent spirits and tobacco. Every one is aware that the leading effects of these agents on the body are such as to show that the functions of the nervous system are more affected than any other; and the physician also knows that, when symptoms of disorder arise from their use, they are such as denote that the nervous system is almost alone implicated. Delirium tremens, insomnia, tremulous hands and nervous headaches, are some of the characteristic effects of the habitual use of stimulants and narcotics.

DRESS.—A great amount of time and money is squandered upon needless adornments. Many inventions have been sought out in extra puffings, tucks, and trimmings, which have a direct tendency to lessen vitality and shorten life. Almost every conceivable style of dress may be seen in crowded cities, and upon the great thoroughfares of travel. There are customs and styles in dress current now, that a few years ago would have been looked upon by christians as monstrosities.

EXERCISE.—The amount of exercise to be taken will always differ with various individuals. It should always be just sufficient to produce slight weariness. Exercise taken in this way is one of the most valuable means of securing rest at night. The reason why many people cannot sleep nights is that they have not done anything which entitles them to sound sleep. If a person wishes to rest, he must first get weary. One who will not exercise when able to do so, has no right to sleep.

HAVE FAITH.

Pilgrim of earth, who art journeying to heaven,
Heir of eternal life, child of the day;
Cared for, watched over, beloved, and forgiven,
Art thou discouraged because of the way?

Cared for, watched over, though often thou seemest
Justly forsaken, nor counted a child;
Loved and forgiven, though rightly thou deemest
Thyself all unlovely, impure and defiled.

Weary and thirsty, no water brook near thee,
Press on, nor faint at the length of the way;
The God of thy life will assuredly hear thee,
He will provide thee strength for the day.

Break through the brambles and briars that obstruct thee,
Dread not the gloom and the blackness of night;
Lean on the hand that will safely conduct thee,
Trust to his eye to whom darkness is light.

THE SECOND COMING OF OUR LORD.

BY REV. C. W. MILLEN.*

"He which testifieth these things saith, Surely I come quickly. Amen. Even so, come, Lord Jesus."—REV 22:20.

These words form a very fitting conclusion of the sacred canon. The Bible begins and ends with the recognition of Deity. Here, as everywhere, he is "Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the ending, the first and the last." The facts which John has recorded in the Revelation were given him as testimony. "He which testifieth these things saith." At the conclusion of the evidence the witness makes this declaration concerning himself—"Surely I come quickly." And the response which John, as the representative of the Christian church, gives, reveals the name of the witness; for he says, "Even so, come, Lord Jesus." It is the Lord Jesus from heaven who certifies the facts of the Revelation; it is the Lord Jesus, who was once here, who declares that he will come again, and come "quickly."

The text reveals a beautiful thought, which it is proper to speak of here, but which is not connected with the main subject of this discourse. It is this: the spirit and substance of true prayer. When God's will is revealed the spirit of true prayer is the spontaneous answering back of the heart to that will; and the substance of true prayer very properly takes the form of the will expressed. He truly prays who, when hearing Jesus say, "Surely I come quickly," at once responds—"Amen, even so, come, Lord Jesus." Or, hearing the requirement, "Seek ye my face," offers the ready response, "Thy face, Lord, will I seek." In such prayer there is no difficulty in exercising faith, no danger of asking amiss; there is the closest union existing between the believer and Christ. He possesses the true spirit of prayer whose heart is ever responsive to the will of heaven, and whose petition or consecration finds, in the expression of that will, a form.

There is also another preliminary thought which I cannot pass in silence. "Surely I come quickly. Amen." That sounds as if it were the end of the revelation of God to man. Not as the close of the first epistle of a series, but as the conclusion of a system, like which nothing more should ever follow. And this is our faith as a church. The fifth article of our religion reads: "The Holy Scriptures contain all things necessary to salvation, so that whatsoever is not read therein, nor may be proved thereby, is not to be required of any man, that it should be believed as an article of faith, or be thought requisite or necessary to salvation. In the name of the Holy Scripture we do understand those canonical books of the Old and New Testament, of whose authority was never any doubt in the church." But this is not the faith of all. The Mormon superadds a false scripture, which he calls the "Book of Mormon." This is claimed to be a revelation from God to Joseph Smith, of the same nature and importance with the canonical books of the Old and New Testaments. The Romanist superadds the Apocrypha and Oral and Written Tradition, as necessary to constitute the pure rule of faith. Nay, more; these must be propounded and explained by the Catholic church, In 1546, the Fourth Session of the Council of Trent decreed that Tradition, both written and unwritten, are of equal authority with the Bible, and that the person denying this shall be accursed. The Bulls of Popes, the Decretals, the Acts of Councils, the Acts Sanctum, the ponderous volumes of the Greek and Latin fathers, and the unlimited mass of unwritten traditions which have floated from the commencement of the Christian era to the present time, in oral communication, or, in other words, by mere hearsay transmission; all these cumbrous additions made to the Holy Scriptures constitute the Roman Catholic rule of faith. But the text not only does not indicate a succeeding revelation, but it indicates strongly the contrary; while the context is conclusive in showing the Bible to be the only and all-sufficient rule of faith; "For I testify unto every man that heareth the words of the prophecy of this book, If any man shall add unto these things, God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book; and if any man shall take away from the words of the prophecy of this book, God shall take away his part out of the book of life, and out of the holy city, and from the things that are written in this book." These terrific words are uttered to prevent any alteration, either by addition or deduction, of what was given under the highest sanction of divine inspiration.

This testimony of the Lord is sure, for it maketh wise the simple. This law of the Lord is perfect, for it converts the soul. This gospel is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; therefore we are not ashamed of it. In this book there is a sufficiency; it is the only rule of faith; its parts are in perfect harmony, and all of divine authority. We shall have no more revelation. The final Amen has been spoken. The next we shall hear from Christ will be in the fulfillment of the declaration of our text,—we shall see him with the angels of God, in the clouds of heaven, returning to earth in all the glory of his Father. And this brings us to the principal thought of the text, viz., the coming of our Lord.

I am frank to confess myself an Adventist in the strict and proper sense of the term. I do not say now whether a pre-millennial or post-millennial Adventist; but I profess most unequivocally my faith in the second, literal, personal coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. It is one of the fundamental truths of evangelical Christianity. We can no more eliminate it from our creed, than we can his incarnation, death, resurrection, and ascension to heaven. As a church, we declare in our third article of religion, "Christ did truly rise again from the dead, and took again his body, with all things appertaining to the perfection of man's nature, wherewith he ascended into heaven, and there sitteth until he RETURN to judge all men at the last day."

Doubtless every careful Bible reader has been impressed with the fact that the Scriptures everywhere give special prominence to Christ, and the two great events connected with him; viz., his first and second coming to earth. The Old Testament says very little of a future life; almost nothing of heaven or hell. Neither the Abrahamic nor Mosaic covenant contained promises directly relating to a future state. Those passages which intimate it most strongly are found in the Psalms and in the writings of the prophets. "I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with thy likeness," is perhaps as direct and forcible as any of its class, in the Psalms. Daniel has a single passage in point. "And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt." These are almost the only passages which clearly refer to a future life with its retributions. They are enough, perhaps, to establish the doctrine, but at the same time so few as to show that it is not the aim of the Old Testament to inspire men to correct action here, either by hope of reward, or fear of punishment hereafter. When the future life is spoken of, it is incidentally, as it were, and not to call attention to it. In the Old Testament we only catch glimpses of immortality. But what is the motive held out to men? What is the burden of all these writings? It is the appearance of the Messiah, the Lord Jesus in the flesh, to take away sin. Their one purpose is consummated only in the blood of Christ, which cleanseth from all unrighteousness, held constantly in view, in ritual, sacrifice, and prophecy. These all point to the Lamb of God,—every type and shadow are fulfilled in him, and anticipate for the faithful the benefits of his reign, "God working in him, reconciling the world unto himself, not imputing their trespasses unto them."

If we examine the New Testament, we find Christ still the centre, crown and glory of the whole. Here is the record of the great facts foreshadowed. Here are enunciated the fundamental doctrines of repentance and faith. Here are Jesus' words, full of astonishing wisdom and sweetness. And here, too, is written John's version of the consummation of all things—the trials, triumphs and latter-day glory of the church; Satan in chains under darkness; the conflagration of the world; Christ coming in the clouds of heaven; the nations assembled to judgment; and the new heavens and new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness. And it is a fact that no motive for prayerfulness, labor, and faithful watching, is presented oftener, or with greater emphasis, than the coming of our Lord to receive us unto himself, that where he is there we may be also. We talk about getting ready to die; we exhort men to prepare for death; but the Bible does not talk so. It does not especially call our attention to the time or fact of our dying. It directs our mind to what is more important, viz., to the advent of our Savior. "Prepare to meet thy God." "Be ye also ready, for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh." "Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning, and ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding." "Behold the Bridegroom cometh; go ye out to meet him." "Watch, therefore, for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come." These passages indicate the manner in which the Scriptures urge men to holiness of heart and of life. There is only one passage in the New Testament which refers to death in this connection; viz., "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life." Every motive centres in Christ. From him our life is derived, and to him it should return. He should be to us "all and in all," that our every act may be "to the praise of the glory of his grace."

Christ's second coming will be very unlike his first. He came at first a helpless babe, wrapped in swaddling-bands, and cradled in a manger; but he shall come the second time a powerful Prince, clothed in the rich robes of royalty. He first came as the servant of all, and as the humble subject under the dominion of law; but he shall come again as the Conqueror of all, and as the Author and Executor of law. He first came as a lamb to the slaughter, with the chastisement of our peace upon him—the sin-offering of a guilty world; but "to those who look for him, shall he appear the second time, without sin, unto salvation." His first advent was unattended; the world had no place for him—"there was no room for him in the inn"; but he shall come the second time from heaven, in the glory of his Father, with legions of angels, and riding upon the red-winged thunder of the skies. His first visit was welcomed only by humble shepherds, who, watching their flocks by night, were guided by a star to the place where the infant Jesus lay; but his second appearing shall be greeted by the faithful members of his militant church from every clime, and, caught up together to meet him in the air, shall be forever with their Lord. Christ's second coming, like his first, shall be personal and literal, but, unlike it, shall be visible and glorious. And it is our privilege to be "looking for that blessed hope and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Savior Jesus Christ."

But will any signs precede his coming? Will any heralds announce his advent? Yes, heralds there will be, but their strange announcement will be understood only by those who "wait for their Lord." Heber sings—

"In the sun, and moon, and stars,
Signs and wonders there shall be;
Earth shall quake with inward wars,
Nations with perplexity."

And we find that his thought is borrowed from the Evangelists. See Mark 13:24–27. These signs will be known and heeded by those who are watching for their Lord. But to the wicked he will come suddenly; "as a thief in the night." With respect to the wicked it shall be true that, "as it was in the days that were before the flood, they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noah entered into the ark, and knew not until the flood came and took them all away, so shall the coming of the Son of man be." "Likewise as it was in the days of Lot; they did eat, they drank, they bought, they sold, they planted, they builded; but the same day that Lot went out of Sodom it rained fire and brimstone from heaven and destroyed them all; even thus shall it be in the day when the Son of man is revealed." "When they shall say, Peace and safety, then sudden destruction cometh upon them, as travail upon a woman with child, and they shall not escape." "But ye, brethren, are not in darkness that that day should overtake you as a thief." See 1 Thess. 5:1–6. Noah was apprised of the flood, and Lot of the fire, and so will God's saints be at the time of the end.

But when will he come? I do not know; it is not revealed. "Of that day and hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels of heaven, but my Father only." It is not necessary that we should know this; the fact of his coming is alone important. If we are as "those who wait for their Lord," the signs will duly betoken his appearing. Some thought he would come in 1843. Other times have been set since then by many; but being wise "above that which is written," they were doomed to disappointment. The time is wisely concealed. This attitude of the church, of expectant waiting, is attended with rich spiritual blessing. Whenever he comes, our great concern is to be ready to meet him. The tendency, however, is to put the time too far away. Death and the judgment are not contemplated with joy by the great mass of men. They are ever crowding these events into the distance. I think Christ's coming is near. The heavens above us and the earth beneath us are betokening his approach. The hill-tops of time are already tinged with the lustre of the dawning day. The Bridegroom will soon come to take the church, his Bride. Six of the Apocalyptic vials have been poured out; the last is now uncorked, and its contents are deluging the head of Babylon, "the mother of harlots." These are emphatically the preparation days for the millennium. Great commotions, governmental edicts, bloody wars, mighty revolutions, floods and fires, symbolized in the Revelation by voices, thunders, lightnings, and earthquakes, are heralding the glad era.

There are some facts worthy to be spoken of in this connection. The dispensation of Christ is called in the Scriptures the "last days." "God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son." "Redeemed with the precious blood of Christ, who was foreordained before the foundation of the world, but was manifest in these last times for you." Is not the end near when almost nineteen hundred years of the last dispensation of time are passed? The two former periods of the world's history have each been about two thousand years in length; why may not this third, and last, period be about the same length? In my opinion there is a combination of probabilities, some of which I do not feel competent to present, which look toward such a conclusion. But whenever he comes, it is my privilege to say to you, as he himself said to his disciples—"Watch, for ye know not when the time is."

We now inquire, For what is Christ to come? (1) To reward believers. Just before he left the world he gave these words of comfort to his sorrowing disciples: "I will come again, and receive you unto myself, that where I am, there ye may be also." "Ye now have sorrow, but I will see you again, and your heart shall rejoice, and your joy no man taketh from you." This was the occasion of Paul's triumph. "Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me in that day; and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing." Paul's grand coronation day has not come yet. You and I, if faithful, will be present on that occasion, not as mere spectators of the scene, but to share with Paul in the honors dispensed by Him whom we crown Lord of all. "For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first; then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord." (2) To punish the wicked. "When he shall come to be glorified in his saints, and to be admired in all them that believe," the wicked shall be "punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power." "And the kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rich men, and the chief captains, and the mighty men, . . . hid themselves in the dens, and in the rocks of the mountains; and said to the mountains and rocks, Fall on us, and hide us from the face of Him that sitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb; for the great day of his wrath is come; and who shall be able to stand?"

In conclusion, it becomes us to ask, What is our duty in view of Christ's coming? The prince of the apostles shall answer. "Seeing, then, that all these things shall be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation and godliness; looking for and hasting unto the coming of the day of God." Our duty is to be holy in all our conversation and conduct, for thus only can we contemplate that day with joy. It is to be looking for the day of God with joyous expectation, earnestly wishing for its coming as the day of our complete redemption and of Christ's glorious manifestation. Christ told his disciples to be "ready," lest that day overtake them as a thief. He charged them to "watch," lest a sudden coming find them sleeping. "And what I say unto you," says Christ, "I say unto all, Watch." "Blessed are those servants whom the Lord, when he cometh, shall find watching." By and by, dear friends, we shall hear the cry—"The Bridegroom cometh! go ye out to meet him." Let us have our lamps trimmed and burning, that we may be prepared to receive him with joy. By and by the marriage supper of the Lamb will take place; let us have on the wedding garment, that we may find admittance. Thus waiting and watching, expecting and longing, we shall be able when, hearing Christ say, "Surely I come quickly, Amen," to at once and heartily respond—"Amen, even so, come, Lord Jesus."

"The church has waited long
Her absent Lord to see;
And still in loneliness she waits,
A friendless stranger she.
Age after age has gone,
Sun after sun has set.
And still, in weeds of widowhood,
She weeps a mourner yet.
The whole creation groans,
And waits to hear that voice
That shall restore her comeliness,
And all her wastes rejoice.
Come, Lord, and wipe away
The sin, the curse, the stain,
And make this blighted world of ours
Thine own fair world again.
Come, then, Lord Jesus, come."

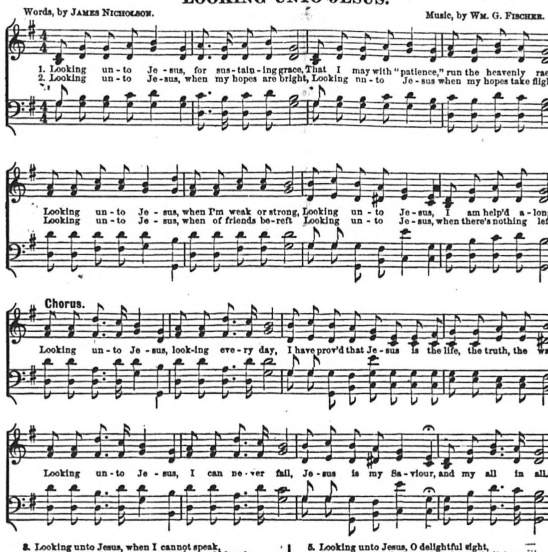
LOOKING UNTO JESUS.

Words, by JAMES NICHOLSON. Music, by WM. G. FISCHER.



3. Looking unto Jesus, when I cannot speak,
Looking unto Jesus, when my heart would break
Looking unto Jesus, in the darkest hour,
Looking unto Jesus, I have peace and power.—Chorus.

4. Looking unto Jesus, I can always see,
Jesus with approving smile looking down on me;
Looking unto Jesus, I can run straight on,
Looking unto Jesus, all my fears are gone.—Chorus.

5. Looking unto Jesus, O delightful sight,
Jesus turns my darkness into heavenly light;
Looking unto Jesus, through the stormy skies,

6. Looking unto Jesus, till the hour shall come,
When he sends his angels down to take me home;
Looking unto Jesus, till his face I see,
In his unveiled glory, through eternity.—Chorus.

HOW TO LOOK FOR GOD.

Seeing God, depends upon our purity rather than our intelligence. Men tax their minds in striving to explain the works of God, that they may understand all things; but they fail to discover their Father on high. The astronomer who walks among the stars, might as soon put his eye to the telescope and sweep the heavens with his instrument to find the wife of his bosom, as for men to scan the universe with the telescope of mind, that they may behold their God and Father. God is not seen in that way. While the astronomer peers into the sky for his wife, she is at his side, waiting for caresses of endearment. He has but to speak, and she responds. He needs but to leave his instrument to experience that inexpressible joy resulting from the union of hearts in love.

Searching vainly for God by their intellect, seeking by reason to explain the mysteries of God, you have only to cease those endeavors, and speak to him through the heart, to open the heart for the indwelling of his love, and that joy which none can give or take away, which comes as the result of a lost soul finding its God, will be yours to abide forever.

God lays no condition upon the intellect, for then many could never find him. He does not say, when you have secured an education, when you are enabled to understand my teaching, then will I reveal myself, but, "blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." Come unto God, all ye foolish, ye ignorant, ye despised and degraded from the ends of the earth. Open your hearts to the purifying influences of the Holy Spirit. Let love divine possess them, and every eye shall be opened to behold the beauty of our God. Your hearts will dwell at ease in his presence, and you will enjoy him continually.—Selected.

THE CROSS.

J. W. THOMAS.

"And he, bearing his cross, went forth." JOHN 19:17.

What a scene to contemplate! Jesus, the Son of God, going forth to the place of slaughter, bearing the cross on which he is to be executed. See the man. How pale and exhausted he appears. He has been betrayed, denied, scourged, mocked, smitten, spit upon, clothed with purple, crowned with thorns, and now he is being led away to be crucified. See the infuriated mob, how they clamor for his blood, and cry, "Away with him, crucify him, crucify him."

Is this the babe who slept so peacefully on his mother's bosom in Bethlehem's manger? Is this the child at whose birth angels sang, "Glory to God in the highest," and whom wise men from the east came to worship? Is this the boy who, at the age of twelve, was found in the temple disputing, and confounding the lawyers with his wisdom? Is this the man who went abroad preaching, and teaching the multitudes in the villages, and cities of Judea? Is this the one who hushed the winds and waves of Galilee? Is this he who fed the five thousand in the wilderness? Is this he who, standing on the verge of the grave, cried to a dead Lazarus, "Come forth"? Yes, this is he. That man yonder bearing his cross, is Jesus of Nazareth, the one who opened the eyes of blind Bartimeus near Jericho; who cast the devils out of the demoniac of Gadara, and who performed unnumbered miracles during the brief period of his earthly ministry.

He is the embodiment of all purity, excellence, and loveliness; the brightness of his Father's glory, and "the express image of his person." He has been unjustly condemned, and is being led to Calvary as a malefactor; but they who are his murderers know him not. His death is to be the most wonderful display of divine love, for through it a fountain of salvation is to be opened, whose waters shall flow to every nation, through all time, until in glory, a white-robed multitude, whom no man can number, shall cast their crowns at his feet, and exclaim, in one harmonious song, "Thou art worthy, for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood, out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation. And hast made us unto our God kings and priests; and we shall reign on the earth."

It is for this "joy" set before Jesus, that he "endured the cross." He not only consents to die for the race, but he dies under the most cruel misrepresentations and maledictions, that were ever heaped upon suffering innocence. He not only makes a sacrifice, but he is "made a curse for us," as it is written: "Cursed is every one that hangeth on a tree." Was there ever humility like this? "Being in the form of God, he thought it not robbery to be equal with God;" and yet he "makes himself of no reputation," meekly bowing beneath the epithets of malice, and the slander of lying tongues, and becomes "obedient unto death, even the death of the cross."

But it was by the way of the cross that he reached the crown. He died, and was buried, but he rose again, and ascended on high. "God also hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name; that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth. And that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord to the glory of God the Father." The suffering and glory are linked together. Jesus bore his cross, which was an instrument of reproach, of separation, of crucifixion. It was the way to joy, life, honor, and everlasting glory. Would we follow Jesus, we must bear our cross. What is it? It is not a literal piece of wood, such as Jesus bore. It is professing faith in truth, that brings reproach, separates us from friends, and crucifies us to the world. What unpopular truth does all this? Not the truth that Jesus was crucified; this is popular. Is it not the truth of his soon coming? This is uupopular. It is no cross to go with the multitude, but to come out from the world, and to wait for the Son of God from heaven—this is a cross. The Master said, He that will be my disciple, "let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me." He that confesseth "me before men, him will I confess also before my Father." "If we suffer with him, we shall also reign with him."

JESUS SAVES FULLY, COMPLETELY.

G. E. MERRILL.

"O Father, glorify thou me . . . with the glory which I had with thee before the world was."—JESUS.

Christ, the Son of God, left this glory which he had with the Father, came to this world, took upon himself our natures, suffered, groaned, and died on the cross, that we through or by having faith in him, and in his death, may have life, and may have it more abundantly, salvation full, redemption complete, in the soon coming kingdom of our great God and his Christ—Paradise restored.

Requisite to salvation in the kingdom of God is a full and a complete salvation from sin in this mortal state. This salvation is found in Jesus, God's Son. For this purpose came he into the world to save his people from their sins. For this reason was his name called "Jesus," that is, "Savior." He saves to the uttermost all who come unto God by him. It is, "whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely." "Come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money, come, . . . buy wine and milk, without money and without price." "Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord; though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool." "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

Is there any sweeter word in the Bible than this one word "come?" To the sinner it is "come." At the judgment it will be "depart." To the righteous it is "go into my vineyard." At the judgment it will be, "Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." This little word I repeat. "Come." Yes, come ye that labor and are heavy laden with sin, and find rest—sweet rest in Jesus. Take his yoke upon you, and learn of him, for he is meek and lowly of heart, and you will find rest to your minds. "For my yoke is easy," he says, "and my burden is light.

"Come to this valley of blessing so sweet,
Where Jesus will fulness bestow;
And believe, and receive, and confess him,
That all this salvation may know."

The blood of Jesus, God's Son, "cleanseth from all sin." "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." "All unrighteousness is sin."

"If we are cleansed from all unrighteousness, unrighteous acts, then are we cleansed from all sin. "Whosoever committeth sin, transgresseth the law, for sin is "the transgression of the law." "And we know that Christ was manifested to take away our sins, and in him is no sin." "Whosoever abideth in him sinneth not." John would have us to be careful and not be deceived in this matter, so he says, "Little children, let no man deceive you; he that doeth righteousness [or right acts] is righteous [or right] even as Christ is righteous, or right." "He that committeth sin is of the devil, for the devil sinneth from the beginning. For this purpose was the Son of God manifested, that he might destroy the works of the devil," which is sin. "Whosoever is begotten of God doth not commit sin." Why? Because he don't want to, for his seed [word, Spirit] remaineth in him, and he cannot sin "because he is begotten of God." "In this the children of God are manifested." "Whosoever doeth not righteousness is not of God, neither he that loveth not his brother."

Thus we may see who are the children of God, and who are the children of the devil. One class do righteousness, or right acts; the other unrighteousness, or wrong acts. One is pure, the other impure. One is holy, the other unholy. One is saved, the other unsaved. The thought of complete salvation from sin is thrilling. None can be thus saved without giving up all to the one that saves.

Oh, my brethren, come up! In God's name, I pray you come. Lay hold on eternal life. Don't try to save yourselves; you cannot. Expect nothing of yourselves, every thing of Jesus. Believe and honor the gospel as the power of God. Take fast hold of its provisions by faith. Submit yourselves to its conditions, and yield to be saved.

Well, let us praise God for providing such a Savior,—a Savior he is who saves fully, completely, continually, all the time. Every moment, under all circumstances, in every place, no matter—Jesus saves. O, precious Savior! Beloved Savior! "The chiefest among ten thousand," and the "one altogether lovely!" How I love thee, praise thee, for this full, complete salvation from sin, and by-and-by eternal salvation in thine everlasting kingdom!

"Jesus saves me, he is mine,
Jesus saves me, I am his;
Jesus saves while I recline
Upon his precious promises;
Jesus saves me, bless his name!
Jesus saves me all the time."

Worcester, Mass.

DAINTY CHRISTIANS.

They are so tender in feeling, that they positively cannot look upon the sufferings of the destitute; and as for the depraved—well, the fact is, vulgar sin shocks them so, that they positively cannot look upon it! About the foreign heathen there is some romance, some poetry; but as to the home heathen, there is absolutely nothing that is not "shocking in the extreme." On the principle that "a prophet hath honor save in his own country," these fastidious ones think that a soul is of value only in the ratio of its distance from their own land. If a certain member of the church has his or her feet led away from virtue, these special christians shrink from such as from lepers. What business had these creatures to be off their guard? What right had they to be weak? And how could they ever expect to be taken into fellowship with the saints again? Nay, the church must not be contaminated. Christians of the purer, better sort must not have their garments defiled by these fallen ones, or, if any one must needs make an effort on their behalf, let it be made by those who have nothing to lose in the way of public opinion, no standing to maintain. In a word, if there be any rough crosses to take up, any ugly work to be performed, these special christians are found wanting. They are just a degree above their Master, in that they will not condescend to do the things which he did.—Christian at Work.

NEARNESS TO CHRIST.

Without entering into the disputed questions concerning special opinions, there is one thing clear, that christians generally live on a plane of feeling and action far below their privilege and duty. This being a matter of general consent and common confession, we should not discourage any effort to remedy so great an evil; but rather encourage every aspiration of souls who "hunger and thirst after righteousness."

Why may we not daily, hourly, constantly feel that Christ is not a God afar off, but an ever-present friend and helper; his ear attentive and his hand ready to help? Let this be fully appreciated as an unquestionable and precious fact, and what more does the christian need?

Is he in doubt as to a given line of conduct? Jesus is at his side to solve the doubt. Is he burdened with some great responsibility? Jesus is ready to lift his burden. Is he oppressed under some heartache? The Savior is present with a human heart to sympathize with him. Is he overwhelmed with a sudden bereavement? Oh, how precious and tender are the comfortings of his Elder Brother, who walks by his side through the darkness! An ever-present, loving, and all-powerful Christ—that is the privilege of every christian to have.—Selected.

WHEN a person means to erect a handsome edifice upon the site of a great number of decayed buildings, it never once enters his mind, that he can convert them into any use for this purpose. "No," he says, "let them all be pulled down, and taken away." So the natural rubbish of the heart must be taken away, for it never can be employed in the erection of a holy temple to the glory of God.

THE PRESENT GOSPEL POSITION OF THE CHURCH.

This is an age of theological disagreement—of sect making, church strife and confusion. Religious teachers multiply like the frogs in Egypt, croaking in jargon equal to the confusion of Babel; a multitude assuming to present some new standard of christian faith, beautifully glossed with scholastic philosophy and traditional vagaries produced by allegorizing the Scriptures. This produces a multitude of religious classes, each class claiming to occupy the true gospel position.

The gospel presents but one position for any period or generation, so that God directs his people to occupy one, and only one, before the world, in teaching and life, at the present time. Under such circumstances the question of What is the present gospel position? is one of infinite importance to this generation. Many occupying false relations to Christ are doubtless as honest as was Paul when carrying the letters in his pocket, and externally as devoted and sanctified as were the Pharisees when scoffing at Christ and the then present truth.

But none could sustain true relations to God, only such as strictly conformed to the requirements of his Word. The sinner's ignorance and sincerity in receiving error for truth does not excuse him for taking a false religious position, any more than an inebriate could be excused for abusing his wife when crazed with strong drink, because he sincerely thought that justice demanded her chastisement. The sin consists in doing that which causes blindness and false apprehensions of truth.

God will provide that every truth, when proclaimed by his direction, be made so plain and impressed so forcibly by his Spirit that all who reject it sin against God and fall into condemnation. God has laid great stress upon these principles through all the history of the divine administration, acquitting none, only such as willingly yield to his instruction, so as to stand in the place and do the work required of them during their day.

The christian position and work is like that of farm laborers; some of it is always the same, and some of it necessarily changes to conform to the seasons. The work of Spring should never be attempted in the Autumn; each season has its appropriate work.

So God has given instruction to his church, as to her general and specific duties, as she marches on through the ages and dispensations of human experiences. Every period has its new developments of truth and work, so that the well instructed scribe is able to bring out of the store-house things new and old.

Progression is the order in this world. Happy is he that walks with God as Enoch did; not walking too fast or too slow, but with God under the cloud. God's walk with men is the progressive unfolding of his revealed plan for the restitution of this fallen work. The Infinite Mind ran through the preparatory ages, for the completion of this great work, and saw what means and agencies would be needed to carry it forward, and has given us in his Word a transcript of his mind and purposes relating to each dispensation and period.

Divine revelation to the church is like sealed orders from a government to the commander of its army; each order to be unsealed and become operative at a certain time and place, the government anticipating when each order should become the rule of action, so as to produce the desired results. When these documents are unsealed and the commander executes them faithfully, he is in harmony with the government, and it might be appropriately said "he walked with" it. So it is in the gospel, certain truths are "sealed up"—kept back—from the understanding of the church, until the time and circumstances should come when they would be needed to guide her in the path of duty and safety.

There is a sense in which the gospel position is always the same, because the truths leading to it are always operative; such as "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart," "and thy neighbor as thyself." This class of requirements apply alike to all men and at all times, producing an unvarying religious position. But there is another class of truths demanding specific duties at appointed times, or when foretold circumstances transpire. This class is called "present truth," that is, truth applying specifically to present events. Every generation has a portion of such truth, which is always more crossing to proclaim and defend than general truth, because it always relates to the sins of the people then living, and the judgments threatened for their transgressions, which necessarily produces opposition from all who do not accept it and are condemned by it.

Such a position is always very unpopular, and those who defend it are ever a small minority and reckoned heterodox and fanatical, because they walk in the "narrow way" where "few find it"; while those condemned by the message they proclaim are "many," walking in the broad way to "sudden destruction." Such facts have existed with the true church through the long ages, changes and dispensations of the past; and if there is any present truth for this generation, and the world has not been converted, the true church must be in the same trying position, proclaiming truth making her unpopular, tending to sift her numbers down to a few tried and faithful ones.

To ascertain what the present gospel position of Christ's church is, we must apply the foregoing Bible arguments and facts; for it can only be ascertained by the understanding of present truth, which always distinguishes the true from the false church. God has emphatically settled this question of what distinguishes the two classes by invariably justifying those who have received present truth and condemning those who have rejected it.

This was clearly manifested at the flood, the burning of Sodom, the engulfing of Cora and his company, the first advent, and the destruction of Jerusalem. The classes were not distinguished by the application of general truth, but specific truth. Jesus takes the two cases in which the principles were most clearly manifested—the flood and Sodom—and declares, "Even thus shall it be in the day when the Son of man is revealed." He said "They knew not until the flood came and took them all away." They knew not because they rejected present truth; while those who believed it did know that the flood was coming, and prepared for it, and were not taken away, but afterwards inhabited the earth restored.

We know positively, from the testimony of Christ, that when he "is revealed" at his second advent, some will know he is coming by accepting present truth, and prepare for his appearing, as Noah knew the flood was coming and prepared for it; while some will reject that truth and be as unprepared for his coming as the antediluvians were for the flood.

If this be true, then the last gospel position to be occupied by the church must be that produced by accepting the special truth that the kingdom of God is at hand and the gospel age about to end.

Jesus describes the last work of preaching assigned to his servants thus: "And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world, as a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come." It therefore follows that the true position for the service of Christ to occupy during the last days of the gospel must be to preach the gospel of the kingdom as a witness unto all nations. Jesus preached the gospel of the kingdom, saying, "The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand; repent ye, and believe the gospel."

No one, therefore, when the end shall come, can be found at his post, as Jesus requires, who is not preaching the kingdom of God at hand. Christ gives distinctly the main evidence upon which the argument must rest, that the kingdom is at hand, when he says—"When ye see these things [signs of his coming] come to pass, know ye that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand." Luke 21: 28.

It therefore follows that, as the church is to know that the "kingdom is at hand" by the predicted signs, she could not have that knowledge before they appear, and could not preach that specific message until that time. Isaiah foretells this preaching to all nations thus: "Behold, the Lord hath proclaimed unto the end of the world, Say ye to the daughter of Zion, Behold, thy salvation cometh; behold his reward is with him, and his work before him; and they shall call them [those who make and receive this proclamation] the holy people." Chap. 62: 11. Again he says: "All ye inhabitants of the world, and dwellers on the earth, see ye, when he lifteth up an ensign on the mountains, and when he bloweth a trumpet, hear ye; for so the Lord said, I will take my rest." This is evidently the rest that "remaineth" "to the people of God"; for the prophet continues the strain and says—"For afore the harvest, when the bud is perfect, and the sour grape is ripening in the flower, he shall both cut off the sprigs with pruning hooks, and take away and cut down the branches." Chap. 18: 4, 5.

This pruning is not the reformatory work of the gospel, but the destructive work of the judgment; for the "fowls shall summer upon the cut off branches," and all the beasts of the earth shall winter upon them;" for it shall be a "day of grief and of desperate sorrow."

Jesus says, "The harvest is the end of the world," when "the tares are gathered and burned in the fire." The proof is clear that just prior to the coming of Christ God will require his servants to "proclaim"—preach"—to the "end of the world"—"to all nations"—that "thy salvation [Savior] cometh;" which will be the time of "rest" at the "harvest." It will be said unto all who are found doing this special work at the close of the gospel day—"Blessed is that servant, whom his Lord, when he cometh, shall find so doing."

This is the grand prophetic characteristic feature of Christ's church, and her work of the last generation. This was designed of God to be the key-note of gospel music, and the head-light of christian movement for the last days. We do emphatically claim that this is the period for that work to be done, and the gospel position for the church to occupy.

We do not believe that any associated christian people are exclusively that church, doing that work; but that it embraces all, of all denominations, who accept the signs of Christ's speedy appearing, and proclaim them to the nations as a witness that the end approacheth. We would not be dogmatical or exclusive and bigoted; but we most devoutly believe that this is the great rallying cry of the age, the grand rendezvous from which the sacramental host will be translated.

Satan has opened wide the central crater of the bottomless pit, to hide, in impenetrable darkness, with its smoke, these all important truths. He is bringing his last reserved veterans into line to make the last desperate charge to break the ranks of Christ's chosen soldiers, at every possible point, and drive them hopelessly from this last gospel position.

We believe the great God has called us to stand at this post, and proclaim kindly but fearlessly these sacred truths, appointed of Heaven to be proclaimed as an invitation to the spouse of Christ to the marriage feast, and as a death knell to the Roman nations. Let us make no compromises to lower the standard of truth; receive no emotional experiences as a rule of faith; form no alliances with those who would silence this divine proclamation; and when the grand review shall come, be found at your post in the ranks of the faithful, with armor on, battle fought, and crown secured. J. C.

WHAT IS NEEDED.

In view of our nearness to the coming of Christ, the inquiry comes, What is the demand of the hour? What are the dangers, and what the remedies? First, holy men and women are needed, who live their religion every day, as well at home as in meeting; men and women entirely consecrated to Christ, soul, body and spirit, having pure hearts and tongues unsoiled by unkind or filthy words; hands that hold no bribes, that do no dishonest work; feet that walk in no unholy places for pleasure or profit; eyes that refuse to read the novel trash, now flooding the land, or to seek gratification in worldly scenes; ears that refuse to listen to the devil's music in operas, theatres, and fashionable parlors; mouths and stomachs unpolluted by rum or tobacco, or other defiling things; men who are as true and trusty in the dark as in the light; as honest alone as when watched by the public eye; who will put as good apples at the bottom of the barrel as on the top; who will pile wood to sell as carefully as to buy; men whose word is as good as their bond; who are willing every act, word, and motive should be known to the public; men who live as well Monday as Sunday; who carry their religion into every transaction of life, and keep unspotted from the world. Such men are needed everywhere to proclaim the coming of Christ, and the necessary preparation. Men full of courage, zeal, perseverance, and sympathy for the fallen. Men who are willing to suffer with Christ, bear reproach for well-doing, be misrepresented, abused, shunned, condemned, and yet bear all patiently, keeping steadily at work in their Master's vineyard.

There are special dangers in these last days, that require very careful watchfulness on the part of the christian soldier. These are hours of great peril. The decisive battle is about to be fought, and Satan is using every possible artifice to bind and cripple the children of the Most High. One common danger consists in the spirit of selfishness, leading to ambition, emulation, strife, jealousy, and a great unwillingness to submit one to another. In consequence of this prevailing spirit, infused by Satan into the hearts of men, troubles have sprung up in all directions. This spirit is directly the opposite of the Holy Spirit of Christ. It is the arch deceiver's wedge. It covets honor and high position, and complains if another is more favored than himself. It seeks to pull down and remove those who may be more esteemed. It feels no mercy or remorse. It pays no respect to the Scripture which says: "In honor preferring one another." This spirit has no place in a pure heart, or the religion taught by Jesus.

When it gets into those holding the truth, it makes them rigid sectarians, or bigots, and causes them to denounce as spurious any prosperity that may be in other denominations, who do not accept their theological views. One of this kind in a church will keep it in constant difficulty. He is ever stirring up strife, and creating dissatisfaction. He is full of backbiting, evil speaking, and evil surmising. Pure and undefiled religion may ever dread his presence and influence. He has no lack of zeal or knowledge, but does lack the spirit of Chris.t

One such person often infuses his spirit into many more, especially if he is a leader, or a public man. It is a law of human nature, that we partake of the spirit of those whom we follow and defend. If the leader have a wrong spirit or motive, his associates will most certainly partake of the same.

At the present time, the selfish, proud, covetous spirit, seems to be the prevailing, controlling power, in the hearts of many prominent religious men, hence the danger of participating in that poisonous element. Every one who aims to be a real christian, needs to watch specially against self-exaltation. The only sure remedy is to be filled with the Holy Spirit of God, and thus become "partakers of the divine nature." If any one on this earth ever had reason for self-exaltation, it was Jesus, but he was noted for his humility, and the more we are like him, the further we shall be removed from selfishness, jealousy, and every thing carnal.

If Satan cannot lead one into the self-loving spirit, and cause him to be a fault-finder, and a sower of discord, he will try to destroy his influence by false accusations, misrepresentations, and thus cause him to feel discouraged and disheartened, telling him the people have no confidence in him, and that he had better retire in silence. At such times a person is in double danger: first, of giving up in despondency, because of the malignant warfare waged against him; second, of letting his own will rise up in rebellion against such evil treatment. If he allows a particle of the spirit of revenge to enter his heart, his position is as dangerous as though it were self-love. No matter how much he is abused, he cannot stand free in Christ and be governed by the spirit of retaliation. But no one who does his duty as a christian, in these last days, in standing up for Jesus and his word, rebuking sin and exposing iniquity, can escape violent attacks from formal, worldly-minded professors of religion. While it may be his painful duty to rebuke sin, and expose the guilty to save the innocent, it must be done in love, and with no other motive but to please the Lord, else he will bring upon himself darkness and condemnation. Beware of Satan's snares. They are set with much skill. Watch and pray, trusting alone in Christ for success. M. G.

"THE SICK MAN."

"The sick man," as the Turkish power is called, is now threatened again with sickness unto death. For several years that government has been dying of political consumption, and is at present very feeble. In the early part of the summer, five Turkish villages in the Province of Herzegovina declared in favor of Austria. The spirit of independence and revolt spread rapidly until the matter has become one of serious interest to the Turkish gevernment. Several important victories have been won by the insurgents, and the prospect of greater success is in their favor. The latest reports ports show that two other provinces have joined the revolution, the Bosnians and Croatians. Twenty thousand troops are called for to suppress the last two revolts, thus showing them to be quite formidable. The spirit that caused these three provinces to revolt is spreading rapidly, and is liable to result in a religious war throughout Turkey, the overthrow of the empire, and a general war in Europe about the distribution of the spoils,.

Austria is watching this movement with deep interest, as is also Russia, Germany and England. "The sick man" is evidently in a critical condition. So is the "woman" on the "seven hills." We believe their final end is not far in the future, and that their everlasting successor—the Son of the Highest—will soon appear in regal glory, vested with all power in heaven and earth to issue and execute a writ of ejectment against all earthly governments, and to establish upon their ruins the perpetual kingdom of heaven. Amen. M. THE NATIONAL CAMPMEETING.

Our great campmeeting at Springfield, Mass., began Aug. 7th, and continued nine days. The ground is pleasantly located, well shaded, well seated, the seats having backs, and well supplied with excellent water. It is within the city limits of Springfield, on elevated land, about as high as the tops of the steeples in the city. It is a mile and a quarter from the depot. The meetings on this ground improve every year in spirituality, hence are becoming more and more precious to believers, and inviting to the unconverted. Is is a choice spot to many dear saints. Hallowed associations are held in happy remembrance, in connection with rich blessings received. It seems like home. To many, the Springfield camp-ground is the dearest spot on earth; especially the site of the "Tabernacle," where have been enjoyed most heavenly refreshings from the Lord.

At the time of present writing (Saturday morning, Aug. 7th), some seventy-five tents, including cottages, are occupied, and a large addition to our numbers are expected today; several preachers have arrived. Among them are Bro. Wm. Sheldon, from Brodhead, Wis., and Bro. J. A. Cargile, from Ala., who has been our faithful missionary in the south. We are much pleased with his appearance.

Since Tuesday, Aug. 3d, excellent meetings have been held each evening. The prospect is very encouraging for a blessed season, the coming week. There appears to be an unusual anxiety that sinners may be converted, and that all professors may enjoy heart purity.

Sunday, Aug. 8th., was a blessed day on the camp-ground. The weather was fine, audiences large, orderly and attentive. At 5½ o'clock in the morning, we had our first meeting in the Tabernacle. It was a precious season. To many, there is not a spot of land on the earth dearer to them than the one covered by the Tabernacle. There sinners have found pardon, and others have been filled with the Spirit. Many spoke of the past year as the best of their lives. They had been kept by the power of God in perfect peace and love during the entire year, as never before. Their love for Jesus and his coming had been intensified beyond any former experience. The subject of heart purity had become more than ever interesting and important.

At 9 o'clock, we had a heavenly love-feast in front of the preachers' stand. Scores brought in their glad, soul-stirring testimonies for Jesus. Preaching at 10½, 2½, and 7½. The meetings of the day gave additional assurance that the Lord would bestow special blessings during the continuance of the encampment, and results showed that our expectations were well founded. At the close, it was the general remark, "This has been the best meeting I ever enjoyed." A goodly number were converted, and fifteen baptized.

There was preaching by Brn. P. G. Bowman, W. Sheldon, S. S. Brewer, A. Ross, C. Goodrich, G. A. Brown, I. C. Wellcome, S. S. Mathewson, J. Hemenway, Srs. M. R. F. Clark, J. Benson, L. M. Stoddard, M. L. Durand, Sr. H. Hastings, M. Batchelor, J. A. Cargile, H. C. Smith, A. W. Sibley, and J. W. Thomas. All expressed themselves as satisfied that we are living near the second coming of Christ. This point is being fully settled in the minds of many, who have been doubtful till recently. There were quite a number of members of other denominations who took an active part in the meetings, and received rich blessings. They felt quite at home in our midst, and rejoiced in the privilege they were enjoying. We heard many say it was the best meeting they ever attended.

During the past four years, we think the meetings at Springfield have continued to increase in the spirit of devotion and consecration. Many of the regular attendants have made very marked progress in divine life. They know what it is to live in Christ by faith, and enjoy perfect love and peace, being free from condemnation. Many more are almost persuaded to lay their all at Jesus' feet, and say without reserve, "Thy will be done." The tokens are continually growing brighter to show the Bride is getting ready for the coming of her divine Lord. Blessed thought!

The closing day of the meeting was one of special interest. Ths early morning service in the Tabernacle afforded a heavenly feast. The love-feast at the stand was another season of refreshing, when scores spoke stirring words of experience in the christian pathway. Thousands of people assembled to hear the preaching of the word during the day, at the stand, and in several tents. In the evening a general conference meeting of lively interest was held, when several requested prayers, and many were blest. This was our last public meeting, which was followed by the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, when hundreds gathered around the communion table to commemorate the death and sufferings of our dear Savior. The occasion was solemn and blessed. We felt assured that in a little while we should meet all the saints in the glorious kingdom of God, to part no more for ever. Our hope never seemed more precious and real.

Monday morning, Aug. 16th, we bid each other farewell, thankful for the rich blessings we had enjoyed together, with a firm purpose to live in such a manner as to be ready any moment for the coming of our holy King. M. G.

Coming of Christ.—We publish this week the report of a sermon preached by Bro. C. W. Mellen, in the Wesley M. E. church, in Haverhill, Mass. It is a sample of many others that are being preached at the present time in the different evangelical churches. Let us thank the Lord that the glorious truth relating to the second coming of Christ is spreading with new interest, in all directions. M. G.

Springfield Letters.—Letters addressed to the following persons at the Springfield camp-ground were uncalled for, but can be obtained at the Crisis office by sending the address, with a postage stamp. Mrs. Susan Blaisdell, Mrs. Philena A. Mason, Mrs. A. C. Taylor, and D. N. Morgan. M. G.

WATERLOO, IOWA.

We have just closed our tent-meeting at Waterloo, which lasted from July 9th to August 2nd, during which time I preached thirty-two discourses, and held sixteen afternoon prayer and conference meetings, besides visiting and praying with a great number of families through the city, warning them faithfully to prepare for the soon coming of judgment. Our meeting has, we trust, been a blessing to the inhabitants of the city, besides many dear souls have been brought to a saving knowledge of the truth. A large number of backsliders from various churches have been reclaimed, besides a goodly number of sinners have been made to feel that there is power in Jesus' name to forgive sin. We baptized seven, and organized a class of about thirty members. Others are already pledged for baptism and membership. The prospects for Waterloo are encouraging.

We had much opposition from the clergy. They warned their congregations to stay away from the tent; but the people would come. From two to ten hundred were there regularly every evening, and listened with intense interest. The Lord gave wonderful power in presenting the word. May the Lord grant that it may be as seed sown upon good ground. We have just sent our tent to Cedar Falls, where we expect to pitch it on the 6th and hold over two Sundays. Pray for us. J. W. Burroughs.

Bro. B. P. Stevens writes:—"The blessing of the Lord be on the campmeetings this season. I wish I could be with you to enjoy them, but I am denied now, to have the more in the kingdom, I suppose."

THE TRACT FUND.

The Advent Christian Publication Society, at a meeting on Springfield camp-ground, August 11th, 1875, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

GOOD NEWS FROM THE FRONT.

To the A. A. M. Society.

Dear Brethren:—Doubtless many of the dear ones in Christ remember the report of my visit to North Carolina. Although I went through the storms and mountains, yet God has turned it all to his own glory. While I am here on this beautiful camp-ground, although it is pleasant to be here with so many of father's family, yet I have felt for several days that these times are too good for one whose duty it is to be on the battle-field; and to-day I received a letter from a good brother there—one of the twenty whom Bro. Moody preached out of his church for believing "our report." That you may know how the work goes, I give an extract from his letters, as follows:

Colletsville, N. C., Aug. 13th.

Dear Bro. Cargile:—As Bro. Goodwin is here, and we have just received your postal card, we hasten to reply. We are shoving with all our might. Our man will be here to-morrow, to commence plastering. We have a large portly church, painted, one third larger than the other. There will be stirring times here for those that live to see it. People for ten miles around are anxious to know when you will be here. You have set the world on fire, so to speak, down here. We hear it swaying round that Bro. Moody will have his big guns from Raleigh. We will want the house dedicated, and probably a church organized.

We are getting along better than any one anticipated, I think. We all send our love to you, and hope you are engaged for us in our destitute condition. Write immediately, and let us know what to depend on. We want you to be here by the second Sunday in September. I could write many things, but will omit this time. With respect, D. D. Coffey."

O praise the Lord that the little grape and canister thrown from God's fort (the Bible) has produced some disturbance in the enemy's camp. O how I feel the pressing duty to be there now. How natural it will seem when I get within range of the huge field guns of the devil's battery, and begin to feel his shot and shell. How much I crave your prayers that God will enable me, weak as I am, to hide in Jesus, and glorify his name, and that the truth may not suffer.

To the kind brethren and sisters who have shared their substance with me, I would say, God bless and abundantly reward you. I sent it home to my dear wife, who writes me that it came just in time to save her from being forced to contract debt for supplies. Thus have you by your liberality made our poor hearts glad.

Do pray for me in my field of labor that God may still strengthen. Pray for my dear ones at home in their loneliness. Yours for the war. J. A. Cargile.

Alton Bay, Aug. 21st, 1875.

TENT MEETINGS IN IOWA.

Again I write to inform you of the blessings of God upon our feeble efforts with the tent. We pitched the tent in Cherokee, June 24th, and continued the meeting until July 14th. Cherokee is the county seat of the county of the same name. It has about a thousand inhabitants, and is a thriving town of about five years' growth. There were a few of our brethren there who had organized a church, and were trying to let their light shine, and by their straightforward lives had obtained a good report of those that were without; still our views were new to many of the people of the place.

The rainy weather hindered us somewhat, and the ministers of the place, with the exception of the Baptist minister, Bro. Jenks, did not render us any assistance, but used their efforts against us, and counseled the people to stay away; nevertheless, the Lord was with us. We had good congregations, and the meetings continued to grow in interest until its close. Wanderers were reclaimed, sinners converted, and the saints comforted. The simple truths of the Bible recommended themselves to the minds of the people. Some, who had sought refuge in Universalism from the God-dishonoring and infidel-making doctrine of eternal torment, embraced the truth, entered boldly into the service of the Master, and were buried with him in baptism. Ten willing souls were baptized during the meeting, and others started to serve the Lord who, we trust, will be baptized ere long.

There was some noise around the tent for a few evenings, but it soon quieted down, and we had the good will of the people in "all that region." The last Sunday evening the tent was well filled, and as many more on the outside. The best of order prevailed. We think we can safely say the meeting was a success. Much prejudice was removed, and we trust that by the earnest efforts that may be put forth by the church, many more may be led to take a decided stand for Christ. We shall have no more tent meetings until after the farmers get through with their harvest. J. Ridley.

AN OPEN LETTER.

To those who were unable to meet with us at Springfield. Beloved in the Lord,—I suppose the hard times prevented many of you from enjoying our recent annual feast. Perhaps you will be glad to know we thought of, prayed for, and missed you. No doubt, you were seriously disappointed, and much saddened; but you know "Our Father" can impart blessings in your homes superior to any you can obtain away. I felt you would like to hear about the meeting, and who were present. I will allude to the last first. I think our numbers have been smaller this year than ever before; fewer coming from a distance than usual, while our local State meetings are constantly diminishing the interest in the National Meeting. Then again,—the rainy weather affected many unfavorably, dampening their zeal.

There were fewer of our Western friends present this year than ever before, Elders W. Sheldon and McCulloch being the only preachers. New York State scarcely furnished a representative man. Pennsylvania furnished Bro. G. A. Brown; New Jersey, Bro. A. A. Phelps and wife; while Kansas sent us Bro. and Sr. Clark, with Bro. J. C. Smith. Then came Brn. Bowman, Cargile, and Brundage, from the Southern field of labor. The accounts of their missionary tours were very affecting. Bro. B. seemed sad from the fact of his wife being affected by a serious ailment. The missionary fund suffered considerably from the stringency of the times, though quite a good sum was pledged. It seemed good to see Bro. H. L. Hastings back again, but he informed the congregation Sunday P. M. in his sermon of his intention to make his field of labor the other side of the water before the leaves fall.

We missed Bro. Carpenter's familiar face from the Secretary's stand; but Bro. Barnes officiated acceptably. There were comparatively few changes made in the officers of the Association. Both of our Editors were retained, and the meetings generally were more than usually harmonious. The same Campmeeting Committee were re-elected.

Bro. Potter was at the head of the boarding house, and the fare was the best for years. I heard not a word of grumbling.

The half-past five morning meeting at the Tabernacle was well attended. Bro. Grant at the head as usual. The effect of the meeting was to sweeten the entire atmosphere of the encampment. Of course, all do not see as Bro. G. does, and some seem rather to spite the sentiments promulgated there; yet any meeting, which exerts so good an influence as that, should be encouraged. We missed Bro. Brittain and his dear wife; suppose they were unable to attend.

The preaching was almost without exception the highest toned and most spiritual we have had at any meeting I have attended for years. There was much interest manifested in the social meetings, especially in Bro. Leslie's and the Hoosac Valley tents. In the latter Bro. Arthur Waite preached considerably, and with good effect.

The Spirit pervading the ground generally was excellent. Some young persons passing my tent at night, remarked, "This is the most solemn campmeeting I ever attended." There has been little discussion, much toleration, not too much singing, and taken as a whole (aside from the numbers converted), the best campmeeting I ever attended. Thank the Lord. I hope the general roll is soon to be called; and then, beloved, if faithful, no adverse circumstances will conspire to prevent your attendance. By all means arrange for that meeting. Be faithful a little longer, for soon "He that shall come will come, and will not tarry." "Even so, come, Lord Jesus." Amen.

Your Bro. in hope, E. Owen.
Belchertown, Mass., Aug. 17th, 1875.

Correspondence

From Bro. J. Ward.

Editors of the Crisis:—I thought that perhaps some of your readers might be interested enough in our welfare to feel desirous of learning how the cause prospers in this northern section of the land. Well, through all the varied trials to which small bodies of christians are subject (and I suppose large ones too, if any such exist), we still hold on to that blessed hope of a soon coming King; as we can find nothing better, though we have searched the Scriptures carefully to see if these things were so. We also have learned, by sad experience, that purity of doctrinal sentiments does not prevent trouble in the church now, any more than it did eighteen hundred years ago, when circumcision was the bone of contention. Satan, in his going up and down in the earth, has found it worth while to visit us, which has ended in division. The rock on which we split was predestination.

Some of our brethren having discovered, as they thought, that they were and are predestined to eternal life before the foundation of the world, irrespective of character; that they have, as it were, been thrown over the wall into the path of life, and there is no getting out of it till they reach the end of the journey. Indeed, it would appear from their remarks that they were registered as "through freight" some time before man knew good from evil. This teaching, to my mind, at least, bears a remarkable resemblance to Satan's, when he told the Lord to cast himself from the pinnacle of the temple, strengthening his temptation by quoting Scripture. We find among this class of professed christians those who gratify themselves with worldly pleasures, such as using tobacco and cigars, playing cards, getting drunk, and still insisting that they were the elect. We cannot see the waymarks pointing in that direction. On the contrary, the Master has told us to strive to enter in at the strait gate; to watch and pray.

Paul tells us that all scripture was given by inspiration of God, and it teaches us to deny ourselves all ungodliness and worldly lusts, looking for that blessed hope and the glorious appearing of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. From these, as well as many other waymarks, we have concluded that these Brn. have taken a by path. They are not certainly on the road that Paul traveled, when he said, at the end of the way, he had fought the good fight, he had kept the faith, etc. We have had Eld. Porter, of Danville, laboring with us all winter, and although we are not numerous, we enjoy peace and harmony.

Montreal, P. Q.

Bro. A. J. Young, Vallejo, Cal., writes July 29th:—"The church has been getting stronger and stronger since you left, having profited greatly from the effect of the union meetings. We gained public sympathy wonderfully. Quite a large company of young men and women are regular attendants at our meetings. We feel greatly encouraged. The Lord is blessing us richly every day. Bro. Carpenter's arrival was greeted joyfully by all. None have a word but to his praise, and he seems to work deeper and deeper into their affections every time he speaks. We have many from other denominations, who are regular attendants. Praise the Lord. How true it is, that every thing works together for good to those that love him. We think Sr. Carpenter's health is improving."

Bro. W. S. Dibble writes from San Francisco, Aug. 2nd:—"We are having good meetings this summer at our little chapel, and I think the one last Friday night was the best we have had since you left. How I wish you could have dropped in upon us. It would have done you good."

TEXTS FOR THE WAITING ONES.

How my heart burns within me this beautiful Sabbath morning of July 18th, as I contemplate the assemblies of the saints, and long to be among them to hear and speak of the love of Jesus. O how near and precious he is to me day by day! Religion is a blessed reality. It forsakes us not as age advances, but clears the way and smoothes its descent.

Before going down to my temporal duties, I read my portion in course, both in the Old Testament and in the New, the last two verses of which struck me as a standing exhortation from the apostle Peter to us in these last days. He says: "Ye therefore, beloved, seeing ye know these things before, beware lest ye also, being led away with the error of the wicked, fall from your own steadfastness. But grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. To him be glory, both now and forever. Amen."

Pray for us, that, with you day by day, this may be our happy experience. In christian love, R. & E. S. Willard.

Haddonfield, N. J.

The Iowa Mission Tent was pitched in Traer, Tama Co., Iowa, in July, with a good attendance and the best of order; also in Waverly, Bremer Co., Iowa, Aug. 3d, and over Lord's day, during harvest time, when most of the men were out of work. I began with twenty-five, and gradually increased till the tent was filled. The seed of truth sown we trust will take root, and bring forth fruit to the glory of God. I purpose to be at Brooklyn Aug. 20th, and over two Sundays; then I shall move on to Hamburg, Fremont Co., Iowa. I hope to call at the Southwestern campmeeting, in Page county, long enough to see and get acquainted with the friends of Jesus. My financial support has not been such as to make me rich, or lifted up; but the trial of going forth at my own expense, trusting in a kind Providence, is full of interest, and I trust the Lord has in store a crown of righteousness for me, and those who help, and all that love his appearing. Pray for me. P. S. W. Deyo.

Obituaries.

Brown. In Kennebunkport, Me., July 5th, suddenly, John Brown, aged seventy-nine years.

Being apprised by a telegram to his wife, who was at Chelsea at the time visiting friends, that her husband was dead, my wife with me accompanied her to her home of sorrow and mourning. On arriving, we found it even so. Death had done its cruel work, leaving a heart-stricken widow and children in tears and distress by the sad event.

Bro. Brown was a good man. His influence was good in his family and neighborhood, in the church and out of it. In short, he was a christian in daily life, respected by all who knew him, and will not be easily forgotten. He was a lover of the Savior and his speedy return. His last day on the earth was Sunday, July 4th. He went to meeting, and, as they had no preaching, he opened the meeting with prayer, and earnestly exhorted the church to diligence in this blessed cause, and a preparation to meet their Lord. In the afternoon he was in his seat, still more zealous for Christ, seemingly in good health and good cheer. Monday morning, very early, he was found suffering from pain. Restoratives were administered, but in less than an hour he fell asleep in Jesus, to await the trumpet's call. Wednesday, July 7th, he was carried to the chapel he so much loved to visit in his life, when the funeral services were attended by Elders Mitchell, Lowe, and myself. A sermon was preached from Isa. 25: 8, to a solemn assembly of mourners and people. May the widow's God comfort the heart-stricken ones.

L. Boutell.

Nye. On Syene Prairie, Fitchburg, Lane Co., Wis., March 4th, 1875, Mr. Sewell Nye, an old and highly respected citizen, aged sixty-seven years.

He was a native of the State of Maine, and removed from that State to Wis. in 1846, where he has ever since resided. He was a true friend to the poor, and no person applied to him for aid without receiving it. He was industrious, honest, and straight-forward in all things. He leaves no enemies. When a young man, he united with the Methodist church, but for twenty-two years past he has believed in the Second Advent doctrine. He often expressed a desire to live till the Lord should come, but death has done its work, and he now sleeps in Jesus, in the full assurance of a blessed future beyond the grave. In his christian life he has set an example worthy of imitation. The family sorrow not as others who have no hope. They believe, as "Jesus died and rose again, even so them also who sleep in Jesus will God bring with him." Funeral service by Bro. E. P. Graves, assisted by Bro. Elvirius Hitchcock. Words of comfort were spoken from Eccl. 9: 10.

Ella A. Nye.

Barnes. Fell asleep in Jesus, at his residence in Camden, City, N. J., July 16th, 1875. Bro. James Barnes, aged sixty-two years.

For many years our Bro. was a faithful member and zealous laborer in the M. E. church. Some nine or ten years ago he heard and received with joy the glad tidings of Jesus' soon coming; since which time he has been an ardent lover and an earnest advocate of that and other kindred truths. He occupied and filled faithfully the office of Deacon in the Camden church, of which he was a member, and by whom he was greatly beloved. His heart and house were always open to receive and entertain the saints. During his brief illness, he enjoyed great peace with the Savior, and died in the assurance of faith. He leaves a beloved christian wife, and also a son and daughter to mourn his loss, which can never be replaced. Funeral services were conducted by Elder Geo. A. Brown and the writer.

The dead in Christ shall rise and live,
When Christ who is our life shall come;
He will in us his Spirit breathe,
And then to glory take us home."

H. T. Taylor.

Huntress. In North Parsonfield, Me., July 25th, 1875, Flora, daughter of Bro. Thomas C. and Sr. Ann Huntress, aged seventeen years, nine months, and seven days.

Flora gave evidence a short time prior to her death that she had obtained a hope in the Savior, and was happy, sweetly resting in Jesus; and she faithfully exhorted her parents to greater faithfulness in the divine service, and her brother and sister to seek the Lord, that they all might meet again in that bright, sunny land not far away. She expected to sleep for a season until the morning comes of the the renewing of all things spoken of in the word. She made selection of Elder M. Stevens to attend her funeral, who spoke comforting words on the occasion from Job 30: 23. C. H. Hurd.

Greenwood. In Ashland, Mass., August 1st, N. Lizzie Greenwood, aged forty-two years.

Sr. Greenwood has been confined to her bed most of the time for the past twenty years in intense suffering. No tongue can describe it. She had great patience. She sleeps in Jesus.

M. E. G.

Young. In Lincolnville, Me., July 9th, 1875, Moses Young, father of Bro. A. J. Young, Vallejo, Cal., aged seventy-three years.

Bro. Young died in the faith and hope of soon seeing the coming King. He sleeps in Jesus.

FOREIGN NEWS.

TURKEY.

Vienna, Aug. 18. The insurrection in the Turkish provinces covers two hundred miles of territory. It is reported that the 2500 troops which landed at Kleck refused to march for Mostar in consequence of the insurgent occupancy of the mountain passes on the route. The garrison of Trebigne in Herzegovina, made a sortie yesterday, but were repulsed. The insurgents burned several villages during the engagements.

London, Aug. 18. A letter from Dalmatia of the 16th says that 16,000 men are ready to join the Bosnian insurrection, and that Sclavonians from all points of the world were arriving to fight for their independence and religion.

Aug. 19. The Times, commenting on the Turkish situation, says: "While we think the success of the rebellion would be a calamity at present, because it might precipitate a disruption of the Ottoman Empire and plunge Europe into a mighty war, we cannot blame the people for seeking to throw off an intolerable yoke."

Rangoon, Aug. 18. Reports of great floods in Burmah have reached here. The Irrawaddy overflowed its banks for miles in the district of Prome, doing immense damage to the rice fields and property.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 19. The Russian Government is engaged in putting 50,000 cavalry troops on a war footing.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

New York, Aug. 18. A special to the Times, from Augusta, Ga., gives the following particulars of a rumored outbreak among the negroes: There is a great deal of excitement to-day in this section of Georgia, on account of the report of an attempted insurrection by negroes in the counties about fifty miles from this city. Two days since a letter was found at Williamson's store, in Washington county, a place where a colored militia company drills, ordering a massacre of the whites on the 20th inst. The order was signed by a man named Harris, and stated that Rivers, a colored militia General of South Carolina, would be present and direct the movement. The order read: "Kill every white man, and take every gun you can get. Have all your companies ready. Kill with axes, hoes, pitchforks, and get gunpowder and shot as you kill." After beginning the work in Washington county, the negroes were directed to move toward Bartow, in Jefferson county, where they would be joined by Gen. Rivers. At first, many thought this a hoax gotten up for the purpose of scaring the whites, but yesterday a letter was found in Jefferson county directed to the colored companies of this county, and giving substantially the same instructions. A lady living in Jefferson county was also warned by a faithful servant that she had better not be at home on Friday, or she might come to harm.

Notices.

Bethel, Vt., Campmeeting.

The Bethel, Vermont, Annual A. C. Campmeeting is appointed to commence Saturday, Sept. 4th, and continue till September 13th.

Brn. J. Couch, E. A. Stockman, E. McCulloch, N. Wheeler, and others, are expected to be at this meeting. The fare is reduced on all roads controlled by the Vt. Central, reaching from New London, Conn., to Montreal, Canada; also on the Montpelier and Wells River R. R. All persons purchasing tickets on these roads for this campmeeting, will receive a return check free. Tickets good from Sept. 1st to Sept. 13th. Children under twelve years half price. The regular passenger trains will stop at the campmeeting station opposite the grounds as heretofore. Board will be furnished on the ground at 75 cts. per day. The boarding stand is run in the interests of the meeting this year. All kinds of provisions can be bought at the boarding stand. Teams will be kept at houses close by the ground at reasonable rates.

We hope every tent's company will invite a preacher to their circle, as this will give homes for preachers from abroad, and be for the spiritual good of all. If preachers come with hobbies, or fanaticism, they will find homes out doors, as their themes will not be tolerated on the ground. Let all come in the spirit of the Master, to work in harmony with the meeting for the salvation of the perishing. Pray much that we all may come with warm hearts and willing hands to this annual feast of divine things. A. A. Hoyt, for Com.

P. S.—Those who intend to build wood tents, should come early enough to get them completed before the meeting commences. Lumber can be had of C. M. Walker, Bethel, Vt., if applied for in season. Remember this. A. A. H.

Campmeeting.

A campmeeting will be held at Sparta, Wis., beginning Sept. 4th, and continue over two Sundays. We hope for a general rally, and an excellent meeting. Necessary preparations will be made for pitching tents, and all are requested to be on hand in time, to work for God. Let every family within reasonable distance be present, and bring tents if possible. This location is so near the river, that we hope a goodly number of tents will also come from Iowa and Minnesota. Let us have a grand rally of workers.

Committee: John Palmer, Wm. Wood, Bro. Mathewson, M. L. Huthinson, James Hewitt.

Brn. D. S. Clark, Philo Hitchcock, and other ministers will be present to assist in preaching the word. If any desire additional information, address Bro. Clark, at Sparta, Wis.

Connecticut Campmeeting.

The Lord willing, this campmeeting will commence in the grove near Plainville, Saturday, September 4th, and continue till Sept. 13th.

Experience has proved the depressing effect of the free board system in all campmeetings, where it is allowed; for while the motive may be good, it fails in practice. Many have come to consider this management an unequal division of the burden of the meeting, inasmuch, as it requires brethren who meet their own expenses and board themselves, to help pay a free board bill for others, whose special claim to the privilege they do not understand, thereby diminishing their interest in campmeetings, and hindering their liberty to labor while at the meetings. Nor is this all; the free table has prompt attendants and earnest laborers, who sometimes fail to engage earnestly in the work of salvation, and are at ease in Zion before they are aware of it.

We believe the simple rule of equality to all is the surest way out of this difficulty; and it has been decided to have no free board and no boarding table at this meeting this year. The committee, with the rest, will board themselves. None need stay away because the boarding table is discontinued, as provisions will be sold at the stand, and meat, oysters, and potatoes cooked, if desired, at reasonable rates. This step has been taken with view to glorify the Lord, and we think will equalize the burden. While christians are not called upon to provide for those who are able to take care of themselves, they will not allow the needy to go away hungry.

With the blessing of the Lord, we trust the meeting will prove as nearly self-sustaining as possible. Those coming by R. R. will find conveyance from Plainville to the camp-ground. Let all who can, bring tents and bedding, and every one a blanket, lest your neighbor rob himself to lend you. Above all, come filled with the Spirit of Jesus. As the lease of this grove expires this year, a meeting will be held on the ground, Thursday, Sept. 9th, at 9 o'clock A. M., to consider the future of the campmeeting. A full attendance is desired. Pray that the divine power may rest down upon the encampment, and the good news of the soon coming kingdom inspire every believer with renewed energy to save the perishing, and to be in complete readiness to wait for the Son of man from heaven.

M., and continuing over the following Sunday. All who "love his appearing" are cordially invited to be present. Inquire for Bro. Henry M. Cocke, who lives two miles west of the post office. Come with your Bibles, and let us "search the Scriptures" in "the spirit of truth," for in them we are assured that we find full directions how to obtain "eternal life." Let us have a genuine love feast once more while waiting for the realization of "that blessed hope." Amos Sanford.

M., and continue over the Sabbath. Let all attend who can. Our ministers in the district and vicinity will be expected. This will be the last District Meeting of the present conference year.

Chas. P. Dow.

A Quarterly Meeting will be held in Edinboro, Penn., on Saturday afternoon and Sunday (with love-feast at 9 A. M.), Sept. 4th and 5th. As important business matters will come up on Saturday, a full attendance of the brethren is desirable. G. W. Stetson, Pastor.

Pittsfield Campmeeting.

The Annual Campmeeting for the Eastern part of Maine will be held, if the Lord will, on the ground occupied last year in Hathorn's Grove, at Pittsfield, commencing Sunday, Sept. 5th, and holding over Sunday, Sept. 12th.

The ground has been enlarged and graded since last year. It is expected that all who can will put up tents for themselves, and furnish plenty of bedding and food. The Mission Tent will be on hand, and will afford lodgings for those who cannot put up tents, but all must provide bedding for themselves. Be prepared for the cold and storms.

Good board will be furnished at the boarding tent at the following prices: Breakfast or supper, 25 cents; dinner, 40 cents, except the last Sunday, when it will be fifty cents. Horse keeping near by at low rates.

The fare over the M. C. R. R. will be reduced one half. Call for Campmeeting Tickets for Pittsfield and return, as there will be none given at Pittsfield. Tickets good from Sept. 1st to the 14th inclusive.

We hope there will be a general rally to this Annual Meeting by our brethren and sisters from different parts of the State. Not many more of these meetings shall we enjoy here. Come, then, in Jesus' name and strength to work for God and the salvation of the perishing. All has and will be done by the Committee for the advancement of the interest of this meeting.

There will be ample accommodation for board at the boarding tent, and board also for horses at the stable, all of which will be managed the same as last year.

Fares.—The fare on the G. T. R. R. from all stations this side of Island Pond, will be two thirds the usual rate, and tickets good from Aug. 26th to Sept. 6th. All persons passing over the P. and R. R. R. to the campmeeting paying full fare, can have a free return pass back over their road by applying to the chairman of the committee on the camp-ground, and they will take them and their baggage from their depot in Portland to the G. T. depot free of charge.

Iowa Campmeeting.

The N. E. Iowa Advent Christian Campmeeting will be held in Edgewood (Yankee Settlement), Clayton Co., commencing Friday evening, Sept. 3d, and holding over two Sundays. The brethren have secured a pleasant grove about one mile from the depot, and they will do what they can to provide for the comfort of those who come. Straw will be provided free for bedding, and hay and grain can be had cheap. Let all that can bring tents and bedding, and come prepared to board yourselves; but those that cannot do so, come to the meeting anyway. We extend a general invitation to all the preaching brethren to come to the meeting. Leave your "hobbies" and "pet theories" at home, and come to work with the people for the salvation of the perishing. Help from abroad will be secured as the Lord may open the way. We hope to see a large gathering of the waiting ones to this meeting.

The Annual Conference will be held during the early part of the meeting. Let the churches therefore see that delegates are appointed and credentials furnished. Let all that cannot send delegates report by letter. We hope to see all of the preachers there, but if any cannot come, write us a letter, so that we may know of your whereabouts. A NEW WORK.

SATANIC SPIRITUALISM.

I have just published a work on Spiritualism, with the above title, containing 96 pp., 16 mo. It aims to establish the satanic character of spirit manifestations, both ancient and modern, and shows also that they are through demons instead of the spirits of the dead. These demons are shown to be the evil angels of Scripture, and to have their location in our atmosphere. The "familiar spirits" in the early Bible times, and the demons in the days of Christ and the early church, are shown to have the same general character which we find in the spirits of Spiritualism; while the phenomena in the Salem witchcraft, and several other occasions in modern times, are shown to have all the usual features of the reports of spirit manifestations in our day.

After noticing various instances of spirit manifestations in the past, the principles and doctrines of modern Spiritualism are given in numerous quotations from the spirits and leading Spiritualists, showing that they are every way blasphemous and anti-christian; and finally the tendency of popular religious teachings toward the doctrines of Spiritualism is shown to be fearfully manifest in all directions. While from its thorough treatment of the subject the work will prove invaluable to inquirers after truth, it will be found of especial service to ministers and others as a book of reference from its numerous quotations of authorities on various points.

I shall have the pamphlet on sale at my stand at Alton Bay campmeeting, and will fill orders for them at 20 cts. single copy, six copies $1.00, by addressing me there during the meeting, or afterward at Burke, Vt. Those wishing larger quantities will be allowed a further reduction.

I. K. Lombard.

From Zion's Herald:—"Rev. George Trask is in a fair way to have an efficient successor in Rev. I. C. Wellcome, of Yarmouth, Me. We have received a spirited tract from his pen, entitled, 'The Tobacco Plug and Cigar.' Its seventy-two pages are crowded with facts and figures, forming a terrible indictment against the foolish and vulgar habit and expensive indulgence of the use of tobacco. We wish it the widest circulation and the utmost success in its important mission."

From the Portland Transcript:—"Rev. I. C. Wellcome, of Yarmouth, Me., publishes a neat pamphlet of seventy-two pages, against the use of the 'The Tobacco Plug and Cigar,' being a friendly talk with those who use tobacco, with the hope of benefitting them in health, mind and money. It is a complete treasury of anti-tobacco argument and appeal. Sold for $10 per hundred, $1.50 per dozen, 15 cents single copy. Send order to the author." Sold at the Crisis Office.

LITTLE THINGS.

S. M. HODGDON.

It was only a smile of welcome,
Or a whispered word of cheer;
But it smoothed the path for the tired feet,
And lightened the load of care.

It was only a loving visit,
Perhaps but a loaf of bread;
"But ye visited me," will the Master say,
"'Twas your Lord whom ye clothed and fed."

It was only a tender message
To a heart bowed down with woe;
But from that one seed by the wayside dropped,
Shall a harvest of blessings grow.

It was only a few words spoken,
We thought they were weak and poor;
But they told of Christ and his wondrous love,
As the guilt of the world he bore.

And the Lord from his height of glory
Hath listened our words to hear;
For us is a book of remembrance kept,
And our names are engraven there.

It may not be ours to render
The service our hearts would crave;
He may give us no words that shall win a soul,
Or a life from destruction save;

But often along the wayside,
As we journey life's rugged road,
We shall find some hearts who have need of help,
Who are fainting beneath their load.

And though small is the help we can offer,
If it only be offered in love,
It will carry a blessing to earth's sad ones,
And be known and remembered above.

And the dear Lord, when he cometh,
Will bring us a great reward;
"Thou hast faithfully done the few things I gave,
Enter into the joy of thy Lord."

East Boston Mass.

THE PREACHER'S CALL.---NO. 3.

ALVIRUS N. HITCHCOCK.

Let us now briefly notice,

III. THE MINISTER'S WORK AND QUALIFICATIONS. These it is of the utmost concern for him to know. To misapprehend the latter will narrow his sphere of usefulness; while to mistake the former may prove his utter ruin. Of the minister's work, we are warranted in saying,

1. It is not to gain a reputation. While that may prove of value, as a means of doing greater good, it is not for a moment to be sought as an end. A desire toward reputation for its own sake is a selfish, carnal instinct, and does not at all comport with the spirit of the gospel. It is fundamentally absurd to suppose that Jehovah has set apart a portion of his church whose express object is personal distinction in this world. Jesus called his followers out of the world, teaching them that to be a friend of the world was to be an enemy of God. Surely the shepherd should be an example to his flock. There must be no compromise. In all questions of duty, therefore, he must never be influenced to pursue any course because he may thereby gain a reputation.

2. It is not to make money. It has long been a custom to esteem the ministry a profession, just as one speaks of the practice of law, surgery or medicine. In this popular opinion has not created itself; for who does not know that this age is prolific of aspirants who seek the ministerial work as a means of securing a comfortable and reputable livelihood? But it is easy to see that this course ignores the Divine call, and makes the stupendous work of saving souls tributary to mere temporal gain. It is, indeed, Scriptural that those who sow spiritual things should reap carnal things,—that they who preach the gospel should live of the gospel, but this does not justify preaching for gain. Worldly policy says, preach where you can get the largest salary; God's order is, preach where you can do the most good, whether your "hire" comes in scrip or scourging.

3. It is not to live in ease. The large number of reputedly "lazy preachers" seems to have some effect in reversing this decision in the popular mind. But we can seldom take what is as an accurate expression of what ought to be. There is certainly no more deplorable spectacle than a man sent of God to rescue the lost, dallying in ease and idleness. The King's business demands haste. Lost sheep still wander on the mountains, in forest, and glen, and desert, and heat, and cold. Hither must they be sought with all possible speed.

4. It is not to please the people. A corrupt age is thronged with "teachers having itching ears." Their chief ambition is to satisfy the clamors of the sensation-loving multitude. The true minister of God enters not into their labors. Being commissioned with a dispensation of the gospel, he finds the rough, unvarnished facts of gospel truth little adapted to please the popular tastes. He may, indeed, create no small sensation, but it will savor much of hostility on the part of those who are conformed to the world. Like our Lord and his apostles, his ministrations will often send—not peace, but a sword.

5. It is not to enunciate human creeds. This enters not into his commission. Before God and the Lord Jesus Christ, the Judge of quick and dead, he is charged to preach the Word. Creeds are the chief cause of division in the body of Christ. The true minister is sent to bind up and to heal, rather than to tear asunder.

6. It is not to build up a sect. While he may feel most at liberty among those of "like precious faith," he should remember that all denominational forces are to be subservient to the higher interests of a common salvation and a common brotherhood. He enters a purely human enterprise when he seeks denominational success as an end. He may choose his own channel of labor, but he should not forget that the various channels of church work are to be tributary to the one mighty river of free grace. He should feel that the Lord's ministers, like bees that wander in different directions, are sent to bring treasures to a common store-house. Let him labor, then, where he can accomplish most, not shunning to unite his sympathies and energies with any body of Christians, whatever may be their name. In a word, the minister of God is commissioned to spread the glad tidings of grace to all mankind, for the salvation of sinners, and the perfection of saints. He is sent as a reformer, with the gospel as the true basis of reform. Let him not be turned from his holy calling. He will be sorely tempted. Considerations of reputation, money, ease, popular taste, creedism and denominationalism will be presented; but, irrespective of all these, he must look after his Master's business. If he were laboring for himself in pursuance of temporal advantages, the case would be different. But, being employed by a Divine Master, the weight of his personal duty, as a servant of Christ, should turn the scale against all selfish considerations.

Of the minister's qualifications, we notice

1. Natural abilities. Certainly no one is divinely called to the ministry who does not possess natural abilities suitable for the work. As God sees fit to use instrumentalities, the minister's success will depend largely upon his own powers. In order for any cause to be effective, the necessary conditions of its activity must exist. The minister's qualifications may be considered the conditions necessary for the operation of a Divine cause. Prominent among these are his own faculties. Being sent as a teacher, he must be "apt to teach." This does not necessarily call for either brilliancy or shrewdness. He may be largely destitute of what is usually comprehended by these terms, and still be eminently successful. As he deals in facts that have a logical support, he must be able to present them with convincing power. As he must often appeal to the sympathies of the people, he must possess sympathies of his own. Since he is called upon to weep with those that weep, he should have a keen sensitiveness to human suffering. Being sent into the midst of all classes of people, rich and poor, learned and unlearned, sensible and simple, friends and foes, he should be wise as a serpent, and harmless as a dove. In short, clearness, depth, firmness, courage, tenderness, discretion and self-control, seem to be essential qualifications of a successful minister.

2. Culture. By this we mean the advantages of attainments in general knowledge. Education is not to be ignored. It should be sought both for the facts it furnishes, and the discipline it affords. The minister of the gospel needs them. Whatever may be his natural powers, they will become weakened through neglect and indolence. Of all men, he should be a hard student. He is called upon to cope with the learning and criticism of the age. The specious cavils of skeptical scientists must be boldly met. Indeed, the church herself demands an enlightened ministry. Nor is there any excuse here for ignorance. If a college training is out of the question, appliances are still at hand for a liberal culture. Books and libraries are countless; and they are the chief source of information, even among the well-educated. A preacher may have a good library even if he is poor. Let him add forty or fifty volumes every year. He will scarcely notice the expense, and will soon have a respectable stock. But, as we have intimated, they must be studied. A preacher who dreads and shuns application isn't fit for his calling. Laziness and lust destroy too many, even of those who profess to be teachers of good things. The chief difference between a cultivated minister and a clerical ignoramus is, that one has no books, while the other has them and uses them.

3. Knowledge of the word. This is all-essential. It is the word which he is called to preach. It is a lamentable fact that in modern times sermons have too often become merely scientific displays instead of gospel proclamations. The true man of God should be more familiar with the Sacred Oracles than with any scientific or classical textbook. All his learning should only contribute to the effective enunciation of Bible truth. The Scriptures are his store-house. He must know how to divide a portion suited to all classes. This richest of mines he must well explore; else how shall he give light to the blind, strength to the weak, life to the dying, consolation to the suffering, comfort to the mourning, peace to the troubled, and hope to the desponding? With all of earthly wisdom he will signally fail unless his acquaintance with the blessed Book be most intimate.

4. The unction of God. This is by far the most important of all the minister's qualifications. He may be rich in natural graces, skilled in the accomplishments of learning, and profound in the "letter of the law;" but if destitute of the indwelling Spirit, he will possess little power for good. He must have a deep experience in the things of God, if he would point out the way to others. Grace will do much toward compensating deficiencies in other respects, but nothing will make up for the lack of the "baptism of power." The man of God must be tender under its influence. Those who reap in joy are they that sow in tears. "Precious seed is borne with weeping." "Words that break hearts must come from hearts that are broken." Let the people only feel that their minister knows whereof he speaks, and they will be moved by his words. If they see that he preaches beyond his experience, they will treat his admonitions as an idle tale. Oh, my brother, seek the anointing! Live much alone with the Lord. Tarry upon the sacred mount until you partake of the Divine radiance. Then the people shall feel your power. Your words, no longer harsh and fruitless, will fall freighted with melting tenderness and love.

THE BIBLE.

R. P. ELBRIDGE.

All through the past ages, the Bible has stood like a solid rock. Around it have dashed the surging elements of human passion and human ambition. Still it has stood immovable, unbending, and uncompromising in its character, giving hope of heaven to those only who are pure in heart. The "Star" out of Bethlehem has ever been the hope of the world. Yet how great the number of those who are walking in darkness, and have not the "Light of Life." They are aware that they are hastening on to the judgment; that they must soon stand before the Judge eternal, and hear from his own lips their final doom; yet they seem to heed it not. As it was in the days of Noah, so is it at the present day. They eat, drink, buy and sell, but have no ruling principle of obedience to God in them. They rush on, heeding not the warning; "Therefore be ye also ready, for in such an hour as ye think not, the Son of man cometh."

The spirit, manners, and customs of the present age, are as much averse to purity of heart, as taught in the Bible, as during any previous age. The majority of the people, and even those who profess to love God and the Bible, are calling for popular preaching, that which feeds the intellect, though it starves the soul. But that which poor, hungry perishing souls need is that "living bread which cometh down from heaven." A pure gospel, while it holds up Christ as a present, living, and sympathizing Savior, will not leave out the terrors of the law, nor rob God of his justice. But, thank God, there are those who are full of faith and the Holy Ghost, who are ready to stand up boldly, and preach an unadulterated gospel, and warn the people of impending danger, and tell the sinner that "the wages of sin is death," and entreat him to fly to the ark for safety, ere it is too late.

We thank God to-day, that the religion of Christ has lost none of its excellences; that the pure light of the gospel still shines on the rising hosts of the Lord's saved people. We realize, in a particular sense, its ability to satisfy every want of the soul. We would not yield up the truth of the blessed Bible by conformity to the world; but rather take it as the lamp to our feet, and light to our path. The seal is on us. We taste of the good word of God, and the powers of the world to come. The way to glory is often through much tribulation, and often those whom the Lord loves best are subjected to the greatest and severest trials.

Of Daniel, it was written, "O, man, beloved of the Lord." If Jesus gives us a difficult place in which to stand, he will give us grace to overcome; for he has said, "My grace is sufficient for thee." Precious promise! Though our names may never be mentioned in history, yet we do rejoice that they are written in heaven. We are strangers and pilgrims here, but our eye of faith is fixed on "a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God." We seem to see the day fast approaching, when the Life-giver will appear to take his weary, waiting children home to dwell with him in his everlasting kingdom, to go no more out forever. Yes, we often sigh for our fair Eden home. We sigh for that day when the sin-blighted earth shall be restored to its primitive beauty and loveliness.

Oh, what greetings there will be, when we all get home! Dear brother and sister, do not your hearts exult at the thought, that soon you will enter that heavenly mansion, not made with hands, and receive a crown of glory, that shall never fade away? Dear reader, can you say to-day, that your name is written in the Lamb's book of life? If not, come to Jesus at once, for he stands with open arms ready to receive you, and adopt you into his noble family. The Lord help you to make the wise choice, that you may be his in time and in eternity.

ECHO.

I stood on the banks of a swift flowing river,
While I marked its clear current run speedily past;
It seemed to my fancy forever repeating
That the dearest enjoyments of life would not last.
"O, tell me," I said, "rapid stream of the valley,
That bearest in thy course the blue waters away,
Can the joys of life's morning awake but to vanish?
Can the feelings of love be all doomed to decay?"
The echo repeated—"All doomed to decay!"

"Flow on in thy course, rapid stream of the valley,
Since the pleasures of life we so quickly resign,
My heart shall rejoice in the wild stream of nature,
And friendship's delights while they yet may be mine.
Must all the sweet charms of mortality perish?
And friendship's endearments—ah! will they not stay?
The simple enchantments of soft blooming nature,
And the pleasures of mind, must they too fade away?"
The echo slow answered—"They too fade away!"

"Then where," I exclaimed, "is there hope for the mourner?
A balm for his sorrows, a smile for his grief?
For beautiful scenes like the present shall vanish,—
Where, where shall we seek for a certain relief?"
"O, fly," said my soul, "to the feet of thy Savior,
Believe in his mercy, for pardon now pray;
With him there is fullness of joy and salvation,
And gladness shall live, and shall never decay!"
The echo said sweetly—"Shall never decay."

CALIFORNIA CONFERENCE.

By appointment, the California Advent Christian Conference met with the church at Vallejo, on the fifteenth of July. The first business session was held on the seventeenth. The meeting was called to order by Bro. G. W. Ficks, of Sacramento, and opened by prayer. None of the officers being present. Bro. Ficks was chosen President, pro tem, and Bro. H. H. Snow, Secretary, pro tem. Bro. H. F. Carpenter was admitted as a member to the conference. Reports were read from the different churches. Bro. S. E. Jones, from San Jose, reported the Santa Clara church to be in the most prosperous and harmonious condition that he has ever known.

Bro. Bogart reported the church in San Francisco in good condition; that several had been added to the church during the last six months. There had been but little preaching of late, though all their meetings were good.

Bro. Dresser, from Maine Prairie, stands alone there. Meetings can be held in the school house. He thinks good might be done, though other denominations are somewhat prejudiced. Bro. Derickson, from Clayton, reports a good opening for preaching the word; also mentioned Nortonville and other places, where the word would be received gladly, and little companies gathered together.

Bro. Nichols, from Sacramento, reports a little company, not yet organized as a church, but bound together by the love of the truth in Christ, and his word; that they held regular meetings which were well attended; that the public was interested in the discussions of Bible truths, though most of the ministers of other denominations are striving to make them unpopular. Bro. Ficks also reported that they had a Bible school for all, which was well attended, and in which all Bible questions were freely discussed. He also reported a good work at Georgetown, about fourteen miles from Sacramento, where they preached every second Lord's day in the month, to a crowded house. They had been tendered the use of a hall free in Sacramento, provided they would not preach doctrine, but they had not accepted the offer, preferring to go into the streets and proclaim the all-important truths of the Bible, giving meat in due season. Bro. Carpenter will visit that city sometime in August, and organize a permanent church.

Bro. Young, of Vallejo, reported the church in a good, healthy condition, and the spirit of unity prevailing. The number of members is forty-six, but some have moved away to other places. He stated that the Vallejo church had succeeded in securing Bro. Carpenter for their pastor. He also took occasion to extend the heart-felt gratitude, thanks and prayers of the church to the Advent Mission Board, to Bro. S. E. Jones, and to the Elder D. D. Reed, for their liberal donations contributed for the purpose of bringing Bro. Carpenter to this coast. The conference then adjourned until after the evening service.

On reassembling, Bro. Seabury, the regular Secretary, was present, and relieved Bro. Snow. The minutes of the last meeting were read and accepted. The following officers were then elected for the ensuing year: President, D. Matthewson, Vice President, H. F. Carpenter, Secretary, A. J. Young, Treasurer, H. W. Snow. The old board of trustees was re-elected. A committee of four was then appointed to draft a constitution, to wit: H. F. Carpenter, S. E. Jones, D. Nichols, and Bro. Seabury.

The following preamble and resolutions were then offered by Bro. Carpenter, and unanimously adopted:

Whereas, the Advent Christian conference of California, now but one year old, has been blessed of God, by inspiring new life and courage in the hearts of those on this coast, waiting for God's Son from heaven, and has called into the field several new laborers ready to push the good work of proclaiming the Gospel of the kingdom forward, according to their ability; therefore

Resolved, that we thank God for so favorable a beginning, and implore his help still, that we may assist in extending our work in all directions; and that we may everywhere be workers together with God.

Resolved, that we recommend to all those of like precious faith, who live isolated, or in small numbers here and there, that they follow the apostolic exhortation, and lay by them in store, upon the first day of the week, as God has prospered them, and thus accumulate a fund to aid in defraying the expenses of preaching services, which the conference will assist in supplying, if they will write to the secretary of their desire to have such labors. It is further

Resolved, that we constitute this conference a Mission Society, to raise a mission fund for the purpose of carrying the proclamation of Christ's coming into new places, and to assist isolated believers in bearing the expenses of protracted meetings. Also

Resolved, that we will, by the grace of God, keep the unity of the spirit and the bonds of peace; and that in order to concentrate our strength against the many forces that oppose us, we will not magnify questions of doubtful inspiration to the distraction of the body, nor encourage those inclined to do so; but will join heartily in the work committed to us of God, to proclaim Jesus' coming, and prepare a people to meet him with joy.

A committee of four, one from each church, was appointed to receive subscriptions for a mission fund. The committee was composed of Bro. Ficks, of Sacramento, Jones, of Santa Clara, Bogart, of San Francisco, and J. E. Pettis, of Vallejo. It was resolved that the next conference be held in Santa Clara, in Jan., 1876.

Voted, that the minutes of this conference be published in the Times and Crisis.

A vote of thanks was tendered to the retiring officers, and the conference then brought to a close by singing the doxology.

In addition to the above, let me say, that each sermon at this conference, we trust, was "meat in due season." Our social meetings were seasons of refreshing. We parted with a strong desire to meet on the new earth, where parting will be no more. Preaching by H. F. Carpenter, G. W. Ficks, and Damon Nichols. We feel assured that this is the best conference held on the coast.

Thus, in looking over the past, we have great reason to feel encouraged; but there is need of much labor on this coast, and the brethren are crying, "come over and help us." May God raise up and send the right kind of laborers into the field, for the harvest is great. We feel that the Saviour is about to be revealed, and what is done must be done quickly. Now what can we do as an inducement to God's ministers, who leave homes, families and friends, and go forth into the fields of labor? They are "worthy of hire," and must be sustained. God help each member of our churches to feel the necessity of going down deep in his pocket to help supply these wants. A good tent and tent's company are much needed on this coast. Great good can be accomplished by laboring in this direction. We hope there may be more system among us, that the gospel may be promulgated and supported in this state. May our hearts yield and be led, as God may direct. The above is "respectfully submitted." A. J. YOUNG, Sec.

LAKE VIEW CAMPMEETING.

The first session of this meeting will soon be held, and it is time that all who voted for such a meeting, at our last conference, or spoke in favor of such a meeting, or even then or since have wished for a well-established ground and gathering of the kind, should make up their minds to attend, build tents, bring bedding, food, and all that is required, to well sustain the effort, and make the meeting an honor to the cause of truth, and an efficient means of saving the unprepared. The ground is central east and west, as our people are located in several counties, and at a pleasant village, at the outlet of the most beautiful lake Memphremagog, with ample hotel accommodations, stage lines centering there, from Sherbrooke on the north, Ayer's Flat on the southeast, and Waterloo on the west, that will bring all wishing to come to the meeting for fare one way, who will be supplied with free return passes on the ground; and extras will be run, if required, to meet different trains, so that persons can get to the meeting cheaply and conveniently, if they will inform me soon by what train, and on what day they wish to come, and I will arrange for extras if they are needed.

Board and horse keeping will be furnished on the ground at reasonable prices, and the intention now is to build a nice little chapel with a preacher's stand at the end. Horse sheds, seats, well and pump, and other required conveniences, the present year, and all this by the free-will offerings of the people of the villages mainly; and many of the donors are not converted persons, but are friendly to the meeting, and wish it to be a success.

Will not the Adventists, and those friendly to Adventism, in the counties of Compton, Stanstead, Broome, Missisquoi, Shefford, Richmond and Wolfe, and in all the surrounding region, as also from northern Vermont, and New Hampshire, come too and help support our meeting? As a conference, we are auxilliary to the New Hampshire State Conference, that can boast a large number of ministers, ample means, and the great Alton Bay campmeeting. We, in our humble capacity, are a little added to that great conference.

Have we not a right to claim sympathy and help in our time of great need from the parent conference? Will not some of the able New Hampshire ministers come to our first meeting at the pleasant "Lake View" camp? If you come by boat to Newport, Vt., from there all ministers will be brought on the beautiful steamer "Lady of the Lake," through the entire length of the lake (thirty miles), with its splendid summer scenery, and pleasant residences and villas unsurpassed, free of expense; and all others coming to the meeting, for fare one way; and then, of the avails of campmeeting travel by the boat "Capt. Fogg," binds himself to pay into our treasury ten per cent, annually.

Come, dear brethren, from all parts, well supplied with what you need, and a surplus for the preachers and destitute poor, that are worthy to receive aid, and let us add another to the well planned and located annual meetings, that shall honor God, advance his cause, and become an annual feast of tabernacles, that shall minister to the preparation of a people for the Lord, at his coming. All christians are welcome to come and build tents, erect altars, and worship with us, subject to the wholesome and necessary rules of our meeting; and are hereby kindly and cordially invited to come. All gospel ministers, who are friendly, are invited to unite with us in an effort to save men. Union is strength. There should be more christian union, and greater harmony and love on the part of God's people. Shall we cultivate it? Our meeting will afford an opportunity.

Perhaps I need say no more this time. We expect to get the usual reduction of fare on all the railroads, of which more hereafter. Pray for our meeting, and for me, for I have an oppressive burden of care upon my heart, and labor upon my hands. God helping me, and health permitting, I intend to do my duty, and the times being hard, work the harder, and with the more resolution; snd if there is any failure, others must take the responsibility.

CHARLES P. DOW.

Magog, P. Q., Aug. 2nd.

P. S. Those wishing to build, and desiring to use good economy in the matter of their expenses, can bring all they need of food and bedding, and will find shelter for themselves and horses on the ground free, as I shall have a tent there soon, and horse-sheds will be built immediately. Let all those who read this appeal, notify and stimulate others around them, and get them interested. Our ministers have a duty to do. Will they attend to it? C. P. D.

IN MEMORY OF ELDER NOAH JOHNSON.

ANOTHER VETERAN HAS FALLEN.

Elder Johnson has many friends, both East and West, who will recollect his faithful preaching and godly example. At an early age, he entered the ministry as a Christian preacher. After preaching many years among the green hills of Vermont, he moved west and located in Will Co., Ill., where he raised up a church, and assisted in erecting a house of worship, doing much of the work with his own hands. While here, he and the church of his charge united with the A. C. Conference, remarking that the Adventists were more like what the Christians used to be, than they were themselves. After laboring in Illinois several years, he removed to Vermont, settling in Ludlow, where, on the sixth of March last, he was called to part from his companion, Miriam Johnson, aged seventy-eight; with whom for fifty-eight years he had trod life's rugged pathway. This was a severe blow to our dear brother, who was sick at the time, but he meekly submitted to the stroke, trusting Him who causes all things to work for good to his tried ones. After the death of his dear companion, he failed gradually, until June 11th, 1875, when, after much suffering, he passed away like a tired child going to sleep, saying, "rest, rest, rest, just ahead." If dear Bro. Johnson had lived until July 9th, he would have been eighty years old.

While writing this, an incident, relative to his personal experience, occurs to my mind, which I heard him relate several years ago. When he was a young man his mind was deeply exercised concerning the subject of special providence; and so severe was this inward conflict at one time, that he came near being drawn into scepticism. Bro. Johnson was in the woods chopping. He had cut a large log nearly off, when, there coming up a shower, he thought he would seek shelter under the log. Before doing so, however, he jumped upon the log several times to see if there was any danger of it's falling upon him. Finding it safe, he sheltered himself under it, but as soon as he came out from its cover, it fell with a crash that would have taken his life if he had been beneath it. This remarkable interposition of an overruling power forever settled the mind of Bro. Johnson, relative to special providences. He rests from his labors and his works do follow him.

C. W. SMITH.

WHERE EMOTIONAL RELIGION FAILS.

From all quarters, and from all sorts of persons, the testimony comes that we are suffering a grievous falling away from the sturdy, old-fashioned, true-hearted integrity in life and action. The "Integer vitae" of the heathen poet is becoming, in our Christian land, a shadow of the past. Many things have conspired to bring about this result. To one—a chief one—recent events have called especial attention. We hope men's minds may be persistently drawn to it till all its tremendous mischief is fully understood. We have in mind that maudlin style of preaching the practical christian life which, under the special influence of one man of magnetic power, has to such an extent supplanted the teaching of God's word. Formerly, whatever differences there may have been as to doctrine, discipline, or worship among those who profess and call themselves christians, there was, in regard to the christian life, this entire agreement: All who preached that life, preached, as they supposed, of necessity, three things; conscience, principle, duty. These things were ever on the preacher's lips. Unfolded, it may be, in very different degrees of perfectness, they were stillunfolded and insisted on, constantly presented, perpetually urged. Comprehended in many cases, no doubt, imperfectly, they were still in men's minds; they entered into their idea of the christian life; and the influence of this was incalculable. But the new evangel of practical christianity has dropped those words from its teaching. The emotional nature takes the place of conscience, sentiment that of principle, and feeling that of duty; and the result is,—what it is.

Sir Walter Scott used to tell a story of a bridge that was built, somewhere in France, very shapely, very imposing, and all that. Ugly girders, unsightly string-pieces, and various other things were omitted. It was charmant, magnifique, and all the rest. But when the people went upon it they were plumped into the river. This is not a bad illustration of the character and working of this new evangel of practical christianity. It is very pretty, but it breaks down. In our view there is but one way to bring things up again to a better level, It may be a slow way; it is a sure one. Let conscience, principle, duty, be preached again, and once more taught as they should be, and men will be won away from this other teaching, which has been well described in homely but expressive phrase in England, as "cheap and nasty."—The Churchman.

"WHO LOVED ME."---Gal. 2: 20.

Three little sunbeams, gilding all I see.
Three little chords, each full of melody.
Three little leaves, balm for my agony.

WHO.

He loved me, the Father's only Son.
He gave himself—the precious spotless one.
He shed his blood, and thus the work was done.

LOVED.

Loved—not merely pitied. Here I rest.
Sorrow may come—I to his heart am pressed.
What should I fear while sheltered in his breast?

ME

Wonder of wonders, Jesus loved me;
A wretch—lost—ruined—sunk in misery.
He sought me—found me—raised me—set me free.

My soul the order of the words approve.
Christ first, me last, nothing between but love.

Trusting to Thee, not struggling restlessly,
So shall I gain the victory.
"I, yet not I"—but Christ who loved me.

OUR CONFERENCE.

Whose Conference? Northern Penn. and Southern N. Y. Shall it live or die? is the question. Who can keep it alive, and who can terminate its existence? The answer is forthcoming: Its members, ministers and churches; ministers, by union of effort and earnest prayer and labor; the churches by a hearty co-operation in labor and sacrifice. Let me ask the brethren if they have done their duty in attending our meetings, and have you given of your means as the Lord hath prospered you? Our ministers are compelled to leave the work of the ministry, and turn their energies after worldly pursuits, in order to provide the necessaries of life for themselves and their families. The Bible informs us that "the laborer is worthy of his hire," and that "thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treadeth out the corn." How are we obeying the teachings of our Master in regard to these things?

I was appointed as a committee on finance to solicit means to aid in the spread of the truth within the bounds of this Conference. I wrote a short article, and it was published in the Crisis, asking donations from the churches, and also from individuals, to aid this Conference. But very little has been received. Now I appeal once more to our brethren. Will you take up collections quarterly in your churches and congregations, and send what you get to the Treasurer of this Conference,—Bro. Sylvanus Gardner, Westfield, Tioga Co., Pa., or to our Conference meetings, or to the writer at Spring Mills, Alleghany Co., N. Y.? Let there be a general gathering at our next annual meeting, which will soon be noticed in the papers. Do not forget to send, or, what is better, come and bring some means to help aid this Conference in its financial affairs.

HOME AND HEALTH.

MOTHERS, SPEAK LOW.

I know some houses, well built and handsomely furnished, where it is not pleasant to be even a visitor. Sharp, angry tones resound through them from morning till night, and the influence is as contageous as measles, and much more to be dreaded in a household. The children catch it, and it lasts for life—an incurable disease. A friend has such a neighbor within hearing of her house when doors and windows are open, and even Poll Parrot caught the tune, and delights in screaming until she has been sent into the country to improve her habits. Children catch cross tones quicker than parrots, and it is a much more mischievous habit. When mothers sets the example, you will scarcely hear a pleasant word among the children in their plays with each other. Yet the discipline of such a family is always weak and irregular. The children expect just so much scolding before they do anything they are bid, while in many a home, where the low, firm tone of the mother or the decided look of her steady eye is law, they never think of disobedience, either in or out of her sight.

Oh, mother, it is worth a great deal to cultivate that "excellent thing in woman," a low, sweet voice. If you are ever so much tried by the mischievous or willful pranks of the little ones, speak low. It will be a great help to you, to even try to be patient and cheerful, if you cannot succeed. Anger makes you wretched, and your children also. Impatient, angry tones never did the heart good, but plenty of evil. Read what Solomon says of them, and remember he wrote with an inspired pen. You cannot have the excuse for them that they lighten your burdens any; they make them only ten times heavier. For your own, as well as your children's sake, learn to speak low. They will remember that tone when your head is under the willows. So, too, will they remember a harsh and angry tone.—Ex.

A PAIR OF BOOTS.

There lived forty years ago in Berlin a shoemaker, who had a habit of speaking harshly of all of his neighbors who did not feel exactly as he did about religion. The old pastor of the parish in which the shoemaker lived heard of this, and felt that he must give him a lesson. He did it in this way. He sent for the shoemaker one morning, and when he came he said to him,

"With pleasure, your reverence," said the shoemaker. "Please to take off your boot."

The clergyman did so, and the shoemaker measured his foot from toe to heel, and over the instep, and noted all down in his pocket-book, and then prepared to leave the room.

But as he was putting up the measure the pastor said to him, "Master, my son also requires a pair of boots."

"I will make them with pleasure, your reverence. Can I take the young gentleman's measure?"

"It is not necessary," said the pastor. "The lad is fourteen, but you can make my boots and his from the same last."

"Your reverence, that will never do," said the shoemaker, with a smile of surprise.

"I tell you, Master, to make my boots and my son's on the same last."

"No, your reverence, I cannot do it."

"It must be—on the same last."

"But, your reverence, it is not possible, if the boots are to fit," said the shoemaker, thinking to himself that the old pastor's wits were leaving him.

"Ah, then, Master Shoemaker," said the clergyman, "every pair of boots must be made on their own last, if they are to fit, and yet you think that God is to form all christians exactly according to your own last—of the same measure and growth in religion as yourself. That will not do, either." The shoemaker was abashed.

Then he said, "I thank your reverence for this sermon, and I will try to remember it, and to judge my neighbors less harshly for the future."

LIVING IN THE EIGHTH CHAPTER.

I was once expounding the seventh and eighth chapters of Romans to a class of colored Bible women, deeply experienced as to their hearts; but very ignorant, as I supposed, in their heads. It was before I learned this blessed secret I have been trying to tell you, and what I said I cannot possibly imagine now, but it was certainly something different from my present position. After I had been talking quite eloquently for a little while, an old colored woman interrupted me with:

"Why, honey, 'pears like you don't understand them chapters."

"Why not, aunty?" I asked. "What is the matter with my explanation?"

"Why, honey, said she, "you talks as if we were to live in that miserable seventh chapter, and only pay little visits to the blessed eighth."

"Well," I answered, "that is exactly what I do think. Don't you?"

"Laws, honey," she exclaimed, with a look of intense pity for my ignorance, "why, I live in the eighth."
